THIS little thing happened in March and in the following June Britishers read in the papers that His Majesty King George of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Emperor of India and Heir Pretender to the Throne of Long Island, New York, knighted the biscuit king. We do not know whether he became a Knight of the Bath or a Knight of the Garter, but this much we know now, that we did not know then, and that is, that Sir Alexander Grant, in annexing a title to himself at approximately the same historical moment disconnected himself from thirty thousand pound sterling or in the American language, $150,000.

AS we stated in the start of this charitable and nonpartisan column, there is no good reason to cast any reflections on the worthy Mr. MacDonald for accepting a gift given in such good faith. Even Lloyd George has no feeling in the matter except one of envy. Albert B. Fall, almost gagged when he heard the news. "Shucks" says he, "that's a country fit for heroes to live in. I had to turn over a lot of oil to get one hundred thousand in a satchel and a couple of steaks on the hoof, but in England they get the dough for nawthin'." Our readers are warned not to deal too harshly with poor Mac. He was tempted and even tho he was a Christian he fell.

MOST of you, I hope, remember the story of the devil and Jesus. This one in particularly is good. The devil took Jesus up on the pinnacle of the highest mountain in the world, or at least all of the world that the devil and God were then acquainted with, and promised him everything his heart desired, provided he fell for the devil's stuff. But Jesus was adamant. "Go to hell!" was his reply to the devil and the funny thing is the devil did as he was told. Mac-Donald unfortunately did not follow to that extent in the footsteps of the Lord. Mac knows the bible well and will swear a blue streak if a Communist suggests that the churches are opium joints that help to keep the workers in the toils of their masters, but when it comes to the money question he is not in Jesus' caucus. On that issue he lines up with Judas.

THE fact that Ramsay MacDonald is a socialist and a leader of the second international now called by some other name, that he is against the Communists, that he carried on plots with the Georgian plotters to overthrow the Soviet government—these and other facts may be considered as mitigating circumstances among the class conscious in pronouncing sentence on him. They will say: "Well, what the devil can you expect of a yellow socialist?"

THE editorial staff of the DAILY WORKER and other Communist editors, took the correct position in our opinion, when they took up a collection amounting to sixty cents which will help Mr. MacDonald to keep gas in his auto, in case his Georgian friends do not get the Baku oil fields and in case the British working class may chase him to the Orkney Islands. He will need a lot of gasoline so that he can "step on it." Besides being a token of international sympathy for a pauperized socialist faker, we also feel toward MacDonald much as the Irishman did to the British soldier who was reduced to begging in the London streets after helping the Empire subject the Boers to her rule. The soldier was in bad condition and as the Hibernian was passing, he dropped a penny in the beggar's hat. On seeing the condition the soldier was in toward the Irishman returned and dropped a guinea in the hat. The soldier, amazed at such generosity particularly from an Irishman, expressed his astonishment. The Irishman replied: "This is the first time I ever saw an Englishman wounded to any satisfaction. It is worth money to me."

SIXTY CENTS is not $150,000, but is will buy a few crackers, perhaps enuf to feed the premier's parrot. But perhaps Mr. Ramsay would not keep the bird unless it was "endowed."

New Jersey Labor Fails Silk Strikers

the present silk workers' organization in Paterson is an off-shoot of the I. W. W., and that the leaders of the strike had been expelled from the A. F. of L. Immediately one of the delegates from Perth Amboy was on his feet denouncing the statement of Young. There was a general clamor from the floor.

Both supporters and opponents of the silk strike endeavored to secure recognition of the chair. At this point, Henry P. Hilfers, of Newark, secretary of the federation, arose on a point of order to the affect that the constitution of the state federation of labor prohibited any recognition of seceding or dual organizations.

Entire Matter Is Dropped.

The president, Arthur A. Quinn, of Perth Amboy, declared the point of order well taken and proceeded to the next order of business which was the election of officers. This election proved to be a farce. The machine simply re-elected the former officers, including Quinn and Hilfers.

This action by the New Jersey Federation of Labor officialdom proves conclusively that like all other reactionary labor fakers they have no intention of waging a serious struggle against the capitalist exploiters for even the elementary demands of the working class. Two days before this same convention had made a gesture against injunctions in labor disputes.

In the report from the United Textile Workers, the delegates were told of the effects of an injunction secured by the Henry M. Dougherty company against the warpers of the United Textile Workers that resulted in the business agent of that organization being sent to jail for 15 days for contempt of court on a charge of violating the injunction. After hearing this report, the convention declared it would fight to the limit against any injunctions in labor disputes. The very next day after this resolution was adopted, four of the mills of Paterson secured a sweeping injunction against the silk strikers. If the federation leaders had been sincere in their opposition to the use of the injunction, they would have immediately offered their co-operation with the Associated Silk Workers' organization which is conducting the present strike, instead of presenting the degraded spectacle of the officials of the federation lining up with the employers against the striking silk workers.

The United Textile Workers, the largest union in the textile industry generally, has tried on many occasions to gain the support of the workers in the silk industry. But just so often as they have gained any influence, just so often have the leaders betrayed the workers to the employers. The result has been that the silk workers have refused to join it. Then when another organization comes into existence and does organize the silk workers, the United Textile Workers raise the cry of secessionism and dual unionism. As a matter of fact, the organization conducting the present strike is neither a dual or secessionist organization, having come into the field when there was practically no organization in the industry and built their organization from the ground up because of its fight for the workers and has succeeded in organizing them to their present strength which has enabled them to conduct the most effective strike ever called in the history of the silk industry in Paterson.

Strikers Expected Turndown.

The refusal of the professional labor leaders of New Jersey to aid in the fight against the injunction was expected by the leaders of the Associated Silk Workers. But this act on the part of the labor fakers will not deter the strike leaders in their efforts to secure the suport of the rank and file of the American Federation of Labor. The strike leaders intend to appeal over the heads of the leaders to the men and women who pay dues to suport the labor parasites and endeavor to enlist their support in a concerted drive against the use of the injunction. Two important mass meetings are to be held next week under the leaders of the Paterson strikers. The first is to be held in Carpenter's Hall, in the City of Paterson, the same hall where the New Jersey Federation held its convention and denounced the injunction. The second meeting is to be held on Thursday night, Sept. 18., in Webster Hall, New York City, where H. M. Hicks and Adolph Lessing, leaders of the present strike, and Robert W. Dunn, of the Civil Liberties Union, and other speakers prominent in the labor movement will endeavor to rally the militant workers of New York City to the support of the strike. At this meeting also a number of striking men, women and children will also be present so that the New York City laborers may hear every angle of the great struggle that is now taking place in the Silk City of New Jersey.

Convention Winds Up in Turmoil.

The convention of the New Jersey Federation of Labor closed amid scenes of wildest disorder precipitated by the Tammany politicians who controlled by a large majority as the election of officers question and of the indorsement of presidential candidates came up. Resolutions were introduced in favor of Coolidge and Dawes on the republican ticket. Davis and Bryan on the democratic ticket, and the independent candidates, LaFollette and Wheeler. The Coolidge and Dawes resolution was derisively hooted down amid cries of "Scab herders" and "Ku Klux Klan supporter." The fight for the indorsement of LaFollette developed to such proportions that the Davis and Bryan supporters withdrew the names of the democratic candidates and united with the republicans in a concerted effort to defeat the LaFolletteans. The resolutions committee then had before it only the LaFollette resolution. Chairman Poinsett, of the resolutions committee, announced the delegates that the committee did not concur in the LaFollette-Wheeler resolution. Immediately an uproar started, led by some of the LaFollette supporters who realized themselves in a minority. A whole series of points of order, objections, demands for the floor, and protests were made while the chairman, utterly confused, banged his gavel upon the table. Quinn, the president, who had ruled the convention with an iron fist, was so confused that he upheld points of order and repudiated them in quick succession, adding to the confusion existing on the floor. As it was the last day, many of the delegates had been celebrating and were well filled with bootleg hootch. A number of brawls broke in various parts of the hall, culminating in two instances in fist fights. Pandemonium reigned supreme for over 15 minutes while the battered and bleeding combatants were removed from the hall. Finally order was restored, and Quinn announced that a rising vote would be taken on report of the resolutions committee. Objections were made to this and a roll call was finally held, sustaining the committee report against the LaFollette resolution by a vote of 205 to 95.

Then the announcement of the election of officers was made and the convention adjourned while the frowsy delegates staggered to the street wondering where and when in hell they were going to get their next drink.

The convention ended as it began, with the delegates more concerned about securing a supply of hard liquor to keep themselves stupified, than they were about serving the interest of the people who paid dues for their junketing trips where they indulged in prolonged debauches, called state conventions.

Meanwhile, the real labor fight in the city of Paterson is being carried on by the determined and militant workers under the leadership of the Associated Silk Workers.

THE VIEWS OF OUR READERS ON LIFE, LABOR, INDUSTRY, POLITICS

"Poor White and Black."

To the DAILY WORKER—The conditions of a system whose motto has always been and must necessarily be, "Git all you kin while the gittin' is good," flourishes in this section of that great and glorious commonwealth, the State of Pennsylvania.

Sometimes it takes the form of cleaning up some of the bootleggers, who are alleged to have grown fat on the failure of the eighteenth amendment. Colored houses of prostitution also receive their due from the "spiritually minded," who are marching upward to Zion, while officials of the various towns warn Negroes to move out of town who, it is said, will not work. That is to say, work or "git." There is but one thing to do, and that is "to git," because the labor market "is easy and full here."

There was a time when we of the "effete East" talked of saving the souls of the Negroes of the south when they harkened to the voice of the siren, said siren being the agent of Big Biz, and left their happy cabins of the south to create surplus value in the north for certain "God-fearing" citizens. But gone are the golden dreams of yesterday, and today finds them just "hangin' 'round."

Equality on the Labor Market.

There is one fact, however, that stands out clear and distinct, altho we often cover it up with prayer and patriotism, and that is "po' whites" and "po' blacks" are equal on the labor market, in fact that certain organizations object to, but which cannot be Ku Kluxed away.

The "great kleagle" some time ago at a meeting here, stated that his organization was going after the capitalists who brought the Negro from the south and then turned him loose upon a "patriotic" community when they were done with him. This brought forth thunderous applause from the "po' whites," who seem obsessed with the idea that they are something set apart from the "po' blacks."

So it is true that the working class is ignorant, but the capitalist class is a close second. It is fortunate that that is so, otherwise they would not pursue the course they are pursuing. Every prop they put under this rickety old structure of theirs but guarantees its early demise. Here and there is one who seems to sense the rotten condition of things but for the most part they go heedlessly forward, covering today's hard times and unemployment with prophecies of future prosperity, and mutually congratulate each other on the prosperity they have on tap, but which they yet do not care to bring to the scratch.

It is a safe bet that 45 per cent of the petty bourgeoisie are headed toward bankruptcy.

Both Classes Ignorant.

The working class are ignorant due to the capitalist idealisms they have absorbed, and their actions are the hopeless, helpless grasping after straws to bolster up their courage and create mirages to stead them in the crumbling capitalist society. When they shall come out of their mirages that have been created for them by pulpiteers and goose-stepping instructors can only be imagined, and gauged by the economic sufferings they have undergone and of the amount they must still undergo under that system, whose motto is and must be "get all you can, while you can."—By Brass Check 701, Wheatland, Pennsylvania.

Exploitrs Always For War.

To The DAILY WORKER:—History shows that exploiters never desired to protect future generations from war and suffering. They stole the black man from his native land and used religion to justify it.

Abraham Lincoln, to prevent (unconsciously) future racial disputes, favored buying the slaves and returning them to Africa. He was not listened to, and of course, the Negro was disfranchised, but when the Russian exploiters and aristocracy were shut out as a menace to the new Russian government, that was all wrong.

Radicals are denounced for trying to prevent conflicts to future generations by present and past conditions and acts of society. They are denounced as traitors because they are so wholeheartedly loyal to insuring humanity rights to happiness.—G. E. Shoemaker, Freedom, Pa.

Washington Reports Progress.

To the DAILY WORKER.—A well attended meeting of the English Branch was held in Washington, D. C. Everybody who has been in the movement here agrees that there has been a steady growth in the Workers' Party in the nation's capital.

The following speak for themselves: A non-party worker who is organizing the unorganized restaurant workers in the District has solicited the leadership of the Workers Party of Washington.

Tenant farmers just across the Potomac in the "state of the presidents Virginia)" are now reading and praising the DAILY WORKER. They are joining up for work in the Party.—E. J. Ervine, Washington, D. C.

U. S. FASCISTI DISCUSS POLITICS

Foster Makes Big Showing in Factory Vote

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE Catholic Church pretends to be out of politics. Of course, this is not true. The church is in politics up to the neck, in every country, sometimes openly, sometimes covertly. Here in America its spokesmen tell us that it does not interfere in the game. In Italy, the Pope was on Mussolini's side, even going to the extreme of putting the muffler on Father Sturzo, the agrarian leader who was one of the chief enemies of the Fascist dictator. In return for the Pope's support, Mussolini waged war on the Masons, restored Catholic instruction in the schools and made several other valuable concessions to the Vatican.

THE Pope now sees the power of Mussolini slipping and he is not napping. Receiving a party of Catholic students recently, the Pope said: "When politics come near to the altar, then religion, the church and the Pontiff have not only the right, but the duty to give directions and indications to be followed by Catholics, the supreme one of which was given by the Divine Master, namely: 'Render unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's.'"

THE Pontiff regretted to see many Catholics adherring to a party which boasted its opposition to every religious creed. His Holiness was referring to the radical parties. The alleged follower of the "meek and lowly" Nazarene saw nothing inconsistent between the bloody policy of Mussolini and the Catholic religion. Neither is there. There is about as much christianity in the Catholic Church as there is in the Ku Klux Klan. Both are political organizations used to further the interests of those who control and subsidize them.

A PRIEST from Youngstown, Ohio, who once posed as a radical, recently returned from a visit to Ireland. He is a republican in Irish politics and a devoted adherent of Eamon DeValera, the alleged president of a mythical bourgeoisie republic. This priestly fraud, in an interview to a Youngtown paper, took occasion to express his views on Communism as well as on Ireland. He is equally ignorant of both. He is a typical Irish-American blatherskite, whose only stock-in-trade is beating his breast for Ireland and pulling the British Lion's tail, but keeping at a safe distance from the seat of trouble.

THIS stupid skypilot learned while in London that the British government was allied with Moscow and that every Englishman is an imperialist. This assumption is just as ridiculous as it would be to assume, after reading the Father Kirby interview, that every Irishman is a jackass. Father Kirby is of the opinion that what is ruining Europe is not capitalism but "the disintegrating propaganda issuing daily from Russia which keeps the people agitated and unhappy." "I believe," he goes on, "that there exists today an international conspiracy against christian civilization with headquarters in Russia." There is no propaganda against civilization coming from Moscow, but propaganda to abolish the system that is killing civilization. Only the overthrow of capitalism can save civilization. And one of the casualties, when that is accomplished will be the opium joint with headquarters at Rome, which has always been the enemy of human progress and always will be.

THE invitation extended by this column to its readers has not fallen on deaf ears. Comrade Kruse comes first with the following, and promises to be a frequent contributor:

THE "waiting list" is not only functioning at the factory gate. The Salvation Army's "training school" reports the largest class in its history and more applicants than it can handle. "Col." Thomas Martin reports that some applicants for courses in doughnut baking and bassdrum solo have had to postpone their studies for another year. The wise worker knows that the boom and blth of the skypilot's band has nothing to do with

STRONG DRIFT TO COMMUNISM IN UNION CENTER

Sentiment of Clothing Workers Revealed

William Z. Foster, candidate for president on the Communist platform, is running neck and neck with Cal Coolidge, and leads John W. Davis, donkey presidential candidate by a wide margin in the first tabulation of the DAILY WORKER'S Straw Vote, which was in full swing yesterday.

The DAILY WORKER Straw Vote has already aroused surprising interest among the workers in the shops of the Hart, Schaffner & Marx factory, 36 S. Franklin St., the Kuppenheimer clothing factory, corner Harrison and Franklin streets, and the Royal Tailors' plant, on S. Wells St., where over 3,000 ballots were distributed by Workers Party volunteers.

First Workers' Straw Vote.

The total vote in the three factories, which are union concerns under the jurisdiction of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, shows a surprising proportional vote for Foster. The vote is: Foster, 151; LaFollette, 496; Davis, 58; Coolidge 289, and Andy Gump, 4.

Marty Abern, City Organizer, Workers Party, declares the straw vote, which is the first presidential straw vote to be conducted right at the factory, is serving to bring the DAILY WORKER and the Communist presidential campaign to the attention of the workers better than almost any other medium of propaganda that has so far been devised.

Workers Show Great Interest.

Surprising interest in the DAILY WORKER Straw Vote was manifested when the Workers Party volunteers distributed the sample ballots at the noon hour yesterday and collected the votes of the factory workers in their ballot boxes.

Foster's vote, even among the office workers, which as a rule, was expected to give most of its strength to Coolidge, was astounding to the Workers Party volunteers.

The total vote in the Hart, Schaffner and Marx factory gave Foster a large proportional vote. LaFollette led with 206, Coolidge received 158 and Foster 67. Davis was a bad fourth with 31 and Andy Gump, who, like Davis, Coolidge and LaFollette, wears no man's collar, received 3 votes.

Foster also led Davis in the Kuppenheimer plant, receiving over twice as many votes as the donkey candidate.

AROUND WORLD FLIGHT, SCHEME TO BOOST BIG AIR NAVY PLAN

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Maintenance of a bigger and better air fleet are to be features of the future policy of the United States navy, it was announced officially at the White House this afternoon.

U. S. ATTEMPTS TO END ALLIED DEBT PROBLEMS

Funding Plan Hopeless Proposition

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The world war foreign debt commission will meet within six weeks to consider ways and means to open funding negotiations between the United States and the European nations, it was learned today at the treasury department.

Inspired reports have already been issued to the effect that France is considering the despatch of emissaries to this country to take up the matter of the debt, but these reports have been denied from Paris.

Say Dawes Plan Is Basis.

The statement is made in official quarters that the Dawes plan will so revive Germany as to enable her to pay the reparations assigned to the allied nations, in turn giving them an opportunity to repay the debts to America.

Nothing of the kind will, however, happen. The revival of German industry and commerce will not be permitted by the United States financiers who will control the operation of the Dawes plan, thru Owen Young, since it will set up a competitor to this country, as well as to the other powers, which will be to the detriment of the interests of the capitalists.

It is pointed out that should Germany be permitted by America to increase its productive powers, it would begin looking for markets to dispose of them, and will eventually come into conflict with the interests of the United States and England in particular. The truth is that the Dawes plan will not permit the development of German industry and commerce, but has been put into effect in order to give American capitalism a firm hold on German industrial life, regulating it to suit its own pocket.

Presumption Is False.

The debt funding commission is obviously not going on the premise, despite official statements, that the Dawes plan will furnish the allies with sufficient reparations payments to return the money borrowed from the United States.

The funding commission proposition will fail to reach any lasting decision on the debt question, unless additional pressure is applied to France, thru Morgan who has extended them a great loan, to come thru with some money. Feelers have already been put forth on this proposal and Herriot has been consulting with his ministry of finance in order to work out some means of getting a new arrangement into effect.

RADICAL CHINA LEADER MOVES TROOPS NORTH

Premier of Mongolia Is Reported Killed

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

SHANGHAI, Sept. 16.—News that Dr. Sun Yat Sen, head of the South China government, was on his way north to aid Lu Yung-Hsiang in defending the city, was received here with rejoicing.

The fighting is growing in intensity, all modern weapons of war being used. Private trucks and vehicles of all descriptions are being commandeered by both sides.

General Chang of Manchuria has cut the Peking-Mukden railway and is concentrating his troops for a march on the capital of China. Wu Pei Fu, commander of the Peking armies has called a conference of generals to consider the situation. The war has now involved practically all China, the active engagements have so far been confined to the Chekiang and Kiangsu forces.

Reported Assassination.

TIEN TSIN, China, Sept. 16.—Dr. Danzan, premier of Mongolia, was reported today to have been assassinated.

A serious situation prevails at Urga, the Mongolian capital, where business is at a standstill. Many American, English and other foreign residents are being denied permission to leave.

Mongolia, a part of the old Chinese empire, has a separate government.

ULSTER REFUSES POINT BLANK TO NAME BOUNDARY COMMISSIONER

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Sept. 16.—After a three-hour session at the summer home of Sir James Craig at Streatly-on-Thames, the Ulster cabinet this afternoon informed Premier Ramsay MacDonald that Ulster would refuse to appoint a member on the proposed commission to settle the Ulster-Free State boundary dispute.

Lord Londonderry, a member of the cabinet, said the belief was the government would not consider any proposal for an "All-Irish Conference."

"Ulster has nothing to give away," declared Lord Londonderry.

MACDONALD'S PRIDE AND JOY BUSY WITH VISITS TO BANKERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 16. — The Bankers' Club entertained Malcolm MacDonald, son of England's prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, at dinner. Otto Kahn, Dwight Morrow, General Guy Tripp of Westinghouse Electric, Judge Morgan O'Brien, Walter E. Frew, and other of the best-known big bankers and business men were hosts to the young man who is representing Oxford Union in debates with 17 colleges in the United States and Canada. Young MacDonald is studying the welfare work of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., and has been visiting the model apartment houses to see if they offer any solution to the severe housing situation confronting his father's labor government. Malcolm has been so busy visiting the New York Stock Exchange and seeing the big business men that he hasn't had a chance to get acquainted with the real New York of the East Side and crowded Harlem. So far as is known he has not called on any labor union officials.

OAKLAND CHIEF COP WON'T LET FOSTER SPEAK

Communists Will Hold Meeting Anyhow

By JAMES H. DOLSEN.
(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

OAKLAND, Calif., Sept. 16.—Declaring savagely that "No God-damned Communists are going to speak in our auditorium," Chief of Police Drew, of this city, has blocked the rental of the Civic Auditorium ballroom to the local Workers Party for a Foster mass meeting. The hall had been originally rented to the party for the 30th.

Unwittingly, however, the chief has made a laughingstock out of himself, for meanwhile the promoters of the meeting had taken the precaution of securing the right to another hall. Accordingly, the meeting for William Z. Foster Sept. 30 has been switched to the neighboring city of Berkeley, where it will be held in the magnificent High School auditorium, at Allston Way and Grove Street.

Fooled the Chief.

As any Oakland citizen by a few minutes' ride on a street car can reach the hall, it is expected it will be packed to the doors, largely with Oaklanders who will thus enjoy Foster's address despite the hysterical outburst of their local guardians of the peace.

The revocation of the grant of the hall here came about thru an investigation which the city department responsible for it asked of the police. The chief of police, Drew, in his letter recommending the hall be not granted, showed his familiarity with the DAILY WORKER by quoting in full from the issue of July 2, a telegram from Moscow announcing that "two seasoned revolutionists," Foster and Ruthenberg, had been elected to the Executive Committee of the Communist International. He then referred to Foster's trial in Michigan, stating that the "case was still pending" and to my own arrest here for criminal syndicalism in 1919.

After a short interview with chief Drew in which he liberally damned the Communists and everything Communist, I drew up a letter in the name of the Workers Party of this District, protesting to the board of city commissioners against allowing this precedent to stand.

Press Demands Freedom.

Copies of the letter were released for publicity and the whole matter has been taken up by the local capitalist press. The Scripps McRae local paper, the Daily News, editorially asks the citizens of this city to see that Foster is allowed to speak.

The city administration here is very reactionary. The commissioners are strong for Coolidge and it is reliably reported that with one possible exception, they belong to the Ku-Kluxkshirt brigade. The Better American Federation is active as is the California Manufacturers' Assn.

COOLIDGE'S GANG IS FRIENDLY TO FARMER; ELECTIONS APPROACH!

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Awakened to the necessity of yielding something to the farmers, after many years of covert hostility to the co-operative movement, the department of agriculture announces an expansion of its service of information to co-operators. Cris L. Christensen has been placed in charge of the new enterprise, and a corps of trained experts will "make personal contact with leading organizations throut the country in an effort to help solve individual problems."

Ten years of "research work" by the department, before extending this active assistance to co-operative marketing, is confessed.

PHILLY REDS IN ANTI-LOCATELLI DEMONSTRATION

Thousands Jeer Fascist Airman in Quaker City

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16.—"Down with Mussolini!" "Long live Matteotti!" were the cries that greeted the Italian world flyer, Locatelli, a vicious Fascist when he descended from the train at West Philadelphia.

Not only were there about 100 bankers, business men, correspondents and the consul to meet him, but also about a dozen Italian members of the Workers Party. More did not come since it took place in the afternoon and the other comrades were at work.

Run For Help.

The 12 comrades made a dash up to Locatelli and the 100 bourgeois ran for police help. Locatelli was spirited away by the cops in a taxicab and taken to his hotel, the Palumbi.

At this hotel, he was met by some 2,000 workers who by that time had gathered to greet this Fascist gentleman in the proper manner. With cries of "Down with Fascist, Locatelli," they rushed at him with boos and jeers, and began to give the Fascist sympathizers a little dose of their own medicine.

Beat Up Worker.

The cops came to rescue of the blackshirts. One Russian comrade was badly beaten up by the police and seven Italian comrades were arrested with him. They are comrades Morelli, Diglovanni, Bresi, Peronacci, Agenti, Didonato and Recchia.

The crowd dispersed finally with the singing of The Red Flag and The Internationale. The police, fearing another demonstration of the workers, set up a cordon around the hotel while Locatelli was feted by the local bankers and business men.

The demonstration of the Communists in Philadelphia is similar to one held against Locatelli in New York some days ago.

PERSHING MAY BE CHOSEN AS LEGION CHIEF

Convention to Discuss Entering Politics

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 16.—A movement was started here today at the sixth annual convention of the American Legion to elect John J. Pershing, just retired as chief of staff of the American army, as the national commander of the organization in place of John R. Quinn, outgoing commander.

The election of Pershing rests solely on his desire to accept, say numerous delegates, and if "Blackjack" should say the word, it is said, the convention will overwhelmingly vote him into office as the head of the legion.

Is Notorious Reactionary.

Pershing is one of the most notorious reactionaries and militarists that this country has yet produced. Elections take place Friday.

The feature of today's session of the convention was the address of John J. Tigert, federal commissioner of education, who lauded the legion's activity in sponsoring "educational work." The educational work of the legion has mostly consisted in spreading capitalist militarist ideas and in working hand in hand with the capitalists of America against the workers whenever they were needed.

It is being persistently rumored here that this convention of the legion will definitely put the organization into politics. "Hellan'-Maria" Dawes, vice-presidential candidate of the republican party, is here, ostensibly as a "rank and file" member of the legion, ready to march in parades with the rest of the boys from Evanston.

Those on the inside, however, are predicting that Dawes' presence indicates that there is a plan to have the legion get into national politics as an organization, endorsing the candidates that it chooses. A dinner will be given the would-be Fascist tonight and he will review the legion parade in the afternoon.

If the legion enters politics there is absolutely no doubt in anyone's mind, but that it will enter as a reactionary force, lining up with any candidate or party that has the most labor-hating candidates or platform, and the most militarist principles. The republican party is most generally favored, and the fight for national commander, the election of Pershing may largely hinge on the fact that he is a staunch upholder of the G. O. P.

SOCIALISTS SEE DANGER IN BOB'S SIREN TEMPTERS

Realizing only too late that its immersion in the icy waters of LaFolletteism in the hope that rebaptism might mean a rebirth, is more likely to prove a death blow to its rapidly declining organization, the socialist party in an official bulletin, issued under date of Sept. 12, warns its members that they must hold fast to their organization for fear the wily "Bob" and his friends may steal it from them.

"Comrades, you will be a sick and sorry lot, following the election, if you neglect your own sacred organization, the socialist party. Just here is the impending danger.

"A Connecticut comrade writes thus: 'Our party members are joining the LaFollette clubs and neglecting the socialist party meetings.'"

And why not? The socialist party, on the admission of such a leading figure as Morris Hillquit accepts LaFollette's quack remedies as the essence of socialism. Why should the socialist party members patronize an old bankrupt establishment when the new store has something "just as good?"

AMALGAMATION AT CARPENTER UNION CONFAB

Rank and File Out For Job Control

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 16.—Resolutions favoring job control by the workers, amalgamation, and other progressive amendments to the constitution are expected to be fought out on the floor of the national convention of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners to convene here Sept. 22. Over 1,500 delegates, representing 327,000 workers will attend.

A strong sentiment in favor of amalgamation is sweeping thru the carpenters' union. At the recent convention of the New York State Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, 34 delegates voted in favor of amalgamation and 82 against it. This is considered surprising when the former reactionary color of the New York state carpenters is considered.

The resolution favoring job control, which has the solid support of the rank and file, states::

1. Whereas, Our present agreement with the Employers' Association allowing the discharge of members at will is detrimental to the interests of the members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America because the employers have the opportunity of changing their carpenters with the specific purpose of using the new men as a whip to drive the old hands into speedier production, a condition that can only be compared with slavery and

2. Whereas, As this deplorable state of affairs in the building trades shortens the lives of our members, kills their mental activities and eliminates their desires for any human recreations, and moreover, breed discontent among our brothers, as the weaker and slower men are compelled to hate those that have more than the average speed and strength, and who are compelled to work to their utmost capacity because they are constantly in fear of being discharged. The weaker brothers during slack times are forced to work for less than the union scale of wages, thereby endangering the scale of wages of the entire membership at a time when they are most in need of being upheld, and

3. Whereas, This system of discharging gives the employer the chance to blacklist all those brothers who are active in the union and keep them out of employment and is a general admission of our incompetence to protect our brothers from injustice and from economic bondage that is equivalent to the open shop where workers are hired and fired at will.

4. Therefore, To correct this miserable condition under which the members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America are forced to labor, we, Local No. 2090, resolve and demand that a new agreement incorporating the following points be drawn up and put into effect as soon as possible.

1. Any member that is hired cannot be fired unless he works for the period of one day.

2. Any member who is not discharged after the first day of work cannot be discharged until he has completed one week of employment.

3. Any member who is not discharged after one week of employment cannot be discharged until the job upon which he has been hired has been completed, or the employer of the aforesaid job proves to the satisfaction of the Business Agent that he has no more work for such man or men.

4. It is understood that the employers will not be bound by these rules if things beyond their control conflict with them or if when at the time of hiring he designates the length of the job to the employe.

Be It Further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent by the secretary of the local to the District Council and to the official organ, "The Carpenter" for publication.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE OF THE TERRIBLE RISKS CAPITALISTS UNDERGO

MARION, Ill., Sept. 16.—Leonard Brummit, 20-year-old miner who died in the Benton hospital from injuries received in the Scranton mines, has been buried here in Rosehill cemetery. Brummit was working in the mines when a fall of coal and slate from overhead crushed him. He was taken to the Marion hospital and then moved to Benton, but all attempts to save his life failed. The accident might have been prevented by more careful safety precautions, Brummit's comrades declare.

CZAR McANDREW DEFIES RULING OF COMMITTEE

Reactionary in a Last Ditch Fight

In spite of the decisive action taken by the committee on rules of the of the board of education, refusing to concur in a report of Superintendent William McAndrew, advising amendment of the rules of the teachers' councils in such a way as to place the responsibility for calling the councils together entirely in the hands of the superintendent, McAndrew has so far failed to send out notices calling the meeting of the high school teachers which had been scheduled to take place this week.

Unyielding Boss.

Chicago teachers have little hope that McAndrew will yield in even minor details in the fight which he is waging for supreme control over the schools of the city.

"McAndrew has not called the councils in accordance with the instructions given him, and I am fairly sure that he is not going to call them unless he is literally forced to do so," Elzy F. Downey, president of the high school teachers' councils, told the DAILY WORKER. "He knows, and everyone else knows, that he has no legal basis for refusing to call the councils now, but that means very little to William McAndrew."

Teachers Will Fight.

Speaking of McAndrews proposal to reorganize the councils so that principals and district superintendents would be in control, Mr. Downey said:

"Of course the teachers do not propose to tolerate any such action. We organized these councils on the present lines after a long and hard fight, and we are going to keep them organized in such a way that teachers themselves have something to say on school matters."

Mr. Downey also indicated that the attempt of the superintendent to prevent notices of teachers' organizations being sent to the schools without his approval, would meet the united opposition of the rank and file of the teachers of Chicago.

Safe If Not Sane.

That the trust placed in McAndrew by members of the board who refused to pass a resolution explicitly ordering him to call the meetings of the councils, was misplaced, is indicated by McAndrew's total refusal to comply with their decision. Mrs. Hefferan, one of the members of the board, who refused to vote for this resolution on the ground that it would be "discourteous to the superintendent," was praised for her stand by reporters from the capitalist papers represented at the committee meeting at which McAndrew's pleas were denied. One of these reporters approached Mrs. Hefferan at the close of the meeting and expressed satisfaction with the "safe and sane manner" in which she had "refused to be drawn into the extreme militant left wing of the board," which had demanded drastic action.

100 PERCENTERS HAVE FALLING OUT WITH KU KLUXERS WHO GET MAD

By MORRIS SCHINDLER.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILKINSBURG, Pa., Sept. 16.—The Ku Klux Klan received quite a set-back in the "City of Churches" on Rehabilitation Day. The hooded hoodlums are quite strong in this city and have held quite a number of parades in masked nighties and wanting to continue their activities, they invited themselves to parade in masks with the other one hundred percenters. But something went wrong and they were informed that they were not wanted in the parade.

Wilkinsburg is a town largely populated by "Babbitts" and company officials of the steel industries around Pittsburgh, and this action came as a surprise to the kow-kows. After much discussion and threats against certain members of the city council, Mobilization Day was not celebrated here.

SEE DECISION IN I. W. W. CASE IN COURT TODAY

Dispute Before Master-in-Chancery Bernstein

It is expected that the final word of the law courts will be spoken today in the injunction case involving the Industrial Workers of the World now before Master-in-Chancery Fred Bernstein, 160 N. LaSalle St.

He will hear both sides today, according to schedule, and render his decision.

William A. Cunnea, attorney for the Fisher-Doyle faction, against whom the Griffith-Rowan-Bowerman faction took out a court injunction to prevent them from holding office in the I. W. W. organization in the capacity of general organizer and secretary-treasurer, was away on his vacation, and that was the reason given by each of the three judges before whom the case was presented for putting off rendering of a decision.

Cunnea Not Expected.

It is doubtful whether Cunnea will be present even at this session, but Master-in-Chancery Bernstein said he will go into the case and render a final decision in the matter today even if Attorney Cunnea fails to appear for his client.

The troubles back of the injunction case are being handled in the meantime by both factions thru organizational channels. Both sides are preparing for the real fight, which will be on the convention floor. The convention will be held about the middle of October.

As the matter rests today, the Fisher-Doyle faction will appeal to the convention on the strength of their right to carry on organization work until a re-election from the entire membership decides whether they are to be replaced and who are to take their places.

The Griffith-Rowan-Bowerman faction, the injunctionists, will argue that they being alternates for Fisher and Doyle had the right to act in capacity of chairman and secretary under instructions of the executive board.

Membership Reaction Anticipated.

How the entire membership will react to the bringing of a purely organizational matter into the capitalist courts instead of fighting it out in the organization thru the membership is being looked forward to with interest.

Capitalist court injunctions are famous for their use by bosses in labor strike to restrain workers by legal process from peacefully conducting organization work. They have been used time and again against every union of workers, be it A. F. W. or otherwise known by name. The I. W. W. membership have had their share in more than a full measure of capitalist justice. Their feelings on capitalist court justice are very decidedly moulded and at this convention it is expected their opinions will be expressed in no uncertain terms.

American Diplomacy Acts.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 16.—Under the threat that the elections would not be recognized by the United States unless the Nicaraguan officials permitted American scrutiny of the votes cast, the American offer of "supervising the elections of Nicaragua" has been "accepted."

SLICK ARGUMENTS ARE PUT UP FOR GRAFTING HEAD OF VET. BUREAU

A demurrer against indictments returned against "Col." Charles R. Forbes, former head of the United States Veterans' Bureau, and John W. Thompson, millionaire St. Louis contractor, in connection with the bureau scandals, was taken under advisement by the federal court here today.

Slick arguments were made for the defense by former senator J. Ham Lewis, who argued that Forbes could not have been bribed to give out favors which he had no power to bestow.

Complete silence was maintained about the obvious and shameless graft that went on in the bureau, estimated by Will Irwin, a non-partisan, to be at least $225,000,000. Indications are that Forbes will not receive any too heavy a punishment. That is, if he is punished at all!

FEAR MINE VICTIMS ARE KILLED IN BIG WYOMING EXPLOSION

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

KEMERER, Wyo., Sept. 16.—Meager reports of a mine explosion at Sublet, Wyo., near here were received shortly after one o'clock this afternoon. First reports said that 55 miners were believed to be entombed, and it was feared many were dead.

The explosion occurred in mine No. 5 of the Kemerer Coal company, seven miles from this town.

According to company officials, 80 men were working at the time of the explosion. They were unable to confirm the first report that 55 had been killed outright.

At 1:30 p. m. the company officials said only 55 men had entered the workings this morning.

One man, a pumpman, was rescued. He was badly burned.

Fire broke out in the mine immediately following the blast and was raging fiercely at 1:30.

JOHNSON LINES UP CONVENTION FOR LAFOLLETTE

After Boosting Couzens, Coolidge Supporter

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 16.—The convention of the International Association of Machinists which was opened yesterday by the republican party politician, Dennis E. Batt, until recently member of the executive committee of the proletarian party, today went on record for LaFollette and Wheeler in the national election.

Yesterday, the so-called "friend of labor," Judge Jeffries, was introduced by the renegade Batt, and the convention listened to the republican senator, Couzens, once partner of Henry Ford, and now a staunch supporter of Coolidge. How these fakers can blow hot and cold at the same time is a marvel.

The convention voted down Labor Party resolution and endorsed LaFollette.

President metal trades department, James O'Connell, in his speech this morning, stated labor organizations are becoming great financial institutions and corporations, labor leaders in the past dealt with strikers only. They must now understand finances. He doubted that labor would elect La Follette, but stated that this election would create a great movement.

Emme Fights Bankruptcy.

Delegate Emme, of St. Paul, refused to accept this declaration of bankruptcy on part of labor leaders. He stated he warned the labor bubble would burst after November election. He refused to accept State of Wisconsin as Mecca of organized labor.

Delegates Otis of Pittsburgh and Garner of Hammond also spoke against endorsement of LaFollette. Johnson stated he wanted no third party but first party. He also stated LaFollette and he were pledged for labor party after election but later modified statement.

The resolution on labor party was defended by Delegate Slavens, Rhode Island, who warned delegation against same old policy. He cited experience from so-called labor friends in Ludlow massacre.

The resolution on amalgamation was read. Report of committee takes place tomorrow morning. A lively discussion expected, Johnson stated. When he made take postponing discussion until tomorrow, delegates went sight-seeing to Ford factory.

Cal Changes His Mind.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—After the arrival of the airship ZR-3 in this country from Germany, President Coolidge is in favor of sending the dirigible Shenandoah on a trip to the North Pole, it was learned officially at the White House today. A previous scheduled trip of the Shenandoah into the Arctic regions was cancelled by the president.

Explosion in Pennsy.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 16.—One man was perhaps fatally burned and six others, four of them narrowly escaped death, today when a charge of dynamite wrecked the home of John Sesock of Carbondale, near here, in a blast which rocked that city.

Jake Goes Back.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16. — Jacob Gould Schurman, American minister in China, who is in this country on a leave of absence, will return to Peking in November, it was announced here today.

GOVERNOR McCRAY NOT ONLY CROOK IN INDIANA; KU KLUX KLAN STATE SEEMS TO BE LOUSY WITH THEM

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 16.—Refusing to divulge his destination, Lawrence Orr, chief of the state board of accounts, made a hurried trip out of the city today in connection with his probe of alleged irregularities in the handling of surplus war supplies obtained from the government by the state highway department. His office said he expected to be gone until Thursday.

The Marion county grand jury is also investigating Orr's reports as fast as they are completed, it was said.

At least two more weeks will be consumed by the investigation, according to sources close to Orr.

Frank Chance, a Hero of Sports for Profit, Breaks Into Headlines

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, we hear much of Frank Chance. His name appears in the top headlines. The news of his death overshadows, in Chicago, the arrival of the world-fliers. The presidential campaign is pushed aside. The war in China is side-tracked. "Dickie" Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., are forgotten. Chance is dead! That is most important.

* * * *

Frank Chance was not a famous engineer, like Charles P. Steinmetz. He was not an author of note. He had made no scientific discoveries. He had not gone in for even capitalist politics. He had not tried to push the world ahead. He was just a leader in baseball.

Frank Chance was called "The Peerless Leader" in the most prominently advertised, best paying sport in the world—BASEBALL.

Frank Chance, in five seasons, gave Chicago four National League penants and two world's championships. That was something for the frantic baseball fans to yell over, while it put much gold into the treasuries of the baseball magnates, who make a business of this game.

* * * *

Money rules in baseball. It is not an accident that most penants go to either New York or Chicago. These are the two largest cities in the nation. They furnish the biggest baseball crowds. The crowds pay to see the games, giving these two cities the largest receipts. And it is with this money that the managers outbid the managers from other cities in the purchase of baseball players in the open market, much after the fashion that slaves were put on the auction block in the days of black chattel slavery in this country.

Chance's job was to pick up the best baseball players in the slave market, bring them to Chicago, organize them into a team to win games before crowds that paid high admissions to witness the performance.

* * * *

Profiteering in baseball has led to graft in baseball. Where games cannot be won, they are bought. This has resulted in repeated scandals, in capitalist baseball, as in capitalist business or capitalist politics. These will not be eliminated because the labor-baiting ex-judge, Kenesaw Mountain Landis, has been made the overlord of baseball. The evils will continue just the same. Baseball will continue to have its own "Teapot Domes."

* * * *

Big crowds at high prices is also the dominating motive in college sports, as well as in professional sports. This has resulted in various "inducements" being offered athletes, gymnasts, baseball and especially football players to attend certain colleges. They don't need to study; just win games.

* * * *

There is little else outside of professional and college sports in this country. Where the great masses of the children of the workers are to be found, in the grammar schools, there are practically no sports. In the shops and factories, sports are almost unknown.

* * * *

Conditions in Soviet Russia, under Workers' Rule, are just reversed in comparison to the United States, and in other capitalist countries. Sports in Soviet Russia are not commercialized. There are no high fences, or forbidding brick walls around the athletic fields under Soviet Rule. Admission is free to all. Profiteering in sports is unknown. Physical supremacy takes the place of profit rule. The best man, instead of the highest pile of money, is the victor.

* * * *

In Soviet Russia the masses are attracted to active participation in the nation's sports.

Wherever pictures are displayed of "Red Sports" in Soviet Russia, it is usually a picture showing great masses participating. In Soviet Russia the broadest masses of workers, and the children are drawn into sports. The workers in the factories especially are enlisted in the Russian Section, the most powerful section of the Red International of Sports, that is growing in strength in all lands.

The lowliest worker from the most isolated factory has an opportunity to win a place on the All-Russian Soccer Football team. It was this team that recently played the British Soccer Football Team, giving hope that the Russian workers' attitude toward sports may spread to other lands, in spite of the fact that it will be denounced as "Communist propaganda."

* * * *

In this interim between the baseball and football seasons in this country, Americans are supposed to get excited about the British-American polo matches. Polo is the sport of millionaires. It is the game of the idle rich. It is charged that Pedley, of California, one of the best polo players in the country, is not on the American polo team, now playing the British, at Meadowbrook, because he did not have the proper pull in "society." The expenses of the British team are being paid by Lord Beaverbrook, who claims the first game was lost because the best players in England were killed during the war. That was an innocent confession that capitalism takes its strongest youth to send to its human slaughter houses.

* * * *

Capitalism has made a sordid mess of sports, just as it despoils everything it touches. Frank Chance was the hero of a social order that is passing. The big thing in his favor was that he was a good player, in addition to being a successful manager, according to the capitalist standards established for the game. What labor needs in America is the "evidence" used against Bruns in his preliminary hearing was his honorable discharge from the army and his naturalization papers.

ATTENTION NEW YORK WORKERS PARTY! BE AT DISTRICT OFFICE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—All members of the Workers Party are especially urged to be at the district office of the party, 208 E. 12th St., Thursday, September 18, at six o'clock sharp. This is extremely important and no comrade should miss the meeting.

Use Honorable Discharge Against Him

SUSANVILLE, Cal., Sept. 16.—John Bruns, I. W. W. member is still held in Lassen county jail on a charge of criminal syndicalism instigated by the White and Sugar Pine Assn. Among the "evidence" used against Bruns in his preliminary hearing was his honorable discharge from the army and his naturalization papers.

HUGHES' BEARD CANNOT COVER UP BLUNDERING

Pulled Boner on South American Relations

By LAURENCE TODD.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Secretary Hughes' modest declaration, in his supplement to the republican campaign textbook, that our relations with Latin-America were never better, may have to be crossed out.

Those relations were bad enough when he wrote the statement, but the military overthrow of the constitutional government in Chile has made them worse. And the worse they grow, the more difficulty does Mr. Hughes find in finding excuses for the compromises he makes.

American Diplomacy.

Three months ago he warned President Martinez of Nicaragua, who accidentally came into office while holding progressive views, that if Martinez were re-elected this year the government would not be recognized. Nicaragua's constitution forbids its president to succeed himself in office.

Today, Chile has a military dictatorship, thanks to a conspiracy by the leading officers of her army and navy, who have sent President Alessandri, a radical, into exile and have dissolved the congress, which has a radical majority in both branches. This overthrow of the constitutional government, moreover, was accomplished by direct violation of the "safety" clause in the Chilean constitution, which forbids military officers to meet for discussion of any political subject.

The question naturally arises, will Secretary Hughes point to the tatters of the Chilean constitution, as he did to the paper on the Nicaraguan constitution, and force the restoration of Alessandri to power?

Chile Snickers at Charlie.

That question answers itself. The "highest authorities" at the department may decline to discuss the situation, all they please, but the fact stands out that Chile is big enough, and important enough in the Latin-American world, to laugh at the laws of Mr. Hughes' imperialism. Moreover, notice that Alessandri and the congress are radical, and that they were about to enact certain labor legislation demanded by the organized workers of the republic. What's a constitution, when it obstructs the removal of a menace like that? Besides, the military junta which is now calling a special election to "reorganize" the government of Chile, has pretended to adhere to the constitution in some of the details of procedure after smashing the fundamentals. The state department is looking for evidence that the fascist coup at Santiago is quite all right.

Difficulties nevertheless present themselves at once. In every other Latin-American country there are groups of politicians and military chiefs who have hopes of a revolutionary rise to a presidency. They will point to Hughes' acceptance of the Chilean coup, and will announce to their prospective followers that constitutional safeguards do not apply to any case involving a real military success. Kill enough of the other faction, and Hughes will take you to his bosom.

Kicking Over Traces.

Just as Mussolini has failed to convince his bandits that they must not kill too many of their opponents without provocation, so the imperial headquarters at Washington is finding it impossible to keep all of its subject states in order. Brazil, Honduras, Chile, all within a summer have kicked over the traces placed upon them by Mr. Hughes. His veto of their independent tendencies exhibited at the Santiago conference last year has led them to greater activity in the League of Nations, and to new defiances of his mandate that political changes shall be made only in a constitutional way.

The sum of the matter is that Latin America is growing up, and is rejecting the imperial pretensions of Washington. It will enter the League of Nations, and it will go thru the political and social struggles incident to the development of modern industry and modern industrial relations, without asking consent of Mr. Hughes.

At the moment, Mexico and Brazil are recovering from the unsuccessful attempts of their old landed aristocrats and financiers to regain power by military revolt. In Chile, the reactionaries have taken power but may be unable to hold it. National defiance, emboldened the Latin Americans in their campaign of ridicule and denunciation of the state department. They are steadily forcing the department to a point where, before it brings pressure on a Latin republic, it must confess that it does so in the interest solely of American bankers or investors, and only because resistance by the Latins will be negligible.

'HERESY TRIAL AN EYE-OPENER' —BISHOP BROWN

Heretic Takes Stand with Communists

"My sympathies are all with the Communist movement," Bishop William Montgomery Brown told the DAILY WORKER in an interview, during which Bishop Brown denounced "Mobilization Day" and declared for the abolition of class rule thru the principles of Communism.

Bishop Brown declared his defense against the charge of heresy is a fight against the "supernaturalistic representations of the Bible, and a fight to free the Church from the handicap of uncertain literalism."

Talks of Heresy Trial.

He declared that the heresy trial in Cleveland, where he was found guilty of heresy by an ecclesiastical court of the Protestant Episcopal Church last May, "Opened the eyes of many to the fact that the church has no revelation from God thru Moses and Paul that she can and dares to oppose to the revelation of nature to the same end thru, say Darwin and Marx."

"Russia is the hope of the world," Bishop Brown declared. He commended the Soviet government for their liberal religion under the sway of the new church set up after the workers' revolution.

When asked to discuss politics, Bishop Brown indicated his preference for the Communist ticket. When asked whether or not he thought a prominent member of the socialist party in Ohio would ever progress into Communism, he answered: "Well, I hardly think so, he is a lawyer, you know."

Bishop Brown gave the DAILY WORKER his definition of religion and told how religion is related to politics. "Religion is the desire and determination to make the most out of l said Brown. "Politics is the eff find the way to realize that de But the trouble is the politicians and preachers of our day do not help us to do this.

"Truth is a fact not interpreted, with regard to conduct, as to help us make the most out of life, and a fact is something which nature does. The only facts which exist are found in nature.

Hails Abolition of Classes.

"It is deplorable that under the present system capital grinds down the struggling worker and makes him live as he does not want to live. As long as there are classes of society fighting each other you will have suffering. Under Communism classes will be abolished and the spirit of co-operation will rule."

His own controversy, Bishop Brown said is: "A fight to keep the church doors open to the sons and daughters of this new age of science."

The bishop pleaded his case as a struggle for "The cause of liberty to learn, live and teach the truth according to one's own conviction, and to assist the new, urging movements to bring the church down to our day and understandings, and open its portals to all folks everywhere."

Fight His Book.

The attempt to persecute him for being the author of "Christianism and Communism," Bishop Brown declared, was an "attempt to do all that could be done towards shutting the doors of the church in the face of every true son and daughter of this age of science."

He stated that "Mobilization Day" is just like any other defense day which attempts to prepare the world for unjust and capitalistic wars.

"My trial will not be concluded except along the lines laid down by the defense," he continued. "Which means the subordination of every dogma to the progressive revelations of science.

Bars the Supernatural.

"In the realm of biology we are governed by natural laws, so in the realm of sociology it is the same. There is no room for the supernatural in this age. We must come within the realm of the natural in all departments of life."

Salvation Army Supplies Cheap Labor to Farmers

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BRANDON, Manitoba, Sept. 16.—The Salvation Army has imported 200 English boy-orphans, who were sent to Manitoba. Each boy was adopted by a farmer.

The Salvation Army will import another 1,000 boy-orphans from England and will send them to Canada to be adopted by farmers.

The Canadian Farmer Trust Co. last year asked the British Salvation Army for youths to be exploited in this way and the Salvation Army did the job!

SPECIAL DAILY WORKER DRIVE IN NEW YORK SPEEDING UP AS NEWS OF SILK BANNER REWARD SPREADS

The Red Silk Banner, which will be presented to the branch making the best record in the New York DAILY WORKER Subscription Campaign by Comrade William Z. Foster, our presidential candidate, at his meeting in New York Oct. 19, is being made by Branch No. 1 of the Lithuanian Women's Progressive Alliance of Brooklyn, and will be donated by them to the DAILY WORKER.

These Lithuanian women comrades have long been noted for their vital interest in the revolutionary movement. Altho many of them are not yet members of the Workers Party, they all recognize the necessity of a working class daily paper to fight for their interests. They were a great help in the campaign to start the DAILY WORKER, and they are very glad now to perform this service to help make it a success.

A Thing of Beauty.

The embroidery will be in charge of Comrade Antonette Zablackas, and those who know her experience in this line say that this assures that the banner will be a real work of art. The branch that wins this banner will therefore secure something that will be appreciated not only because of what it symbolizes, but also because it has intrinsic value and because it is a thing of beauty.

This assures a still greater interest on the part of the branches in the DAILY WORKER campaign. Certainly there is not a member of any branch but would be proud to see such a banner hanging in the branch headquarters as evidence of work well done, and inspiration for future achievement. Surely there is not a branch but would be proud to see such right to carry this inspiring emblem in parades and display it at mass meetings.

It is too early to say that any branch has an advantage in the contest. The list today shows that none of them have any more than begun, so that there is still a splendid chance for the other branches that have not yet started. On Sept. 10, fourteen of the seventy Workers Party branches in New York had entered the lists. Of the twenty-eight Young Workers League branches, five had made a start, and the Juniors were in the game with one branch, that of Brownsville. A total of 115 subscriptions, amounting to $137.00 were secured by 34 comrades from these various branches. Within a week or so we expect to be able to report every branch as taking part in this campaign, and to show the records of those that are mobilizing their forces in earnest.

Here's the List.

The following list shows only subscriptions that passed thru the New York agency, and does not yet include the subscriptions sent direct to the DAILY WORKER by subscribers and agents. It appears therefore as tho the mark of 500 additional subscribers will be passed, before the date of the Foster meeting. New York is buckling down to its task, and the achievement of New York's newstand circulation for the DAILY WORKER seems assured.

The record shows the following number of subs secured by branches September 10th:

Sec. 1. English, D. T., 6; English, W. S., 2; Jewish, No. 1, 5; Jewish No. 2, 2; Russian, No. 2, 8.

Sec. 2. Harlem English, 12; Czecho-Slovak, 1; Harlem Jewish, 17; Scandinavian, 2.

Sec. 3. English, Lower Bronx, 1.

Sec. 4. English, Williamsburg, 7.

Sec. 5. English, Brownsville, 6.

Sec. 6. Boro Park, English, 7; German, 1.

Y. W. L. Bronx, No. 1, 5; Branch No. 2, 1; Harlem Jewish, No. 10, 13; Branch No. 12, 13; Russian, No. 28, 2.

Juniors, Brownville, 4.

Business Whoops It Up in Parade for Defense Day

(Special to The Daily Worker)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 16.—Defense Day parade here was first class—as a circus, but an onion from a military viewpoint. A rag, tag and bob-tail crowd of two hundred or so with lots of flags marking them as the "110 Engineers" were followed by the American Legion, the sterilized (Burns is out now) Department of Injustice, Pinkertons and other scab units. Then came the Bloomered Boobs of the Shrine, the Elks, Moose, Eagles and the rest of the menagerie.

The museum section started out much notice—elderly relics, male and female related to guys who had fought in 1776, 1812 and points east.

The bulk of the parade was the advertising section—Loose-Wiles, Merit Bread, Scab Taxi, City Ice—and so on.

Let us not forget the Draft Boards—47 autos full of old buzzards yearning to send the kids out again to be maimed and gutted.

New Paralysis Epidemic.

CLINTON, Ind., Sept. 16. — City schools here closed today for a week under orders of health authorities who are attempting to check an epidemic of infantile paralysis. Dr. Rosenow, of the May foundation, discoverer of the serum treatment for the disease, has been called here to aid in the work. No deaths have resulted despite the large number of cases.

LEAGUE COUNCIL TALKING PEACE; MEANS NOTHING

Big Powers Refuse to Park Their Weapons

GENEVA, Sept. 16.—The council of the League of Nations is still babbling away about peace while the armies of its members are busy making war without even dropping the league a postal card to inform it how the battle is going. England, France and Italy have troops in China, but the league will say nothing, because these powers control it.

The main task of the league is ostensibly to secure peace. In order to keep this view of its function before the public, a committee is in more or less constant session, trying to devise ways and means of bringing about peace.

The members of the committee are not showing signs of breaking under the strain of their labors. Their salaries come regularly and their hours of labor are not long.

The big powers agree on everything except on the parking of their guns. England is quite willing that France should disband her army but thinks it impossible to consider the reduction of naval forces, particularly on the part of England.

The little nations feel themselves very much like poor relations. Desmond Fitzgerald, foreign minister of the Irish Free State declared the representatives of the small powers were only observers. Henry Morgenthau, former U. S. ambassador to Turkey, pleaded for a loan of $14,500,000 to Greece. The council decided that Germany could join the League of Nations, with a permanent seat.

Crisis in Berlin.

BERLIN, Sept. 16. — Chancellor Marx's backdown in sending a telegram to the other powers disavowing the admission of German's war guilt has caused a new crisis in the German cabinet. The sending of such a telegram was part of the agreement with the extreme nationalists which enable the government to secure the necessary two-thirds majority for putting across the Dawes Plan.

When the telegram was ready to be sent, pressure was put to bear on Chancellor Marx by American bankers and diplomatic officials. It was pointed out that such action might interfere with the task of floating a German loan in connection with the Dawes plan.

GITLOW SPEAKS TO STRIKING PATERSON SILK WORKERS' MEET

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 16.—Benjamin Gitlow, Workers party candidate for vice president, was the principal speaker at a mass meeting of Paterson silk strikers in Turn Hall. Gitlow declared steps must be taken to bring the support of the entire labor movement behind the struggle of the Paterson workers. Gitlow was preceded by H. M. Wicks and Rev. J. E. Scudder, pastor First Methodist Episcopal church of Paterson. Scudder declared his sympathy with the strikers and said their fight for better living conditions was an evidence of real Americanism.

PATERSON SILK STRIKERS ARE WINNING FIGHT

107 Plants Settle With Union; 1,500 Back

By ART SHIELDS
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 16. —In spite of injunctions against picketing and the arrest of more than a hundred strikers the Associated Silk Workers' Union has terminated the strike in 107 broadsilk plants, obtaining agreements binding the employers to the two-loom system and an increase in wages.

Fifteen hundred weavers are now working under union conditions and contributing to the relief of the 7,000 still on strike.

A Mysterious Bunch.

More employers are settling daily. The success of the union to date may be attributed to the fact that the workers are better orgnized than their opponents. Silk production is on a competitive basis and employers find difficulty in getting together, even in a strike. A mysterious "Broadsilk Manufacturers' Association" purports to speak for the employers but the writer's investigation makes it highly doubtful whether this is other than a fictitious name used to mask the propaganda of certain die-hard bosses.

Newspaper statements by the association carry the names of no officers and no headquarters' address. The association is not listed in telephone and city directories as is the workers' organization. At the offices of the Paterson Chamber of Commerce the girls at the information desk were able to find no trace of the association until after much telephoning when the writer was advised to go to No. 1 Broadway.

At Last.

At No. 1 Broadway there was only the silk factory building of Otto A. Haenichc, one of the employers who has obtained an injunction against the Associated Silk Workers. His factory was closed and the door locked. Finally after much knocking Mr. Haenichc—a stout, elderly man—appeared. He declared that he was speaking for the association but refused to name its officers or say what employers were behind it.

One thing the manufacturer was eloquent on, however, was the Associated Silk Workers. He declared the union's two loom demand was ruining the silk industry of Paterson. He insisted that the three and four loom system existed in Pennsylvania and that the Pennsylvania employers worked children in their mills.

Oh, My, Yes!

"It is a fine thing for the children in those mining towns to be able to get work in the mills," added the manufacturer.

A long statement by the "Broadsilk Manufacturers' Association assailed the strikers as foreign born. To this speakers at strikers' meetings replied that foreign birth is not the issue but the two-loom system.

"Anchor" Is Dropped.

Policeman Conrad Jagnuson, one of the giants of the Chicago police force and nationally known as the anchor of Chicago's tug-of-war teams, is dead today at his home. He succumbed to an injury received two years ago while exerting his great strength to lift a motor out of a police boat.

May Use Gasoline Engines.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 16.—The possibility of wide-spread use of gasoline motor trains by railroad companies was seen here today by officials of the Big Four railroad who replaced two steam-drawn trains, No. 2 and No. 3, Indianapolis to St. Louis, with the new equipment.

RAILROADS TAKE ADVANTAGE OF UNEMPLOYMENT TO SLASH WAGES; PROFITS ARE ON THE INCREASE

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

The ruthless way in which railroad managements have been slashing payrolls to produce more profits for stockholders during the depression is indicated by the June wage statistics of the interstate commerce commission. The commission shows that by lay-offs and reductions in working time the carriers are getting their train miles and ton miles at a lower wage cost this year than they did during the tremendous traffic boom of 1923. What is gain for the absentee owners of stocks and bonds is loss to the families dependent on railroad wages.

Employment among train and engine service employes has fallen to the lowest point since August 1922. Approximately 6,700 in these classes were laid off between May and June reducing the number 33,522 below June 1923 and 37,139 below the high level of August 1923.

Layoffs during June were reported from every department of railroad service. The shop employes as usual suffered most. Their numbers were reduced 10,802 compared with May, bringing the jobs in this department 83,193 below June a year ago and 87,216 below August 1923.

Purchasing Power Falls.

The total monthly purchasing power of families dependent upon railroad employment has fallen by about $30,000,000 since June a year ago and by $40,000,000 compared with the peak of wage payments in August, 1923. The average wage paid in the industry in June this year was $110 compared with $123 in June, 1923. The reduction in monthly pay in the case of shop employes amounted to $10. Changes from last year in the wages paid in the various departments are shown in the table:

Monthly Wages	June, 1923	June, 1924
Professional, clerical, etc.	$122	$122
Maintenance of way	93	88
Maintenance of equipment	127	117
Dispatchers, telegraphers, station employes, etc.	121	121
Yardmasters, switchtenders, hostlers	145	148
Train and engine service	187	183

Bosses Gaining.

The extent to which the railroads are actually gaining by payroll reductions exceeding the decrease in traffic offered is shown in the report of the interstate commerce commission on unit costs. This report shows that in June the railroads spent 41.6c on locomotive repairs per freight train mile as compared with 25.6c in June, 1923, a reduction of more than 19 per cent. Similarly the cost per freight train mile of enginemen was 23.9c this year as compared with 26.6c in June, 1923. The cost per freight train mile of trainmen's wages fell from 29.2c to 28.5c.

Taking the cost per 1,000 gross ton miles as the basis of comparison the result is equally striking. The cost of locomotive' repairs on this basis has been reduced from 33.1c in June, 1923 to 26.1c this June. In the same period the wage cost of train enginemen has been reduced from 16.3c to 15c and of trainmen from 18.6c to 17.8c.

This means that with thousands of railroad workers out of a job those remaining are producing more train miles and ton miles per hour of work than a year ago. At the rate of saving to the railroads shown in June this will mean several hundred millions in profits to the railroad investor.

PRINCE OF WALES PAYS A VISIT TO KING J. P. MORGAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The Prince of Wales paid a social call at the Long Island home of J. Pierpont Morgan and attended a party at the home of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, 2nd, all in the same day. He will hardly find time for a visit to the mining camps of West Virginia where workingmen's families are being evicted from their homes under the blue republican sky.

RADEK TAKES A HEFTY SWAT AT CHARLIE DAWES

Even Albanians Think Durn Little of Him

(Special to The Daily Worker)

VIENNA, Sept. 16.—A tornado of criticism against the Dawes reparation plan and the storekeeper-general himself is whirling violently thru the countries of Europe.

The insignificant Albanian delegate at the league of nations assembly in Geneva does not fear to describe the plan as a "tortuous complicated diabolical infernal concoction of bubbles."

That "General" Stuff.

Karl Radek, the chief Russian journalist, characterizes Dawes as a get rich quick mountebank. "The only genuine military thing about Gen. Dawes is his epaulettes," Radek writes "Gen. Dawes is a provincial American attorney who, in guarding the interests of small gas companies, wriggled his way into banks financing these enterprises and finally penetrated into their administrations. Since God rewards the pure in heart, Mr. Dawes feathered his nest and entered into the large family of poor millionaires. As a poor devil with a few millions he became an agent of Morgan.

"When America entered the war he procured for himself the rank of general and fought bravely in the commissary of Gen. Pershing. Having returned to America he hung his sword and laurels on the wall and devoted himself to the old profitable work. When Morgan decided to include Germany and the rest of Europe in his system of enterprises Gen. Dawes, in order to give his brilliant figure, furbished up his old uniform and headed the experts commission. Up to that moment the gallant Gen. Dawes had only been known to America as a pleader at the courts, as one who smoked a pipe with the bowl upside down and played the violin with considerable skill.

Columbus Honest But—

"The general now has every chance of kidding himself that as with Columbus, so with him, a new era in the history of mankind is being ushered in —the epoch of the discovery of Europe by America. Columbus as is known was a honest man but up to the present his adventure had resulted in having the feudal and capitalist robbers of Europe skin the peaceful population of America.

"We do not wish to say anything uncharitable regarding the heart and conscience of that artistic pipe-smoker and violin virtuoso, Gen. Dawes, but we must admit that he differs from Columbus in that he goes to Europe with a definite scheme in his pocket for plundering her. The Dawes plan is a most refined instrument for the exploitation of Germany."

In Sweeden the capitalist economist Gustav Kassel brands the Dawes plan as "the most perfect and successful plan for systematically sucking the life-blood from a nation living under the conditions of modern culture."

Ferguson to Argue Ruthenberg Appeal in Michigan Court

For the hearing of the C. E. Ruthenberg appeal, which takes place before the Michigan Supreme Court next month, the Labor Defense Council has been able to secure the services of Attorney I. E. Ferguson, who will make the argument.

Mr. Ferguson is highly expert at this phase of legal practice. It is thought that this addition to the defense in the Ruthenberg case will greatly strengthen the chances for a favorable verdict.

Mr. Ferguson has, for some time, been acting as auxiliary counsel in the Michigan cases, and has been on the Farrell cases from the beginning. He is now preparing a brief for the Kovacavich hearings on a motion for a new trial which will be heard in October.

Bakers in Spokane See Fight.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 16.—Special assessments of $3 a month on all working journeymen bakers in Spokane are being levied by Local 74, Bakery and Confectionary Workers International union, to fight unfair and hostile employers. Nonunion bakeries have been working some of their men 16 hours a day. Many of them pay less than the union scale for a working day of 9 to 12 hours, not exceeding eights. Many union men are unable to find full employment in fair shops.

NOT FAILURE, BUT FIGHT

WE know a lot of people who fall into despair every time a little opposition is met. Even in the labor movement, in that part of it where one must have that sort of sustained courage which lasts for years, and for decades, we find those who are utterly unable to see the point of perennial persistence. They do not use in ideological struggle for social power, the same sensible tactics they would surely use in a physical fight with an individual antagonist.

For instance, if a young worker in a shop was on strike with his mates, and if, in front of them, a scab would pick a fight and mix it up with fists and probably brass knucks, would he quit? Not much. He would land on his nose and run down the alley squalling that he wanted no more strike and that, according to Tolstoi, Christ and Norman Thomas, the class struggle shouldn't be conducted by force, anyhow.

Such "fighters for revolution", would be laughed out of countance by the striking workers. No real rebel would think of doing this. But suppose we have a different kind of a struggle, a struggle to change the whole complexion, direction and control of the labor unions. This sort of a struggle requires more than a mere physical courage to stand punches on the nose. It may require that, too, but it demands far more than that. It demands patience and lasting courage and audacity. If you haven't got some of those things in your make-up, then you'd better wait until after those who do, make the revolution, before you become a revolutionist.

One is reminded of this situation by the article in the September LABOR HERALD by William Z. Foster. This article will become historic in the American labor movement. It sets the stage for a new kind of struggle for the left wing of the trade union movement. Those who have been hit on the nose and want to stop fighting within the unions, should read this article by Comrade Foster and take the new task seriously to heart. The Trade Union Educational League has been highly successful, Foster shows, in popularizing within the unions, its chief revolutionary slogans.

Now, it does not follow that because the officials have stopped the union membership from effective expression on the issues advanced by the T. U. E. L., that everything is over and the Communists should quit the struggle. No! It simply means that the Communists and left wingers have the job of persuading the reactionary officials to quit the struggle.

"The era of passing resolutions to have them thrown into the waste basket by sneering and stupid officials is past, the era for action is at hand," says Comrade Foster. On with the fight to break the back of official resistance in the unions. "The T. U. E. L. must raise the fighting spirit," says Foster, "in the masses." Those masses of union members which have already understood and approved of left wing slogans must be led into action to make those slogans good. Let cowards and cripples step out of the ranks. Buy the LABOR HERALD for September and see what Foster says must be done in "The New Task of the Left Wing."

ILLINOIS JOBS IN MINE FIELD FALL HEAVILY

Permanent Drop From 90 to 50 Thousand

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

HERRIN, Ill., Sept. 16.—Jobs in the Illinois mines have been permanently reduced from 90,000 to 50,000, according to State Senator William Sneed, who lately made a political dicker whereby Sneed withdrew from the race for district president, in return for the bribe of an appointive position from Farrington.

"What effect will the three-year contract have on Illinois?" the new Farrington henchman asks. "The number of mines will be reduced about one-third or more," he admits, "but it will take at least a year to accomplish that because of the fact that only a few companies are under pressure of short term financial obligations, and many a property will be handed around from owner to owner three or four times before collapse. This condition is now going on.

Try to Cut Coal Cost.

"The state will see an intense effort of engineering and management to cut the cost of producing coal. Two or three tremendous new mines will turn out a great valume at the low costs which usually prevail in new operations whose haulage is short. Illinois will go on selling 60,000,000 tons a year with fewer miners than for over 60,000,000 tons it ever produced before."

There are 362 shipping mines in the state, according to the reactionary Sneed, of which less than 300 are now producing. Sneed had intended to run against Farrington for president of the Illinois mine workers, but announced. Progressives however, see in Sneeds' withdrawal a put up job, which was an attempt to get the progressive candidate, John Hindmarsh, to take his name off the ballot. Sneed was glad to withdraw, the progressives say, and Farrington would run unopposed. This plan was not successful, for altho Sneed has thrown his following to the class collaboration camp of Farrington, the progressives saw thru his militant pose, and their candidate, Hindmarsh, is still on the ballot.

New York and New Jersey Campaign Fund Now $1,800

The first report of income received up to and including Sept. 10th, by the Campaign Fund of New York and New Jersey, follows. Receipts listed include all funds turned in for subscription lists, campaign fund stamps, payments on pledges, etc.

So far campaign expense has been a couple of jumps ahead of campaign income. Our expenses are as the campaign develops. Comrades and sympathizers are strongly urged to do what they can to swell the fund.

The delegation includes clergymen and laymen.

GITLOW SPEAKS IN NEW HAVEN SEPTEMBER 19

Arrangements Made for Huge Meeting

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 16.—The New Haven comrades are determined to make the Gitlow meeting a credit to the Communist movement. A start was made on Saturday, Sept. 6, when C. E. Ruthenberg delivered a masterly address on the campaign issues. The chairman, Organizer Simons, did not exaggerate when he said that Ruthenberg could defeat in debate any of the apologists for capitalism who were in the thick of the election fight.

The hypocritical Labor Day speeches of the three capitalist candidates were ripped open, revealing their naked, ugly, master class character. Two hundred New Havenites heard the opening of the indoor speaking campaign of the New Haven local, Workers Party.

In Front of Factories.

The New Haven meeting is being advertised at the noon shop meetings and evening open air meetings. The workers at the Winchester and Clock Shop plants who heard Bloomfield and Simons, know about the coming meeting, at Hermanson's Hall, 158 Crown St., New Haven, this Friday, Sept. 19, at 8 p. m.

The Communists are beginning to show activity in the campaign, in order to rid the city of the stench produced by the political bunk dealt to the workers. The republicans and democrats have not yet started their campaign, the republicans having just nominated their slate, and the democrats about to do so next week. The LaFollette clubs are holding sporadic meetings, few and far between. Senator Wheeler, Banker Vanderlip's hired man, spoke to small crowds in a few cities, and all he found to thunder about was Corrupted Cal and Fallen Fall.

Evidently his campaign is to put into the White House some angels, whose wings have been carefully cleaned, but not in oil. Say, patent medicine, sprinkled with sgar—there's a bath that is wholesome. Not being a medical doctor, the writer is unable to determine the relative efficacy of the remedies. But what he does know is that the corruption of the one and the Don Quixote trust-busting and the 'holier than thou' attitude of the other are equally abhorrent.

Outside of that, they have held one open air meeting, with a speaker who represented the S. P. and the LaFollette Club. The S. P. holds meetings occasionally on the Central Green, for which purpose they import Socialists from New York to extol LaFollette and Ramsay MacDonald. It is difficult for the speakers to keep themselves clear about their speeches, altho from day to day it becomes increasingly easier for them to speak, as they can make the same speech at a socialist rally as at the LaFollette meeting.

Not that they say radical things at the LaFollette meeting, far from it; but at the S. P. meeting, they can utter the same glittering generalities, and insipid inanities as at the LaFollette meeting.

Distribute Programs.

It is to show up such buncombe that the New Haven comrades have distributed 5,000 copies of the campaign election program, and are about to order another batch. That is why the comrades are determined to make the Gitlow meeting a success. Outside of distribution of fliers, several automobiles will be covered with an announcement of the meeting.

ALBION, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Lewis E. Sands, "bean king" of the world, has disappeared.

Doors of the 28 plants of the Lewis E. Sands Co., Inc., were closed today and upward of 300 employees are without work.

HULLABALOO OVER DEFENSE DAY DOESN'T HELP TO PREVENT IT FROM TURNING INTO A FIZZLE

By CARL HAESSLER
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

Attacks by militarists on a girl, lawless burning of private property, forced demonstrations by department store and office employes, official regrets that there was so much knocking of the grand free lunch of milk and a sandwich marked the hurried noon hour Mobilization Day in Chicago. It was a damp powder affair.

Early in the morning well-dressed, prosperous commuters from the richer suburbs were complaining on their trains that the day had been awkwardly mismanaged from Washington down. They talked of doing better next year.

Street Cars Patriotic.

In the Chicago streets the principal notice of the day was taken by the streetcar corporation. Instead of improving the overcrowded service the utility bosses had spent passenger revenues to decorate each car with four American flags.

The rest of the demonstration came in more thrifty fashion. The clerks and other employes who were pressed into defense service had to give up their noon hour since their employers refused to cut off more than 15 minutes from corporation time for the affair. A fair turnout was had at Grant park but there was lots of room for more. Each marcher got a free lunch.

Bemoans No Patriotism.

Gen. Hale in charge of the militarist venture politely described the absence of interest by referring to Chicago's patriotism as "latent."

Chairman Dixon of the city defense committee angrily asked for "a little more rooting and less knocking." The rev. John Thompson, Methodist, scolded the many stay at homes as "patriotic bankrupts." And the Chicago Tribune tried to hush up the fiasco by bravely writing up the fizzle as "the greatest peace time military gesture of the ages."

Heroic Deed!

The militarists showed their inherent lawlessness and cowardice when they rushed a girl who was distributing copies of the DAILY WORKER, the Communist paper. She was punched, pushed and threatened while her half dozen papers were torn away from her. The rights of private (radical) property went up in smoke as the officers slowly burned one DAILY WORKER after another. Police rescued the girl from further abuse.

But liberty of the fascist-Dawes variety was vindicated and the hundred percenters talked eagerly about Gen. Hale's promise that conscription would be in full swing for the next war.

DUBUQUE, Ia., Sept. 16.—Mr. and Mrs. Buckley, Waterloo, Ia., today were recovering from burns and injuries suffered when their automobile overturned and caught fire about 20 miles from here. The two were trapped in the wreckage for 10 minutes before help arrived.

MYSTERIOUS MOVE ON FOOT TO RUN BAZAAR FOR BENEFIT OF DAILY WORKER, LABOR DEFENSE

The local committee in charge of the bazaar is determined that the DAILY WORKER and the Labor Defense Council shall benefit $1,500 each from the great international bazaar and dance which is to be run over the last five days of November.

Comrades Pedersen, Rubicki, Rose Lutzke, Mrs. Deikens, Bjornson, and, in fact, at least one comrade from each language section of the party are already lying awake nights so that the Bazaar may be made to excel an Oriental and European Festival and Fair combined.

Tickets of all kinds, little "plugers" good for ten cents and printed in 12 or 15 languages, are or will soon teh bazaar may be made to excel an donation lists have been issued to all branches and many active comrades.

A Tip.

Here's a special "tip" to you. A swell banquet on Thanksgiving evening is to be spread by the Lettish branch with the assistance of the women of the Karl Marx branch. The dining room is small, only two hundred comrades can be accomodated in two sittings. One well-known comrade in each language section has banquet invitations for sale for $1.00 a plate. Reserve your seats before it is too late.

PORTUGESE GOVERNMENT ORDERS ARREST OF THE COMMUNIST LEADERSHIP

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 16.—The government today ordered the arrest of all members of the executive committee of the Communist Party as a result of the attempted red revolution yesterday. The country is "normal" except for minor clashes between the Communists and government troops.

3 New Pamphlets for Special Use in W. P. Campaign

The Literature Department of the Workers Party, in a letter sent to all party units, breaks the most welcome news to all supporters and enthusiasts of the Foster-Gitlow campaign, that three new campaign pamphlets are just off the press, ready to fill orders.

When we called at the office of the Literature Department, we were met by comrade Nicholas Dozenberg, in charge of the department, with a broad smile on his face. When asked about the sale and distribution of campaign literature, he said with enthusiasm: "I am very glad that we now have three more real good pamphlets to offer to our comrades and other supporters, for sale and distribution during the campaign period and after. Everybody should get busy at once, order a supply and then sell them to their friends, neighbors and shopmates. I believe that every reader of the DAILY WORKER will do his or her share."

The letter addressed to all District Organizers, City Central Committees and Branches reads as follows:

"OUR ELECTION CAMPAIGN is in full swing!

"OUR CANDIDATES for president and vice-president, Comrades Foster and Gitlow, are on the road, addressing large meetings of workers, in some instances as many as two meetings a day, effectively assisted by our most valuable campaigner, the DAILY WORKER.

"Five hundred thousand election platforms have gone out for distribution and another 500,000 will be distributed before the end of the campaign. This is the first opportunity we have had to participate in a presidential election campaign and our party is rising to this tremendous opportunity.

Must Distribute Literature.

"BUT, this election campaign will not be complete; the work will not be considered well done, unless we SELL AND DISTRIBUTE at least 100,000 copies of our campaign pamphlets, which on the basis of our membership of 25,000 is just four pamphlets per member. With just a little effort, this can be done and it must be done.

"THREE NEW PAMPHLETS are now ready:

"(1.) THE LAFOLLETTE ILLUSION, by Jay Lovestone, retailing for 15 cents.

"(2.) PARTIES AND ISSUES IN THE ELECTION CAMPAIGN, by A. Bittelman, for 10 cents.

"(3.) UNEMPLOYMENT, why it occurs and how to fight it, by E. R. Browder, for 5 cents.

Explains Our Stand.

"These pamphlets are of the utmost importance. They deal with the issues our campaign is based upon. Every one of them will set the workers thinking and lead them to realize that the Workers Party is their political party, and its candidates, Foster and Gitlow, their candidates. Now is the time the average worker can be interested in our literature. Instruct your literature agent and committees to order a supply at once. Use all means at your command to affect a wide sale and distribution of our literature.

"See that every comrade sells these pamphlets in his workshop and at union meetings, or any other place where workers gather.

"WE CALL FOR 100 PER CENT SUPPORT IN THE SALE AND DISTRIBUTION OF LITERATURE!

"Fraternally yours,

N. DOZENBERG."

REDS OPEN HUGE FUND TO BUY GAS FOR MAC'S AUTO

Daily Worker Staff is There with Dough

By MAX SHACHTMAN.

Stricken to the heart by the terrible poverty of James Ramsay MacDonald, Great Britain's "Labor" premier, the members of the editorial staff of the DAILY WORKER, today dug into their collective jeans and skirts and amassed the sum of eighty cents which was immediately cabled to the head of the British Empire.

While the money was being collected, numerous touching incidents took place, many of the editorial staff members breaking into soulrending tears which became shrieks as they each deposited their dime, or ten cent pieces in the hastily improvised money box of Thomas O'Flaherty.

Mac Up Against It.

This event, swiftly, it is freely predicted, will soon assume international significance, originated in the following manner:

By means of its news service the DAILY WORKER was informed of the condition of the premier. So horrible was his state, it was learned, that he was forced, against his will, of course, to accept a little item of 30,000 shares of stock valued at $150,000 in the McVitie-Price Biscuit company. Against the gift, which came from the millionaire owner of the Scottish bakery, who is also a dear old friend of Jimmie's, Sir Alexander Grant, MacDonald fought like a lion. Finally, due to force majeure, the gift was rammed down his pocket.

Ramsay Fought Like Hell.

Previous to this fierce encounter, Sir Grant had furnished the premier with a powerful and expensive automobile with sufficient funds to maintain it and to pay the chauffeurs. This also Ramsay at first declined, but his slender income from potboiling for the bourgeois press and from occupying a seat in parliament, was hardly enuf to keep him in silk stockings, red silk necktites and suits after the King's levee. And so he was forced, against his will once more, to yield to his friend's persuasiveness.

But Sir Grant Insisted.

The unfortunate part of the whole affair is that by the merest coincidence—quite a thing, you know—his benefactor received the title of baronet only a short while later. And while some scandal-sniffers pretend to see a connection between the gift of Sir Alexander to Ramsay MacDonald and the gift of Ramsay MacDonald Sir Alexander, such a vile insinuation is of course unfounded. Of course. Again, of course.

Feeling keenly for his poor condition, for Jimmie, as he is familiarly known to the members of the DAILY WORKER staff, gets paid only for his writings, for being a member of parliament, for being prime minister, and for being minister for foreign affairs, these same DAILY WORKER men and women put their heads together and decided that so long as there was a cent in their pockets, MacDonald would not suffer for want.

The Reward of Virtue.

The concensus of opinion was a feeling of appreciation at Ramsay's brave fight against getting the biscuit altho he needed the dough. While one or two of the more obstreperous writers on this paper maintained that by his actions Ramsay had been put into a position embarrassing to mention, the right-thinking remainder of the staff bore down heavily upon the skeptics and the collection was forthwith taken.

The results of the drive for money for the premier are officially announced as the following:

Elsa Bloch	$.10
Earl Browder	.10
Harrison George	.10
Nancy Markoff	.10
Thomas O'Flaherty	.10
Max Shachtman	.10
Alexander Bittelman	.10
Karl Reeve	.10
Total	$.80

The eighty cents, together with an appropriate and fraternal message of sympathy and regard, will immediately be called to our dear Jimmie.

Successful Evening Held by Society of Technical Aid Here

The opening of the winter activities of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia went off with a bang last Sunday night. Altho not a word was mentioned about the affair in the local Russian anti-soviet paper the hall of the society at 1902 W. Division St. was overcrowded. By the beginning of the second act of the revolutionary drama that was presented not even standing room was left in the hall.

The next affair, a performance and dance, will be given by the society on Saturday night, Sept. 27th. Other activities such as lectures, classes, etc. are being organized.

WITH THE YOUNG WORKERS

CONDUCTED BY THE YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE

Y. W. L. INDUSTRIAL ORGANIZERS LAY PLANS FOR INCREASED WORK IN CHICAGO SHOPS AND FACTORIES

Taking up the various shop nuclei which already exist and those which are in the process of being formed, the industrial organizers of the Young Workers League of Chicago met to discuss ways and means of increasing and broadening the industrial activity of the organization.

The following branches were represented: West Side, Maplewood, John Reed, Rosa Luxemburg, Karl Liebknecht, Hersh Lekert, and Englewood branches, the Jewish local committee by comrade D. Gibbs and the city industrial committee by Garver, Herd and Miller. Other branches are urged to reprimand their industrial organizers for not having been present.

Among the topics discussed at the meeting were:

Industrial Registration.

While all branches have filled out their registration it was found that most of it was not complete. Unless we have complete registration the industrial work will be hindered. The comrades in filling out their registration should take care of:

1. To put down the name and address of company they work for.
2. To put down both name of union as well as the number of the local.

The industrial organizers were given a list with the names of the comrades whose registration is incomplete. The comrades should co-operate with the industrial organizers in correcting those lists. There is no danger to the comrades, as all those cards are held in places where the police can't find them even if they raid the headquarters.

Shop Nuclei.

Nucleus No. 1. Hart Shafner & Marx tailoring company. It was reported that there are six members in the nucleus of which two were newly recruited from the shop. Comrade Edwards, who is to take charge of the nucleus, will give them a talk at the next meeting on the political situation with respect to the presidential elections. They are also to elect their nuclus functionaries at that meeting. Comrade Cahn is to be added as the representative of the Workers Party.

Nucleus No. 2. Western Electric company. There are five comrades in the nucleus. For some reason the nucleus did not function regularly in the past. At the next meeting they are to elect their functionaries. Comrade Miller was given charge of the nucleus to replace comrade Herd.

Pullman. Comrade Harvey was instructed to try and revive the nucleus. There are several members of the League working there.

Phillipsborn—Comrade Lampcov is to call the first meeting of the comrades who work there and they are to form a nucleus. There are several comrades working in that shop.

School Nuclei.

In view of the fact that school has just started and the registration is not complete no definite action was taken on this work. There are many comrades who were students last year, but now went to work. They should correct their registration cards as soon as possible.

Night School. Many comrades, especially of the foreign language speaking branches who expect to go to night school, should notify their industrial organizers so that we can form fractions in those schools. There is a good chance to spread propaganda and maybe recruit new members. In those night schools the foreign speaking workers get their first knowledge of "Americanism" and it is our duty to counteract that propaganda.

Factory Campaigns.

Bunte Candy Company. The Maplewood and Hersh Lekert branches are taking charge of the campaign. They distributed I. Y. D. leaflets to the workers of that company. With the next issue of the Young Worker the campaign is to be revived in full force.

National Biscuit Company. The meeting called of the workers in that company was not very successful. There are quite a few names of girls working at the N. B. C. and the Marshfield and Rosa Luxemburg branches who are taking charge of this campaign should visit those girls and try to get them to join the League. Comrade Tom Bell of the Workers Party is to co-operate with those branches in that campaign.

The Mail Order Houses. Since there was no definite information on hand on that work, no definite steps were taken.

The Stock Yards. In view of the fact that the Englewood branch has been carrying on propaganda there, they were given charge of the campaign.

Trade Union Work.

It was decided that fractions be formed in the unions in which we have a percentage of members. Together with some comrades of the T. U. E. L. we are to draw up concrete issues in those unions. Steps in that direction will be taken immediately.

There are many comrades who have not joined a union as yet. Those comrades MUST join a union soon. When fractions are formed especially will we need League members in the unions.

Educational.

The industrial class is one of the most important things that we are running now. The class meets every Monday and the comrades are urged to attend. The first few lectures will be condensed and mimeographed for distribution. All comrades should attend. It takes place at 2733 Hirsch Boulevard.

Comrade Sauser was instructed to get in touch with the B. E. C. of the Hungarian branch and arrange that the English speaker next month be one assigned by the industrial committee to talk on industrial work.

At every meeting of the industrial organizers, after the business part of the meeting we are to discuss a problem pertaining to some phase of the industrial work. If possible a comrade of the Workers Party or the Y. W. L. who is acquainted with the work should lead the discussion. This will make the meetings more interesting and it will be of a real value for the industrial organizers to attend.

Meeting Night.

It was decided to meet every third Tuesday in the month at the Labor Lyceum at 2733 Hirsch Boulevard.

Comradely submitted,
Clarence Miller, Secretary.

REMEMBER! THIS SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 21ST.

THE first Communist children's affair ever given in Chicago, will take place this Sunday, Sept. 21, at 3 p. m., at Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd. The kids are promising a surprise to everybody. The Vanguard Group of the Junior Y. W. L., who are running the affair, have prepared something new in entertainment. They expect the loyal support of the W. P. members and the Y. W. L.

Are you coming?
Don't disappoint them!
Bring the children!

Organize New Y. W. L. Branch.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 16.—A new branch of the Young Workers League here was organized with Leif Hagen as secretary, Gerry Pett as press and literature agent, Leslie Hurt as organizer, and Harry B. Zimmerman and Leslie Hurt as delegates to the C. C. C. The branch is called the McNair Manor and promises to grow rapidly.

Coney Island Meeting.

A meeting of the Coney Island English Branch, Workers Party, will be held this Thursday, Sept. 18, at 3105 Surf Ave. Many important matters will be discussed and acted upon.

TROOPS RUSHED TO GREEK PORT; FEAR UPRISING

Follow Gov't Attempt on Communist's Life

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

ATHENS, Sept. 16.—Government troops are being rushed to the port of Phaliron, and to the naval port of Pireaus, under the command of General Kolialexis, leader among the Fascist forces of Greece, to prevent the possibility of uprisings among the workers. It is understood that the first move of the workers in the event of a revolt would be the seizure of the arsenals of these two ports.

Fear of this has been widespread here since the unsuccessful attempt of government thugs on the life of John Cordatos, manager of the Communist daily newspaper, Risospastis, and the wholesale arrests of members of the executive committee of the Communist party of Greece.

Government Bankrupt.

The complete bankruptcy of the liberal-democratic government has been strikingly demonstrated here this week by the accession of Premier Sofoulis to the demands of Admiari Kolialexis for special favors for his friends among the officers of the navy. Admiral Kolialexis had threatened to bombard the port of Pireaus and the city of Athens unless his demands were granted.

The crews of the ships have taken advantage of the quarrel between the navy officers and the government and have deserted without leave of absence.

The Greek government is trying to meet the confused situation by instituting a regime of terrorism. Thugs and gunmen are brutally assaulting workers who protest against government outrages. Officials have been forced to come to terms with highwaymen, who have proved too strong for the police, and robbery and murder are matters of everyday occurence.

The government is also trying to bolster up its fortunes by demanding the payment of thirty-three million dollars by the United States government. The money is the balance of the hundred million dollar loan which the United States, in conjunction with England and France, had agreed to loan Greece during the war. Only two-thirds of the money was paid.

Communist Party Grows.

In the midst of the general disruption, the influence of the Communist party has been growing enormously. The Communist press has been the only one to denounce the graft and corruption which have been widespread in the Greek cabinet for two years. A large majority of the General Labor Confederation of Greece are members of the Communist party.

ACQUIT WORKER WHO SPOKE FOR SCALDED CHILD

Victim of I. W. W. Raid Still in Hospital

(By the Federated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 16.—When an inoffensive child is scalded almost to death by a reactionary mob in San Pedro, the port of Los Angeles, the police will arrest anyone who protests, even weeks later, but in a time a jury may acquit him.

Has "Good Luck."

This is the good luck of E. G. Moffitt. The raid on the entertainment at the I. W. W. hall took place June 14. The entertainment was a harmless musical affair with pieces spoken by children, all to pay the funeral expenses of two members that had met accidental death. The 100 per cent anti-I. W. W. raiders attacked with hatchets, clubs and pieces of gasoline, kidnaped known I. W. W. leaders and later whipped, tarred and feathered them and turned them loose naked 25 miles away.

Lena Miles, aged 9, was scheduled to take part in a childrens' dancing act. She and four others, aged from 5 to 12 years, had a boiling coffee urn splashed over them by the mobbers. She has been in a hospital ever since. Piano, pictures, typewriters, books and chairs were smashed with the hatchets and burned in the street.

The police were nowhere in sight.

Three weeks later Moffitt and others spoke at an open air protest meeting against the mobbing and torture of children that had taken place June 14.

Cops Turn Up.

The police were immediately on the job. Moffitt was arrested for "disturbing the peace." He asked a jury trial and on Aug. 21 was acquitted. The agitation against the mobbing is being pushed by the southern California branch American Civil Liberties Union, 540 Wilcox bldg., Los Angeles.

Demand Work, Not Charity.

SYDNEY, New South Wales, Sept. 16.—Considerably over 100,000 men in Australia are jobless. Efforts made by the state governments to find work seem to have failed, for as men are placed by the government, private employers are throwing them out. There is much suffering, particularly with those who have families. Relief depots have been opened, but the men demand work, not charity.

500 STONINGTON MINERS IDLE FOR OVER 5 MONTHS; MINERS DEMAND OPERATORS TAKE CUT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

STONINGTON, Ill., Sept. 16.—Five hundred men employed by the Peabody Coal Company here have been idle since April 1. The mine was supposed to be idle for repairs for a few weeks and it has not been closed down. The men were led to believe that it would start any week. They were put off from week to week and their tools were all in the mine, just where they had left them.

"Finally we lived in hope work would be started around Labor Day," a miner told the DAILY WORKER. "Well, sir, today the men were called out to the mine to remove their tools, as the mine is going to be sealed down for two or three months. Yes, sir, it looked like a funeral procession to see those decent men bridging home their tools after nearly six months idle time."

Cut Into Profits, Demand.

Another miner spoke bitterly of the Herrin conference of coal operators, who are attempting to reduce wages. "Dr. Honnald tells us," this miner, George Agnew, told the DAILY WORKER, "that the remedy for unemployment is with the union. Does Honnald think a reduction in wages would help the miners? Why should not the coal operators take a reduction in profits? Here are some facts I know to be true: The miner gets 87 cents per ton for mining. It costs the operator $1.05 per ton ready to ship; the miners here pay $3.25 per ton and the public pays at least $5.00 for the coal they burn. The coal operators are not so badly off as they tried to make the public believe in Herrin. The remedy is not with the miners, but with the operators. They must take a reduction in profit."

Can't Smuggle Livy.

MILAN, Italy, Sept. 16.—The government today ordered all customs officials and border police to keep special watch on all persons leaving the country, in order to prevent the original manuscript of Livy's "History of Rome" from being smuggled out of the country.

The manuscript was reported recently to have been discovered by Professor Di Martino Fusco, who has disappeared, and who has been quoted as saying he would sell the manuscript in either England or the United States for $1,000,000.

The Italian government lays claim to the precious document as antiques, the exportation of which is forbidden by law.

Spanish Still Scrapping.

MADRID, Sept. 16.—Another buurst of severe fighting between Spanish troops and rebel tribesmen was reported from the western end of the Moroccan battle front today.

GENERAL GLOOM CAPTURES PARIS' DEN OF THIEVES

All Hope Lost in Lair of Czarist Bandits

PARIS, Sept. 16. — Gloom hangs like a pall today over the recently happy headquarters of the Czarist emigres who hatched the recent ill-fated rebellion in Georgia. Even the maddest of them now admit that success is out of the question.

Had British Support.

The Georgia rebellion is a complete fizzle. The Czarists panhandlers admit it. According to reports here, much of the support for the rebellion came from British quarters and some from Turkey. The present British prime minister and his chancellor of the exchequer have been using the bourgeois nationalists of Georgia against the Soviet government since 1917. Even today the League of Nations has promised the representatives of these Czaristic elements that it will make an effort to secure the independence of Georgia from Soviet Russia.

Want Oil Fields.

Of course Georgia would not be politically or economically independent for one moment after separating from Russia. The imperialists want her rich oil fields and it is the hope held out by the Czarists in Paris, that these oil fields may yet be taken away from Soviet Russia, that induces the capitalists to put up their good money for the financing of rebellions.

The Red army is making short work of the uprising. Inspired cables sent from Riga, Helsingfors, Paris, London and Constantinople to the capitalist press are not entitled to credence. The information is supplied by the press agents at the Czarist headquarters in these cities. A little money to the capitalist correspondents is also convincing.

Oil Scabs Receive Protection of Mex. Federal Soldiers

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 16.—Federal troops are still in Tampico, protecting the private properties of Doheny's Huasteca Oil Co., whose workers are on strike. Huasteca has been loading its tankers and has kept some of its refineries going with the aid of labor protected by government troops. The strikers ask a 44-hour week. The company insists on the 48-hour week. The workers ask discharge of all who do not belong to the union and that the company agree not to employ non-union labor.

White Terror in Roumania.

VIENNA.—The Roumanian government has proclaimed an "extraordinary situation" in the country. The chief of the army in Bucharest proclaimed that all persons agitating against the form of government or for the overthrow of the government by force and violence (not copied from the United States) will be punished with from five to ten years' imprisonment. The same applies to persons wearing Soviet buttons or other similar marks which prove them to be enemies of the government. (There is where the U. S. D. of J. can learn something.) No meetings of more than five people are allowed without the permission of the military. There is semi-military rule all over the country. Bessarabia, the former Russian province which was stolen by "Roumania with the permission of the allies, is turned into a virtual armed camp. The government officials claim that a Communist revolution is being prepared, and therefore all Communist organizations have been outlawed. Social-democratic organizations are not molested. Over 100 people have been arrested. The secret service police claim that they discovered arms and ammunition along the Dniester. It is claimed that in the village of Gorashti bombs, machine guns and other arms have been discovered. Thirty-two have been arrested here. Many active workers in labor and peasant organizations are escaping across the border into Russia.

Sit Pretty on Two Horses.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Firmly straddling the fence, the Baltimore Sun and Evening Sun corporation is advocating ratification of the child labor amendment in its morning paper, while stubbornly opposing it in its evening editions.

BATT'S BATTING AVERAGE IN G. O. P. GAME IS SMALL

Among the Also-Ran on Coolidge Ticket

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 16.—In the Michigan primaries Dennis E. Batt, one-time revolutionist extraordinary who was runing for State Legislature on the republican party ticket, was so completely snowed under that one would hardly notice him on the bottom of the list of all the competitors for this political job. Among 64 aspiring republicans, he ran in sixtieth place.

Batt had the backing of the Detroit Federation of Labor which was once regarded as among the progressive Central Labor Councils in the country, but which has now bowed to old man Gompers.

Batt represented the Detroit Federation of Labor at the 1921 Congress of the Red Labor Union International in Moscow.

At the first convention of the Workers Party Batt, then a member of the Proletarian Party, accused the Workers Party of being infested by reformism and opportunism and would have nothing to do with it. He then became editor of the Detroit Labor News official organ of the Federation and since that time his face has turned more and more red and his actions more and more yellow, until he now finds himself together with the Strikebreaker Coolidge in the republican party—but unable to get within hailing distance of office as yet.

YOUNG KILLER TO HANG BECAUSE HE HAS NO RICH DAD

Grant Not Like Leopold or Loeb

State's attorney Robert E. Crowe, defeated in the hope of winning back the "labor" vote by sending two millionaires to the gallows for the murder of another millionaire, is now turning his attention to the business of preventing commutation of a sentence of hanging pronounced upon Bernard Grant, 19, for the murder of Ralph Souders, a Chicago policeman.

Grant was convicted on evidence of Walter Krauser, also sentenced to hang for taking part in the same affair. Krauser later declared that evidence against Grant was untrue, having been forced from him by torture at the hands of the police. He said that he had never even seen Grant before he was confronted with him, and ordered to make a statement involving the youth as his accomplice, under pain of experiencing greater torture than he had already gone thru. The police, Krauser stated, had been hunting the real criminal a long time and were threatened with loss of their jobs if they failed to bring in someone who could be indicted.

Not Son of Rich.

In spite of Krauser's later statement, both youths were sentenced to hang. Attorneys for the defense brot out the fact that Grant is only 19—no older than Leopold and Loeb—and is the son of a poor laborer, a boy with no schooling.

The sentence will be carried out on October 17, unless something unforeseen happens to save the boys.

No Change in U. S.-Chile Deal.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The status of treaties between the United States and Chile will not be changed by the resignation of President Alessandri and the assumption of executive authority by General Altamarino, former minister of the interior, it was learned at the state department today.

Pending developments at Santiago, however, the United States has not determined its policy toward the new military government.

GOVERNMENT FAILS TO BRING IN EVIDENCE IN DEPORTATION CASE AGAINST WISCONSIN COMMUNIST

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SUPERIOR, Wis., Sept. 16.—The hearing on deportation charges against George Halonen, held at Duluth, failed to produe any witnesses against him, but only letters secured by the government and a report in which it was stated that Halonen has been active in the radical movement as editor of Finnish Communist papers and in Russian relief work.

No Evidence Brought Up

Another charge was that he had been appointed representative in the United States of Soviet Karelia. No evidence of the charges made in the warrant were forthcoming.

Comrade Halonen, who was represented by Isaac E. Ferguson, refused to answer any questions based on the reports as to his political activities, but stated that he had made a visit to Canada in 1923 and had returned thru the regular port of entry and was questioned by the imigration inspector.

The case will be referred by the Duluth inspector to the office of the Secretary of Labor in Washington.

AUDIENCE STANDS WITH COMMUNIST AT OPEN MEETING

Refuse to Act Against Defense Day Speech

By SYLVAN A. POLLACK

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—While Rebecca Grecht, Workers Party candidate for Assembly in the 5th District of the Bronx was addressing an Anti-Defense Day open-air meeting to over 1,000 workers at Southern Boulevard and 163rd St. a policeman notified the chairman that an army officer had complained to him that the speaker had made certain remarks criticising Defense Day, and that if any one was willing to press a complaint he would arrest the speaker. The chairman told the speaker what the policeman had said, who in turn told the crowd and then continued to speak along the same lines she had been before the policeman had come on the scene.

As no one was willing to appear against the speaker, the policeman left and the meeting continued until after twelve o'clock.

Sing International

Earlier in the evening the entire membership of Branch 12 of the Young Workers League marched to the meeting singing the International. They were wildly cheered and enthusiastically welcomed by the assembled workers.

Other speakers were I. L. Davidson, John Marshall, Louis A. Baum and Sylvan A. Pollack.

A large quantity of the Anti-Defense Day leaflets and the DAILY WORKER were disposed of.

NAUGHTY PAXTON HIBBEN MUST GET BETTER FRIENDS

Might Get Kicked Out by Army Clique

(By Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Friends of Capt. Paxton Hibben, army officer threatened with the loss of his commission for his activities in Russian relief, are discussing the cryptic statement issued by Gen. William Barclay Parsons, chairman of the board of inquiry.

"The very friendships that a man makes, entirely harmless in themselves, might be such as to cause doubt in the minds of men under him and of superior officers as the whether an officer with similar connections could be relied on to act with requisite firmness in suppressing a rising against the public peace or proceeding against a particular enemy," Barclay said.

WORKERS PARTY JOINS IN UNITED FRONT WITH I. W. W. FOR FREE TALK

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 16.—Arrests of speakers of the Industrial Workers of the World continue with the usual regularity, Charles Criswell and Robert Stevens being the latest victims of San Pedro democracy and free speech.

When these two wobblies were taken off the box, and the next night three others were given the same dose, the speakers of the Workers Party immediately took the box and spoke on the necessity of the solidarity of the united front of the working class an dupon the imperialist designs behind Mobolization Day.

A collection was taken to comfort the fellow workers in jail who were arrested under the infamous injunction of Judge Busick.

A Handy Club

The group of grafters that runs Roumania, being needy as grafters usually are, decided to lay violent hands on the properties of the Standard Oil Company located in that country. To decide was to act, the Bratiano brothers being quick of brain and light of foot, also of fingers.

Several million dollars worth of oil properties belonging to the indigent John D. Rockefeller were therefore taken unto themselves by the 100 per cent Roumanians, to wit the Brothers Bratiano, together with their friends and poor relations.

Standard Oil raised an awful howl and while it ventured to state that this action was not Bolshevism in the Russian sense, yet in the Standard Oil sense it meant one and the same thing. It was confiscation of property, and could not be tolerated.

The American minister in Bucharest was called to Washington. This action had double significance. First, it meant that the United States government, had heard from the Standard Oil Company and was taking steps to express its displeasure to the Roumanian government. When the American minister bought his ticket to Washington the boys who run Roumania knew that there would be something doing.

Secondly: the American minister to Roumania was expected to have accumulated a lot of useful information which the Standard Oil Secretary of State needed in order to make up his mind as to the proper course of action to take, in compelling the Roumanian government to cough up John D.'s oil.

Evidently the American minister reported that the Roumanian government was almost dead broke and would do anything for money, therefore we are not surprised to read in the papers that the American government presented a note to Bucharest, politely but firmly suggesting that the $40,000,000 war loan which Uncle Sam lent to Roumania during the days when battling for democracy was a favorite outdoor sport, would look better in the treasury at Washington than in the vaults of the Bratiano Brothers in Bucharest.

This is the club. It is an effective one. It has been used on France and other countries. It will be interesting to watch the Roumanian government getting John D.'s oil out of its system.

The Changing Mussolini

While a "past" may be a romantic thing to have in the sunny land of Bohemia, to a politician it is anything but an asset. To a renegade politician it is a millstone around the neck.

Benito Mussolini, who has cut a black streak across the political horizon, was not always black. He was once red, but he does not like to have that period of his political career brought to public notice. Today he is the champion of militarism, but he was not a militarist in 1910 when he made a speech on patriotism, of which the following is a part:

"The republicans defend the fatherland. We rise superior to it and deny it. The proletariat has no fatherland; nor in truth has the bourgeoisie. In case of war we socialists will not go to the front—we will raise insurrection within our borders. The proletariat must no more shed its blood for the Moloch of patroitism."

Hot stuff! The kind of militant language that the Fascist patrons, Elbert Gary and Charlie Schwab, would not like. 1914, however, found the once radical Mussolini receiving pay from the French government and leading a movement to get Italy into war on the side of the Allies. The movement was successful. But Mussolini had greater ambitions than to serve the master class as a lowly propagandist and stoolpigeon. In 1919 he was raising the banner of republicanism. The following is an excerpt of a speech delivered by him in that year:

"The senate must be abolished—we demand that this feudal survival disappear! We demand proportional representation! Faced with the question, 'Monarchists or Republicans?' we reply from henceforth, 'Republicans.' We utterly oppose all ideas of dictatorship. We demand the confiscation of riches illgotten during the war."

Now that the great Mussolini sees his house of cards—long propped up by the bayonets of his blackshirted cutthroats—toppling about his ears, speculation as to what the mountebank's next move will be is in order. It is safe to predict, however, that this notorious murderer, traitor and charlatan will sink into oblivion as fast as he rose to world prominence, and the organization that he built to keep the iron heel of the capitalists on the neck of labor will be smashed by the iron fist of the Italian working class.

A Soviet Envoy to Mexico

M. Prohkovsky is the newly appointed representative of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics (U. S. S. R.) to Mexico. He left Moscow the other day for Mexico City and will soon assume his very important post in the Mexican Republic.

This fact, to our mind, should be the occasion for sincere gratification not only among the peoples of Russia and Mexico but for the exploited masses of the entire American continent.

Ours is a great continent. It is great in the numbers of its population, in its natural riches and in the colossal possibilities for the organization of a happy and contended life for its toiling masses. If only this continent of ours were ruled by the workers and poor farmers instead of by a murderous gang of capitalist imperialists.

Few if any other of the small American Republics have suffered as much from the machinations of the world imperialists as has Mexico. And even now it is in imminent danger of new attacks, plots and intrigues by its powerful "friends"—the capitalists of the United States.

The Mexican government has been compelled to recognize and to assume relations with Soviet Russia under pressure from the Mexican workers and peasants. These latter, like their oppressed brothers in India, China and Africa, have learned the truth that of all existing governments in the world that of Soviet Russia is the only one whose friendship is true and genuine, whose diplomacy is prompted by no other motive than mutual assistance and co-operation.

It is a new principle in international relations, a principle which is based on the very simple theory that the world belongs to those who produce and that among the toiling masses of the world there are no antagonistic interests to divide on and to fight about.

The presence of a Soviet Envoy on the soil of Mexico should go a long way toward showing the oppressed masses of Mexico the true meaning of the new proletarian diplomacy. We feel confident that in spite of the sinister intrigues that will be developed in Mexico against the Soviet ambassador by the imperialists of the United States, the representative of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics will succeed in winning the sympathies of the Mexican masses which after all is the only basis for a true and lasting friendship between nations.

Thot He Didn't Have Any

The Prince of Wales took a few minutes off from his favorite pastime, dancing, while attending a party at the boathouse of Rodman Wanamaker II. at Oyster Bay, in order to have his mind read.

This will be startling news to those who have followed the career of His Royal Highness with more or less care since he became a world figure. His actions had not hitherto indicated that the young man had anything in his head that a comb could not relieve him off. But it appears that either we are mistaken or the prince is suffering from a phantasy. In these days, when the opinions of alienists can be secured for the trifling fee of $250.00 a day, anybody can learn whether the prince really has brains or whether he is not suffering from delusions as a result of the constant wear and tear on his glands as a result of wine and dancing.

Rodman Wanamaker is the gentleman who owns the great department stores in New York and Philadelphia where thousands of young and old human beings are sweated to pile up the wealth that their master squanders in the entertainment of royal and other parasites. The prince may not have any gray matter under his slouched hat. But he has something—call it what you will—which, we must admit, is lacking between the ears of the thousands of slaves who are toiling for the Wanamakers. He is class conscious by instinct. He refuses to work at a useful occupation. He knows that he will not have to work so long as the working class keep their backs bent in toil and allow their masters to rob them of the greater part of the product of their toil.

When the Wanamaker slaves begin to feel an itching back of their eyes; when they begin to question the right of the few to revel in luxury at their expense; when they understand that the money spent by Wanamaker on the puny prince was taken out of their bodies, then the prince will have good and sufficient reason for going to a mind reader. He will then be faced with the task of working for his eats or starving.

The government of Queensland, Australia, is a Labor government but it is in a bad fix. It has no money. The bankers have. But the bankers keep a firm grip on the money bags and the Labor government just twiddles its thumbs. It is all dressed up but lacks carfare. The Bolsheviks took the bankers by the scruff of the neck and made them cough up. Afterwards they were allowed to choose between earning an honest living or starving indecently. But the Queensland laborites are democratic and dictatorship is abhorrent to them. The bankers are not worrying—yet.

Once, while General Butler was making a court plea in Boston, two cats began to wail in the alley beneath the window. The audience laughed and the laugh was on the General. Old Ben soon turned the tables on his competitors, however, by remarking: "Gentlemen, please pay no attention to the noise on the outside. It only means more cats!" The counter-revolution in Georgia only means that more paid hirelings of the capitalist governments will lose their heads.

Communist Clarity and Progressive Horse-Trading

By ARNE SWABECK.

WHILE the decrepit leadership of the socialist party is actively engaged in selling the ragged remnants of their party to the highest bidder from among the politicians dragged out from the republican and democratic sewer pipe to adorn the LaFollette "progressive" slate; while the trade union politicians are engaged in the noble task of attempting to whip their membership into line for the support of the friends of these leaders, members of the Workers Party and other militant workers are plugging ahead to establish the real working class ticket in the central states included in District No. 8 of the Workers Party.

Communists to Be on Ballot.

Foster and Gitlow will be on the ballot in Illinois where the coal miners in particular have felt the scourge of unemployment and misery of the capitalist system of production and are beginning to appreciate the significance of working class candidates and a working class election program.

The Workers Party candidates will be on the ballot in Wisconsin where the outright betrayal of the socialist party and its complete desertion from the struggles of the workers to the bosom of the LaFollette combine is leading the more conscious working class elements toward the Communist position. Sufficient signatures to enter the candidates on the ballot in these two states have now been secured.

Prospects are very good to enter the Hammer and Sickle on the ballot in Indiana and thus give the steel workers in the Lake County region an opportunity to cast their vote for a candidate who by actual deed showed his belief in the need of organizing and solidifying the workers' ranks and now presents a program calling upon these workers to organize for a fight to the finish against the gang which stole industry and controls the government. In Missouri, party members and the other militants are visiting factory and farm to obtain the necessary number of signatures with an even chance to reach their goal.

S. P. Must Swallow Pill.

In Illinois the labor movement as well as the former supporters of the socialist party are being asked, in return for some scant representation on the LaFollette campaign committee, to swallow, not only LaFollette, but Governor Small and all the other republican and democratic candidates which will be indorsed by the LaFollette combine. As far as the socialist party is concerned, this horse trading will amount to a quiet burial of their own state ticket and with it the last remnants of their party. In Wisconsin, however, these astute politicians have found the art of horse trading altogether too antiquated and they are now engaged in stealing mules, while the socialist party, under the leadership of Messrs. Berger and Hoan, is knifing its own candidates.

Mr. Comings, the present Lieutenant Governor, has long and persistently nourished aspirations to become governor of the state of Wisconsin. He announces his candidacy on the "progressive" republican ticket and received the support of the state C. P. P. A. (composed mostly of liberal petty bourgeois elements) as well as of the socialist party politicians in control of the Milwaukee trade unions. This despite the fact that the party already had nominated its own ticket with Attorney Wm. Quick for governor. Mr. Blaine, the present incumbent of the governor's mansion, also announced his candidacy as a "progressive" republican. Everybody in Wisconsin, even the socialist party, is becoming "progressive" republican. Mr. Blaine received the personal indorsement of LaFollette, despite his well known anti-labor record often referred to in the past by the socialist party.

Bergeresque Burlesque.

At the primary recently held, Comings was defeated and the socialist party now finds itself in a dilemma. While nationally it has become part of the LaFollette small capitalist combination, the latter indorses Blaine. And while some of the disgruntled C. P. P. A. elements, under the leadership of Chester Platt (small banker and owner of a few provincial newspapers) are preparing to support Attorney Quick, the S. P. leaders as "practical" politicians are quietly ditching their own candidate for governor and lining up to support Blaine.

Attorney Joseph A. Padway, another S. P. politician and political boss of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, has accepted appointment as manager of the LaFollette-Blaine campaign funds for the Milwaukee Congressional District and pledged himself to raise $50,000. Whether this sum is to be collected from the labor movement or from the rich LaFollette-Blaine supporters remains to be seen. At the meeting of the campaign committee, where this appointment was made, personal contributions amounted to $10,000.

Milwaukee is one of the few cities where the socialist party exists as an organization, purely a machine however, with which to gain political offices. It has already become a third capitalist party paying no attention whatever to the struggles of the workers and making no further attempt to interest itself in their conditions.

Machine Gets Bob's Purgative.

The LaFollette political lieutenants have already taken steps to change the labor complexion of their Missouri campaign committee, by removing President Wood of the State Federation of Labor and other labor representative and substituting some "liberal" elements. The LaFollette supporters of Indiana find themselves with a local labor party ticket on their hands; but LaFollette will not tolerate any such adjunct to his campaign.

To the truly progressive elements, who have been swayed by the present stampede, and those who supported the socialist party because of their belief in socialism, some rude awakening is in store when the machinations of the "poor" capitalists and rich labor leaders of the La Follette, S. P. and small bankers' combination become clear. The process of clarification has already set in. The campaign for the Workers Party candidates is in full swing. The message of Communism is reaching these workers who are gradually turning toward the Communist position.

Must Clear Workers' Minds.

As important as making a clear-cut Communist fight against capitalism and its candidates in this election campaign is the task of helping in this process of clarification and disillusionment. These are the tasks to which our members in District 8 are bending their energies. Our comrades realize full well that it cannot be accomplished by utilizing purely propaganda methods. No,—the real task is, while we are attempting to bring the Communist message to the workers thru the avenue of the parliamentary election; while candidates Foster and Gitlow and the local Party candidates are being entered on the ballots in order to participate with full force in the campaign, we must also simultaneously engage in the struggle for the every day needs of the workers, and to take the leadership for revolutionary measures representing the only concrete solution. That is the point of real value. That is the way in which a Communist Party connects the struggle of the workers with the election campaigns and make campaigns worth while.

This our comrades understand and it is the reason why they have incurred the bitter enmity of the labor fakers thruout the central states.

Take Straw Vote in Many Factories

The vote was: Foster, 52; LaFollette, 30; Coolidge, 54; Davis, 19, and Andy Gump, 1.

Kuppenheimer Plant Visited.

At the Kuppenheimer clothing establishment, workers stood around in groups discussing the DAILY WORKER, the chances of LaFollette, and the trade unionism of Foster, the only real union candidate for president. Some who voted for LaFollette admitted that Foster had the more constructive principles, and was the only one hundred percent advocate of the rule of the working class. However, they declared they would give LaFollette a trial first, because "Foster has no chance."

"If LaFollette goes back on the workers, then I'll be a Bolshevik in the next election," one tailor from the Royal Tailors said as he dropped his ballot in the box.

One man in coming out of the Kuppenheimer plant was caught stuffing the ballot box with three votes. As was to be expected, he voted for Coolidge.

The results of the first day of the straw vote show that the race will be between Coolidge and LaFollette with Foster getting more votes among the workers than Davis. The workers realize that the issue of the campaign is between Coolidge, the Wall Street candidate, and LaFollette, the psuedo-progressive, middle class candidate, and Foster, candidate of the workers.

In the Hart, Schaffner and Marx plant, the large proportion of the votes of the white collar office slaves and straw bosses went to Coolidge.

A messenger by about twelve years old, stopped in front of the Hart, Schaffner and Marx clothing factory, and asked to be allowed to vote. This lad was evidently well trained by the scab, Morgan-controlled Western Union Telegraph company, for he was one of the few in front of this factory who cast his vote for Coolidge.

Andy Gump Led Cal.

A syndicalist evidently works in the Kuppenheimer factory, for he wrote across the ballot: "The hell with them all." Probably after several of the special shop campaign issues of the DAILY WORKER are given to him, this worker will learn the ways of political as well as industrial organization of the workers and will fall in line with Foster.

Another worker in the Kuppenheimer factory sarcastically voted for LaFollette and wrote across the ballot, "Hurra for the workers illusion." Still another, so that there would be no mistake, wrote twenty crosses opposite Foster's name.

Andy Gump was leading John W. Davis on the early returns.

Throwing It Away.

Many of those in front of the Kuppenheimer factory who voted for LaFollette declared their sympathy for Foster and the Workers Party, but did not want to "waste their vote." They threw it away anyhow, by declaring for the champion of the independent manufacturers.

An old man with a civil war button on declared, "I want to vote for a working class candidate," as he dropped his ballot for Foster. A Negro silently took a ballot and without a word of comment, voted for Foster.

The large vote cast for Foster and LaFollette, and the small vote cast for Davis and Coolidge, demonstrates that large masses of workers are breaking away from the two old parties of Wall Street and are on their way to independent working class political action.

Women Are Backward.

The women working in the offices of the clothing factories evidently believing that women's place is in the home, even tho they have to leave home for factory work, for the most part waddled by, turning up their noses at entering into politics. Some of the most intelligent, however, cast their votes for Foster.

The DAILY WORKER straw vote will be continued every day this week, a different set of factories being covered each day, until every large industry in Chicago, and all the large trade unions are covered. Special issues of the DAILY WORKER will be distributed to the workers in these factories. Many of the workers have already asked to see the DAILY WORKER and are interested in Foster's message.

Volunteers are asked to report at 11 a. m. every morning at 166 West Washington St., Room 303, to help distribute the ballots.

PUSH HARD!

Congressional Districts Out to Get All Candidates Over!
Do Your Share to Make Good!
Presidential Electors and State Candidates Over the Top.

The Congressional District Campaign Committee, encouraged by the climbing figures, which means that the comrades are awaking to the task of placing the Workers Party members on the ballot, are increasing their efforts to get every Party and League member out every day to get signatures. District 1, Gordon Owens, candidate, and district 9, Jack W. Johnstone, candidate, are expected to be the first districts to obtain the required number of signatures. However, district 4, Joseph Podkulski, candidate, warns districts 1 and 9 to hurry up or district 4 will top the list in speed. District 8, George Maurer, candidate, is also making an effort to get its quota of signatures in the next couple of days. With these districts over, and the other districts also beginning to hum with activity, energies will be bent toward ensuring every Congressional candidate getting on the ballot in Illinois.

Foster and Gitlow and State candidates will go on ballot in Illinois.

Over 2300 signatures have come in thus far to the Local Office to place the Foster-Gitlow electors and the candidates for various offices in the State of Illinois of the Workers Party on the ballot. The Party is now proceeding to make all necessary arrangements to file these petitions. The job for the comrades of the Workers Party and Young Workers League is to go out again and again for signatures for the Congressional candidates. The job has been shown to be easy if a little effort is taken. It must be said that some of our language branches have failed to do very much, if anything at all. Many others have done very fine work. However, with nearly two weeks to go, every Party and League branch must jerk up the membership and get them out on the job.

GET OUT IN THE DAYTIME WITH THE PETITIONS

It is easy to get signatures in the day-time as well as in evenings. Women can do very good work in this respect. The wives and daughters of comrades who are not working in the shops or factories, should be urged to go out in the mornings or afternoons with the petitions. There can be no doubt that they can get signatures for the Congressional District candidates. Unemployed comrades should report at the Local Office and be assigned territories.

The results to date are:

District Candidate	Signatures obtained	Signatures necessary
No. 1—Gordon Owens	860	1200
No. 4—Joseph Podkulski	790	1200
No. 5—Harry Epstein	455	1000
No. 6—Frank Pellegrino	1110	3500
No. 7—Sam Hammersmark	1920	4000
No. 8—George Maurer	550	800
No. 9—Jack W. Johnstone	875	1200
Presidential Electors (Foster-Gitlow electors) and Illinois State signatures	2250	2000

Comrades! Set yourselves to the task of placing all candidates of the Workers (Communist) Party on the ballot in the State of Illinois. We have made a big success there. Now let's make it a 100 per cent job. Who's going to be the first Congressional District on the ballot? Send in your signatures!

religious revival, it is a sign of economic depression.

PREMIER Herriot is running Ramsay MacDonald a close second in showing up the bankruptcy of reformism. The A. P. reports that "The government went on the warpath against the high cost of living at a four-hour cabinet meeting. . . . Appeals were made to merchants to aid the government in reducing prices. . . . Chiefs of Police have been instructed to encourage public markets." In Soviet Russia the Chief of Police also has occasional relations with food profiteers. The government fixes wages and prices in definite ratio to one another. The violators are arrested and their stocks confiscated. Not so good for "business," but the workers are able to buy food.

SPEAKING of MacDonald, in addition to his job of Prime Ministering to the convalescent capitalists of Great Britain, he keeps up his literary pursuits. In writing a new preface to his book on "Socialism," he defends his philosophy as evolutionary, not revolutionary, and expresses the fear that present tendencies among the workers threaten the "ideals" of his own brand. "The revolutionary and materialistic frames of mind created by the war are becoming a serious menace to the socialist spirit of service. Profiteering has become universal . . . not confined to the classes generally designated as profiteers, but has infected all sections."

WHEN the coal miners go on strike they are naturally "profiteers" in the eyes of the Laborite premier. What he is in the eyes of the miners, and our own—but we don't print that kind of language.

GOTHAM is not behind the times either. A comrade who attended a LaFollette-Wheeler meeting sees the chairman "put his foot in it" and sends in the following:

AT a LaFollette-Wheeler meeting tonight, the chairman, McAllister Coleman, spilled the beans all over himself when he said, "we have only the simple people to support us." I have an idea that what Mr. Coleman wanted to say was "the plain people," but he is so simple that he could not get his tongue around it. "Simple" is right, tho he cannot be given credit for cleverness. Mr. Coleman must be complimented for telling the truth even tho he did it unconsciously.—S. Jergens.

MINE HORROR TAKES BIG TOLL

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE American press in China is calling for an aggressive American policy for that country. The American policy is not wanting in aggressiveness, but at times politeness is tried and if successful our secretary of state does not show the mailed fist. The Chinese policy of the Washington government is dictated by the interests of the capitalists who have interests in China. They will see to it that firmness is used whenever necessary. The American capitalist agents in China are blaming France for not signing the Washington agreement thus disturbing Hughes' policy in the Orient, with the result that Peking recognized the Soviet government.

THE news appeared in very remote corners of the daily papers that the Russian embassy in Peking, where the Czar's ambassadors used to hold out once upon a time, is now in possession of the Soviet ambassador. Gradually the nations of the earth are forced to come to the conclusion that they must deal with the Soviet government. Those who still expect that the Soviet government can be overthrown are more optimistic than is good for them.

BILLY SUNDAY, the human windbag who has made more money making Christianity ridiculous than Harry Daugherty got out of the bootlegger's, while he was head of the D. of J., has written an article for the Smart Set, setting forth his views on sin. We are indebted for this information to the pen prostitute Arthur Brisbane who writes a good deal of the drivel for the Hearst papers. After reading the following Brisbanality and knowing Arthur to be a skillful advertiser we are inclined to think that Mr. Hearst has purchased the Smart Set. This is Arthur's comment: "If you are inclined to take religion a little too lightly, it may be worth your while and also save you a few hundred millions of years of worry in the hereafter to read Billy Sundays' warning in the October Smart Set. Billy may be right you know." Brisbane does not believe in a hell beyond the grave but he is doing his level best to keep the working class in hell on this earth.

AMERICAN MARINES SENT TO HONDURAS TO BREAK STRIKE

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—It appears that the American marines were landed at Ceiba, Honduras, because the New Orleans chamber of commerce had protested to Coolidge that business in that region was being ruined by the continuance of the revolutionary fighting in the republic. Moreover, the proof that business was being ruined by fighting 100 miles from Ceiba was proved by the hostility of striking laborers and freight handlers in Ceiba to a shipload of strikebreakers imported from Jamaica by the American fruit company controlling that port. Had there been a "strong" government in Honduras, the strikers would have been unable to interfere with the strikebreaking

Workers! Here is John W. Davis, Attorney for House of Morgan

JOHN W. DAVIS, attorney for the House of Morgan, the Telephone Trust, the Standard Oil Trust and other monopolies, and candidate for president of the United States on the democratic ticket speaks in Chicago tonight.

John W. Davis, since his nomination by the democratic national convention as its standard bearer has missed no occasion to tout himself as a friend of labor, The DAILY WORKER takes this opportunity to call the attention of the workers to the record of this lackey of Big Business and servile tool of the capitalist class.

John W. Davis makes political capital out of the corruption in the Coolidge cabinet. He makes particular reference to the grafter Albert B. Fall who sold out the oil resources of the country for a satchelful of one-hundred dollar bills. But Mr. Davis forgets to mention the mansion he received from the generous oil man Mr. Bedford of Standard Oil. This was one of the show places visited by the Prince of Wales while enjoying himself in "Little England" on Long Island, New York.

John W. Davis, claims to be the author of sections 6 and 20 of the Clayton Act which refers specifically to the rights of labor. They were the work of representatives Clayton and Carlin. Not that the act means anything to the workers. Even the title following words "the labor of a human being is not a commodity or article of commerce" appear in the act, the workers still sell their labor power at the factory gate as before and are glad to get a buyer at the buyer's own price. But it proves that candidate Davis is careless with his facts and is willing to lie in order to catch the labor vote.

John W. Davis lied when he stated that he defended "Mother" Jones and Eugene V. Debs at any time in his career. The fact is that instead of defending "Mother" Jones he prosecuted her and the other organizers of the United Mine Workers who participated in a strike in 1902 against the Clarksburg Fuel Company. John W. Davis succeded in securing an injunction restraining the organizers from mingling with the miners in Fairmont and Morgantown. The suit against the union organizers was brought by the Guarantee Trust Company of New York, which is still one of Davis's well-paying clients.

John W. Davis claimed that he defended the glass workers. On the contrary, Mr. Davis was attorney for the Window Glass Manufacturers in the Federal Case 263 U. S. 402.

John W. Davis was attorney for the non-union coal operators in their effort to crush the United Mine Workers of America by holding it liable to triple damages in a local strike.

John W. Davis aided the Pennsylvania Coal Company in nullyfying a state statute to prevent sub-surface mining where caves-in endangered life.

John W. Davis aided the New York Telephone Company in getting $6,000,000 a year more out of its subscribers in increased rates.

The above is sufficient to prove that John W. Davis is as pronounced a servant of Big Business as there is in the United States. "Big Business has made this country what it is" said John W. Davis before his nomination. "I have a fine list of clients. What lawyer wouldn't want them? I have J. P. Morgan and Company, the Erie Railroad, the Guaranty Trust Company, the Standard Oil Company and other foremost American concerns on my list. I am proud of them..." This is John W. Davis before he was picked to lead the democratic party in this election.

John W Davis has now realized that if he depends for his election on the votes of the bankers and the capitalists, he will not get very far. He knows that the workers are many. So he tries to pose as their friend.

The workers have not a friend in any capitalist candidate. Davis is no better than Coolidge. Both stand for the capitalist system. LaFollette poses as a progressive, but he stands for the capitalist system also. The workers need expect no more from him than from Davis and Coolidge.

There is only one presidential candidate in the field who stands for the interests of the workers and he is William Z. Foster, Communist and union man, running on the Workers Party ticket.

Davis, Coolidge and LaFollette, differ only in the manner in which they believe the capitalist government should be run. They all believe the system itself is alright but LaFollette believes that the small capitalists should bet a better deal. He does not consider the workers.

The Communist candidate William Z. Foster, speaking for the Workers Party stands for the abolition of the capitalist system root and branch and for building on its ruins the Workers and Farmers government.

Foster the union man, the strike leader, the Communist stands for the interests of labor.

Davis and his capitalist competitors stand for the capitalists.

The DAILY WORKER calls on those who toil, the workers in the industries and the exploited workers on the land, to rally behind the Communist ticket and join the Workers Party, that is pledged to work during election time and between elections for the overthrow of the capitalist system and the establishment of the workers rule, thru a Workers and Farmers government.

Alleged Victory of Alleged Socialists.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 17.—The results of the first Danish elections were declared this afternoon to have been indefinite, tho the social democrats appeared to have gained some seats which were lost by the government forces. It was reported, however, that the net results of the changes will not effect the voting strength of the parties in the Landsting.

Earthquake in Armenia.

MOSCOW, Sept. 17. — A violent earthquake was reported from Leninkan, Armenia. There were no details as to casualties or damage.

'BOB' AND 'BURT' HAVE HARD TIME IN COPPER STATE

Plotting to Clean Up Farmer-Labor Party

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Sept. 17.—The moves of "Bob" and "Burt" to scuttle the Montana farmer-labor party are not meeting with the success they at first anticipated. The pointblank refusal of the farmer-labor party convention at Helena to withdraw its electors in favor of an independent set to be put on the ballot here was something in the nature of a bombshell in the camps of the two would-be dictators.

Some five months ago, Wheeler sent Dorman, former non-partisan league manager in Montana, into the state for the purpose of reorganizing the C. P. P. A., and advancing the candidature of Senator T. J. Walsh. After some months of labor, Dorman was successful in getting twelve men together who endorsed Walsh and other reactionary candidates in the name of the C. P. P. A. Dorman counted on the support of the railroad unions for his endorsements. This was partly frustrated by the widespread publicity given to Dorman's maneuvers by two well-known farmer-labor leaders, P. J. Wallace and Senator Chas. E. Taylor, in the liberal and radical press of the state. As a result the railroad brotherhoods repudiated the endorsements and removed their legislative representatives who attended Dorman's meeting. This put an end to the C. P. P. A. in Montana in its role as a smoke screen for the payment of Wheeler's political debts to Walsh.

Dixon Supporters Present.

The next move was the visit of Phil LaFollette to the state. Dorman had a carefully picked group of enemies of the farmer-labor party to meet him. The group was composed mostly of reactionary labor leaders recruited from the brotherhoods. But harmony did not prevail. Many of those present were supporters of Governor Dixon and were sore because he was not endorsed at the same time

Nab Six Hitlerites.

MUNICH, Sept. 17.—Six Hitlerites (Bavarian Fascisti) were arrested today charged with plotting the liberation of Adolf Hitler from prison.

HERE ARE TWO MORE INSTANCES OF BIG RISKS TO CAPITAL

MIDWEST, Wyo., Sept. 17.—John Hogenson and Perry Gregson, oil field workers, both believed to be from Tulsa, Okla., are dead today as the result of asphyxiation and drowning in 15 inches of crude oil in the Slat Creek area. The men entered a 55,000 gallon tank to make repairs and were overcome by fumes. Falling into the shallow oil they drowned before they recovered from the fumes.

FOSTER STRONG WITH WESTERN ELECTRIC LABOR

LaFollette and Coolidge Run Neck and Neck

Out of a mixed group of workers at the Western Electric company, including many office employes, straw bosses and scissor-bills who have managed to retain their jobs in spite of the immense lay-offs of the past months, William Z. Foster, Workers Party candidate for president, polled enough votes from among the real working class elements to give him a total of 171.

Robert M. LaFollette, for whom a great many workers voted because "Foster hasn't a chance this time," was one vote ahead of Calvin Coolidge with a total of 408.

Davis Runs Behind.

The vote polled for John Wallstreet Davis was again light, as it had been among the workers in the clothing industries. Davis got only 70 votes.

Thousands Cast Their Ballots.

The flood of workers that pours every noon time from the gates of the Western Electric Company eddied about groups of Workers Party members who stood at each entrance.

One after another four thousand electric company employes took the blanks on which were printed the names of the four candidates who will run for president in the fall elections, marked them, folded them, and dropped them into the ballot boxes which the party had provided. By means of this straw ballot, a cross section of the political opinion of the 25,000 workers in the company was secured.

"Mother" Bloor Speaks.

At one corner of the Western Electric plant a tremendous crowd of men gathered around the platform from which Ella Reeve "Mother" Bloor delivered a ringing appeal to the workers to throw their votes to William Z. Foster, the only working class candidate in the field. She explained how the candidates of the old parties, by the very nature of the parties, could never be of service to the workers, how the "party" of Robert M. LaFollette was appealing to the workers of the country with carefully phrased and illusory misstatements. She went on to tell of the work of Foster in organizing the men in steel mills during the strike of 1919, of the record of the Workers Party in giving aid to all of the striking workers it has been able to reach.

Thousands Lose Jobs.

"Mother" Bloor ended by directing her listeners, who by that time were packed almost four in a solid phalanx, to the ballot boxes to register their choice.

The large vote cast for Foster is all the more significant when it is remebered that over 10,000 workers have been laid off at the Western Electric Company during the past four months, and that when the periodical firing process begins, it is the scissor-bills who are chosen to remain. Very seldom is any consideration shown for a worker who has shown a tendency to radical thought.

Surprising incidents occurred during the poll of the straw vote. A well-dressed office worker—perhaps a boss—held out his hand for a ballot, placed it on the box, and marked it plainly and deliberately for William Z. Foster. A number of seemingly intelligent workers declared them-

N. Y. GIVES LOCATELLI, FASCIST, A NEW DOSE OF HIS OWN MEDICINE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Thousands of workers again gathered here, this time in front of the Manhattan Opera House, to let the Fascist deputy and world flyer, Antonio Locatelli, know what the opinion of the Italian workers in this country is about the black gang with which he is associated.

"Chevalier" Emanuele Gatti, leader of the Fascisti in New York, and Locatelli were treated to a dose of their own medicine for a change, when the indignant workers pounded them and other Fascist sympathizers on various parts of their bodies.

Police interfered again, and kept Locatelli safely in the theater; and after waiting for some time for the crowd to disperse, they finally escorted him to a motor car when the anger of the workers let loose.

In the affray a detective was stabbed and an alleged member of the I. W. W. is being held. His name is Anthony Cioffo. The police claim to have a confession, but the experiences of radicals in such matters should be enough to cause disbelief in this "confession" until more substantial evidence is offered.

NATION-WIDE SURVEY FINDS NO RENT DROP

Either Standing Still or Being Raised

Despite the fact that the growing unemployment, which is being used by the employers of the nation to lower the wages of the workers in industry, has not enabled the worker in many instances to maintain the same standard of living he "enjoyed" during the war, rents have not been decreased in proportion.

In fact, a nation-wide survey, conducted in all the principal cities of America, from one end of the country to the other, shows that not only have rents remained stationary, but that in many instances the landlord hogs have increased the sum which the worker has to pay for his two by four. The following are typical cities:

Baltimore Rents At Standstill.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 17.—Rents here have remained practically stationary since the high mark in real estate values was reached a year ago. The demand for apartments has been especially heavy, often resulting in a flat bringing in more revenue than a whole house. Many cases have been cited where the lessor of a house has converted a floor into an apartment and derived more than enough income to pay the rent of his home.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 17.—Rentals in Detroit are not on the decline except for certain type of apartment house dwelling in a rather fashionable district.

The decrease in rentals of the large apartments according to property own-

DEATH TOLL IN WYOMING BLAST NOW THIRTEEN

Horror Scenes Abound in Mining Town

(Special to The Daily Worker)

KEMMERER, Wyo., Sept. 17. Scenes of anguish and grief abound in the little mining settlement of Sublet, seven miles north of here today, as stricken wives and children waited at the mouth of Mine No. 5 of the Kemmerer Coal company where a terrific blast at noon yesterday snuffed out the lives of what is estimated to be fifty miners and other workers.

A check up early today by company officials declared that sixty-four men were in the bowels of the earth when the explosion took place, instead of the eighty-one previously calculated.

Thirteen Dead.

Thirteen dead bodies had been removed early today and it was expected that the work of bringing up the victims of the disaster would move more rapidly as the day wore on, the gas and fire conditions gradually clearing up, according to reports of rescue workers. Yesterday the smoke and fire were so intense that it was some time before the frantic efforts of hundreds of rescue workers could gain entrance into the mine, the portals of which have been shattered and the passageways littered with debris by the explosion.

Cheers rent the air when 12 men were rescued alive last night, uninjured, since they had been entombed in a chamber above the seventh level when the blast occurred. But a group of mothers and children and kin mournfully followed the truck that bore 13 bodies to Kemmerer for identification in the undertaking parlors of Fitzpatrick and into the Odd Fellows' Hall.

No Hope For Rest.

Little hope was held out early today that any of the remaining men in the mine would be fetched out alive. The explosion came a few minutes before noon. Luckily it was pay day, and of the 200 men usually employed in Mine No. 5, only a few score were working at the time. The explosion was immediately followed by a great flash and fire started at once. Large columns of heavy black smoke poured from both entrances of the fatal mine.

Hundreds quickly gathered around the mine despite the heavy downpour of rain accompanied by an electrical storm. Volunteer workers arrived soon from Rock Springs, Diamondville, Cumberland, and Frontier, and they will split into four shifts.

Many expert mining men expressed the belief that it would be many days before a complete exploration of the mine can be made because of the extensive damage done the interior by the terrific blast. Timbers were splintered, rails twisted and great cave-ins of rock and earth hindered the progress of the men who were searching for victims of the disaster.

A Regular Occurence.

The Kemmerer disaster is another of the long line of mine explosions in which hundreds of coal diggers have been the victims, making profit for the employers at the risk of their lives. Recent disasters occurred at Benwood, W. Va., Corby, Minn., Shanktown, Pa., and Johnston City, Illinois.

PRIEST WHIPS BOY FOR PASSING OUT LEAFLETS URGING WORKERS TO ATTEND COMMUNIST MEETING

By THOMAS MYERSCOUGH

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NANTICOKE, Pa., Sept. 17.—Because he stood at the entrance to the church distributing leaflets, a small boy of this place was severely whipped by the priest. The leaflets were an announcement of a meeting at which Joseph Kowalski, organizer for the Workers Party, was to speak. Kowalski is well known to the Polish workers of this place and it is thought that the priest was angered at the thought of the boy choosing the church entrance as the place to effectively distribute the leaflets. Perhaps he was afraid that his flock would become contaminated with ideas not to his liking, and inasmuch as they were all now out of church, thereby depriveing the one with "holy orders" from telling his sheep that they were not allowed to attend the meeting, he felt that a public whipping would be understood, by those who saw it, as his opposition to the meeting. That it had no effect, can be attested to by the fact that a good sized crowd turned out to hear Kowalski. The same is true of his meetings at Edwardsville, Plains and Wilkes Barre in this region. New members for the Workers Party were secured at each of the meetings.

FRENCH COMMUNISTS HIT DEBT FUNDING PLAN AS 'DAWESISM'

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

PARIS, Sept. 17.—Denouncing the Hurley debt-funding plan as a new Dawes proposition, L'Humanite, official organ of the French Communist Party, comments editorially:

"A veritable Dawes plan forced on France by the Anglo-Saxons. Let the French proletariat prepare to work twelve hours a day on starvation wages to satisfy the billionaires of Wall Street and the society of Atlantic City."

Communists on Illinois Ballot

WILLIAM Z. FOSTER AND BENJAMIN GITLOW, presidential and vice-presidential candidates of the Workers Party, will be on the ballot in the state of Illinois. Two thousand signatures were required to put the presidential electors on the official ballot; and the Workers Party has already collected 4100. Petitions containing signatures to put congressional and state candidates on the ticket here are being circulated and there is every prospect of success.

The achievement in Illinois makes it the seventh state on the ballot of which the Communist candidates will appear. Others are expected shortly. The six states, besides Illinois, are North Dakota, Washington, Oregon, Colorado, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts.

SEE DECISIVE BATTLE COMING IN CHINA WAR

Country Demoralized by Internal Strife

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

SHANGHAI, Sept. 17.—Repulsing the determined Kiangsu attack at Liuho, the Chekiang defenses today were intact along the battle line surrounding Shanghai.

Fighting is reported less severe all along the line, both sides apparently resting while awaiting a decisive struggle in North China between Chang Tso Lin and Wu Pei Fu.

Country Demoralized.

Railway service thruout China is completely demoralized today as a result of the civil war. Trade is virtually at a standstill, shipping firms being especially hard hit. No goods are coming in at all from the country districts.

The Chang forces who are sympathetic to Sun Yat Sen, represent the element that is not so ready to sell out the country to foreign capitalist nations, while Wu Pei Fu, now military dictator of Peking, represents the monarchists who are ready at a moment's notice, almost, to yield the country up to the investment desires of American or British capital.

Japan Waits.

Japan is tending to side with the Chang armies because of their opposition to the penetration of American and British capital, which Japan considers the greatest danger to its desire of hegemony over Asia.

The recognition by China of the Soviet Republic complicates matters more, and influential American business men are already calling for armed intervention by U. S. military and naval forces.

TRIAL OF 107 SILK STRIKERS IS POSTPONED

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 17.—The cases of the 107 pickets, arrested two weeks ago in Paterson, has again been postponed, this time until Thursday, Sept. 18, when it will be definitely disposed of, according to the announcement of both defense attorney and judge.

This is the same date as the Webster Hall meeting to be held in New York, so the New York audience will get the first news of the disposal of the cases.

Out on Bail.

The 107 that were arrested have all been released on bail, and have been on the picket line continuously since their arrest. This action of theirs in refusing to be intimidated by the police terrorism of Patterson, is a symbol of the militant spirit of the silk strikers in the present struggle. It is this spirit that has held the ranks of the strikers in fighting array for five weeks in the most brilliant struggle ever waged in the many strikes of the silk mill workers.

The story of the strike is to be told for the first time to New Yorkers on Thursday evening, September 18, at Webster Hall, 119 East 11th St., near Third Avenue. H. M. Wicks, well-known in the labor and Communist movement of the United States, who has been taking a leading part in the strike and Adolph Lessig, of Patterson, who has been a leader in many of the silk mill struggles, will be among the speakers. Admission to this meeting is free and all militant workers should attend and hear the story of this struggle and learn of the new tactics in the labor movement that are being developed thru the present strike.

HEAVY LOSSES IN LIFE RESULT OF BIG FLOODS IN JAPANESE VILLAGES

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

TOKYO, Sept. 17.—Altho the number of deaths has not yet been estimated, it is believed to be large as a result of floods following in the wake of torrential rains which inundated many villages near Tokyo and also flooded sections of the capital.

Reports filtering in over wires broken by the violence of the storm indicated a heavy loss of life as well as property damage. In Tokyo alone 40,000 houses were flooded.

The fate of 300 inhabitants of Kugemura is as yet unknown. The village was inundated and today is surrounded by a raging torrent. Efforts to rescue by boats to reach the village were unavailing. Occasional cries for help from the village were heard.

Six villages on the other side of Tokyo were submerged by the flood waters.

CZAR McANDREW LAYS DOWN THE LAW TO 'MARMS

He Won't Call Meeting of Teachers' Council

William McAndrew, superintendent of Chicago's schools, will under no circumstances call the meetings of the teachers' councils which he is required to call by rules of the board of education.

McAndrew made this statement to a representative of the DAILY WORKER after his plea to be allowed to amend the rules of the board had again been denied, this time by the committee on administration.

The King Has Spake!

"I gave my decision last May, I repeated that decision this fall, and I will not change my mind now," said McAndrew.

Asked whether he felt that he had a legal basis for refusing to comply with the rules of the board, McAndrew laughed and said: "That is not the question."

The superintendent's attitude during the course of the hearings before the committees was the subject of angry comment from other members of the board, and from teachers who were present. He laughed loudly at every attempt to show him that his stand was not justified.

What action the teachers themselves will take will remain uncertain until the central committee of the high school councils meets next Tuesday.

Why Not Act?

"I don't know just what we can do when the superintendent refuses to listen to reason," said Elzy F. Downey, president of the councils.

The school board, which was at first split, is gradually swinging over to the side of McAndrew. Mrs. Dowd Gregg, who was at first a strong proponent of the teachers, yesterday voted in favor of amending the rules. The members at first attempted to persuade the superintendent to compromise, but when they found this impossible, they decided to line up behind him rather than take the part of the organized teachers.

A change in the personnel of the board is expected when Mayor Dever this fall appoints four new members to take the place of four whose terms have expired. The mayor has so far refused to say what appointments he will make.

OMAHA GOES CUCKOO ON THE ARRIVAL OF U. S. WORLD FLYERS

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 17.—Thousands stopped work for a few minutes to yell themselves hoarse over the arrival of the American world flyers here. Fire sirens and factory whistles shrieked their hoarsest and it was noticed that some graves trembled, the dead obviously thinking Gabriel's horn was being blown.

The flyers arrived in perfect V formation, led by Lieut. Lowell Smith.

LEGION PARADE IS MILITARIST DEMONSTRATION

Commander in Plea for Quiet Convention

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 17.—Forty thousand members of the American Legion marched here today in the huge parade arranged as a war demonstration of the purest water.

The marching Legionaires shouted, "Who won the war?" "We'll do it again!" and "We'll tell the world we're ready!" together with similar militarist promises.

Appeals For Soberness.

At the day's session, Commander John R. Quinn, in an attempt to minimize the fact that the legion conventions have been lawless orgies, read a telegram from the chief of police of San Francisco, seat of the last convention, in which the cop wrote that the convention was the most orderly and pleasant meeting ever held there.

Quinn appealed to the delegates to maintain that standard and they all rose in their seats and yelled assent. Just the same that did not prevent a legionary from getting into a brawl and being wounded. He is Arthur Christopherson, 28 years old, from South Dakota.

Pershing Won't Run.

Word was officially received by the convention that Pershing, who was being boomed for the national commandership of the organization, would not accept the job. Others who are contesting the position are Col. John J. Bullington of Illinois, Major Reed Landis, James A. Drain and John McQuigg of Ohio, not one of them a rank and file soldier in the last war, an indication of where the control of the legion lies.

In the parade, "Hell-an'-Maria" Dawes marched as a private. He smoked his drooping pipe and was greeted with "Hello, Charlie," whenever he was recognized. When he wasn't recognized he was taken for a vice-presidential nominee on the republican ticket.

The convention shook the St. Paul Auditorium here today with repeated applause when labor-hating Judge Kenesaw M. Landis urged them to vote back into office the congressmen and senators who voted to override President Coolidge's veto of the adjusted compensation bill.

His speech was replete with his usual piffle, opening with a wild denunciation of pacifism and including a plea to back the Black Maria up to the door of the citizen who refuses to vote.

Four Dead Brings Toll to Seven in Beer City Sewers

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 17.—Four employes of the Hammen Construction company, Detroit, were entombed today in a sewer cave-in which buried them 50 feet below the surface under hundreds of tons of loose concrete and earth. The men were engaged in putting concrete roof and walls on the sewer tunnel when the cave-in occurred. It is believed all were killed.

The victims are: John Millich, 43; John Tica, 28; Otto Cina, 26, and William Beljon, 32, the foreman.

The cave-in is one of several which has occurred in the construction of Milwaukee's new $1,000,000 sewerage system. Today's accident brings the death toll to seven.

NEW YORK CITY PARTY ACTIVITIES

All members of the party in New York are instructed to see that they are present without fail at the next membership meeting of the local, which is to be held this coming Friday evening, Sept. 19, at Stuyvesant Casino, 142 Second Ave.

Important matters concerning the campaign being waged by the party in the coming elections will be discussed and it is imperative that each and every member of the party be present at this most important general membership meeting.

No branch meetings must be held on this night, and every member of the party who is interested in the party and in the political campaign we are now conducting must put everything else aside and be present at this meeting.

MANY ISSUES ASK DECISION OF MACHINISTS

Detroit Convention Is Now Doing Business

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 17.—Resolutions demanding amalgamation of the metal trades, declaring for affiliation with the Red International of Labor Unions, demanding recognition of Soviet Russia, and denouncing the Baltimore and Ohio class collaboration scheme, introduced in the convention of the International Association of Machinists here, are now awaiting action.

One resolution introduced by Lodge No. 371 demands "Immediate action of the part of our officers instructing them to take necessary steps to call a joint convention of the metal trades.

For Red International.

The resolution demanding affiliation with the Red International of Labor Unions, which was presented to the convention by Lodges 330 and 337, declares that, "The capitalist offensive against the eight-hour day in Germany and elsewhere, the struggle against Fascism, the occupation of the Ruhr, and the threatened enslavement of the German workers, the struggle against the terroristic acts of the workers all over the world, has taught the workers the necessity of international solidarity and establishing united struggle against capitalism.

"One of the principal weapons of the capitalist class is their ability to use the workers of one country against the workers of another in time of war, use the workers of the different countries to slaughter each other, and in times of peace, use the products of labor of one country to break the strikes of labor in another."

Favor Soviet Recognition.

Many lodges, including numbers 79, 330, 337, and 119, in their resolution favoring recognition of Soviet Russia, "condemn the delay and call on the American Federation of Labor to join with us in a movement to bring pressure to bear on the American government to give full and complete recognition to Soviet Russia in the name of solidarity with the first Workers' Republic."

A hot fight is expected over the so-called "Johnston" or B. & O. plan, which resolutions passed by lodges 330 and 337 brand as "an employers' scheme that will bring destruction to our union."

The full resolution condemning the B. & O. plan follows:

Swat B. & O. Plan.

Roberto Haberman, representing the Mexican Federation of Labor, addressed the convention today criticising Johnston and Davison for not including Mexico in their report. He stated that Mexican labor was developing towards industrial unionism. In the printing trades the man hewing the wood for paper pulp up to the editor are all in one union.

The Mexican government buys all the products made by union labor from a tack to a locomotive. Roberto wears a red necktie and attacks the reds, stating that the Russian ambassador will arrive next week in Mexico, but at the same time he attacks the R. I. L. U., accusing it of trying to destroy the Mexican as well as the American labor movement. Haberman classed the Ford factory as a slave asylum.

Morgan Calls for the Biggest Air Fleet on Earth; Coolidge Acts

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, all forces are ready in Washington for the American drive for the biggest war fleet in the air. The globe-girdling flight of the American aviators comes to an end, and the budget-making business of the warmakers at the nation's capitol begins.

Thus the militarists carry out, in every detail, the prediction of the DAILY WORKER, since the world flight began, that it was merely a venture to help put over greater air armaments, in preparation for the next war.

* * * *

The world fliers hop off from Chicago to Omaha, on the last laps of their trip, and Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur, at the special call of President Coolidge, rushes from California to Washington, D. C., by speedy airplanes and fast trains.

Reports from Washington say, "The President has been told that, as a result of the world flight by the army planes, the practicability of air fighting has been demonstrated."

Thus the Hughes-Coolidge alliance at Washington, against battleships and in favor of a huge air fleet, maintains the agreements reached in the Washington Disarmament Conference, and at the same time adopts the most up-to-date methods of modern warfare. The headline, "Coolidge Halts Navy Building," will give workers the impression that there has been a halt in the preparations for Morgan's next war; whereas, in fact, the preparations are going forward more feverishly than ever.

* * * *

The overwhelming failure of Mobilization Day to whet the appetite of America's workers for the blood of their brothers in foreign lands will not deter the warmakers in Washington in putting over their schemes. They profess themselves satisfied with "The Day." Above all they have the power. It is Morgan's dictatorship that rules in Washington. Morgan's rule will drive the workers into the next war, just as it drove them into the last war in 1917, unless the workers deprive Mr. Morgan of his power.

* * * *

France today leads the world in the air. France spends $100,000,000 annually on her air fleets, while Morgan arranges for new loans for the Paris imperialists. As far back as 1922, France produced 3,300 military aircraft. This year it is estimated that France has 220 completely equipped squadrons averaging 10 planes each.

England ranks second to France, a close second. The United Kingdom has 33 squadrons at home, with 2,200 officers on active duty. This does not include the colonial and dominion forces.

Japan is not far behind. She has 200 pilots on active duty, approximately the same as in the United States. In Italy, the Fascist Dictator, Mussolini, has endorsed the plan to triple the Italian air strength.

* * * *

In 1914, the capitalist nations stood ready, with huge armies and great naval fleets, to jump at each other's throats. The war came. In only one nation did the workers throw off the yoke of their oppressors. The workers in every nation, except in Soviet Russia, again face the imminent prospect of fighting another war for their masters. Only the next war will be more deadly, with its death rays and poison gases, than the last.

* * * *

Thus the joker in the Washington Disarmament Conference is revealed. It limited the building of useless battleships. But no restrictions were put on war fleets in the air, the battleships that sail the skies. This subject was barely touched, and then quickly dropped, at the recent League of Nations gathering at Geneva, Switzerland.

* * * *

The next meeting of congress comes in December. It will be the last session of the old congress, not the new one to be elected in November. Large appropriations will be demanded for "the greatest air fleet in the world."

It will be Morgan's air fleet. It will be used against workers at home, when necessary. It will be ready for use in Western Europe, in the Orient, or anywhere that Morgan's interests may be threatened.

* * * *

The efficacy of airships in fighting workers has already been shown in the war on the coal miners in West Virginia. Airplanes were used to pour poison gas into the ranks of the striking coal miners in the United States, just as an airplane was used on behalf of the interests of British coal barons, to bomb the headquarters of British miners in South Africa.

* * * *

When congress votes appropriations for air fleets, it means that new strength is being given to the American ruling class. New power is given the greatest capitalists, not only to carry out their imperialistic policies abroad, but to fight their class enemies, the workers, at home.

Labor must be made to realize the significance of this growing menace. Labor's only alternative is to establish its own power. A beginning can be made in the days and weeks ahead by throwing all possible support to the Communist candidates in this election: William Z. Foster, for president; Benjamin Gitlow, for vice-president. Only in the triumph of Soviet Rule in this country will American workers be freed of the menace of the greatest airfleet in the world in the hands of Morgan's dictatorship.

Only in the peaceful co-operation of an American Workers' Republic with Soviet Rule in other lands will the menace of the new war be completely eliminated.

Against the quick response of Coolidge to Morgan's demand for the biggest air fleet in the world, the workers must push forward, with renewed energy to the establishment of their Soviet Power.

selves in favor of Foster, but expressed the opinion that it was "foolish to throw away a vote."

The party will continue taking the straw ballot in the various industries thruout the rest of the week. Comrades are urged to report for this extremely important work at the office of the DAILY WORKER, at 10:30 a. m. sharp. Many comrades will be needed to sell copies of the paper at the gates of the factories at which the vote has already been taken.

Slayers to Mingle For Day.

JOLIET, Ill., Sept 17.—The Jewish holidays, Sept. 23 and October 8, will bring reprieve for Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard A. Loeb, from the order of Warden J. H. Francis that they were to be separated until July 4. Mr. Francis announced today that, in accordance with the prison custom, services for prisoners of the faith will be held in the prison chapel and that following the prisoners will be allowed to mingle and talk.

SULLIVAN, FOE OF LABOR, GETS I. W. W. CASE

Injunction Hearings Tie Up Wobbly Defense

The injunction case brought by the Griffith-Rowan-Bowerman faction in the Industrial Workers of the World against the Doyle-Fisher group, was placed on the books of Judge Dennis E. Sullivan, noted labor hater, yesterday, and hearing will be held Friday morning.

Meanwhile John O. Ryan, one of the lawyers for the Doyle-Fisher group, charges that the injunction proceedings are handicapping the defense of the four I. W. W. members who go to trial this morning before Judge Adam Cluff, in the federal court building, on deportation charges.

Face Federal Judge.

William Moran, Pietro Nigra, Joseph Oates and Herbert Mahler, who served terms in Leavenworth prison after being arrested in the famous war-time I. W. W. case, were served with deportation proceedings upon their release.

"The injunction proceedings have tied up the I. W. W. defense fund," Ryan told the DAILY WORKER. "And so far the opposition faction has shown no disposition to co-operate with the defense of these I. W. W. members."

Later, however, lawyers for the group responsible for the injunction, asked for a conference with William A. Cunnea, chief lawyer for the Doyle-Fisher group, which is to take place before the case comes before the expert on anti-labor injunctions, Dennis Sullivan, Friday morning.

This conference, according to a rank and file wobbly, altho it may patch up peace during the deportation proceedings in federal court, will not bring about lasting harmony, as the differences between the groups will be thrashed out on the floor of the I. W. W. convention, specially called for Oct. 13.

Faces Fascist Tyranny.

Pietri Nigra, who is in danger of being deported to Italy, was away from the trial held in Chicago, in 1918, being seriously ill in a hospital as a result of rough treatment in a southern Illinois jail. Nigra was arrested in the southern Illinois coal field for activity in organizing for the I. W. W. He was placed in the same jail with an insane man, who, in a fit of frenzy, hit him over the head with an iron cup, breaking his cheek bone. This injury the prison authorities refused to treat, with the result that during the trial Nigra was seriously ill in the hospital in Chicago.

Herbert Mahler, a Canadian, was active in successfully securing a united front of working class organizations to defend the I. W. W. members arrested in connection with the Everett massacre in 1916 and 1917. Mahler, who has served the most of a five-year sentence in Leavenworth, took charge of the publicity, revealing that the business men of Everett shot down I. W. W. members who were getting off a boat at the dock which had just brought them from San Francisco. About 70 of the I. W. W.'s were arrested, and no small credit for their release goes to the support secured by Mahler from many working class organizations.

Moran An Australian.

William Moran is a native of Australia and Joseph Oates an Englishman. Four separate deportation proceedings have been consolidated in one case, and will be tried before Judge Cliff this morning.

Whatever the outcome of the conference between the two I. W. W. factions brings forth, the fact remains that at the very moment when four of the oldest members in the organization need the defense money of the organization, and when a renewed onslaught on the I. W. W. in the federal courts calls for a united organization, the factional fighting has landed before Judge Dennis E. Sullivan, worst labor hating judge in the city, who is asked to act as referee.

Sullivan Will Enjoy Job.

Certain it is that if Sullivan sees a chance to serve his capitalist masters by further disrupting the I. W. W., he will take it. Sullivan demonstrated by his severe sentence of the girl garment strikers that he will show no mercy to the cause of labor. Sullivan has ever demonstrated his willingness to serve the large employers in the city. Not only did Sullivan grant injunctions against the garment strikers, attempting to deny them the right to picket, but he also granted an injunction against the striking retail clerks' union recently, and has performed many other acts against the working class.

Judge Sullivan will enjoy his task of passing judgment on the I. W. W., unless the case is dropped at once by demand of the rank and file of the organization.

RUSS MINISTER TO CHINA ACTS THRU AMERICAN

Asks Schurman to Hand Over Czar's Embassy

Note: In view of China's recent treaty with the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, a slight difficulty arose over the transference of the old czarist diplomatic quarters to the Soviet government. Altho the United States does not officially recognize the workers' republic, it was with the dean of the diplomatic corps, Mr. Jacob Gould Schurman, American minister to China, that Leo Karakhan, addressed the message printed below. The embassy quarters were finally turned over, but Mr. Charles E. Hughes simply will not recognize Soviet Russia!—Editor.

(By Rosta.)

PEKING, Sept. 17.—In view of the considerable interest attached to the question of the transfer of the Russian Legation to the Soviet Embassy, the Rosta is in a position to publish the text of Mr. Karakhan's note to Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, sent to the latter in his capacity of Acting Dean of the diplomatic body. The letter follows:

The Letter.

"Monsieur le Doyen: In view of the measures undertaken by the Chinese Government in reference to the transfer of the Russian Legation to the Soviet Government, as situated in the Diplomatic Quarter, and also pursuant upon our personal exchange of views, which took place at the invitation of His Excellency the Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of China with a view to effecting the actual transfer of the building to the Soviet Government, I have the honor to address myself to Your Excellency as follows:

"The government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics has been informed by the government of the Republic of China that the building of the former Russian Legation, belonging to the government of the Union, is under the jurisdiction of eight ministers of the Powers co-signatory to the 1901 Protocol, and also that the keys of the building are likewise in their hands. Therefore I have the honor on behalf the government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics to request Your Excellency to be good enough to undertake the necessary steps for the handing over at my disposal of the said keys and building.

Requests Keys.

"I would be very thankful to Your Excellency for kindly informing me who will be authorized by the eight ministers to effect the procedure of the handing over of the keys and building to the Embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics in China. Immediately upon receiving such communication I will appoint the responsible persons for actually taking over the building of the Legation.

"I avail myself of this opportunity to convey to you, Monsieur le Doyen, the assurances of my highest consideration.

"(Signed) L. KARAKHAN."

When the Canadian soldier told them that he wanted to see the prince, they knew right away that he was crazy and gave him the gate. Nobody but a millionaire or a bootlegger can see the prince without red tape. A man who merely fought to save his crown, surely must be off his head to imagine the prince would waste any time on him.

MORE thieves fall out. It is pleasant to hear them tell the truth about each. As usual both sides tell the truth when the opposite side Robert E. Crowe, whose office has been used as a fink headquarters for strikebreakers, is running for re-election. Mr. Michael Igoe is the democratic standard bearer for the same position. Igoe puts Crowe down as a dumbell who can't keep his pettifogging gunmen of Cook County from using the people as targets during gun practice. Crowe shoots back: "Mr. Igoe ought to be expert at crime figures. He is legal representative for bootleggers, rum runners and vice lords. The nature of the business represented by him ought to put him in position to know how much crime and vice there is." Let's hear some more from Igoe. The exchange is quite interesting.

THE poor old League of Nations is still carrying on as if the powers paid some attention to its decrees. Its latest indication of premature senility is the framing of a preliminary draft to limit international traffic in arms. The draft will be sent to all countries with an invitation to make observations on the contents and forward them to League of Nations' headquarters within four months. No doubt the powers will make notations on the estimable document and privately tell the League of Nations there is nobody home.

BEFORE the world war knocked many old theories into a cocked hat pacifists used to take themselves quite seriously and lots of outsiders also took the pacifists seriously. Professor Starr Jordan wrote an excellent article proving the war was impossible. The discovery of radio would successfully outlaw war. What a change? You never hear a hurdy gurdy grind out: "I did not raise my boy to be a soldier" nowadays and even pacifists stop predicting that there will never be another war. It is something to be thankful for.

SIR ROBERT CAMPBELL has written a long letter to the London Times, stating his opinion that no self-respecting Prime Minister could live on the £5,000 a year which a British premier receives. Either the premier must have a raise in pay, or else there is nothing left for him to do but accept graft, as MacDonald did. Of course Sir Robert did not even insinuate wrong doing on the part of the present premier, the view among the political lackeys of capitalism, is that Ramsay's conduct was perfectly proper and in good taste. Some of them envy the amount received by MacDonald but are not willing to make any noise about it as British politicians are even more venal than the American species.

JOHN WHEATLEY, Minister of Health, in the MacDonald cabinet, said MacDonald is the greatest statesman in Europe. Mr. Wheatley made this statement at a meeting in Glasgow. Evidently Mr. Wheatley agrees with Sir Alexander Grant as to MacDonald's worth. $135,000 is quite a sum to pay for a premier, even a first class specimen. If the other "friends" of MacDonald's boyhood days are as generous as Sir Grant, MacDonald will have nothing to worry about even if he has to quit Downing Street before Christmas. He can pay a visit to Albert B. Fall, Robert P. Brindell and other great contempories and have a real good time, away from the cares of office.

BEN GITLOW GETS BIG OVATION AT BOSTON MEETING

LaFollette, Like Cal and Davis, for Bosses' Rule

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 17.—The largest Workers Party mass meeting ever held here gave Benjamin Gitlow, Communist candidate for vice-president, a great ovation in the Scenic Auditorium, when he denounced La-Follette as an upholder of the capitalist system equally with the two old parties of Wall Street. Several hundred dollars was contributed to the campaign fund by an enthusiastic audience.

"LaFollette himself stated on Labor Day, that he 'represents legitimate business and legitimate profits,'" Gitlow declared. "That is why Frank Vanderlip, the millionaire banker and Rudolph Spreckles, the millionaire sugar king, support LaFollette. They know that LaFollette stands for the profit system.

"If LaFollette is elected he will do what the so-called progressive Ramsey MacDonald is doing now in England and the renegade Progressive Herriot is doing in France. Like these two betrayers of the working class, he will support the capitalist system against the interests of the workers."

LaFollette Tool of Bosses.

Gitlow told how the historic role of MacDonald has been to come to the aid of the capitalists and large em ployers of labor when they most need it. He declared that in times of crisis, the middle class progressives, such as MacDonald and LaFollette are the best tool of the capitalist, for under the cloak of such terms as "progressive," and "democratic," they fool the workers a little longer and prolong the dictatorship of the capitalist class.

Gitlow's attack on imperialism and capitalist war was loudly applauded. Foster's running mate denounced the recent Mobilization Day as an attempt of American capital to militarize the country, establish the goose step in America, and prepare the workers of this ountry to soon sacrifice their lives in another foreign war, which the capitalists are trying to bring on to capture foreign markets and retard the growing influence of the Communists.

Workers Party for Rule of Workers.

"The Workers Party is a part of the Communist International," Gitlow declared. "The Communist International will turn the next world war into a revolution which will forever abolish the rule of capitalism all over the world, and establish the workers in power as they are in Russia today.

"A big crisis is fast approaching," Gitlow continued. "Capitalism in the United States is leading the workers into an industrial depression with an army of seven or eight million unemployed workers and into a destructive and terrible slaughter to protect the interests of the Morgans and Rockefellers. The only solution to the problems of the workers is the overthrow of the capitalist system which is run for the profit of the few, and the substitution by the organized workers of their own rule, which shall run industries for use and service and not for profit."

The meeting ended with the singing of the International and cheers for Communism. Many outsiders were present. Harry Canter was chairman of the meeting.

A Long Wait for Jobs.

GLOBE, Ariz., Sept. 17.—Although actual work on the San Carlos dam will not begin for eighteen months or longer, more than a dozen families have already squatted at the dam site, waiting for work to begin that they may be the first on the ground and have the preference in securing employment. According to reports the families are very poor and only a few days at most removed from starvation.

BOSS PUT BEHIND BARS FOR TAKING SLAM AT STRIKER

Shoe Workers Standing Firm for Demands

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The strikers of the Comfort Sandal Mfg. Co., of Long Island City, N. Y., are making a grand fight to win their strike which they have been waging for the last five weeks, thru the efforts of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union. These men mostly foreign born are determined to win in spite of the fact that the bosses are hiring strike-breakers and have the assistance of the police. Many times the police have used methods of intimidation hoping to destroy the spirit of these workers.

The sandal shoe industry until recently has been passing thru a slack period and now the boss is getting desperate, orders are piling up and scabs are limited. It becomes necessary for the boss to use personal violence since the strikers refuse to be starved into submission.

Arrest Pickets.

Last Thursday morning the police made a new drive upon the pickets who have kept constant vigil on the picket line but the strikers have become accustomed to the methods of the ruling class. Two arrests were made.

On Friday morning Morris Bernstein, one of the strikers, reinforced the picketers and succeeded in persuading a few scabs to remain off the job. This infuriated the boss to such an extent that he assaulted Bernstein and one of the pickets. The boss thinking everything serene had Bernstein placed under arrest: immediately Bernstein demanded the arrest of the boss who is Joseph Fischel, Supt. of the Comfort Sandal Mfg. Co., 87-93 Sunswick St., Long Island City. The policeman refused at first but upon second thot took both Fischel and Bernstein to the police station. Upon their arrival it was amusing to watch the antics of the boss who attempted to impress the police authorities with his importance as a superintendent. The captain, however, was not impressed and pushed him to one side. After charges were preferred Mr. Fischel was hustled with other prisoners into the cage while a score of interested and curious strikers watched the boss behind the bars nervously waiting the case to be called.

A very able lawyer defended the strikers, Mr. Brodsky, while the boss was so taken by surprise that he had no time to retain an attorney. After the magistrate had listened for a short time to the interrupted remarks of the striker's attorney the boss asked for an adjournment which was granted until a later date.

CANADIAN NEWS TELEGRAPHERS OUT ON STRIKE

(By The Federated Press)

TORONTO, Sept. 17.—The Canadian Press, the chief newsgathering agency of the Canadian daily newspapers, has a strike on its hands. The telegraphers in its employ are out over a wage dispute, and the Commercial Telegraphers' union, with which they are affiliated, is refusing to handle news dispatches. The Canadian Press and the individual newspapers are now getting their news chiefly by telephone and radio. Chief operators in the telegraph companies not members of the union, are handling a limited amount of newspaper copy.

Ask Wage Increase.

The wage dispute between the telegraphers and the Canadian Press covers a wide range. The men are asking for an increase in the minimum from $15 to $30 per week, while the company is proposing a cut in pay. The Canadian Press asks for arbitration, but the men refuse to consider a cut at all tho quite willing to arbitrate for a raise.

Minister of labor, James Murdock, has established a board to inquire into the dispute but the telegraphers refuse to recognize the board unless the proposal for a cut in pay is dropped.

Russ Co-operatives Only Ones to Hand Back British Loan

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The English co-operative societies who loaned nearly $5,000,000 to the Russian and other eastern co-operatives immediately after the war have been repaid by the Russians alone. The other co-ops in eastern Europe are dilatory about repayment and in some cases the British workers' money is as good as gone.

Labor in England is using these facts to prove that the proposed loan to the Russian government is safe. They argue that when Russia recognizes an obligation she pays up, but that the money loaned to the czar before the revolution to stamp out labor aspirations is a different matter.

CAMPAIGN TO PUT COMMUNIST CANDIDATES ON FALL TICKET BRINGING EXCELLENT RESULTS

By WM. F. KRUSE.

The campaign for signatures to put our candidates on the ballot has done a lot of good. Thousands of workers, completely off our beaten paths, now know that there are Communist candidates in the fields. Many "tired radicals" have been shamed at their own inaction by the presence of the canvasser at their door. And best of all, our own sequestered membership has found out that one can directly approach the non-Communist worker without immediate fatalities, in fact, that it is good fun to carry the banner direct to his doorstep, to match wits with him and to win his friendly respect at least, if not his support.

Most comrades found it hard to make the start. It was so different from our usual line of meetings and more meetings, where everybody knew everybody else, and where one could just about anticipate what every speaker would say. Here was virgin field with the unexpected behind every door. The City Office made it easier by giving instructions in detail, just HOW the work was to be done. If some of our other (and easier) tasks were as well organized we would have more and better workers in them also. Our members want to work but they think that they don't know how. New tasks especially the old habits cling to them and hold them back.

Here's an Example.

An illustration. This canvassing is an individual job, perhaps for some, a two man job. You take your papers, you go to your territory, and you go to work. That's all. Last Sunday several branches made a last minute drive for names. I arrived at headquarters and found about twenty comrades sitting on the stoop and waiting. Waiting for what? The material was all there. A responsible comrade had it ready for distribution. They explained that they were waiting for a few more so they could have a "meeting." Why a "meeting?" Nobody knew. And it was a good half-hour pas the time set for the start of the drive. Work was started at once and with good results.

Comrades who had never approached strangers before did so with much misgiving, only to be surprised at how simple and interesting it was. About fifty calls would yield half that number of signers. The others were not all refusals. Some men worked, others had gone to church or elsewhere where the Communist canvasser cannot follow. One little girl said: "Father is a policeman on night beat, shall I wake him?" Our canvassers temper valor with discretion so the copper's dreams of pre-Volstead days were not disturbed.

4 Out of 50 for "Lafayette."

In the fifty houses visited, four were found "for Lafayette." Two of them signed our petitions, none had been persuaded to sign and either LaFollette or socialist canvassers. LaFollette men were sore at us for "dividing up the vote" but this was answered by a short expose of Bobs' slaughter of the labor party, and an explanation that the independent candidacy merely was more capitalist camp in which to divide up the working class. One intense British patriot was encountered, flags all over house, his son had to work seven days a week to support the family,—we did not get to see the son, there might have been a different story and another signature.

One old Irish lady signed but said: "I wouldn't go upstairs if I were you, they're just Jews." Up we went and found a W. P. sympathizer who told us where we could get five more names, right in the district.

Another place where four names were picked up in two adjoining flats I was again asked not to go up to the floors above, "It won't do you any good and we don't want them to see our names on the petition." Our canvassers should be instructed to make a special list of actual sympathizers encountered so that these people could be cultivated for organization purposes.

Homeward bound I met several other canvassers from our branch and all were elated over their experiences and success. Those who went out on the firing line were just regular rank and file members, none of them had ever "risen" as far as the City Central Committee, and most of them would never care to. This was the first work they had ever been asked, outside of selling tickets and collecting money for economic relief, defense, etc., that they felt that they could do it because they had been told and shown HOW to do it. The experience is certain to have a good effect upon the future party work and attitude of these members.

Toledo Begins Campaign Meetings.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 17. — The Workers Party campaign open air meetings were started here with the first one held Sept. 14, on the corner of St. Clair and Jackson Avens. Comrade Clarence Miller of Chicago, was the main speaker of the evening. He spoke on the pending economic crisis, and the presidential campaign. Many copies of the DAILY WORKER were sold to the large crowd that listened to Comrade Miller. Meetings will be held every Saturday night at this corner.

DEFENSE DAY WAS ONE BIG FADEOUT IN THE COUNTRY

Dallas Drizzle is Aid to Fizzle

VINCENNES, Ind., Sept. 17.—The Defense parade at Vincennes was a failure. Part of the veterans of the several wars and four bands participated. The employes of some industries and school children were herded in. The spectators were few. The big feature was the advertisements of the merchants.

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 17.—The weather man inflicted a smashing blow at the ambitious plans of the militarists of this city for a big Defense Day parade. One band, militiamen, school boys, three squads of cavalry, several survivors of the civil war, the Spanish-American war and the great smash at democracy, with few Red Crossers, camp fire girls and boy scouts bravely faced the drizzle. About a hundred limousines, sedans and curtained autos brot up the rear with the camp followers and would-be profiteers. There was no jam of onlookers from the side-lines.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Defense day furnished big street shows for New York City with parades and speeches. In the Engineering Societies building Judge Elbert H. Gary received messages from the war department for railroad cars and munitions and relayed them out to his assistants in an imaginary industrial mobilization. But the factories themselves went on working. No general patriotic holiday for the workers.

Dallas Becomes Liberal.

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 17.—Among the speakers announced by the Dallas Open Forum for the 1924-25 season are Scott Nearing, Frank Tannenbaum and Charlotte Perkins Gilman. Meetings are held Sunday afternoons in the auditorium of the city hall.

WORKER LEAVES WIFE AND FOUR CHILDREN IN DEATH ACCIDENT

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

NOKOMIS, Illinois, Sept. 17.—The death of George Fullerton, well known miner working at the North mine here, makes the second death thru accidents which occurred in the North mine within the period of eight days. William Jones of Witt was killed by a fall of slate a few days previous to the latest fatal accident.

Fullerton, who had the reputation of being a careful workman, with sixteen years experience with coal cutting machines, became caught in the rapidly revolving machine, and his right leg was ground to a pulp. Fullerton, whom the coroner's jury decided "came to his death from an electrict cutting machine chain at mine No. 10, Nokomis," leaves a wife and four children.

HEIRLOOM HEROES DO THEIR STUFF IN DETROIT "DAY"

Daughters of Past Wars and Revolts March

By OWEN STIRLING.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

DETROIT, Sept. 17.—The, Colonial Dames and many other proxy patriots participated in Detroit's Mobilization day.

The most portentous feature of the day was the mobilization of 400 taxicabs and their drivers. Taxicabs, popularly associated with expensive pleasure, will apparently have a new and grim function in the next imperialist war or in a future class-war clash between workers and employers. In the Mobilization day demonstration in Detroit Sept. 12, the Yellow Cab Co., the Checker Cab Co. and the Brown & White Cab Co. contributed about 400 cabs and drivers to the 5th army train maneuvers to "show how 250,000 men in Wayne county could be mobilized hastily by means of taxicabs and private cars."

Methodist Pacifism.

And in spite of the much-vaunted Methodist pacifism Rev. Russel H. Bready, pastor of a wealthy Methodist church here, stood shoulder to shoulder with Harold H. Emmons, president of the board of commerce, while waving the flag and denouncing "un-Christian opponents of preparedness."

The board of commerce is more afraid of organized labor than of the British navy.

The rollcall of the organizations that co-operated with the board of commerce and the military forces in the plans of the day makes a man wish there were an inheritance tax on heirloom-heroism and photograph album patriotism, even until the third or fourth generation. Rattle the scabbard, Herbie; here they come:

Here They Are.

Daughters of the American Revolution, Society of Colonial Wars, Society of Colonial Dames, Military Order of the Loyal Legion, Grand Army of the Republic, Sons of Veterans, Daughters of Veterans, Women's Relief Corps, Memorial Day Committee, Founders' and Patriots' Society, Daughters of 1812, Historic Memorials Society, Spanish American War Veterans, Veterans of the World War.

Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, National Clubs of Women's Service, Women's League of the Service Flag, Louisa St. Clair Chapter of the D. A. R., Detroit Unit of Women's Overseas Service League, Society of Mayflower Descendants, Jaynes Tent of the Daughters of the Civil War Veterans, Fort Pontchartrain Chapter of the D. A. R., Red Cross Workers of Detroit, Army and Navy Club, Cosmopolitan Women's Club, Colonial Governor Society and Gen. A. S. Williams Fortress No. 1, D. of G. A. R.

The Chocolate Soldiers of Detroit were assigned to many of the large Detroit factories to make the workers realize they were expected to fight whenever called upon to collect Morgan's international loans.

Bakers Have Long Work Day

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 17.—Bakery workers here have organized a local union of Amalgamated Food Workers. Most of those workers have night jobs and hours are from 12 to as much as 17 in the 24. Wages are miserably low, some of them being paid $20 per week for an extremely long work day. The local will meet Friday afternoon at Labor Lyceum, 22nd and Clark Sts., 3 p. m. W. Jonisch is temporary chairman. An active campaign will be carried on to organize every baker and bakery worker in Omaha. Friends are requested to co-operate.

Congressional Districts Pushing Signature Campaign, Must Get Every Candidate Over.

District 4, Joseph Podkulski, candidate, as observed yesterday, is speeding its signature campaign, with the result that District 4 is the surest bet for going first over the top in the Congressional Districts. 1000 signatures have now been obtained there. Districts 1, 6 and 7 are also climbing. Branches shall make every effort to get all comrades out for a big Sunday drive. The Lettish, South Slav, Hungarian branches must try to get their membership on the job and there can be no doubt that hundreds of signatures will be got. Too many branches are yet letting the other fellows do it. The other fellows are, but a little help from slack branches would be appreciated. In District 9, almost over, the Finnish, North Side English W. P. and Y. W. L., German branches have done nearly all the work. Other branches in this district—get busy and help finish the job. Douglas Park Jewish branch must get out in full force next Sunday and bring in about a 1000 signatures. They have brought in about 330, but most certainly the five wires there can and will do more. Tomorrow the Party hopes to report that some of the districts have got enough signatures to go on the ballot.

The results to date are:

District	Candidate	Signatures obtained	Signatures necessary
No. 1	Gordon Owens	910	1200
No. 4	Joseph Podkulski	1050	1300
No. 5	Harry Epstein	470	1000
No. 6	Frank Pellegrino	1350	3500
No. 7	Sam Hammersmark	2005	4800
No. 8	George Maurer	575	800
No. 9	Jack W. Johnstone	910	1200

GITLOW HOLDS ROUSING MEET IN BRIDGEPORT

Labor Hails Communist Candidate

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

BRIDGEPORT, Sept. 17.—Last night Ben Gitlow, vice-presidential candidate of the Workers Party, fired the opening gun in the local campaign. To the workers assembled in the hall, Gitlow analyzed carefully the system we live under, lacing it into the Bridgeport gun magnates, famous for open shop conditions.

Particular attention was paid to unemployment. The coming unemployment crisis loomed up large, against the background of war "prosperity" and expansion of productive forces that accompanied it.

Workers Pleased.

Seldom are the workers of this city given an opportunity to listen to a speech, so profound, so chock full of facts, with a pyramid of arguments, leading up to the logical conclusion, the elimination of the present economic order, and the establishment of a Workers Government.

The speech did not sound trite, like the speech of a college professor, weaving arguments out of book cloth and thin air. Gitlow's illustrations were taken from the actual situation confronting the worker, and his sallies brot forth round after round of applause. The audience was composed of workingmen and women, who realized that the capitalist candidates and parties were weaving a fine network of phrases for campaign consumption, whereas the Communist speaker was giving rock bottom facts.

The speech was admirably begun with a review of the imperialistic world situation, of conflicting interests of various economic and financial groups, a conflict which inevitably leads to war, even as it did in the last war. The Mobilization Day plans were explained with capitalist imperialism in the background.

Locks Horns With Bob.

After showing up the reactionary nature of the platforms and candidates of the old parties, Gitlow locked horns with the new political monstrosity that has appeared on the horizon, a candidate of the small business men, manufacturers, and independent bankers, who, Messiahlike, calls upon the workingclass to follow him into Kingdom Come. Gitlow showed how the support given LaFollette by the Railroad Brotherhoods, the A. F. of L., and the Socialist Party, in no way meant that he represented the interest of the proletariat.

After the meeting, many workers came up to the platform, to congratulate the speaker on the excellence of his address. That the audience realized the value to them of a working class daily, was shown by the many subscription cards sold.

More to Be Held.

The Chairman, Organizer Simons, called the meeting a beginning of the Bridgeport campaign, announcing an open air meeting at East Washington Park, next Friday, Sept. 19th, at 8 p. m., with Rebecca Grecht as the speaker. Simons told the audience that the candidates were waiting for the announcement that the Workers Party ticket was on the ballot in Connecticut. It was encouraging to hear that the Bridgeport comrades were actively engaged in getting signatures, their total on Thursday, Sept. 11, being 325, of which Comrade J. Gombos, member of the District Executive Committee, secured 80. Comrades E. Grosz and Jennie Feldman are among others who are doing their duty. Campaign Manager Mary Dworkin promises that Bridgeport will get at least 1,000 signatures before October 1 .

With the enthusiasm engendered by the Gitlow meeting, the local comrades are attacking the signature problem with renewed vigor.

COMMUNIST MOBILIZATION DAYS

By HARRY WINITSKY
Campaign Manager, Workers Party, New York District

ALL members of the Workers Party in New York City are hereby instructed by the District Executive Committee that on SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20th, and SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, they must report to their section headquarters the addresses of which are below, to go out and collect signatures for the election petitions so that the Workers Party candidates will go on the ballot this year in New York State.

In order to place our party and our candidates on the ticket we must have a minimum of 50,000 signatures which must be in this office no later than the 23rd of September. If the comrades do not get on the job immediately we will not complete this tremendous task now confronting us.

If every member in New York will go out this coming Saturday and Sunday and procure at least 20 signatures we will go on the ballot, otherwise we will fail. Every member of the party must be brought to realize the imperative importance of our party going on the ballot and this can only be done if the comrades are mobilized for this task.

The Executive Committee has therefore set aside Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 20th and 21st, as the mobilization days during which time the members of the party must put all other work aside and concentrate on the procuring of signatures only.

You are further instructed by the District Executive Committee that a record of all those comrades who fail to show up for mobilizatin will be kept and they will be disciplined by their branches. No excuses will be accepted. You must do your duty as a COMMUNIST. MOBILIZATION DAYS HAVE BEEN SET ASIDE, and all comrades and loyal workers for the cause must respond.

The following headquarters will be open every evening and all day Saturday and Sunday. Report to these headquarters, get your petitions, territories in which you will be assigned and your instructions as to how this work must be done.

SECTION HEADQUARTERS FOR MOBILIZATION:

208 East 12th Street	Louis Baum, 443 St. Anns Ave., Bronx
105 Eldridge Street	61 Graham Ave., Brooklyn
143 East 103rd Street	1844 Pitkin Ave., Brooklyn
1347 Boston Road, Bronx	764 40th Street, Brooklyn

WE WANT NO SLACKER IN THE PARTY.

EVERY COMRADE MUST COME DOWN READY FOR WORK ON MOBILIZATION DAYS—SATURDAY AND SUNDAY, SEPT. 20th AND 21st.

LEAVE OMAHA IN 24 HOURS, JUDGE ORDERS WORKERS

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 17.—"Men who spread communist doctrines are not wanted in Omaha," declared Judge Sophus Neble, Jr., in South Omaha police court Friday as he ordered R. Anderson and G. Harris to leave the city within 24 hours.

Anderson and Harris appeared in court as witnesses against William Scott, a building foreman at the Armour plant, whom Anderson accused of pushing him off a scaffold. Anderson's back was slightly bruised.

Since they began work, Scott said, the two men have been spreading Communist doctrines among other workers. When he told them they must stop causing strife, he said, Anderson demanded his pay, announcing that he was quitting. In the course of an argument, Scott pushed Anderson and he fell from the scaffolding. Scott was released.

Judge Neble is a young and recent appointee of Charley Bryan, governor and candidate for vice-president. Anderson and Harris are reported to be I. W. W.'s; they are not Communists so far as the local Workers Party knows. However, Judge Neble could not distinguish between LaFollette, the I. W. W. and Communism. They were all opposed to his machine in politics and that was enough.

Detroit to Have an Old-Fashioned Vintage Festival

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 17.—The Workers' Party of Detroit will open its season's social activities, Saturday, Sept. 20th with a Vintage Festival. The Auditorium of the House of the Masses, 2649 St. Aubin Ave., has been engaged and the committee in charge of decorations promises to completely transform the hall into a veritable vineyard with the luscious grape to waft one back to the good old days of childhood when stealing grapes was the vested interest of every kid.

The German comrades, artists in the preparation of grape juice that they are, will prepare the liquid refreshments, and the Hungarian comrades have promised to serve the savory gulash which has made them famous far and wide.

A surprise program of unique and novel numbers, together with the dancing will make certain that all fortunate enough to attend the Vintage Festival will have the time of their lives. Admission is 50 cents.

W. P. STAND MEETS RESPONSE IN CONNECTICUT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 17.—Three hundred New Haven workers heard the Communist speakers at a meeting held at the Central Green Bandstand this evening from 8 to 10 p. m. On the previous occasion, on July 30, Ben Gitlow, vice-presidential candidate of the Workers Party, spoke with the District Organizer against imperialism and war. This election campaign meeting was addressed by Rebecca Grecht, from New York; and by Comrade Simons.

The chairman, Ida Rothstein, discussed briefly the local political situation. Comrade Simons spoke on the significance of Defense Day, alias Mobilization Day. He linked it up with finance capital and imperialism, pointing to the war danger inherent in the Dawes Report, in the capitalist search for fields for investment, and challenging Defense Day as preparation for war.

Speak on Campaign.

Comrade Grecht confined her talk to the coming election campaign. She first paid her respects to Strikebreaker Coolidge, then to Morganized Davis, and their parties and platforms. Then she dwelt on the "La Follette illusion," his impossible scheme to bust the trusts, his record of service to corporations, and of opposing measures favorable to the working class. She pointed to the "model state" of Wisconsin, LaFollette's paradise (the record on which he stands), and showed that he was the candidate of the small businessmen, manufacturers, and bankers. As opposed to these representatives of capitalism, she urged support of the Communist campaign, and of the Communist standard bearers, Wm. Z. Foster and Ben Gitlow. She urged all present to attend the meeting at Harmonson's Hall, 158 Crown St., Sept. 19th, where Gitlow would discuss the campaign from a Communist angle. Her talk, interspersed with illuminating stories, endeared her to the audience.

Especially effective was her reference to the action of the socialists, who withdrew prominent socialist figures from the running, in order not to take too much strength from the "progressive" LaFollette handpicked candidates for congress.

Dailies Sold.

The meeting proved worthwhile, in view of the DAILY WORKERS sold, and the number of copies of the election program which were distributed.

SPANISH TROOPS TO LAUNCH BIG DRIVE ON MOORS

Dictator De Rivera Is in a Tight Corner

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Dictator Primo de Rivera, at the head of an army of 100,000 men, will this week launch a terrific attack against the Moors located at Tetuan, dispatches from Morocco indicate.

South of Tetuan the rebel Moorish forces have advanced far beyond El Alba, which the Spanlards evacuated last week. Moorish soldiers surrounded the Spanish garrison at Sheshaven, and occupy the whole fifty miles between Sheshaven and Tetuan.

Scene of Intrigue.

Morocco, which is one of the richest fruit growing regions in the world, is at present the center of political intrigue between the rebellious forces and the capitalist governments of Europe, all of which are striving to advance their economic interests in the colony at the expense of their rivals.

Mauser automatic rifles have been found on the bodies of dead Moorish soldiers, of the same make as those used and manufactured by Germany and given in enormous quantities to Turkey during the world war. For this reason rumors are being noised about in official circles at Madrid that France is face to face with a powerful Turkish-German intrigue.

France Aiding Moors.

That France has for months been giving financial aid to the Moorish leaders is a matter of common knowledge. Aside from her desire to get concessions in Morocco, and possibly to gain control of the colony altogether, France is anxious to break the hold of England on the Dardenelles. The seizure by the rebels of the port of Ceuta, on the northern coast of Morocco almost opposite Gibraltar, would deal a tremendous blow at English power in the Mediterranean.

A "liberal" faction in Spain has been openly appealing to France for aid against the Moors, basing its appeals on the ground that a defeat of the Spanish government in Morocco might mean an uprising of the Spanish workers and the establishment of a workers' republic at the very doors of France.

J. Bull Changes Policy.

England, which has for ten years been supporting Spanish rule in Morocco, is reported to have made a complete change of policy, and to have offered financial support to Abdel Krim, Moorish leader, to drive out the Spaniards and establish a Moroccan republic. It is understood that such a republic, if established, would grant special concessions to British companies. The repeated victories of the Moors, it is said, have also helped to alter the attitude of England, who is willing to take any measures to be sure that France does not advance further toward the Moroccan coast.

ILLEGAL MEANS USED TO DEPORT RADICAL ALIENS

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The Department of Labor's denial that it has used illegal Ukranian passports to deport alien radicals who cannot legally be deported to Soviet Russia, was attacked yesterday in a statement by the American Civil Liberties Union, which made the original charge against the department.

The Union cites the records of the Federal District Court at New York to prove that the Department deported Elefroy Okolotenko to Switzerland the latter part of August on a passport furnished by the Ukranian Diplomatic Mission which is "recognized neither by the United States nor by the Soviet Government."

The Civil Liberties Union's statement follows:

"The case in the federal court was brought on July 28, 1924 by attorney Isaac Shorr to test the right of the Department of Labor to use such passports after Okolotenko had been once sent to Europe and returned because the Ukranian authorities would not honor it. Judge Henry W. Goddard dismissed the writ of habeas corpus by which the attorneys sought to free Okolotenko, agreeing however to grant a writ if Okolotenko is again returned. The reply to the writ submitted by the Commissioner of Immigration at New York plainly admits the use of fake Ukranian passports, in a statement that the 'first deportation was effected on a passport obtained by the New York representative of the Ukranian Republic.' As there is no New York representative of the present Ukranian Soviet Republic, the statement obviously refers to the old Ukranian People's Republic which has been out of existence for four years, but which an illegal Ukranian diplomatic mission at Washington still purports to represent.

"When charged with the use of these fake passports Department of Labor officials promptly denied their use, altho our original charges were specific. The attention of the Secretary of Labor is again being called to the matter with the request that the practice be definitely stopped."

28 Branches Send in Industrial Registration

Twenty-Eight Branches of the Workers Party in the City of Chicago have sent in their Industrial Registration. The recent branches to take care of this most important work are: Czecho-Slovak Town of Lake, Czecho-Slovak No. 1, Northwest English, Northwest Jewish, Lithuanian No. 47 (Pullman), Ukranian No. 1, Hungarian and Finnish. A number of Branches are finishing up and inform the Party that their registration will be in in a couple of days.

Branch Secretaries and Industrial Organizers are again informed to make sure that the MEMBERS FILL OUT THE PLACE THEY WORK AT in filling out the cards. That is the most important part of the information wanted, since that information gives us the basis of Shop Nuclei work. In Chicago, it is the intention of the Party to proceed wherever possible, with the reorganization of the Party on the basis of Shop Nuclei organization. Prospects are good for that work. The Industrial Registration is proving, as was expected, to be of the greatest value to the Party in all its activities. The political and industrial work of the Party, in particular, will have a surer foundation; with a knowledge of what our Party consists of, the work can be laid out more surely in every field. Members will have to toe the mark to maintain their right to be members of the Workers Party.

Push the Industrial Registration in your Branch. Send in the registration as fast as completed. Keep the registration up to date. As new members join the Party, take the registration at once; give the member work to do. The faster the industrial registration, the faster and better the Communist work.

THE VIEWS OF OUR READERS ON LIFE, LABOR, INDUSTRY, POLITICS

Wobbly Likes Daily Worker.

From a personal letter from an I. W. W. imprisoned in California we are taking, without his knowledge or permission, a few paragraphs to illustrate the fact that while the officials of the organization are tearing the organization to pieces with factional squabbles and never ceasing to oppose the Communists, behind the prison walls the realistically minded members who care more for substance than for form, are finding their way toward revolutionary science and practice, are building within the I. W. W. and within the prisons the movement for revolutionary unity.

Readers of the DAILY WORKER are asked to note that this comrade has found that letters have been few and far between. Let him hear from you.

"I have lost my former faith in the fetish called 'economic direct action' as a revolutionary weapon. Can't see how any one can still entertain that dogma. The battle for emancipation cannot be won by any tactics of passive resistance, such as economic direct action. I was forced to that conclusion in spite of my wishes, after reading of the immediate labor strikes thruout the world in the last three years.

Furthermore, I believe the wobblies have lost their revolutionary zeal and goal, to be honest and candid about it. We advocate nothing but industrial unionism at present, which is an excellent weapon for the daily struggle with our masters, but that is the very limit of its value.

"I'm sorry to admit our organization has become sterile; we have lost our punch as far as the revolution is concerned. In my humble opinion it's high time we take an inventory of our orthodox and dogmatic assertions.

"Personally I am firmly convinced there is plenty of room and need for a classwar revolutionary party, as represented by the Workers Party of this country.

"I cannot see any real or imaginary reasons why we should be at logger heads with the Workers Party. Personally I am very sorry I am not at liberty to help them in their splendid fight in behalf of the exploited class.

"I am a reader of the DAILY WORKER, and must say it has my hearty approval and recommendation in all its efforts.

"Please give my best regards and wishes to all the comrades and fellow workers in your vicinity and tell them a letter would be highly appreciated. You may show this letter to any one you see fit. I have been here nearly three years, and still one more year to serve, and letters have been very few and far between.

"Please accept my sincere gratitude in behalf of us prisoners, and hope this finds you in perfect health and sprits.—Louis Allen, No. 12026, Folsom Prison, Repressa, Cal."

An American in Russia.

To the DAILY WORKER:—I am unable to express my feelings in writing when I received your letter telling me that the WEEKLY WORKER of New York had become the DAILY WORKER of Chicago.

Life in Russia is very interesting, particularly to party members, because we can do our work openly, but there is an awful lot of it. At present we are busy organizing a German-speaking section in this locality. We've got about 500 German-speaking workers in the factories in this city, and about 15 German villages scattered around the country and not enough party members who speak German.

Will Construct Power Plant.

There are twelve of us from America but only two Americans, myself and Cofirade Hoyle, the others are Russian Americans.

This city is located on the Dnelper river which is equal to the Columbia in Oregon. Plans are projected for the construction of an electric power plant and locks to enable ships to go further up the river. At present ships from the Black Sea ports can only go as far as this city. Engineers are at work now doing the primary work, but the real work is to start next year.

Works in Automobile Shop.

I work in an automobile repair shop. We repair and overhaul a good many army trucks taken away from the Deniken and Wrangle armies. They are Italian, French and American made machines.

I am interested in this year's campaign. Please send me a copy of the DAILY WORKER and the Butte Bulletin once in a while. Imagine if you can how hungry I am for an American newspaper, not having seen one for over a year.

I am able to read Russian now and subscribe to the Pravda, so keep in touch with the outside world but Boyle doesn't read or speak a word of Russian.—Henry Weber.

The W. G. N. and the Negroes.

To the DAILY WORKER—The Tribune of August 27 tells of another murder in a North Side cabaret. It is dollars to doughnuts that the world's greatest newspaper will not state that the cabaret should be closed.

If a fist fight occurred in a South Side cabaret attended by both Negroes and whites, the Tribune immediately yelps for its closing.

Just Jim Crow hates any amusement or recreational place frequented by Negroes and whites. Why? Because Negroes and whites, by mingling together and coming in contact with each other, come to understand each other and cease hating and fighting each other for the benefit of the Tribune advertisers and the class which the Tribune represents. There is the rub for the Tribune.

To the DAILY WORKER: The first complimentary copy of the DAILY WORKER arrived and from the bottom of our red common heart we appreciate your thotfulness.

Finding ourselves thrown on the rocks after a long and hard struggle for existence in the jungles of civilization, the DAILY WORKER comes to us like an oasis in a desert.

Long and fruitful life to our DAILY WORKER and its workers. And may the purifying and vivifying rays of the rising sun in the Red East speedily sweep all over the globe.—With fraternal greetings, A. J. Stein, J. C. R. S. Sanitarium, Colo.

Ford Works for Davis.

To the DAILY WORKER—The Ford Motor Company put up posters all over the plant with the picture of James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, and carrying the inscription, "A Thought for Labor Day. America's workers are the best and most prosperous in the world. Let's make it the safest. James J. Davis."

The display of this picture of a man who has always fought organized labor gives a pretty good idea of Henry Ford.—A Ford Employee.

WEEKS DELIGHTED BY "SUCCESS" OF GOOSE STEP DAY

Pershing Also Tickled with War Move

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—"I am perfectly delighted with the results," declared Secretary of War Weeks, in commenting on the turnout of the citizenry on Defense Day.

This obvious attempt to boost what was the greatest failure to rally the people to the standards of capitalist militarism will not, however, fool many.

Workers Threatened With Jobs.

Only a few millions actually turned out instead of the tens of millions that were predicted in the inspired reports issued by officials of the war department and heads of patriotic societies. In many places the ranks of the patriots were increased by the presence of workers who were instructed to participate in the demonstrations on the implied pain of losing their jobs.

Most of those who participated prominently were the members of the regular army, national guards and reserve forces.

General Pershing, just retired, gave one of the reasons for the holding of the demonstrations and for his satisfaction with the results when he said: "I believe that this will have a permanent result and that it will do more than anything could have done to check the growth of destructive ideas menacing our national institutions."

Preparing Their Minds.

The plain psychologizing of the masses for the purpose of instilling in the minds of the workers a jingoistic, patriotic spirit, will do yeoman service to the capitalists of this country when they find it necessary to throw masses of workers into the next war which is swiftly approaching.

WOMEN UNITE TO PUT OVER CHILD LABOR MEASURE

Think Legislatures May Favor Amendment

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Eighteen national organizations federated into the Women's Committee for the Children's Amendment have prepared a textbook for the ratification campaign which must be waged in the 44 states that have not yet acted upon the measure. State and local branches of these organizations are going to work to send men and women to the state legislatures, this year, who will be pledged to ratification. So the child labor amendment is brought into the political struggle thruout the country.

"The women who are working for the amendment have no illusions about the struggle before them," says their statement. "The opposition in this cash includes the same interests that fought woman suffrage, fought prohibition, fought the Sheppard-Towner maternity and infancy law. Those interests have money and resources. They include employers of children who have a directly selfish motive. They are busy trying to defeat ratification by spreading misinformation and misrepresentation about the amendment and what is will do." The textbook is issued to overcome this misinformation.

Moderate Figures.

The last census figures are quoted to show that over 1,000,000 children from 10 to 16 years of age—one child in every twelve—is gainfully employed. Of these, 413,500 were child operatives in cotton, woolen, worsted and silk mills, iron and steel mills, clothing factories and sweatshops, lumber mills and furniture factories, shoe factories and coal mines; were employed as servants, waiters, messengers, bundle wrappers, office boys and girls, sales boys and girls, clerks, newsboys and miscellaneous other non-agricultural occupations. Agricultural occupations claimed 647,000. Since this count was registered in January, the total did not include vacation work on the farms.

In only 13 states do the child labor laws measure up the very moderate standards set by the former federal laws for protection of minor workers. In 35 states the children may go to work before getting a common school education.

'BOB' AND 'BURT' HAVE HARD TIME OF IT IN COPPER STATE

as Walsh at the C. F. P. A. meeting.

Dorman was accused on the floor of political trading in the interest of Walsh and at the expense of LaFollette. Under the cross fire, Dorman produced a letter written to him by Senator Wheeler (after Wheeler jumped on the LaFollette bandwagon) in which Wheeler stated that he and LaFollette would do all they could for Walsh. At a later meeting, held in Butte, the farmer-labor leaders were invited to attend as individuals. The telegram was sent the day before the meeting so that Senator Anderson, Chas. E. Taylor and others in distant parts of the state could not be present. P. J. Wallace wired to LaFollette national headquarters that the executive committee of the farmer-labor party would be willing to meet with representatives of LaFollette but refused to attend in an individual capacity.

Independent Electors.

In the meantime, Dorman called on two of the four farmer-labor electors already on the ballot and gave them the impression that he was acting on behalf of the farmer-labor executive committee. He pointed out that independent electors would be put in the field for LaFollette and Wheeler and that the farmer-labor electors should withdraw and would be put up for election on the independent ticket. Two of the electors were deceived by Dorman's smooth lies and were persuaded to hand him a withdrawal conditioned on their being put on the independent ticket as LaFollette electors.

As soon as the farmer-labor executive committee were informed of this trickery and dishonorable practice they called a full meeting of the two idential electors and got them to sign a pledge stating that they would not withdraw and would vote for LaFollette and Wheeler if elected.

John M. Nelson stated in an interview that the farmer-labor electors in Montana would withdraw in favor of the Independents. He was probably acting on the advice of Dorman, his regional director. After this, public sentiment in Montana turned against Dorman to such an extent that he was withdrawn from Montana and Jimmie Baldwin, law partner of Senator Wheeler, was appointed in his stead. Nobody has ever accused Mr. Baldwin of possessing any knowledge of politics. But he serves his purpose as errand boy for Senator Wheeler.

Against F.-L. Party Electors.

Walsh's friends, fearing Anderson would beat him for United States Senator were demanding of Wheeler that a set of electors should be put in the field independent or the farmer-labor party. Baldwin was shown that the laws of Montana did not permit such a procedure but under pressure from Walsh, Wheeler sent him orders to proceed.

To get some show of an organization he had to make an alliance with the supporters of Governor Dixon, who is also interested in seeing the farmer-labor party defeated. "Winking Ed" Manson, secretary of the Montana Federation of Labor, a notorious lickspittle of Governor Dixon, whose opposition to the farmer-labor party since its inception has caused him to give the unions in Great Falls and Butte a wide berth, was chosen by Baldwin to help him.

Plutes Present.

Manson at once supplied a list with the result that all the enemies of the farmer-labor party in the state were invited to a meeting in Helena last Saturday. Nineteen attended, amongst whom were Burley Bowler, who was financed to start a paper in the eastern part of the state for the purpose of attacking Taylor and the farmer-labor party. Gallaher of Great Falls, secretary-treasurer of the Black Magic Milling company in which hundreds of workers lost their hard-earned earnings, was another who was present.

Gallaher is known as a stool-pigeon of Joe Dixon's and did his best as secretary of the Smeltermen's Union to get the workers to vote the republican ticket at the recent primaries. The workers are not being fooled by his type of political pack rats any more, with the result that Gallaher who was himself a bell wether candidate, was the low man on the republican ticket, failing to carry even his own precinct.

Typical Fakers.

Manson, Gallaher and Bowler were typical of those who attended Saturday's meeting in Helena. Most of the time was taken up with speeches attacking the farmer-labor party and stating that the Montana farmer-labor party was nothing but a branch of the Communist Party. Taylor and Wallace came in for their share of abuse. Taylor was always referred to by the speakers as "Red Flag" Taylor, a nickname he received from the capitalist press while fighting the battles of the working class in the Montana State Senate.

After a good deal of speechmaking, the nineteen supporters of Dixon and Walsh passed a resolution which in effect stated that the candidates of the farmer-labor party did not have the support of LaFollette and Wheeler. They also decided to circulate petitions to put independent electors on the ballot with the name of "Winking Ed" Manson at the head of the list.

Flaying Capitalist System.

Meanwhile the farmer-labor party is campaigning for the election of their electors when not attacking the system back of the parties of Coolidge and Dawes. It is now generally conceded that LaFollette will lose Wheeler's home state with two sets of presidential electors in the field. It is anticipated that "Bob" and "Burt" will attempt to bring pressure on the farmer-labor executive committee to withdraw their electors, but nobody believes their efforts will be successful.

Everything points to the dictatorship of "Bob" and "Burt" receiving a rude shock in Montana, and the party they sought to destroy becoming the dominant progressive force in the state.

HANDSOME NAIL TRIMMERS FORM A LABOR UNION

Manicurists Apply for State Charter

By ESTHER LOWELL.
(For Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—"Eh, Mario make a union? Get all the girls togedda!"

"Mario, I see you name in pape'; you get union?"

Second avenue and St. Marks Place neighbors dropped into the barber shop of Mario Adinolfi to find out all about this union of manicurists that Mario was helping to start. Mario and Lucille Dean, Gene Pell, and Betty Coleman, the girls all manicurists, are petitioning Supreme Court Justice Charles D. Donohue, thru deputy attorney general Charles A. Schneider, for a charter for the incorporation of the Independent Beauty Parlor Workers of New York.

Plan Organization.

Every day the girls meet with Mario and plan their organization campaign. A big meeting of all beauty parlor workers is to be held soon in a hall one of the interested neighbors has donated. Then there will be more meetings to form locals in the lower and upper East side, in East and West Harlem, and in the upper West side. The manicurists who are working for the organization of their fellow operators are confident that more than 300 beauty parlor girls will join the union as soon as the charter is given.

The manicurists in barber shops are not so poorly paid as those in the beauty parlors, Mario says, and Miss Dean, the manicurist in his shop agrees. But in the beauty parlors where women are the chief patrons, the girls make little more than $15 a week. "Their wages are actually only $10 and $12," Miss Dean asserted, "and women do not tip as a rule, so the girls have barely enough to live on."

Another manicurist tells of the long hours the girls have to work. "We come at 9 in the morning and we never get away before 10 or 11 at night. And the dust from the fingernail filing and polishing is bad for us. We manicurists can at least sit down but the girls who do the curling and marcelling and give facials have to stand until they are ready to drop and it's hot work, too. Good marcellers make a little higher wages, but lots of them get only $18 a week. We're going to get them into the union, too."

Slaves to Jobs.

One of the manicurists who has just come back from California says that the girls are almost slaves to their jobs in Los Angeles. She says the Labor Commissioner has tried to help them in having the 8-hour law enforced but that the girls are so afraid that they will lose their jobs for telling how long they work overtime that they won't testify against their employers.

Attorney Schneider says that the union may at some future time make application for affiliation with the American Federation of Labor.

Anti-Red Lie Spread.

Sofia, Sept. 17.—The lie is being spread here today that the assassination of Alixis Alexandroff, Macedonian revolutionary leader, was directed by a Bolshevist organization in Vienna. Alexandroff was the fifth Macedonian chief to be assassinated in a few weeks.

WILL SOMEBODY PLEASE EXPLAIN TO THIS SAP WHY HE CAN'T GET WORKERS TO SLAVE AT $3 A DAY?

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Workers in the copper mines and smelters of Arizona are laboring for wages as low as $2.81 a day while wealth pours into the lap of millionaire owners of the copper industry, according to wage reports received by the United States department of labor. American copper kings are grinding down their employes in America in order to sell copper at a generous profit in competition with their low cost mines in South America and other parts of the world.

No Home or Family.

These low wages paid in the copper country force thousands of men to forgo a home and a family. They can hope to make little more than enough to meet the board bill of $40 a month, to provide a minimum of clothing and the stake which will be necessary when the mine or smelter closes down to keep prices high and wages low.

Federal figures show for 12 typical occupations in the copper industry of Arizona that the low wages of 1923 have fallen still lower. The districts chosen are Globe dominated by the Miami Copper Co. and Ray operated by Ray Consolidated Copper Co.

	Globe		Ray
Day Wages	1923	1924	1923	1924
Machine miner	$5.45	$4.95	$4.30	$3.91
Mucker	4.84	4.40	3.40	3.08
Timberman	5.75	5.23	5.20	4.73
Trackman	5.45	4.95	4.00	3.63
Trammer	4.84	4.40	3.40	3.08
Crusherman	5.70	4.13	5.50	5.01
" helper	4.54	3.58	3.10	2.81
Tableman	4.84	4.40	3.40	3.08
Machinist	5.75	5.23	5.70	5.17
Fireman	4.68	4.40	....	....
Surface labor	3.95	3.58	3.10	2.81
Mill labor	3.02	4.40	3.10	2.81

No Steady Work.

Practically all the mining is done today by the machine man operating a mechanical drill. The mucker is the underground man who works with the machine miner. In handling and refining the ore after it leaves the mine, workers paid as unskilled labor predominate. The rates shown are those of April in each year. With steady work the minimum rate in the Ray district would pay a worker less than $900 a year and such steady work is unheard of.

The profit sheets of Miami Copper show that this corporation has paid its stockholders dividends at the rate of 40 per cent a year since 1920, and that it paid 50 per cent in 1919, 90 per cent in 1918, 175 per cent in 1917, 115 per cent in 1916, 45 per cent in 1915 and 30 per cent in 1914. This it a total of more than 6¼ times their investment paid back in profits in 10 years. Ray Consolidated also is reported as satisfactory to the owners with a profit of some 3c a pound on the 61,000,000 pounds produced in 1923, altho it has not paid dividends since 1920.

Explain to This Sap.

The Wall Street Journal described the condition of Ray Consolidated about a year ago in part as follows: "Costs have shown little change in the last six months but with further drop in wages they should decrease. Ray is hampered by difficulty in getting skilled underground miners. Efficient mining with a caving system depends to great extent on mine crews who understand the method and adapt themselves to changing conditions."

Will somebody tell Ray why it has difficulty in getting skilled underground men when it reduces the wages of machine men from $4.30 to $3.91 and wages of muckers from $3.40 and $3.08?

N. Y. C. CLEANERS STRIKE TO BRING GLOOM TO BOSSES

Sunshine Will Turn to Darkness Soon

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—William Sunshine's gloomy prediction of a strike of window-cleaners at the end of the month was interpreted as refusal of the Amalgamated Window Cleaning Employers' Association, of which Sunshine is president, to consider the demands of the Window-Cleaners' Protective Union, according to Peter Darck, secretary of the union. The union is asking an increase of $3 per week, raising the wage scale to $41 minimum, and full pay for the May Day holiday. The union has had no strikes for five years.

Hazardous Work.

Darck points out that the work is extremely hazardous, particularly as the law requires only factory and mercantile establishments to provide the hooks for safety belts. The union workers are employed on all sorts of buildings and private dwellings and often work in 14 stories up without the protection of their safety belts because office buildings and apartment houses do not voluntarily supply the necessary hooks in their window frames. Eighty per cent of the workers, Darck declares, work without the safety belt for lack of hooks.

Demands Modest.

Dmytro Pryslamsky, business agent of the union, asserts that the high cost of living justifies their modest demand for wage increase.

The employers' association has been trying for years to break the union, the union officers say. Since the strike five years ago the association has been conniving with the open-shop employers and assisting them in every way. "For instance," Darck tells, "we carried on a 6-months campaign to organize Negro workers with the union. We succeded in getting many Negroes into the union in spite of the employers' efforts to stir up race feeling by calling us Polaks not interested in other workers. But then the union employers refused to accept union colored workers. Peerless Window Cleaning was one. In August the union had a grievance with this firm and Hugh Frazier, general organizer of the A. F. of L. finally settled it. Peerless did not take the decision altho it had promised. It resigned from the association of employers, which should not have accepted the resignation, and immediately employed non-union colored workers."

The window cleaners' union is determined to fight the open shop drives with all its power. If the employers' association refuses to grant the demand by Sept. 30, when the agreement expires, the organized workers will strike and strike hard, Darck asserts.

France Denies She Intends to Pay U. S. Her Debts As Yet

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. — Altho Senator Weller, in his call on Silent Cal today, stated that there were indications on the continent that France and some of the other allies might open negotiations this fall for settlement of their war debts to this country, a despatch from Paris stated that the treasury denies that the government is sending a debt mission to Washington this winter. France does not intend to pay its debt to the United States until the Dawes plan has been in effect for a year.

Coolidge As a Pacifist

Calvin Coolidge, the strikebreaker president of the United States, is given credit by liberals of the Oswald Garrison school of pacifism for blocking the bigger navy advocates in his refusal to accede to the request of the navy department to elevate the guns of the United States battleships, and thus "modernize" them. That Silent Cal's refusal does not mean that he is afflicted with the virus of pacifism, is amply demonstrated by his wholehearted approval of "Mobilization Day," an important step in turning this country into a gigantic barrack.

American jingoes may shriek that the country is in danger because the British navy's guns stick their noses into the sky at a sharper angle than those on the American battleships. But the people who own this government know what they are doing. They will look after their battleships and they will elevate the guns when they think the time is ripe to do so.

The American navy is the potential enemy of the British navy. In fact every navy is a potential enemy of every other navy. That is the law of capitalism. But Uncle Sam's—beg pardon, we mean Morgan's navy—is next in strength to England's if not equal, and as the American capitalists intend to wring the title of "Mistress of the Seas" from England, having already made their domination over the land quite evident, the British government gets a creepy feeling whenever the Washington capitalist government begins to figure on its naval budget.

The American capitalists are not foolish. During recent years they have held a few conferences. They will hold a few more before they are ready to place the blunderbuss at John Bull's ear and say: "Mr. Bull, you have carried the trident for a great many centuries. You must be tired. We are going to relieve you of that burden. If you object we will blow you into smithereens."

Mr. Coolidge will favor the elevation of the guns when the policy of the American government demands that this should be done. In the meantime, Silent Cal does not look with disapproval on the howling of the jingoes for more battleships. That is healthy capitalist propaganda. Public opinion must be moulded in favor of bigger naval budgets. The arrival of the world flyers is used to advertise the need for more airships. The patriotism of the masses is constantly fed and when the rulers of America feel that they can get more out of England by frightening her with a few more battleships than they can by raising the white flag, they will accede to the manufactured demand for the elevation of the guns and more ships.

According to a newspaper repgrt, the president called in his secretary of the navy for a conference. It is hinted that Wilbur was talking indiscreetly about the need for protection against Japan, contrary to the White House policy of silent treatment. Wilbur is also for a bigger navy. But these alleged disagreements do not mean anything. Wilbur is but a department head in the Coolidge government, and is paid to look after Wall Street's best bill collector, the navy.

Coolidge in the White House will do just as Wall Street—a synonym for the ruling group of American capitalists—wants him to do. He will come out for the elevation of the guns, a larger navy, more airships, more mobilization days, according as the interests of American capitalism demand. The "peace" gestures of capitalism are merely methods of conducting war. There can be no peace until capitalism is destroyed.

Now that the "around-the-world flyers" are back, should resume its propaganda for recognizing the appropriation for building the greatest fleet of airships in the world. The "heroes" who flew around the world will be used in this work. Capitalism knows how to advertise.

Is it a coincidence that the League of Nations should resume its propaganda for recognizing the independence of Georgia about the same time that a counter-revolution against the Soviet government was attempted in that country? According to all signs the so-called labor government of Great Britain had a hand in stirring up the trouble.

B. C. Forbes, Hearst financial expert and one of the most reactionary scribblers in the country, observes in the Chicago Herald Examiner of Sept. 16, that American workers are giving a good account of themselves and satisfactory service to the capitalists. But the same cannot be said of European workers. There the workers grumble and look on work as a necessary evil. It is not a compliment to the American workers that their masters are satisfied with them. The American workers are more willing slaves than their brothers in Europe.

The Coming of a Memorable Anniversary

The event which the class-conscious workers of the world will be celebrating on the 27th and 28th of September of this year, is the founding of the first International Workingmen's Association which is known in short as the First International.

It took place sixty years ago, on September 28, 1864, in St. Martin's Hall, Long Acre, London, England. It was ushered into existence by a revival in the class struggle of the working masses of England, France, Germany and Italy, and was given the lead by the fathers of modern Communism, Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels. It was there that the basis was laid for that proletarian world struggle for power which has seen its most promising beginning in the Paris Commune in 1871, which has later found its nearly complete realization in the Bolshevist Revolution in Russia in 1917 and which is now being led to its final victory the world over by the Leninist Communuist International.

We shall celebrate the event in proper fashion in about ten days. We shall then join the militant workers of the entire world in demonstrating the truth that ours—the Communist International—is the direct line descendant of that immortal body of working men and working women who have, under the leadership of Marx, in 1864, given such glorious expression to the battlecry of the international working class, "Proletarians of All Lands, Unite!"

We shall proudly proclaim to the whole world that it was we, the followers of Lenin, that have raised from the dust the banner of Social Revolt, which was lowered, humbled and disgraced by Scheidemann, Vandervelde and MacDonald, and that it was we that have given back to the working class the hope, the faith and the international unity proclaimed and embodied by the First International.

Be ready for the great anniversary!

Gompers' Blessings

Mr. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has just bestowed another blessing on the political head of Senator LaFollette.

In essence the pæans of praise now sung by Gompers in behalf of LaFollette, are to the tune of those sung by the head of the American Federation of Labor in behalf of Woodrow Wilson, Cox and other democratic lights. We are again asked to vote for a man who has been "good to labor." We are again called upon to pay our "friends" for their supposed acts of non-hostility.

The "Grand Old Man" seems to wake up to a startling fact in his laudation of the Wisconsin senator. At last Mr. Gompers seems to believe that the old parties, whose "good men" he has been selling to the workers for many years, are warped and hopelessly corrupt. Such recognition is, of course, as belated as ineffective. At best recent events have only served to make more clear the real character of the democratic and republican parties. They have not created the malignant situation. The present condition of the capitalist parties is not an over-night growth but is the natural outcome of years of development.

It is this tendency to serve outright the employing class interests and to reek with corruption, graft, and the basest of sordid political filth that Gompers has blinked for too many years. In indorsing LaFollette, Mr. Gompers does nothing to eradicate this cancer on the American body politic. Mr. Gompers is now simply asking the workers to vote for one who, in his opinion, is "the most honest of all the honest men" the workers, largely under his bidding, have been indorsing for many, many years.

As usual, Mr. Gompers' blessings are a curse upon the labor movement. In holding up LaFollette as the savior of the workers, Mr. Gompers is adapting his tactics to the changed conditions. Mr. Gompers is using the momentarily most effective weapon for thwarting the efforts of the workers and poor farmers to organize themselves into an independent political party pledged to waging the fight against the exploiters along class lines.

Forty years of LaFolletteism and about as many years of Gompersism have brought the workers the injunction deluge, the mounting unemployment, the rising cost of living and an enemy more powerful and ruthless than ever before. To the workingmen and dispossessed farmers the blessings showered upon the head of LaFollette by Mr. Gompers are a scourge in disguise.

The eight-hour day is gone by the board in Germany. This was accomplished with the aid of the social-democrats. One of the conditions of the Dawes plan was the scrapping of the eight-hour day. The Communists fought against it, but the social-democrats with the aid of the capitalists starved the workers into temporary submission. The eight-hour day has not gone by the board in Soviet Russia tho.

B. C. Forbes finds consolation in the conditions prevailing in Germany. The eight-hour day has gone by the board and the workers are beginning to realize that they must work hard to carry their burdens. But Mr. Forbes did not say whose burdens the workers were carrying. They are carrying their own and the burdens of the capitalists while the latter are having as good a time as if there were no reparations to pay.

The straw ballots may not show that the Communist candidates are on top. But they show that the workers are headed towards Communism.

Meet Mr. Bancroft, "Our" New Ambassador to Japan

By ELSA BLOCH.

WITH the appointment of Edgar Allen Bancroft to the post of ambassador to Japan, the national unofficial strikebreaking agency, of which Calvin Coolidge is honorary president, establishes another international connection.

To understand why Edgar Allen Bancroft becomes an "Ambassador," read his analysis of the Chicago strike of 1894 written —twenty-nine years ago. Step by step, thru a maze of legalisms, technicalities, capitalist sophistries, Bancroft builds up the case for the General Managers' association and for the United States government. "Socialistic sophistries," says Mr. Bancroft, "must be corrected. Labor unions should be compelled to incorporate,"—making their funds liable to attachment and their affairs subject to control by the courts. "The importance of obedience to law, no matter how defective, must be stressed."

And how is that to be accomplished?

By the simple expedient of class collaboration—the safest road to industrial peace based on individualism. "Neither the employers nor the employees have yet learned the deeper relations in which their interests are the same. The unions should be developed for the uplifting of the members, not as a class, but as men. Let them follow the example of the armed powers of Europe and enter into and preserve relations of constant and close communication and of friendly conference."

What have the twenty-nine years of "friendly conference," that have passed since these papers were written, brot to the armed powers of Europe?

And what has the close relationship between the officials of the American labor movement and the leaders of industry in the United States brot to the American workers?

But why this parlor diplomacy in industrial battles?

Because—Mr. Bancroft tells you—"labor reforms are essentially moral; and no man is fit to lead a labor union who distrusts the power of moral forces."

Have you been deluded into thinking that militant action by the workers is the only solution of the industrial problem? Listen to Mr. Bancroft:

Labor militancy "results from a confusion of moral distinctions, the confounding of legal rights with moral duties. Strikes have been incident to the defects of organization, the inexperience and ignorance of members, and the limitations—intellectual or moral—of their leaders."

"The Chicago strike of 1894 was an immoral method of settling a purely moral controversy."

When in the spring of 1894 the moral appetite of the riveters, teamsters and laundresses in the shops of the Pullman company became voracious, these workers grew intellectually confused, and struck. The American railway union, newly created organization of railway men, voted to support the Pullman employees in their strike by boycotting the hauling of Pullman cars on their lines.

In this, according to Mr. Bancroft, the railway employees were embroiling themselves in "a conflict in which they had no interest and properly they have no part," since "the Pullman company's industries have no connection with the railroads of the United States."

That the Pullman employees had early in March of the same year voted to join the American railway union, thus showing their similarity of interest with the railway workers, and that the Managers' association, with which the railway men had to deal, had control of twenty-four roads centering or terminating in Chicago, and bound to the Pullman company by long-term contracts, are facts which Edgar Allen Bancroft either does not know, or does not care to deal with when he is proving the lack of a common cause between the Pullman strikers and the striking railway workers. That the railway men made no demands for themselves in this strike is to Mr. Bancroft the unpardonable crime.

It will be easy for Mr. Bancroft, as ambassador to Japan, to withstand the shocks of American diplomacy which brot the "health" of his predecessor to a state of collapse.

For the Japanese exclusion act, Mr. Bancroft, was an essentially moral act, framed by Congress for the intellectual protection of the American working class. Ambassador Hanihara's note of protest, Mr. Bancroft, was based on a fallacy of reasoning, resulting from a confusion of moral distinctions, the confounding of legal rights with moral duties. The subsequent self-destruction of a hundred despairing Japanese workers was an immoral method of settling a purely moral controversy.

And the grouping of five American battleships on the eastern coast of Asia, today, carries behind it much the same motive as did the massing of United States troops in Chicago in 1894, and anyone who denounces such action can be classed with those strikers who declared that the "officers of the government were helping capital to enslave labor," and whose criticism was the result, as Mr. Bancroft says, of "misguided feeling."

When, in the not distant future American warships are ready to meet Japanese warships and fight out questions of trade and the control of world resources, and a plausible excuse for the exploding of the first gun is needed, Edgar Allen Bancroft will not be slow to see the unpardonable injury to American sovereignty implied in such an act as the tearing down of an American flag by a Japanese coolie. To Mr. Bancroft, the most heinous crime of the Chicago strikers—a crime in itself justifying the injunction and the troops, occurred when a group of hungry strikers stopped a Pullman train in which rested the body of a corpse.

Two Soviet Ports--Leningrad, Vladivostok

LENINGRAD port, owing to its situation at the mouth of the Neva, and at the junction of important railway lines and water and canal routes, may be regarded as one of the best of the world's ports.

During the last two years the re-equipment of the port has proceeded continuously, and the ruin caused by the world and civil wars and the blockade has been made good, and it is now in no way inferior to its pre-war condition. The summer navigation period starts about the end of April, continuing to about the end of November, after which the winter season commences. During the latter the largest ice breakers in the world are employed, such as the "Lenin," "Sviatogor," "Frank," and many others. There are two channels for the entry of ships into the harbor—(1) an artificial sea canal 19.8 miles long and 350 feet wide, with a depth of 28-29 feet for vessels of considerable draught: (2) for vessels of small draught with a depth of 11 feet. The port has the following quays for the loading and unloading of vessels: the customs quay for import goods—8,800 feet long, the depth of water at quayside being 20 feet; a wooden stockade 6,000 feet long and depth of water nearly 24 feet; the Gutuev basin quay about 5,000 feet long and depth of water at quayside 22 feet. The grain and timber harbor has ten quays for the loading of timber and grain, allowing for the simultaneous berthing of 40 steamers with a draught from ten to 28 feet. There is also a coal harbor with an area of 4,900,000 square feet, and depth of 10½ to 28 feet, for the unloading of import coal. Equipment includes eight powerful electric cranes. For oil cargoes and large timber logs there is a sea quay with a total length of 2,200 feet, and a depth at the quayside of 15 feet. The total length of the Leningrad quays is 21,000 feet.

The port possesses two elevators, one with a receiving capacity of 150 trucks, and a discharging capacity of 200 trucks per 24 hours. The other, with a capacity of a little over 6,000 tons, is being reconstructed. The total capacity of this elevator is 26,000 tons.

The port is equipped with warehouses accommodating about 100,000 tons, and open storage with an area sufficient for about 110,000 tons of cargo. This port also has steam and electric floating and shore cranes with lifting capacity from 3 to 150 tons. It has 20-40 tugs for piloting ships and for other port duties.

The fire brigade service of the port is in good working order.

Vladivostok.

THIS is the largest U. S. S. R. port in the Pacific and is a very convenient outlet for Eastern Siberia, Northern Manchuria, and North-East Mongolia. In view of its well-organized ice-breaking service, it may be considered as open for navigation the whole year round.

In 1919 the total cargo turnover of the port amounted to over 2,600,000 tons.

For berthing and unloading vessels there is a stone mole about 5,200 feet long, for 13 ships with a depth of water alongside of 23 to 30 feet. The pontoon stages are about 6,300 feet long, and can accommodate 17 ships. There are warehouses with an area of 140,716 square metres, and open storage with an area of 158,379 square metres: a total of nearly 340 tons of goods can be stored.

The port has three docks—two dry—one measuring 550 feet in length, 90 feet in width, and 30 feet in depth; the other 700 feet in length, 92 feet in width, and 30 feet in depth. The third is a floating dock 368 feet long, 74 feet wide, 26 feet deep. The lifting capacity is 8,000 tons.

To facilitate the export of bayberry oil, the port has an oil-store-house capable of storing a total of 1,500 tons of oil. The construction of four conveyors and the loading of piece cargo each with a capacity of 50 tons an hour is being completed.

During the winter season three ice breakers are employed, "Dobrynya Nikitich," "Kazak Poyarkov," and "Slavyansk." There is a sufficient number of tugs. There are in the port about 22 kilometers of branch railway line.

For the purpose of ship repairing and loading, the port is equipped with nine floating cranes of lifting capacity from 30 to 150 tons, and one bridge crane.

The port has engineering and repairing yards for ships; there are also the repairing yards of the Dobrofiot. The port has one slipway and a yard for the construction and repair of wooden vessels.

Nation-Wide Survey Shows No Rent Drop

ers is due to "over production" of that type of apartment.

A recent survey showed that 50 per cent of tenants in Detroit pay between $50 and $75 per month. There is a marked shortage in dwellings of this type here, in apartments, two-family flats and single homes and therefore no decline in rent or hope of early relief.

No Change In Denver.

DENVER, Sept. 17.—Little change in rental prices for homes and business locations was apparent today in Denver, and the Rocky Mountain region. Despite continued home building operations on a large scale, apartment and house rents remained at the level of a year ago with no indication of an early decrease.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17. — Rents in Philadelphia continue on the upgrade because of the serious housing shortage which has prevailed since the war. The situation has become so acute a municipal building program has been proposed. It has been estimated the city needs 20,000 dwellings.

No Hope For Decrease.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 17.—Rents in this industrial center are steady at present following the general increase of last May when most tenants changed residences here.

Realtors here saw no hope for rent decreases in the near future.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 17.—Although the early fall season is usually a period of increasing rents in Harrisburg, no such increase has taken place this year, according to the real estate exchange. Their summary of the situation here is that rents are remaining stationary.

Same Here.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 17.—Slight reductions in rents were reported by a number of agencies handling apartment house property in Cleveland, but in most cases the price of rental property ruled practically stationary, rental agencies reported. The reductions in most cases, were caused by competition of newer apartments, with additional conveniences. The demand, despite business depression, ruled steady, it was said.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Real estate conditions in Washington are "still very bad," despite the fact that rents have dropped considerably since the war, members of the District of Columbia rent commission declared today.

A year ago, rooms in small apartments rented for $40 a month, while they can now be obtained for about $33, but the supply of cheaper apartments still falls short of the demand.

Rents are fixed in Washington by the federal commission created by congress during the war emergency. The United States Supreme Court has inferred, for no good reason, that this emergency is now past, with the result that legal steps are being taken to dissolve the commission.

As High As Ever.

DES MOINES, Sept. 17.—Des Moines renters of first class apartments and good houses will pay as much for living quarters during the year 1924-25, as they did in 1923-24. Those who can be satisfied with inferior living quarters can rent for approximately ten per cent less than they paid last year. That was the declaration today of the best posted realtors in Des Moines.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 17.—Building activities, home buying and automobiles are combining to force lower rents in the smaller cities of the central west, in the opinion of leading real estate men here. They summed up the situation as follows:

"Construction of new residence property has reached a point where there are comfortable living quarters for practically every family and landlords are competing keenly for desirable tennants."

Widespread buying of homes on terms like rent has reduced the demand for rental propertly.

Centrist Rents.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 17.—Since the high peak reached in 1919, rents in Birmingham generally have remained practically stationary, fluctuating slightly up or down.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 17.—October leases for apartment houses and residences will show a decrease of from five to ten percent in rent, real estate agencies were agreed here today. Numerous vacancies in apartment houses is causing some landlords to offer one month's free rent as an inducement to prospective tennants.

Frisco On Upgrade.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17.—Rents in San Francisco were today declared by C. H. Garvey, representing the Apartment House Owners' Association, to be on the upgrade because of the influx of eastern people into the city.

Modern first district two-room furnished apartments were said by Garvey to range from $55 a month to $75 a figure in excess of the rents demanded last summer.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 17.—While there have been slight recessions in residential rentals in Los Angeles within the last eight months, these have been almost entirely confined to apartments and flats, a survey here today showed. There is no seasonal leasing date here and consequently no fluctuation is expected next month, but any change will be upward. It was predicted.

In single family houses the shortage of years has not been overcome, consequently rental charges in this category have been negligible.

South No Better.

VICKSBURG, Miss., Sept. 17.—Despite new building here the tendency is against a decrease in rents. Rental agencies declare that lately there has been an increased demand for houses and practically all desirable properties are now rented.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 17.—The rent problem in Little Rock is very encouraging to residential renters. House rent has decreased from 10 to 15 per cent in the past year. The decrease was caused by building activities.

Here's A New Excuse.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 17.—Real estate operators here say there is a greater number of houses offered for rent than ever before and that there have been rent increases, but these have been merely a rise from a sub-normal level. Many tennants whose leases will expire Sept. 30, have not made new leases with their present landlords.

No Rise; No Fall.

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 17.—The rent situation in this city will be about normal on moving day, November 1. While there will be a few raises in rentals, there is no general tendency to boost the rates, realty men say.

SEEING THINGS

Poor Fellow Who Has Seen Better Days.
Drawn Especially for the Daily Worker by K. A. Suvanto

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

IN yesterday's issue of The DAILY WORKER, the ravings of B. C. Forbes, Hearst writer, was commented on. He is one of the most vicious anti-labor scribblers in the United States, yet his master poses as a friend of labor. And he gets away with it, except in places like Seattle where he comes out openly and attempts to break the union. But to get back to his hireling Forbes. The latter has just returned from a trip to Europe and what he saw there almost broke his bourgeois heart.

HOW those capitalist journalists can afford to take ocean trips and traverse the country writing pleasantly of things they observe! Mr. Forbes does not waste must time observing natural scenery. He is concerned with his master's business all the time. And he is not narrow minded. He sees beyond the interests of William Randolph Hearst and thinks of the system as a whole. Therefore, when he saw that the British workers were getting a swelled head because they thought they had come into their own, it grieved him. He should not feel so bad about the British Labor Party, but he has reason to fear the growing militancy among the British workers. If their day has not come yet, it is on the way.

FORMERLY, says Forbes, drink was the great cause of inefficiency among the British workers. Today the drinking evil is considerably reduced, but the desire of the workers to produce surplus values for their masters has not increased in inverse ratio. This is tough, suggests Mr. Forbes. The war also had its effect. If Hearst gets to thinking that another war might induce the workers to kick over the capitalist system, perhaps he might call off a few of his scribblers.

BUT the worst is yet to come. Formerly the British farmers were the most industrious workers anywhere. Give them a look at the king once a year and they were willing to die in peace. Let the nearest Duke's daughter but smile on them and they were willing to bend their backs in

SOVIET RUSSIA'S AMBASSADOR TO CHINA DELIVERS ADDRESS TO UNIONIZED CHINESE TEACHERS

(By Rosta.)

PEKING, China, Aug. 24.—At the reception given by the Teachers' Union of the eight government schools in honor of Mr. Karakhan, ambassador of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Professor Ma Shu-lun delivered a speech of welcome, in which he pointed out, inter alia, that the policy of the Soviet government opened a new era in the Far East and that from now on the Republic of China and the Soviet Union could go hand in hand, treading the new path and having in view the interests of all the east and the peace of the world.

Referring to the Russian funds of the Boxer Indemnity, the speaker declared emphatically that those on behalf of whom he was speaking wished that those sums should be apportioned for educational purposes entirely. He concluded by an expression of heartfelt welcome and warm sympathy for Mr. Karakhan, who had himself signed the Declarations of 1919 and 1920 and who would now, in his capacity of first Soviet Ambassador in this country, carry into life the fraternal policy of the Soviet Republics.

China Most Oppressed.

Replying, Mr. Karakhan expressed his gratitude to the representatives of the Teachers' Union for the welcome extended him. He declared that he never doubted that in the circles of the school of high learning Soviet Russia had her best friends: indeed, he can add nothing, states Mr. Karakhan, to the characterization Professor Shu-lun gave of the Soviet policies in the Far East and the world at large and agrees entirely with the preceding speaker's words.

"We have been attacked by the imperialists of the world"—says Mr. Karakhan—"and have conquered in this fight. The struggle, however, is not yet over; it is still going on, while its forms alone have changed.

"We know of the struggle which you, the people of China, are carrying on, you who are one of the oppressed peoples—the greatest people in regard to population, ancient culture and future great historic role. You are suffering under greater op-

TREASURY BOOZE SECRETARY FACES COUZENS IN QUIZ

2 Millionaires in Mock Warfare

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Senator James Couzens of Michigan, whose epistolary argument over tax reduction enlivened the revision of the revenue laws by the late congress, met face to face today before the senate committee investigating the bureau of internal revenue.

Mellon was called before the committee to give his advice with respect to the scope of the inquiry and to be questioned concerning the operation of the bureau and charges that the administration of the revenue laws resulted in wholesale graft.

Mellon Feels Easy.

Upon leaving the treasury department for the capitol, where two committees are engaged in investigating his official activities, Mellon said that he felt "no uneasiness" over the Couzen's inquiry and expressed the hope that the work of the committee would result in the formulation of recommendations for the improvement of the government's methods of collecting and adjusting federal taxes.

Other Investigations.

In additions to the internal revenue probe, directed largely at Mellon, the house banking and currency committee is investigating alleged duplication of government bonds by the bureau of engraving and printing, a branch of the treasury. Mellon is involved because of his denials that duplications have occurred, in the face of repeated assertions by Charles B. Brewer, a special investigator, that he had duplicated and "fraudulent" bonds in his possession.

NEW YORK SPECIAL NOTICE.

All New York readers are urged to follow closely the story printed in today's issue on Page 5, the fourth column. It is of the utmost importance for the Communist Campaign in the Empire State.

IOWA GOES OVER TOP!

THE Communist ticket will be on the ballot in Iowa. The workers and exploited farmers of that state who have been robbed and lied to by the capitalist parties and who are again being deceived by the blandishments of the bourgeois politician LaFollette will have the opportunity of casting a ballot for a Communist program represented by William Z. Foster, candidate for president and Benjamin Gitlow, candidate for vice-president on the Workers Party ticket, in the coming elections.

Iowa is the eighth state to insure that the Communist ticket will be on the ballot. Next state?

AMALGAMATION VOTED DOWN BY I. A. M. CONFAB

One-Third of Delegates for Unity Proposal

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 18.—One-third of the delegation to the convention of the International Association of Machinists rose in favor of a substitute amalgamation resolution proposed by the militant left wing representatives in the name of their local unions.

On a vote of "Aye" and "No," seventy delegates voted in favor of the substitute and 140 voted against it. The roll call, which was fought bitterly by Johnston, president of the International, was finally taken and showed a vote of 136 for the resolution and 350 against.

Bloc Vote Defeats Unity

The roll call vote was different from the first count because of the "gang" votes cast by the reactionary, grand lodge-controlled delegates. New York, which was represented by only one delegate, cast a bloc vote of 25 against amalgamation. San Francisco, also represented by one delegate, cast 13 votes against the proposition. The small locals, which had suffered greatly in fighting against the capitalist class for better conditions of work, were for uniting the forces of the metal trades workers. The large locals, run by the pay-roll gang, were solidly against it.

Delegate William Long, of Montreal, protested vigorously against the tactics of Johnston, who rules the chair in the same high-handed manner that he used at the Cleveland meeting of the conference for progressive political action. Out of the Canadian delegation of 29, twenty-seven voted for amalgamation.

Peter Jensen, who introduced the resolution from Local 492, of Chicago, led the brilliant fight for its adoption. One after another, rank and file delegates rose and argued: "If you don't amalgamate, you will soon have no organization at all. What have our officers done? We know very well they have done nothing."

McNamara Attacks.

Another delegate, A. T. McNamara, the business agent of the Pittsburgh district, told the story of the steel campaign, and charged that the loss of the campaign was due to the attempt to divide the workers into various unions.

"You haven't a chance in the world to organize the Westinghouse of Pittsburgh or New York, until you amalgamate into industrial unions, and organize them on that basis," he said. "Amalgamation is the biggest question before this convention."

Ripberger, from Cincinnati, stated that all the metal trades unions in his district were ready for amalgamation.

Jensen Beats Johnston.

Before the vote was taken, Johnston made a desperate attempt to prevent Jensen, who had introduced the resolution, to make the customary closing speech on the question. This arbitrary action of the faker was defeated and Jensen made an excellent plea for adoption. The vote was then taken.

The resolutions committee, led by a one-time progressive, Lauderman, who has now gone over boots and all

TWO MORE BODIES ARE RECOVERED IN CROSBY, MINN., MINE DISASTER

CROSBY, Minn., Sept. 18.—Two more dead bodies were dug out of the Milford mine here yesterday, bringing the total of known miners who were killed by the coal barons in an avoidable accident, to forty-one on February 5. The skeletons of Henry Maki, 33, who is survived by his widow and five children, and Alex Jyhla, who leaves a widow and one child, were dug out of the 165-foot level here today. It is believed there are other bodies still in the mine which have not yet been unearthed, altho mining is going on as usual and the Milford company is doing a prosperous business.

HAVE YOU DONE YOUR DUTY?

The comrades of local Chicago and the rest of the district were stirred with enthusiasm yesterday at the announcement that the Workers Party ticket would be on the ballot in the state of Illinois.

But that is not, of course, all; we must have every one of our congressional candidates on the ballot so as to give those workers who have been giving such excellent support to Foster in the straw votes being taken in Chicago an opportunity to show where they stand.

In these last few days, all efforts, every bit of energy must be concentrated to get signatures on the Workers Party petitions for members of the congress. Every branch and election district should follow the example set by district 6 campaign manager, comrade Rose Karsner. She has called a meeting of the members of every single branch under her jurisdiction, to assemble the coming Sunday, Sept. 21, at 3322 Douglas Boulevard, where final plans will be made to go over the top. All members are specifically instructed to be present and get ready to push hard.

With the new names coming in, and the state and national ticket already on the ballot, the number of signatures already obtained stand as follows:

District	Candidate	Signatures obtained	Signatures necessary
No. 1	Gordon Owens	961	1200
No. 4	Joseph Podkulski	1079	1300
No. 5	Harry Epstein	501	1000
No. 6	Frank Pellegrino	1396	3500
No. 7	Sam Hammersmark	2063	4000
No. 8	George Maurer	598	800
No. 9	Jack W. Johnstone	960	1200

FOSTER, DAVIS NECK AND NECK IN YARDS' POLL

Chicago Straw Vote Is Making Progress

Fifty-one workers in the stockyards of Chicago stopped long enough yesterday during the meager half-hour which the company grants for lunch, to cast ballots for William Z. Foster in the straw vote which the DAILY WORKER is carrying on among the representative industries.

Robert M. LaFollette got a total of 118 votes. "Not that it will do any good," was the comment of most of these "third-party" adherents.

Negroes and Irish Vote.

A large number of Negroes, most of whom could neither read nor write, asked other workers to mark their votes for the candidate of the republican party, sending the arch-faker's total to 136. A group of Irish drovers —"You could almost see them cross themselves," said one of the party canvassers—obedient to priestly admonition, gave Davis 57 votes.

"I'll sell my vote for $5.00 to anyone," were the words found written on two ballots.

A large majority of the workers in the stock yards remain inside the plant for lunch, and could therefore not be reached by the party canvassers. A great many more sat about in the open yards just beyond the gates, which the iron rules of the slaughter-house forbid strangers to enter.

Those who passed by the gates without casting their ballots expressed themselves as "disgusted with politics as it's played today. The gang in Washington won't do anything for us, anyway," was the remark most frequently heard.

Martin Abern, secretary of Local Chicago of the Workers Party, expressed complete satisfaction with the way in which the straw ballot is going.

"The straw vote not only gives an idea of how the sentiment among the working masses is runing; it also leads the workers to think things over and discuss the question among themselves. One has only to notice how the workers, after casting their ballots, gather into groups to talk of the merits of the various candidates to realize this fact.

"In many ways a straw vote, if it is thorough, gives a much better expression of sentiment than does the regular election vote. In the straw vote not only citizens, but also the foreign elements among the working class, and the thousands who are disqualified for some petty technical reason, are permitted to register an opinion.

"The results of the straw vote show that if every Workers Party member would get out and put a shoulder to the wheel we could get a party member on the ballot from every congressional district."

MICHIGAN CASE BRIEF ARGUES FOR REVERSAL

Hits Attempt to Punish Ideas With Jail

Attorneys for C. E. Ruthenberg, convicted of criminal syndicalism in connection with the Communist convention at Bridgeman, Mich., in 1922, have completed the brief to be filed with the supreme court of Michigan in the appeal for reversal of the decision of the trial court.

The brief was filed in the name of Frank P. Walsh and Humphrey S. Gray, attorneys for Ruthenberg, with I. E. Ferguson as counsel. For the prosecution the names of Andrew B. Dougherty, attorney-general; O. L. Smith, assistant attorney-general; Chas. W. Gore, prosecuting attorney for the county of Berrien; Max F. Burger, special assistant prosecuting attorney, and George H. Bookwalter, assistant prosecuting attorney, appear on the brief, which makes quite an array of legal counsel in this case.

Call Law Unconstitutional.

The main argument of the brief is that the Michigan Criminal Syndicalist Law is unconstitutional under the free speech provision of the United States constitution and the State of Michigan because it seeks to punish the mere advocacy of certain ideas irrespective of whether the advocacy of these ideas may lead to some overt act or any overt act at all being committed.

Dealing with the character of the case, the Michigan supreme court is called upon to pass on, the brief declares "In no instance in American jurisprudence has it been held with-

FOSTER OPENS WESTERN TOUR IN FARGO, N. D.

Communist Candidate on Drive to Coast

By JOSEPH MANLEY
(Campaign Manager, Workers Party.)

William Z. Foster, candidate of the Workers Party for president, will open his Western Campaign Tour tonight at Fargo, North Dakota. This tour extends clear thu to the Pacific coast and back. That North Dakota, which is a typical American agricultural state, where the population is eighty-five per cent farmers, should be the first to officially recognize the Workers Party on the ballot and that in this state Foster should open up his Western tour is indeed significant.

It is indicative of the growth of the influence of the Workers Party thruout the wheat growing states. It indicates the disease, the economic decay that is gnawing at the vitals of American capitalism.

When the basic, economic causes are taken into consideration, is it not specially significant that the American farmers in the midst of harvest, farmers who formerly were the bulwark of American conservatism, will flock by the hundreds to sign petitions to enable a Communist Party and its candidates to go on the ballot in their state?

The population of North Dakota is over half a million. Eighty per cent of this population are farmers. These farmers are indebted to the state to the extent of close to half a billion dollars. Capitalism's financial system, typified by Wall Street, has North Dakota in a strangle hold. There are a total of 865 state and national banks in this state. Over two hundred banks have closed their doors thru bankruptcy. The people of the state actually owe between fifty and sixty million dollars, the net value of the farmers of all the crops they raised last year, is not sufficient to pay the back taxes. The farmers of the state owe back interest on all their debts, of at least one hundred million dollars. These are some of the facts which lie at the root of the farmers' and especially the wheat growers') discontent.

It is probably true that the present increase in the price of wheat and other farm products may tend to lessen the sharpness of discontent. It is also, no doubt, true that the candidacy of Robert M. LaFollette will tend to confuse and mislead this discontent. It can be seen, nevertheless, that the foregoing facts of the causes back of this discontent are manifestation of the inevitable proletarization of the American wheat growing and farmer elements.

The Communist candidates and the Communist program will receive many votes in North Dakota. The non-partisan league, which was the cause of the word BOLSHEVIK being introduced into the vocabulary of North Dakota, is dead. It is dead because it was not Bolshevik. Its failure can be attributed to its petty reform program which did not get close enough to fundamentals to inspire the lasting

PLAN MONSTER MASS MEETING FOR GITLOW IN DETROIT ON SEPT. 28

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 18.—The Detroit Campaign Committee of the Workers Party calls attention to the Gitlow meeting which will take place Sunday, Sept. 28th at 2:00 P. M. in Arena Gardens, Woodward and Hendrie Avenues.

The Campaign Committee, recognizing its duty to bring the message of Communism to the greatest number of workers, has engaged the huge Auditorium of the Arena Gardens for the meeting of our vice-presidential candidate, Comrade Ben Gitlow. The capacity of the hall is about 5000, and the committee has no doubt that it can be filled to capacity if every comrade and sympathizer will do his duty. Talk to your shop-mates, fellow trade unionists and every other worker you meet about the meeting, and urge them to attend.

Detroit has shown on many occasions that a great portion of its working class is eager to listen to the message of revolution. On the occasion of the Lenin Memorial meeting the same hall was filled to capacity. The first appearance of the Communist Party in the election campaign will undoubtedly bring thousands of workers to hear the message of communism provided they are informed of the meeting.

O'CONNELL HITS HIS PIPE AND STRIKES FADE

Nothing to Do But Draw His Salary

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 18.—Mr. James O'Connell, former president of the International Association of Machinists, and now president of the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, amused the machinists' convention here by telling the delegates about his present occupation.

He stated: "I am now practically a pensioner. I go to conventions like this, make a talk that the men like. Then I go home, smoke my pipe and draw my salary."

Delegates Oppose LaFollette.

After this introduction of himself, he went into the political situation to prepare the ground for the endorsement of LaFollette by stating that by polling a large vote for him in this campaign, it would scare the powers to be, even tho he didn't believe LaFollette would be elected and it might not be possible to throw the election into the house of representatives.

"The days of strikes are over. Labor organizations are becoming great financial institutions and corporations. Labor leaders who lead strikes have passed and today they must be men who understand finance and banking."

After this voice from the grave had been heard the resolution on endorsement of LaFollette and Wheeler submitted by the General Executive Board was adopted by the convention, but it was far from being unanimous. Probably not less than 60 delegates voted against the resolution.

Emme Replies to O'Connell.

Delegate Emme, from St. Paul, in his argument against the resolution stated: "I recognize that what I have to say on this matter will not change the vote of this convention, but I warn the delegates against placing their hope on LaFolette and then be disappointed when he fails and may not even be able to throw the election into the House as our past president admits.

"Mr. O'Connell pleads the bankruptcy of industrial organization. I refuse to accept his declaration of bankruptcy," Emme stated. "I know that our industrial organizations can be built up again. I don't want the workers to build faith in LaFollette, so that when this bubble bursts they will find themselves in the same predicament politically.

"Nearly every measure that LaFollette stands for has been passed in the state of Wisconsin, and yet do any of you delegates look to Wisconsin for a mecca of organized labor?

"The working class of the state of Wisconsin is just as much exploited as that of any other state, if not worse."

Emme called the attention of the delegates to the fact that nearly all speakers were mentioning the class struggle and the sooner we would base the labor movement on that principle, the better off we would be.

Demonstration Doesn't Come.

The delegates were listening attentively while Emme spoke and the demonstration expected for LaFollette by some delegates did not materialize.

Delegate Otis, from Pittsburgh, the industrial hell of the United States, stated that the reason his local voted down LaFollette was that he did not represent the working class, that he was not a labor candidate and that what he stood for did not mean anything to the working class, and furthermore, on his national committee only two bona fide labor representatives were put on.

Delegate Garner, from Hammond, Ind., called the attention to the fact that on the committee were men like Rudolph Spreckles, with an outstanding record against labor and pleaded for a real working class political party.

Labor Party "Postponed."

When the resolution committee recommended non-concurrance on the Labor Party resolution, President Johnston pulled the usual bunk about how these Communists destroyed the socialist party, and those resolutions come from the same factory. However, he was careful not to go into a long denunciation.

He stated that the next gathering of the Conference for Progressive Political Action would no doubt form a labor party, and therefore was successful in having the resolution defeated, but the vote was very close. Delegate Slaven's Local 115, Rhode Island, led the fight for its adoption and he very ably pictured labor's experience with so-called friends from the time of the Ludlow massacre and up to the present. He warned the delegates not to be too overenthusiastic on LaFollette.

He concluded his speech by stating that labor must look forward and fight not only for higher wages, but for the complete control of the means of production. His remarks were greeted by tremendous applause.

Amalgamation Comes Next.

The question of amalgamation will no doubt create a spirited debate. The majority of the railroad delegates will no doubt vote in favor of this important resolution. A small meeting of some delegates supposed to represent railroad men was announced by President Johnston.

Delegates Barnard Cortez, from Chicago, and Lester, from Montreal, informed the delegates that it did not represent the rank and file. A meeting was then arranged for after the adjournment for all railroad delegates.

New York Comrades, Take Notice.

The Harlem section of the Workers Party, Local New York, will hold a general membership meeting of all the branches of the section on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 20, at 2 p. m., at the headquarters, 143 East 103rd St. Every member must attend. The membership meeting will take up very urgent matters in connection with the election campaign.

"Amalgamated" T. U. E. L. Members! Notice!

A meeting of all the members of the Trade Union Educational League belonging to the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union in Chicago will be held on Saturday, Sept. 20, at 2:30 p. m., at 3322 Douglas Blvd. All T. U. E. L. members are urged to be present and participate in discussing the plans for militant activity in the Amalgamated.

CAPTURE OF POLITICAL POWER URGED BY LONG AT I. A. M. CONVENTION

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 18.—Delegate William Long, Montreal, today sailed into the resolution on insurance presented here to the convention of the International Association of Machinists. He urged the necessity of capturing political power as against insurance, while Delegate Tate, Akron, Ohio, insisted on the union becoming an economic force capable of wresting economic power from the capitalists.

Fry, a Chicago delegate, pointed out that the international had gone into all kinds of business, banking, insurance, machine shops and overalls, and still it had lost four-fifths of its membership since the Rochester convention.

Discussion will continue on this question during the afternoon session... A. S. Brownlie, president of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, (machinists) in Great Britain, will address the convention and speak at an open meeting here tonight.

DAUGHERTY BOYS ARE TWO SHARP TACKS ON SILENT CAL'S CHAIR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Steps will be taken to advance before the United States Supreme Court the case of M. S. Daugherty, banker of Washington D. C. House, Ohio, who is charged with contempt of the senate in refusing permission for a senatorial committee to examine the books of his bank. Attorney general Stone announced today. The committee sought Daugherty's books in connection with the department of justice inquiry, directed chiefly at the investigation of Daugherty's brother, the former attorney general.

38 DEAD IN MINE BLAST IN WYOMING

Only 12 Escape Tomb with Their Lives

(Special to The Daily Worker)

KEMMERER, Wyo., Sept. 18.—The death toll in the terrific mine blast that wrecked mine No. 5 of the Kemmerer Coal company at Sublet, near here, today was definitely placed at 38 by P. J. Quealy, president of the company.

A close check-up showed that fifty men were in the working when the explosion occurred.

Bring Bodies To Surface.

Of these, 12 made their way to safety alive. Twenty-seven bodies, the majority showing signs of having been burned by the fire that broke out following the explosion, have been brought to the surface. Seven others have been located.

No arrangements had been made for an inquest into the explosion.

Many Bodies In Morgue

Twenty-two bodies of victims lay in Kemmerer morgues tonight, while other bodies taken out of the mine property still were at Sublet. Some funerals will be held tomorrow.

Much time was spent today by the rescue workers in cleaning out the main entryways, which were clogged with thousands of tons of rock after the explosion. The work was slow.

The coal company has not made public a list of names of the men who were in the mine at the time of the explosion.

Dr. F. Flinn, in charge of the United States bureau of mines rescue car here declared that rescue work was going forward as rapidly as possible.

Many reports are in circulation as to the cause of the explosion. One is that is was caused when a spark flashed as a tool scraped against the side of a coal car.

Death Came Instantaneously.

Rescue workers said the only means of identification of most of the bodies recovered was by the numbers on the electric lamps carried by the miners.

A number of the victims were found sitting in cars, where they were about to ride to the surface for dinner. Some were on their hands and knees, many with their hands over their eyes Death was believed to have been instantaneous in most cases.

WOMEN WILL NOT EVEN LEAVE THE PREACHERS ALONE

"This case ought to be a lesson to the church vamps of America to let their pastors alone."

The speaker was Mrs. Leslie Anderson, wife of the pastor of the Evangelical church of St. Joseph, Mich., whose plan was to end his life because of a church scandal yesterday, ended when he was struck down by an automobile when Mrs. Anderson arrived at the bedside of her husband late yesterday. Today she pledged renewed faith in him and had censure only for "those women in every church who develop a strange love for the preachers."

"For the last two years, Leslie never knew a moment's peace," Mrs. Anderson said today. "This woman followed him everywhere. She declared her love for him. She was so shameless that she threw her arms about his neck in public. And this woman thought my husband loved her. It is such women in churches all over the country who are forever causing dissension and church scandal."

Scandal Could be Hushed.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Sept. 18.—"We back our pastor, Rev. L. R. Anderson, with our unqualified moral and material support and should he wish to return to his pastorate here, we invite him warmly and cordially to do so."

Secret Covenant.

This statement of the board of trustees of the Evangelical Church whose pastor, Rev. Anderson, lies injured in a Chicago hospital following his attempt to commit suicide as a result of a church scandal, was made public today. It was drawn up at a secret meeting last night with presiding Elder C. B. Stroh of this district.

The statement "regrets the unfortunate publicity" which has attended the affair and suggests that had the pastor consulted with the board the "scandal" could have been satisfactorily adjusted.

FEDERAL JUDGE DEFERS ISSUE OF WARRANTS

Four I. W. W. Members Face Deportation

Issuance of the deportation warrant against four members of the Industrial Workers of the World, who have had deportation hanging over them for four years, was postponed by Federal Court Judge Adam Cliffe in the Post Office Building yesterday, after the plea of the attorney for the Industrial Workers of the World, that time was needed to prepare for deportation.

The four defendants, William Moran, Pietro Nigra, Joseph Oates, and Herbert Mahler, are all prominent members of the I. W. W. who served terms in Leavenworth after Judge K. M. Landis sentenced them during the war hysteria.

The case was taken to the United States Supreme Court by the defense, on the grounds that the warrant issued by the immigration bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor failed to show cause why the men should be deported.

Warrant Defective.

The United States Supreme Court has ruled against the Industrial Workers of the World, according to John O. Ryan, one of the defense lawyers, admitting that the warrant was technically faulty but declaring the immigration authorities had a right to amend the warrant of deportation. A new warrant was issued declaring the I. W. W. organizers must be deported as "Undesirable aliens," who were not working in accord with American principles.

Thomas Doyle, of the Doyle-Fisher group of the I. W. W., against whom an injunction has been issued by the Rowan-Griffith-Bowerman faction, told the DAILY WORKER reporter that the injunction brought into the capitalist courts has seriously hampered the defense of the four I. W. W. members. "They have shown not the slightest disposition to co-operate," he declared. "It might have been a very serious matter. Because of the injunction proceedings we could not get hold of the receipts for the bonds of the four defendants. Under this continuance, the four wobbly organizers might have had to go to jail for sixty days, because we could not get the bond receipts in order to make the bond transfer."

Time Necessary.

The defense lawyer, in pleading for the continuance, declared that the I. W. W. defendants needed at least sixty days in order to get their affairs in order. He emphasized the case of Pietro Negra, who has been a resident of the United States for 21 years. "All of the defendants have resided in the United States eight years or more," Cunnea said.

William F. Bigelow, one of the lawyers for the Rowan-Bowerman-Griffith faction of the I. W. W., refused to make a statement other than to deny that his clients are intending to drop the injunction case, which has been landed in the court of the worst labor-hating judge in the city, Superior Court Judge Dennis F. Sullivan.

"I have not heard of any move to drop the injunction against Doyle and Fisher," Bigelow told the DAILY WORKER. "And it would be mighty funny if there was a move for a truce and I had not heard of it." He characterized as "untruthful" statements that his clients intend to drop the injunction charges.

Four Active Workers.

The four I. W. W. organizers, sentenced by Judge Landis, were also sentenced to deportation at the expiration of their terms in Leavenworth which they have served.

Doyle told the DAILY WORKER that the four defendants are among the most active organizers in the I. W. W. movement, and he looks upon the move to deport them as a drive of the employers to disrupt the organization.

Imitates Fire-Eater.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 18.—An inquest was to be held today in the death of Frances Murray, 3, who died from burns received when she and her 5-year old brother tried to imitate a "fire-eater" they had seen at the Illinois State Fair. The little girl's dress caught fire. The boy was not injured.

BRITISH PLOTTERS IN AFGHANISTAN ARE SEVERELY DEFEATED

LONDON, Sept. 18.—Afghanistan rebels financed by British government have been defeated in battle by government troops, losing 1300 men, according to a Central News Dispatch from Allahabad this afternoon quoting the Pioneer.

'Cause Unknown!' Report Comes from Scene of the Latest Mine Disaster

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the usual report, "Cause Unknown!" that always follows in the wake of every mine horror, comes from the scene of the latest disaster, at Sublet, Wyoming.

"Disasters At Mines Alarm U. S. Bureau!" declare the newspaper headlines. But the alarm lasts for a day only.

The capitalist editor shoves the follow-up story, of 38 dead miners' bodies being dragged to the surface and stretched out in a morgue for identification, on a back page, while the first page display goes to the story under the headline, "Find 'Girl in Gray' in Thill Death."

That is capitalist civilization. The death of a rich business man, trying to steal some one else's wife, outweighs the wanton murder of nearly two score workers, wealth producers, not parasites.

* * * *

They were slaughtered on the job, while turning out profits for the mine owners. Some were found dead sitting in cars, ready to be hauled to the surface for dinner. Death won by seconds. In another moment they would have reached safety. Now the charred corpses can only be identified by the numbers on their electric lamps.

* * * *

In no country in Europe is the death rate of coal miners as high as it is in the United States.

Last year, every time a million tons of coal came to the surface in this country, four coal miners gave up their lives. The death list of coal miners, last year, contained the names of 2,452 workers. Two hundred thousand were injured.

* * * *

The coal mining industry is no exception. Out in the State of Washington, industrial accidents claim a life every day; 20 being killed in one month in the logging and lumbering industry alone.

One writer has put it this way:

"One out of every five of the American soldiers mobilized for the world war was a casualty—wounded, or gassed, or injured somehow.

"One out of every 12 of the wage earners of New York State was physically injured in the last fiscal year.

"One out of every 24 American soldiers in the World War lost his life.

"One out of every 3,000 wage-earners in New York State was killed in the last fiscal year, while at work, or died from injury or disease suffered or contracted at his work."

* * * *

Even the big employer, Arthur Williams, of the New York Edison Co., confesses that, "More than two out of every three industrial accidents might have been or can be prevented."

This employer has also been forced to make the confession that the increase in the killing of workers on the job "has been partly due to the speeding up of production in shop and factory."

* * * *

Yet the whole capitalist system demands of the worker, "Greater speed! More work!" As the army of the unemployed grows, it is used to batter down working standards. The work-day is lengthened. To the tired worker at the end of the long shift the boss hands out the warning "safety first." That is a poor stimulant for weary muscles, unable to guard against every pitfall that follows in the wake the bosses' "economy methods."

* * * *

"Half of the accidents and deaths occurring in the coal mines of the country annually could probably be eliminated by more adequate safety supervision by operating companies and the exercise of greater care by the mine employes," declares W. W. Adams, statistician of the Department of Labor. What a ghastly joke to add, "and the exercise of greater care by the mine employes," as if the workers willingly went to their graves. But this lackey of a Coolidge administration at Washington must practically charge the workers with committing suicide on the job, before he can get over even the mildest criticism of the employers.

* * * *

In one year's record, one of every ten men employed in the railway mail service sustained injuries while at work. The casualty list showed, for one year, 1,537 killed, and 512 injured.

* * * *

The deaths in industry are the plagues of the 20th Century torturing mankind. It is estimated that over 60,000,000 of the inhabitants of Europe died from small pox in the 18th Century. It doesn't pay capitalism, in Europe, or in the United States, to permit this disease to decimate the population as it did two hundred years ago. Therefore a successful fight is urged against small pox, to save the workers for the equally murderous industrial machine.

Capitalism didn't worry much about diseases in the mosquito-breeding swamps of Central America until it wanted to dig a canal across the Isthmus of Panama.

* * * *

The lives of workers in industry are cheap. When one worker, dead upon a stretcher is carried from the factory entrance, or is raised to the surface from the mine pit, there are always a host of live, strong workers to take his place. The factory or mine owner need not worry about the death of workers, and he saves money thru failure to install safety appliances and maintain the proper workday.

* * * *

Not far from Sublet, Wyoming, is Teapot Dome, the scene of the robbery of the nation's resources by the oil magnate, Sinclair, with the aid of a secretary of the navy, Denby.

In this same State of Wyoming, at Elk Basin, for instance, John D. Rockefeller's Standard Oil Trust works its oil slaves seven days per week and 12 hours per day.

In this same state, at Rock Springs, for instance, it is estimated that there are 42 nationalities. Workers are brought here from every corner of the world. Chinese and Japs, as well as Italians and Slavs, to dig coal and profits for the mine owners.

* * * *

The thirty-eight coal miners dead, at Sublet, cry out against the greed of the coal barons, just as Teapot Dome and Elk Basin have told the world, in thunder tones, the crimes of the oil profiteers.

Let workers everywhere hear this cry of the dead. Let labor wipe out this 20th Century industrial scourge, almost as deadly as the scourge of war itself. This can only be done by abolishing the social system that breeds this scourge—the capitalist social system with its rapacious ruling class that worries not about the blood of the workers upon its gold.

At least when capitalism falls the report will not go out, "Cause unknown!"

LEGION'S ENTRY INTO POLITICS RAISES FLURRY

Military Clique Union Danger to Workers

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 18.—Does the speech of labor-hating Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis at the American Legion convention here today foreshadow the entrance of the organization into politics with a bang? That is the question that is being discussed not only in St. Paul, which thinks "legion" today, but by political leaders in all parts of the country.

Politicians On Watch Duty.

A number of nationally known political wiseacres and leaders are present at the convention and are displaying a keen and unprecedented interest in the proceedings, especially those that go on behind the scenes. The Landis speech has stirred up quite a flurry.

"You men of the legion are always being told to do things," said the old jingo, "I don't think you need to be told how to act in time of peace. You certainly knew how to act in time of war. Nevertheless anyone who does a bit of good is always being called upon again. Get the vote out. It's one of your duties as Americans."

The temper of the reaction to this speech and the undercurrent of the entire convention, was expressed unofficially by one high in the councils of the legion. "The legion can swing elections and it is my genuine belief that the legion will swing elections. It may not happen this year, but it is coming just as sure as tomorrow's sun, and when it comes—well, look out for the ex-service men. They'll run the country."

Is Danger To Workers.

While this is quite an exaggeration there is not a bit of doubt that the legion's entry into politics as a veterans' unit would contribute greatly to the strength of a state reaction in America. A militarist clique, controlled completely by officers with capitalist affiliations, which will enter politics as a whole, has had a reactionary effect on the workers' struggle for better conditions in various European countries and the same is a possible condition in this country. While the danger is not so great at present, a growing movement of the workers here would bring this force into active play.

The election of national commander here will hinge largely on the decision of the convention on the political question.

FRENCH PREMIER RUNS FOUL OF ANGRY WORKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, Sept. 18—Apparently everybody in France does not assume that a man who uses his feet instead of an automobile is above suspicion. Premier Herriot came to this conclusion last night after a large number of workers carrying banners demanding the release of political prisoners met him as he walked thru the city of Marseilles after landing from a torpedo boat.

Did Not Thrash Him.

The workers were led by young Communists. No violence was offered the premier, tho the capitalist papers made it appear that the workers would have beaten him but for police interference.

Amnesty for political prisoners was one of the issues on which Herriot ran for election. Like all bourgeois politicians he has conveniently forgotten his promises since he assumed office. The Communists are holding him to his promise.

When the premier landed from the torpedo boat, he insisted on walking instead of riding in his automobile, claiming that he was more "democratic" to walk than to ride. It turned out to be much more disagreeable than he expected.

Fog Hits Chicago; "L" Trains Collide; Taxicabs Get Scary

A near-panic resulted here today when an express elevated train, jammed with passengers en route to work, crashed into the rear end of a local, hidden by a dense fog which enveloped the city in a blanket of darkness. Windows in both trains were shattered and passengers fought each other for exits until guards were able to restore order. No one was injured.

So dense was the fog that taxi cab companies ordered all service except in the down-town district suspended. All traffic was hampered and "slow" orders were issued on all railroads entering the city.

RHODE ISLAND MAY SEE BIG COTTON STRIKE

Textile Union Organizer Flays Boss' Greed

(By The Federated Press)

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Sept. 18.—Organizers for the United Textile Workers have been speaking at the gates of cotton mills in Pawtucket and Manville, near here. President Thomas F. McMahon of the international union, visiting the field, says the union is prepared to support the workers in a movement against the wage cutting that is beginning. A strike as fierce as that in 1922 may develop.

The union will act when the workers reach a decision, he said.

"I shall not hesitate," Mr. McMahon continued, "to name the time and place when the workers decide. We did not starve in 1922 and we will not starve in 1924."

Assail Boss Greed.

Declaring that organization work will be pressed vigorously, the U. T. W. president took occasion to assail the greed of the wage-cutting bosses.

"I claim that the cut in wages by the Manville-Jenckes company is absolutely unnecessary. This company, as well as others, have already cut wages by speeding up machinery, reducing the price list to piece workers, and by adding more looms to the weaver and more spindles to the spinner."

Amalgamation Voted Down at Machinists' Convention in Detroit

to Johnston, brought in its own resolution on the proposition. It called for a re-affirmation of the convention resolution in 1913 for amalgamation, but stated that nothing could be done until the other unions in the industry were willing to come along. This spineless motion was passed under the pressure of the pay roll gang.

The left wing resolution called for the election of a committee from the floor of the convention to work together with the grand lodge for the purpose of negotiating unity in the metal trades industry and carrying on the fight for solidarity in all conventions of the American Federation of Labor, the Railway Employes' Department and the Metal Trades' Department. It pointed out the havoc wrought by the employers in their anti-labor drives which had signally hurt the trades unions because of their craft basis of organization.

But logic made no impression on the hard shells and the committee resolution was adopted instead.

B. & O. Plan Coming.

The B. & O. plan is yet to come up before the convention, and it is universally admitted that it will be the crux of the fight at the convention between reaction and progress. No matter what the result will be, it will be the biggest struggle and the element that wins will win only by a close majority. There is an even greater sentiment against this insidious menace among the membership and the delegates than there was for the amalgamation proposition. The prevailing feeling is one of distrust for the "co-operation plan" on the grounds that it will completely eliminate the last vestige of militancy in the union, and turn it over as an efficient appendage for the increase of the profits of the employers.

The fakers, who are not willing to organize the unorganized on the basis of a fight against the bosses, and feel their meal ticket dwindling, are anxious to see the Johnston plan go thru, hoping that it will mean a bigger dues-paying membership to comfort them in their sliding years. The fact that it will no longer be a trade union doesn't seem to interest them for a moment.

Send in the Collections for the Campaign Fund

TO ALL PARTY BRANCHES:

Funds for the carrying on of the Workers Party campaign are raised thru sale of campaign fund stamps by the Party Branches. These stamps were sent to the district offices early in August and have been in the hands of the Party branches since the middle of August. So far, however, very few of these branches have sent remittances to the local and district offices to which they pay the funds collected.

The campaign work of the Party has been lagging because of lack of response by the branches to the appeal for the selling of the campaign fund stamps. The National Organization had printed hundreds of thousands of leaflets, has issued three pamphlets, routed speakers and getting out stickers. The printers, the Daily Worker Publishing Co. which does the printing for the Party is not in a position to extend long time credit to the Party for the work which it does and if the Party is to continue and intensify the campaign work thru new literature, and more meetings, the funds must be made available by the Party branches. Every Party branch is urged to at once take up the question of the sale of the campaign fund stamps. The members of the branches must intensify their efforts to sell these stamps. Each branch should make it a matter of pride to sell all the stamps it has received by the first of October. The money is to help intensify and carry on a more aggressive campaign, and we must have the funds by that time.

The second action necessary by the branches is that the money already collected be remitted to the district or local organization from which the stamps have been received. The local and district organizations will in turn transmit the money—the local to the district and the district the share which goes to the national organization to the national headquarters.

Comrades, we have the opportunity before us of increasing the strength of our Party and of mobilizing hundreds of thousands of workers behind our Party by expressing their approval of our Party candidates on Election Day. We must make the most of this opportunity. The campaign fund will furnish the means to carry on the work that is necessary. We must get results in the collection of the campaign fund within the next two weeks' time. Mobilize your forces for this work and do your part to make the campaign a success.

Fraternally yours,

C. E. RUTHENBERG,
Executive Secretary

toil for the next twelve months, a happy and contented lot. But a devil has gotten into them, says Forbes. We do not know if Moscow has sent over a flock of germs, or a swarm or however they come, but they are bitten by something, which is not good for the landowners. They actually insist on indulging in pleasures which once, and not so very long ago, were the exclusive monopoly of the rich. Odds Bodkins and Gadszooks!

WEEKLY half holidays were unknown in pre-war days on the farm, and most farm laborers rarely went pleasure seeking, except on Saturday evenings. All that is now changed." This is terrible. The way the working class are acting in England ought to send cold shivers running up and down the royal spine. Of course, His Majesty can depend on Ramsay MacDonald for another while to prevent the British workers from taking a week off and cleaning out the parasites their class has been working for so many centuries. They will do that little thing one of these days.

WHO would have thought in the year 1914, when the war broke out that the mighty czar of Russia would today be lying at the bottom of a deep well and that his children, legitimate and otherwise, would be scouring the earth looking for a place where they could live without working? That person would be considered an optimist if not worse. In fact, people have been taken to psychopathic hospitals for less offensive predictions. Who knows but that the British working class, long considered the most servile worshippers of royalty in the world, will in a short time, send their intellectual nonentity and company the czar or perhaps his royal cousin, the kaiser? It is up to them to give him a fitting sentende. Far be it from me to suggest anything unseemly. I might be accused of prejudice.

TALKING of kings. Some time ago this column predicted that the financiers and capitalists who are entertaining the Prince of Wales on Long Island, New York, would give His Royal Highness a friendly mauket tip, which would enable that aristocratic person, to pay his bootlegger's bill while in this country. The writer assumed that the prince having a taking way with the society ladies, who were tired of playing with their poodles and second-hand Swedish, Bulgarian and Greek princes, would insist that their meal tickets, alias husbands, should put the prince wise to a stock killing. It has happened.

YESTERDAY'S papers carried the news that Mr. Julius Fleischmann, owner of the yeast business that made him rich and famous, favored the prince with the information that his yeast stock was going to rise. The prince rose to the occasion, invested a large sum of money in Fleischmann stock and unloaded it when the stock reached its peak. The prince and Fleischmann and the insiders were money in the pocket, but the prince has somebody else's dough. There were suckers as well as winners. This proves that thrift pays and the only way to get rich is to work ten hours a day for your master and never look at the clock. The prince burns the midnight oil. So he makes money. Oh, oh, oh, Mr. Prince!

PACIFISTS may breathe easier, there will be no war with France just yet. The loan of a hundred million dollars which fell due Sept. 12, has been renewed by J. P. Morgan & Co. "upon conditions similar to the preceding credit." Which means that the French wage workers, like their German brothers, will go right on slaving for our money lenders. And "Comrade" Herriot will collect the bill.

A LOT of fool workers got excited when the Japanese Ambassador's protest against the Asiatic Exclusion Law contained a reference to "grave consequences." In the hocus-pocus of diplomacy these words generally mean "fight." Congress and the kept press soon took up the tune: "These Japs can't scare us, we'll show 'em." Right after the big earthquake it was not merely politic, it was safe. It develops, tho, according to a speech by Bishop Charles F. Reifsnider, before the Tokio Rotary Club, that the strong tone of Hanihara's note was directly due to the insistence of our own Secretary of State, Charles E. Hughes, who wanted a note "with teeth." Who knows how many other war scares have been negotiated by "gentlemen's agreement?"

GOOSE-STEP DAY PROVED BIG FIZZLE

Silent Cal, Wise "Pol," Muzzles Wilbur

By LAURENCE TODD
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Defense Day mobilization has failed to accomplish for the army and navy the revival of public interest in the war game which was hoped for it. While the war department chiefs announced that 16,000,000 persons "took part" in the celebration, President Coolidge has given tangible evidence that this claim was a bluff.

He has sent an urgent summons to his secretary of the navy, Wilbur, to hurry back from the Pacific Coast by airplane in order to quell the big navy shouters in the navy department. Cal is afraid that the voters will hold him responsible, in November, for the fire alarm attitude of the swivel chair admirals who are now telling the public that the navy budget must be increased by $50,000,000 at least.

Wilbur, who was picked for the cabinet by Coolidge on the advice of Sen. Sam Shortridge, sponsor of the anti-Japanese clause in the immigration law, has been out in the golden west, lambasting the Japanese and suggesting that "There is nothing so cooling to a hot temper as a piece of cold steel."

Boost For Business.

This contribution to international peace was hailed by the big navy boys as a great boost for business. It looked as tho Defense Day would earn fine dividends in increased salaries and more promotions, which in turn would bring fatter retirement pensions and allowances.

They looked around and discovered that the budget bureau had reduced by $50,000,000 the amount of the inflated estimates made by naval bureau chiefs for the service for next year. Among the items reduced was the one for naval aircraft. On this they found the star-spangled Hearst press, and raised the cry that national defense was being betrayed.

Coolidge waited a few days, observed that nobody got excited about it, and concluded that it was better politics—until after election—to stand by the budget bureau. So he called Wilbur in for instructions.

Officers' Connections.

Meanwhile, the employes in the navy yards have become alarmed as to their immediate future. They see that the naval officers, who are socially if not financially connected with the owners of private yards and munitions plants, are blocking every chance the government have had on competitive contracts.

This program on the part of the naval officers is based, apparently, on their desire to use the industrial displacement of the navy yard employes as a threat which will induce congress to maintain a big navy regardless of world conditions. Every effort to get contracts for articles needed by other departments of the government, and which can be produced cheaply in the machine shops owned by the navy meets with disaster. Some of the men suspect that the navy yards' bids are shown secretly to favored private bidders, who then underbid the navy just enough to get the contracts.

Private Companies.

Millions of dollars' worth of ship repairs, of metal work for the endless activities of Uncle Sam, are turned over month by month to private companies, whose officers are social chums of high officers in the public service, and who join the naval officers in their demand for more costly armament.

Thus far, the organized shopmen employed by the war and navy departments have failed to present to congress a detailed and comprehensive plan for turning these government shops to productive peace-time uses. But now the word is going around that something must be done, by common agreement, or the disarmament wave will leave 100,000 workers in the yards and arsenals high and dry.

This Should Make Bobby Tune in and Listen Attentively

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 18.—Officers were elected by the Indiana Telephone Association today and the fifth annual two-day session came to a close with a banquet at the Claypool Hotel.

Addressing the 250 delegates, Henry A. Barnhart of Rochester, president of the association, declared small telephone companies must increase their rates in the immediate future or go out of business.

He pointed out that independent companies operating in rural districts had not provided for a depreciation fund with the result that repairs are badly needed now and there is no money with which to make them.

WELL, TIMES ARE GETTING WORSE BUT THE WORKERS' WAGES REMAIN AT AVERAGE OF $1,000 PER YEAR

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

The almost hopeless struggle of the average wage earner in American industry to keep his family afloat even in a year of full employment is reflected in Bulletin 357, U. S. department of labor, which summarizes the study of workers' family budgets during the war. The report shows thousands of families with annual deficits while other thousands produce scanty surpluses only as children or from gifts and roomers. Such a report makes Secretary of Labor Davis' talk about a "saving wage" sound like twaddle.

The original investigation of the department covered 12,096 families representing proportionally the wage earners, low salary and medium salary workers in 92 industrial centers scattered over 42 states. The results in the case of families with incomes ranging between $900 and $1,800 are shown in the table, the figures being as of 1918:

	INCOME GROUP
Average income from	$900 to $1,200	$1,200 to $1,500	$1,500 to $1,800
Husband	$1,014	$1,252	$1,488
Wife	11	14	15
Children	12	26	62
Roomers	2	4	6
Garden, Poultry, etc.	8	11	14
Gifts	21	24	29
Rents or investments	2	6	9
Other	5	7	9
All sources	$1,075	$1,344	$1,632
Average expenditures for
Food	456	516	572
Clothing	156	207	275
Rent	150	180	207
Fuel and light	64	73	79
Furniture etc.	48	62	84
Miscellaneous	202	263	338
Total exp.	$1,076	$1,301	$1,537

Average About $1,000.

These figures represent the average wage earner's family today, so far as income is concerned. Unskilled adult laborearns between $900 and $1,200 with the average probably below $1,000 a year. Semi-skilled adult male labor earns between $1,200 and $1,500 while the average skilled mechanic does not earn as much as $1,800 a year. More than three-quarters of the families investigated by the department of labor were included in these groups.

The cost of living today is probably four per cent to five per cent higher than in 1918 and the distribution of family expenditure would be quite different. The great rise in rents since that year has forced curtailment in expenditure for clothing and food. The retail prices of food and clothing are today lower than in 1918.

But the general balance would not be very different. It shows more than one-third of the families with incomes between $900 and $1,200 a year operating at a deficit, the average shortage amounting to $107. In fact the average income of the entire group falls just short of meeting the annual expense, and it would have fallen materially short if the families had been entirely dependent on the normal breadwinners. In the higher income groups the smallness of the average surplus due to increased expenditure for food, clothing and housing is a witness to the want which prevails on the lesser incomes.

THE VIEWS OF OUR READERS ON LIFE, LABOR, INDUSTRY, POLITICS

THE FALLACY OF GARVEYISM
By GORDON W. OWENS

THE Illinois Kourier, a Ku Klux Klan paper, print a report of a speech delivered by Marcus Garvey to the convention of the Universal Negro Improvement Association in New York City.

Mr. Garvey makes a plea for Negro nationalism and warns his hearers that Negroes have nothing to hope for from the countries dominated by the white race.

I agree that Negroes should be proud of the achievements of their race, and should consider themselves as good as and the equals of all other races. But Negroes must remember that they are part of the great human race and that their destiny is intertwined with it.

Capitalists Exploit White and Negro

The white race in general does not dominate any country. A comparatively small portion of the white race, namely the ruling and capitalist class dominates and exploits the great mass of white workers in the countries inhabited by whites. The same white capitalist class dominates and exploits Negro workers who reside in Africa, the West Indies and other countries inhabited mostly by Negroes.

Of course exploited white workers become soldiers and aid their white capitalists and masters to dominate and exploit the Negro and other darker races. This is due to the miseducation, ignorance and stupidity of the white workers.

The Negro ruling class of Haiti, the Negro republic, exploits and dominates the Negro workers of Haiti despite the fact that mostly Negroes live in Haiti.

The Negro ruling class of Liberia, the African republic, likewise unmercifully exploits the great mass of native Negro workers of Liberia.

Negroes No Better Off.

Therefore, Negroes will not fare any better by living in a country ruled and dominated by Negro capitalists and exploiters, than by living where the color of their exploiters is white.

Negro workers must learn that the capitalist system under which they live is the cause of their misery and woe. They must unite with the class conscious and revolutionary white workers to overthrow and do away with the present capitalist order, which keeps the Negro problem in existence, and establish the rule of the workers and farmers or the communist system.

Communists the world over know but one race, the human race and but two classes, the working class and the non-working or capitalist class.

Negroes in the United States and elsewhere in order to secure their emancipation from the ills under which they now suffer must destroy the cause of these evils which is the present iniquitous, soulless and oppressive system of wage slavery under which they, along with the white workers, exist.

These Yellow ($)Cabs.

To the DAILY WORKER: In waiting for the employment office of a certain cab company to open, I have heard several interesting stories about the Yellow Cab Company.

Each one of the applicants who have previously worked for the Yellow have their story to tell. One fellow said "I have worked for the Yellow over three years, but am quitting now, and trying to get a job here. They beat me out of my attendance bonus." "How much was it?" I asked. "Six dollars," he answered, "and I worked four months for it and never missed a day." "How did they beat you out of it?" I asked. "Well, I had Sunday off, but worked just the same, as I needed the money, and took the next Sunday off instead, and because at this they kept the six dollars." "And this isn't all," he continued, "they kept a dollar and forty cents out of my pay last week, because an old lady met me waiting after she reached her destination, and then refused to pay me."

Another Yellow Cab driver had a roommate who was looking for a job, and finally got one, but with a union concern. The morning after, early, the Yellow Cab driver was called into the manager's office.

"Do you know this man?" the manager asked, naming the roommate. "Why yes," the driver answered, "he is my roommate."

"Well, you'll have to move out of there, you can't room with a union man." The driver told him to "go to hell," and quit right there.

Another one was "laid off temporarily," so they told him, altho they were constantly hiring new men. When he tried to get back on again, they always told him that there was no opening. After five weeks of this he found out that his uncle, his father's brother, who lived a few doors from his own home, had joined the machinists' union just a few days before he (the driver) had been laid off by the Yellow Cab Company.

I wish you would publish this letter, so that the workers, at least some of them, can learn a little about the Yellow (S)Cab Company.—ELMER S. WATSON, a reader of your paper. Chicago, Ill.

To the DAILY WORKER—Many wage workers belonging to the K. K. K. are misled. I believe it a good idea that the C. E. C. of our Party issue leaflets for distribution to these misled workers, explaining 100 per cent Americanism and the Ku Klux Klan.

Comrades, do something in this matter because I see that many wage workers and even poor farmers are joining the K. K. K.

We've got to split the workers away from the K. K. K. Tell the American workers that it is not in their interest to fight the foreign born workers but they must direct their common fight against the capitalist class.

FOSTER ON THE RUSSIAN REVOLUTION

"THE Russian revolution is one of the very greatest events in all human history. What has happened is that the oppressed masses of Russian workers and peasants have risen against their masters, overthrown them, and destroyed the whole political and industrial structure of the old regime. They have taken control of the land, the industries and the state, and are operating them in their own interests, paying no tribute to exploiters of any sort. The world has never seen such a profound social upheaval."

CARPENTERS UP AGAINST DROP IN BUILDING

Puncturing of Boom Is Convention Problem

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 18.—The convention of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners convenes here next Monday, Sept. 22, faced with the slackening of the building boom and widespread unemployment, together with an open shop drive of the employers.

The Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, with almost 400,000 members, claiming jurisdiction over nearly a million workers, is the largest union in the building industry and next to the United Mine Workers is the most powerful union numerically in the United States.

Resolutions have been introduced by the left wing element which aim to curb the autocratic powers of the reactionary officials of the union, organize the unorganized workers, recognize Soviet Russia, and amalgamate the building trades into one union.

A resolution introduced by Local Union No. 27, Toronto, calls for a new policy in the unions, whereby the carpenters and joiners may support a farmers' and workers' political party. This resolution declares: "Amend the constitution by striking out the words 'But party politics must be excluded' and substitute the following, 'Any local union or local unions and district councils may cooperate with a recognized labor party and render such financial support to such party as the membership in their respective locals or districts may decide'."

and continuous self-sacrifice which only goes with movements of a fundamental nature. Those whom the league has supported before, and its present candidates, all stand for the capitalist system that is responsible for the economic ruin of thousands of North Dakota farmers.

Thousands of the farmers, and the workers of North Dakota, it is no longer sufficient to say that the candidate is a "dirt" farmer and "slaps his own back" as the fundamental nature of the national agrarian crisis is rapidly becoming apparent. North Dakota farmers, because their product is on the world market, are beginning to realize that the question is not alone national, but is also international.

The message of Communism carried by Foster in his speech in this state will bring home these facts. It will explode the republican fallacy that the Dawes' plan will be a relief to American agriculture. Foster will expose this imperialist plan. He will show that back of the struggle for world markets, which will surely precipitate another world conflict—a conflict in which the North Dakota farmers and their sons will be asked again to cross the ocean to help collect European debts and conquer the markets of the world for Wall Street and the American imperialists.

In North Dakota from now on, Communism is a force to be reckoned with.

ANTI-FASCISTI IN NEW HAVEN HOLD BIG MEET

Squelch Black-Shirters Riot Attempts

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 18.—Despite the attempts of Fascisti to break up the meeting, over 500 workers in Music Hall, yelled their condemnation of the Fascist regime in Italy. Long before the meeting, the papers predicted trouble, based on past experiences here. What infuriated the small Fascist group was the bright red tunic worn by John Govenesi, of New York, a white-haired, white-bearded veteran of the Italian War of Independence in 1860.

Only the determined attitude of William Simons, district organizer of the Workers Party, saved the day. From then on, there was little interruption. The Fascists mumbled to themselves that their plan to disrupt the meeting was a failure.

Speakers In Italian.

The speakers in Italian were Mario Baldini, Pietro Allegra, and Carlo Tresca of New York, and Pasquale Cobianche, of New Haven. Baldini was eloquent in delineating the heights the Italian workers could attain in art and science, if they were in control of their destinies. Cobianche's passionate denunciation of the brutalities committed by the Fascisti drew heated protests from those creatures that may once have been men, but are now nothing but Fascists. Pietro Allegra lived up to his name, with his witty thrusts at the enemy. Carlo Tresca, the veteran of the Lawrence 1912 strike, analyzed the reasons for the Fascist movement, excoriating the renegade socialist, Mussolini.

Socialist Fails To Appear.

The only speaker in English was Comrade Simons. I. Polsky, was advertised to speak for the socialist party and for the LaFollette club. But he must have recognized the impropriety of a supporter of a capitalist candidate attempting to condemn a capitalist movement like Fascism. He was said to be out of town, campaigning for LaFollette, instead of being at a working class gathering to protest against cruelties inflicted upon the working class. He was right in staying away. He should never have been invited. He would have been out of place.

A Communist Speech.

Simons called the Fascisti question an international one. He laid the Fascisti movement at the base surrender of the social democratic leaders of the Italian metal factories seized in Sept. 1920, and to their failure to enlist the sympathy of the peasants. The middle class was enlisted by Mussolini to serve big capital in rebuilding Italian industry at the expense of the working class. He stressed the united front nature of the meeting, where he representd the Communist Workers Party, and other speakers were syndicalists and anarchists. "But," he declared amid the stormy applause, "when the working class is threatened, then the Communists enter into joint demonstrations to battle for the true interests of the proletariat." He condemned the United States government for recognizing a capitalist dictatorship; and Gary, Dawes and other 100 per centers, for praising and shaking the bloody paw of Mussolini. He urged the workers present to be internationalists, and no matter what their individual differences might be, to fight shoulder to shoulder, when the working class is in danger.

A telegram was unanimously ordered sent to the widow of Matteotti, the slain deputy; and one against the damnable Fascist regime to the working class of Italy.

The Italian branch of the Workers party was active in arranging the meeting.

NEW YORK COMMUNISTS!

The Communist International Calls Upon Us to Intensify Our Industrial Work.

The First Step in This Direction is the Industrial Registration of Our Party Membership

Comrades, have you responded to this call? Have you already registered in the industrial registration as instructed by the Party?

Branch officials, have you already sent in the registration slips to the respective Party offices? If you have not already done so, then you must get every member in your branch registered in this industrial registration. Use every means possible to get this work done.

Branches should make the industrial registration an order of business at their next branch meeting for the purpose of completing the registration of every member in the branch. All members must be registered.

This is a Communist duty which must be fulfilled by every member of the Party.

This registration should have been completed by Sept. 15. Up to date only 35 out of 125 branches reported. The following branches have filed their registration reports either in full or in part:

Name of Branch.

Armenian, N. Y. C., partial.
Czecho-slovak, Union Hill, complete report.

If your branch name does not appear on this list, then your branch is delinquent in filing its report. If you have part of the members registered, send same in to the respective Party offices and go ahead until completion of the registration in your branch.

Whipping Boss Film Draws Well.

OBSTACLES FAIL TO STOP A FINE OPEN AIR MEET

Cicero Cops, Fireman and Lassies Foiled

All the powers of the state in almost comic-opera form, tried unsuccessfully to stop a Workers Party street meeting in Cicero Tuesday night. The "Black Hundred," the church, the police, and even the social-democracy in its historic role, contributed to the entertainment of a crowd of 200 who braved the chilly night to hear speeches delivered by Wm. F. Kruse and a prominent Lithuanian comrade.

The meeting was well under way with no more opposition than the usual auto horns and small boys' smartness, when an ancient flivver, light blazing and cut-out roaring, drove down the wrong side of the street, right into the crowd, and up to within a few inches of the stand. One of the crowd protested that his child had been hit and the burly driver, at least 250 pounds of him, rolled out of the machine, took hold of his slightly-built critic, and almost carried him across the street. The speaker told the crowd to stay where it was, jumped off the platform, and separated the two.

"What's the idea of driving into a crowd of people that way?" he asked.

"Ain't I got a right to park over there? I wanna go inter that ice cream store?"

Not For Ice Cream.

He didn't look like an ice cream customer and later events proved his fake of interest in that store.

"Well, you're driving on the wrong side of the street, beat it or you'll get pinched."

The big man's jaw fell in amazement. "Pinched? Me? Me pinched?" He was so stunned he forgot that he came to fight. The speaker got back on the stand, the driver backed out his machine and drove up the main street, and the meeting proceeded in fine spirit.

The crowd identified the interrupter the "The Fire Department," but it developed that he was only one member. Someone said he was the chief but this was also denied, he was just the biggest man on the department and his chief mission in life was to keep the police from winning the annual tug-of-war. With "Dan" as the anchor, the cops might as well try to pull the "Western" off its foundations.

Back Again.

A roaring like a machine-gun right in back of the stand. "Daredevil Dan" was back again, he had driven around the block. Some of the crowd had to jump for their lives. One woman started to tell him where he got off.

From the stand: "Let him alone, he wants an ice cream." The horse-laugh got the fireman so sore that without any warning he started the flivver forward, just missed the stand, and was gone for the day.

Soon after a Salvation Army organ started up around the corner. A few of the more curious left and came right back again. The music stopped.

An Ex-Socialist Cop.

Automobiles and police were hovering around. Finally a uniformed cop, Charley Opolskis, former secretary of the Lithuanian branch of the socialist party, came over with the word that we would have to move off the business street, these here business men were complaining, and they paid taxes so we would have to go down a block into the unlighted residential streets.

The personal representative of the Second International was told that the issue of our right to hold meetings on that corner had been fought out once before in the Cicero courts, and that we were ready to do it again; the only way to stop our speakers was to lock them up.

Some Friend.

A plain clothes sergeant then took up the plea: "I know you," he said to the speaker, "we had trouble with you years ago, better beat it, the cop's yer frend.'" He got the same answer with a little kidding thrown in.

Another policeman came to the rescue and saved the others' face. He told the speaker the meeting could go on provided it was orderly, and the crowd promised to remain that way even if "Daredevil Dan" brought out the whole fire department.

A substantial collection was taken up and a large number of tickets to the Foster-Gitlow Mass Meeting at Ashland Auditorium, Oct. 12 were sold.

Crowds assemble on this corner, Roche Ave., and 14th St., every Tuesday night long before the meeting starts and they stay right thru to the end.

Here is POWER—the power of brain and effort of men and women of the working class who not only believe—but ACT!

The New York Edition

THE DAILY WORKER has already announced the "500 New Subscribers'" Campaign initiated in New York. The systematic and continued effort of the New York comrades led by Comrade L. E. Katterfeld, DAILY WORKER agent for that city, forces further recognition.

It is not simply a subscription campaign. As Comrade Katterfeld explains, with it goes "The building up of larger and larger bundle orders from week to week, the campaign for the distribution of at least 50,000 copies of the Foster number, which the Campaign Committee has now definitely ordered, publicity in foreign language papers, circularization of sympathizers, etc."

Right now they are in the midst of this campaign which they began in a systematic and ORGANIZED method.

To start with Comrade Katterfeld announces that "within the next two weeks some energetic comrade will visit every branch that has not as yet an agent and to see to it that one is elected." (What a celebration there would be in this office if every city did it!) But let this communication to the New York Workers Party membership signed by Comrades Katterfeld and Rebecca Grecht, the Secretary of the Executive Committee, tell the story:

Comrades:—YOU WANT THE DAILY WORKER TO BE SOLD ON THE NEWS STANDS IN NEW YORK CITY—

HERE'S HOW TO DO IT: Secure 500 additional subscribers for the DAILY WORKER by the time of the Foster meeting in October, and the DAILY WORKER will go on the news stands.

This will benefit EVERY party member, whatever language he speaks. It will be a great convenience for thousands of workers. It will mean thousands of new readers for the DAILY WORKER—more votes for our Communist candidates—more new members—more successful meetings—more success for EVERY activity of the WORKERS PARTY in this city.

Realizing this, the City Executive Committee decided to launch a campaign AT ONCE for the 500 subscribers necessary before placing the DAILY WORKER on the news stands of New York. This campaign has now begun.

To create some friendly rivalry among the comrades of the various branches and as a reward of merit, the branch that makes the best record will receive a with Bolshevik emblem, Hammer, Sickle, Star and suitable inscription embroidered on it.

This will be officially presented by Comrade Foster, our presidential candidate, at his meeting in New York, at which the comrades of the winning branch, together with comrades with the best individual records from other branches, will have seats of honor.

The contest is on. START NOW to get subscriptions for the DAILY WORKER. Bring or send them to the DAILY WORKER AGENT, 108 East 12th Street.

* * * *

This this and other plans of the New York comrades have proved successful can be seen by a few facts:

Local New York has distributed an edition of 14,000 copies for the Gitlow campaign meeting. A special edition will be had for the Cannon meeting and an edition of 50,000 has been ordered for the Foster campaign meeting. Comrade Irving Potash, of the Williamsburg English branch, alone secured an order of 300 copies from his branch members—10 per member. Circle 12 of the Young Workers League ordered a bundle of 750 copies.

Subscriptions from New York are pouring in daily in increasing numbers and the POWER COLUMN will surely be forced to further cheers for this local.

To other locals and branches we simply must get somewhat religious in our suggestion: GO THOU AND DO LIKEWISE.

ST. LOUIS PARTY HOLDS EXCELLENT STREET MEETING

May Form Negro Branch in Near Future

By HARRY STOLZ.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 18.—Police intimidation failed to frighten the speakers of the Workers Party in the most successful street meeting held in this city for a long time.

The meeting, held at the corner of 22nd and Chestnut Sts., was being addressed by John Brown, candidate of the Communists for congress, Elmer McMillan, candidate for lieutenant-governor of the state, and by Ed. Latterdale, a Negro who has just joined the party, with Harry Stolz as chairman.

Applaud Communists.

A large crowd, mostly Negroes, had gathered and interrupted the Communist speakers with frequent applause, especially when Brown and Latterdale spoke on the Negro question and McMillan on Defense Day.

In the midst of Brown's talk, a big burly cop came over, and despite Brown's insistence on his constitutional rights of free speech, the stand was finally moved to another corner, the majority of the crowd following. The cop didn't mind the talking except that he thought that speeches "agin' the government" should not be tolerated on that corner. It might be all right on the next one, though.

Literature to the extent of 48 DAILY WORKERS, five Labor Heralds, 17 programs of the party, three Communist Internationals, and one Bankruptcy of the American Labor Movement was sold. Names of 19 Negro workers were secured and there is a good possibility of forming a branch in the heart of the Negro district here.

N. Y. WORKERS PARTY MEMBERS MEET FRIDAY ON IMPORTANT PLANS

On Friday evening, Sept. 19, at 8 p. m. sharp, Local Greater New York of the Workers Party will hold a membership meeting at Stuyvesant Casino at 142 Second Ave.

The order of business for this membership meeting will be the coming election campaign of the party and every comrade should make it his and her business to be present at this most important meeting without fail. Every branch meeting should be called off on that night and every member of the party interested in the growth and the development of the party should be present at this meeting.

The date is Friday evening, September 19, at 8 p. m. sharp.

The place is Stuyvesant Casino, 142 Second Ave.

The Workers Party in Action

INCREASING activities and systematic attempts to reach the largest possible number of workers with the Communist message are marking the campaign for the Workers Party candidates by the membership of District No. 8. Thirty-seven cities are being covered with campaign mass meetings thru Comrade "Mother" Bloor's complete tour of the District. Street and factory meetings are being held regularly in Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Louis, in Chicago an average of 28 a week, some of them showing an attendance as high as 700 or 800. Other speakers, including the presidential candidates are carrying our Party program to the workers in the main cities.

The printed propaganda, however, is one of the most effective mediums during the campaign, and special editions of the DAILY WORKER are being prepared. Ten thousand copies for Chicago to appear about October 10, 20,000 copies for the State of Wisconsin to appear a few days later and 12,000 copies for the State of Indiana to appear October 20. These editions will particularly take up the local issues with a comparison of the measures proposed by our Party for which material is being prepared by the comrades. The cost of these special editions are being covered thru advertisements and they will be one additional means of rallying the working class for the fight against the capitalist system and its institutions in which our Party is taking the leadership.

The Chicago special editions will be distributed at the same factories where the straw vote for the presidential candidates is now being taken. Systematically the workers in the factories will thus be brot face to face with the campaign issues presented from a working class point of view. Over 75,000 printed Party platforms have been distributed in the district.

More than three times the amount of signatures required to put our candidates on the ballot in the State of Illinois have been secured, while the numbers for the congressional candidates in Chicago are mounting daily with assurance that most of them will go over. In Wisconsin the amount required has been secured and the comrades are forging ahead to get a good margin to be sure. Reports from Indiana show that more than half the number have been obtained with until October the 15th to go. Altho the comrades in Missouri have obtained only a little more than half the amount of signatures needed, they assure us that the last few weeks will see some speed.

The Negro workers are showing considerable interest in the Workers Party election campaign. In Gary, Indiana a Negro preacher has told his congregation that the Workers Party ticket is the only ticket worthy of consideration by the colored workers, while in congressional District No. 1, Chicago, which is mainly a colored district about enough signatures have been obtained for our candidate, Comrade Gordon Owens, a colored worker.

To obtain the utmost possible advantage for the strengthening of the revolutionary movement the District Committee has decided to place Comrade John Mihelic of Kansas City as field organizer in Southern Illinois and St. Louis. It has also decided to immediately begin the reorganization of all our branches in the Illinois coal field upon a shop nuclei basis. This industry is particularly suited for such reorganization and the comrades in that territory have repeatedly pointed to the necessity of such step, realizing the immense superiority of such form of organization where the basis of operation of all forms of activity will be the place of work.

Altho the heavy unemployment among the Illinois coal miners has compelled many to leave to seek employment elsewhere, and thus considerably weakened a number of our branches, still they have everywhere taken the leadership in proposing real measures of relief and are being wholeheartedly supported in these efforts by the progressive elements. They are now demanding that their unions take action and make it one of its main immediate problems to solve. They are preparing the workers to take steps to gain relief thru their own organized efforts, thru the organization of Unemployment Councils.

The fact that the Ku Klux Klan, which has particularly shown its vicious character in the Illinois coal field, is now decidedly on the decline, is due in a great measure to the fight made upon this hooded fascist outfit by our units supported by the progressive elements. An organized fight has cleaned these little Mussolinis out of the local unions where they had seized control in violation of all union rules.

While the members are being organized for the fights and Party campaigns, the necessary educational activities are not being neglected in District 8. The District Educational Circuit is this year organized in the cities of Milwaukee, Kenosha, Chicago, Gary and Springfield. In addition Chicago is carrying on classes in elementary and advanced economics, public speaking, history of the U. S. Communist movement, trade union conduct and elementary English.

THE WORKERS PARTY

"THE Workers Party is the party of the workers. The Workers Party has no interests separate and apart from those of the masses that by their sweat and toil produce the wealth of this country. The Workers Party stands for the unity of the workers and exploited farmers on the political field in a genuine Farmer-Labor Party.

"The Workers Party stands for the rule of the workers against the rule of the Wall Street plunder bund. Against Teapot Dome government the Workers Party raises the slogan of a workers' and farmers' government thru Soviets."—Benjamin Gitlow.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. BREAK BOSSES' INJUNCTION, IS FOSTER'S PLEA

Paterson Workers Jam Hall in Rally

PATERSON, Sept. 18.—The biggest political rally of workers ever held in Paterson took place Saturday night, Sept. 13, at Halvatia Hall, when William Z. Foster reached this city on his campaign tour. The hall was filled early and over 1000 workers jammed every corner of the hall, enthusiastically greeted and applauded the Communist candidate for President.

Foster vigorously attacked the Defense Day of the capitalists as a preparation for new wars. His speech was in the main, an aggressive expose of the entire system of wage slavery. He pilloried Coolidge, Davis and LaFollette as staunch supporters of private property and the wage system unworthy of the support of the workers. "He who supports Coolidge, Davis and LaFollette," declared Foster, "scabs on the workers' cause."

Reference to Soviet Russia and the DAILY WORKER were roundly applauded by the audience.

Injunction Made to Be Broken.

Foster gave special attention to the issue of the injunction which the Paterson silk strikers now face. He unequivocably declared that the workers must defeat this effort of the bosses to destroy their strike. "Such laws and injunctions which deny the civil rights of the workers are made to be broken."

William W. Weinstone, as chairman of the meeting and first speaker, made a strong appeal for the DAILY WORKER as the only organ fighting for labor, secured 29 new subscribers and also made a collection of $104.00. Considering that the workers are on strike in Paterson, this is a splendid response to the appeal of the Workers part. An appeal for signing up petitions to put the candidates on the ticket brought out a string of citizens who gladly signed up for the Workers Party candidates. Comrades and workers who have long been associated with the socialist movement here say that this meeting was one of the most memorable held in Paterson.

SEEK REVERSAL IN MICHIGAN CASE

in the due process of law, to punish as a felony the mere act of assembling with an organization.

"The startling novelty of this case ought to count heavily against the constitutional validity of the section. It might be said a new problem gives occasion for a new exercise of public power. The preaching of doctrines of a syndicalist character is not a new problem. The doctrines of the Communist Party, for instance, have been universally advocated in practically their present form for three-quarters of a century."

What Was Ruthenberg's Crime?

Further along the brief describes the "crime" with which Ruthenberg is charged as follows:

"There is no charge that the Communist Party with the connivance of the respondent advocated criminal syndicalism in this state or planned to advocate criminal syndicalism in this state and it is not charged that the Communist Party, with the aid of the respondent, was formed in this state.

"The criminal act is, to use the vernacular, on the wing. Today, the Communists Party is a stranger to the state of Michigan. Tomorrow the Communist Party, by certain representatives, comes inside the state boundaries. It does not make the least effort to teach criminal syndicalism to anyone in Michigan. No plan is made to teach criminal syndicalism in Michigan in the future. The next day the Communist Party becomes again a stranger to this sovereignty. That is the charge of felony upon which the respondent Ruthenberg faces the drastic penalties of the criminal syndicalism statute."

Arguing that the trial court should have directed an acquital, the brief has this to say:

"No crime was committed at Bridgeman—unless the criminal syndicalism statute is to be read in utter disregard of plain constitutional mandates and elementary principles of our criminal law. To no persons, property or governmental body was there any hurt or threat of hurt—as the criminal law takes account of threats—by the gathering at Bridgeman."

The Communists and Force.

Dealing with the Communist views that the class struggle in the future will develop into a struggle in which force will be used and into civil war the brief has this to say:

"The Communists say: 'We desire a change in our government to the soviet form, and from our reading of the history of social changes of such a drastic character, involving fundamental conflict of interests between opposed social classes, we believe that the change in government which we desire cannot eventually be consummated without a collision between the social classes involving civil war. In spite of our realization of such an inevitable conflict of force between the social classes, we still insist that the this change in government is desirable.' In answer to this the prosecution says: 'For the purposes of this prosecution we accept all that you say. We agree that your analysis of history is correct. We agree that a change to a soviet form of government and to a dictatorship of the proletariat must involve force, violence and bloodshed. And we say, therefore, that since you desire this change in government, with the realization of what is involved in bringing it about, you now desire and advocate the force, violence and bloodshed which must accompany such change! The court thereupon invites the jury to follow this same line of reasoning.

"But this is not a debate. It is a criminal trial for felony, involving the drastic penalties of the statute. Whether the Communists are right or wrong in their forecast of what is going to happen in the future is entirely beside the point. The question under the statute is as to what is happening now. Is any person or any society now advocating acts which the jury can say are acts of sabotage, acts of violence, or acts of terrorism? All of the bloodshed which any one may foresee in the future cannot take the place of what is plainly called for by the statute: present advocacy of criminal acts. It was highly prejudicial error for the court to substitute an exercise of deductive logic for the plain test provided by the statute."

Argument in October.

Oral argument before the Michigan Supreme Court in the Ruthenberg case will take place some time during the month of October and it is expected that the Court will render a decision in November or December.

NEW YORK PARTY TO HOLD SPECIAL DAYS FOR DRIVE

Saturday and Sunday Set Aside for Work

By HARRY M. WINITSKY.
Workers Party Campaign Manager.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The Workers Party has decided that every effort must be made, and all energy of the party exerted to place the candidates on the ballot this year. In addition to our candidates for president and vice-president, we also have a full state ticket, seven candidates for congress, four candidates for senator and 15 for the assembly. In order to get them all on the ballot in this state we must file with the Board of Eelections and with the secretary of state at least 50,000 signatures. The gathering of these signatures is a tremendous task and in order to accomplish this job we must have every member of the party participate in this work whole heartedly. The party has 3,000 members in New York City and if each and every member procured 20 signatures apiece we, would then have 60,000 in all.

Two Days.

The district Executive Committee and the campaign committee have set aside Saturday Sept. 20 and Sunday, Sept. 21, as Party Mobilization Days and it is the duty of each and every member of the party to put everything else aside on these two days and go out and collect signatures. The Executive Committee has further decided to excuse all comrades from all other work on these two days so that they can devote their full time to this work exclusively.

Comrades on the Job!

Report to the following headquarters on these mobilization days for your petitions and instructions. They will be open every evening, and all day on Saturday and Sunday for this mobilization.

The branch organizers and campaign managers have been instructed to keep a record of each member who fails to show up on mobilization day and the names of all who will be disciplined at the next branch meetings. Comrades to the task. Do your Communist duty and answer the call for Party Mobilization. Go to the headquarters on these two days, get your petitions and territories in which you are to work and get your alloted number of signatures.

A verdict of suicide with no motive assigned was returned by a coroner's jury today in the case of Edwin L. Cheney, Decatur, Ill., who killed himself in his room.

ILLINOIS BUSINESS MEN HAVING FINE TIME WHILE MINERS STARVE

By ANDREW YOUNG.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

O'FALLON, Ill., Sept. 18.—The business men's association held a successful meeting here, that is, very successful for them. A big banquet was served and some speeches were made. The robbers enjoyed their banquet with glee, filling their greedy stomachs with the profits wrenched from the blood of the workers.

If they looked out of their banquet room they could have seen the shacks where some of the coal miners and their children live—or rather, stay—without a bite to eat while the bankers, doctors, lawyers and business men, cramming the very food down their selfish throats, produced by us, while our own children starve.

Outlook Dark For Workers.

The miners here owe five months' house rent and large store accounts with winter coming on and the merchants are beginning to squeal saying that they will have to close their doors in a very short time. The outlook is not very bright for a working man with a family of five or six young children to feed.

Of course, we don't expect anything from our present officials at the head of the organization, like Lewis, Farrington, Walker and Olander. They are our worst enemies. They have not a word to relief for the unemployed.

Hurricane Hits Georgia.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 18.—Two persons are dead, a village is almost completely destroyed, and crops have suffered heavy damage as a result of the hurricane which swept across this part of Georgia following one of the most terrific rain storms on record.

FACTORIES OPEN, BUSINESS BOOMS, LOOK FOR JOKER

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 18.—No stone is being left unturned to fool the workers into voting for strikebreakers, Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes, by big business here. Even the factories that have been shut for months are opening up and some of them are already going full force. The Oliver Plow works that have been working with a much reduced staff for many months is taking on men. The Studebaker plant is running full force now and it really have a job to start Sunday night there.

In the past, presidential election year brought a slowing down of business and laying off of men because business interests were sitting tight until they know who would run the show.

But different conditions, different tactics. A ballot in the hands of workers out of work for months, some for years, is a dangerous weapon against capitalism, especially around election day. Something must be done quick. So cooked up prosperity buzzes around!

Strikes In Buenos Aires.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 18.—The dismissal of union workers accused of trying to set fire to a boat in Argentine waters has provoked a national maritime strike in the port of Buenos Aires. The strikers ask that these workers be reinstated.

A 24-hour general strike has also been declared in Buenos Aires as a protest against the old age pension law which is not satisfactory to the workers, and as a sign of solidarity with the longshoremen who are out on strike.

HUNGER AND NO CHANCE TO WORK, FACING MINERS

Thousands Have No Jobs at Duquoine, Ill.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DUQUOINE, Ill., Sept. 18.—Over one thousand coal miners are out of work in this town, with the best working mine in the vicinity running only three days a week. The Old Jewell mine, employing 100 men, has been shut down for several months. The New Jewell mine, employing 200 men, is practically shut down, running only one day or two every two weeks.

The Victory mine No. 5, employing 50 men is running on "split shifts," only a few of the men being allowed to work each week. The White Ash mine, employing 400 men, runs at the most, three days a week, and the Majestic mine runs at the most, two days per week with a force of 600 men. The Paradise mine, employing normally 500 men, is also running one and two days per week.

Hungry, And No Way Out.

Dennis Bradley, a former miner who had been out of work for many months stopped the DAILY WORKER reporter on the street. "I am starving to death," Bradley told the DAILY WORKER. "I am almost 70 years old, and know nothing but the life in the mines. As a last resort, I established myself on a little farm on the edge of town. The ground is poor and I am running steadily in debt.

"I have a pretty good mare, she's 14 years old, but she can still carry a ton of coal. I must sell her, as my credit is exhausted. She's yours for ten dollars, with the wagon thrown in."

The Worst Yet.

Another man met by the DAILY WORKER, idling about the streets of Duquoine, was the well-known character in Southern Illinois, "Curley" Cameron, noted for his independent spirit.

In former years, Cameron, altho he despised cow-towing to the bosses, and was fired and quit many times for his independence, was never long out of work. Cameron is an expert motor runner and trip-driver. He is experienced in all phases of mining.

But for the first time in many years Cameron is outt of a job and cannot secure another one. He declares this depression, "The worst period of unemployment that ever struck Southern Illinois."

Olander Dodges Klan Issue

Victor A. Olander, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor, was accused by two delegates to the Peoria convention, in a statement to The DAILY WORKER, with having, in conjunction with Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois Miners' Union, attempted to induce the two delegates, Ell Lucas and Robert Speedie of Dowell, to withdraw the resolution they had introduced denouncing the Ku Klux Klan by name.

The DAILY WORKER reporter learned that Farrington received a letter signed with the initials of the Klan, warning him that unless this resolution was withdrawn he would lose thousands of votes in his candidacy for president of the Miners' Union. Fearing loss of Klan votes, Farrington prevailed on Olander to assist him in trying to induce the Dowell delegates to withdraw the resolution. They flatly refused to accede to the request.

The publicity given to the story aroused much anger among those exposed in this shady proceeding, but no denial was made during the Peoria convention of the truth of the story as published in The DAILY WORKER.

In order to give Mr. Olander an opportunity to confirm or deny the truth of the matter, a DAILY WORKER reporter called on him at his office. After considerable beating around the bush, Mr. Olander finally decided to issue a statement that had no more to do with the question of the Klan resolution than it had with the fourth dimension. But he did not deny the charge that he tried to have the Klan resolution withdrawn. The statement follows:

I have been requested by a reporter from the DAILY WORKER to express my views with reference to certain reportorial opinions, published under the guise of news in the Chicago Tribune and the DAILY WORKER, regarding the actions of the convention of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, the views expressed by the delegates and the opinions of the officers of the convention. In reply I have stated that I shall gladly give to either newspaper statements showing exactly what the convention did, but that I will not assist either of these publications or any other publication antagonistic to, the trade union movement by discussing with them the unfair and untruthful articles relating to the officers of the federation, the delegates and the convention itself which have appeared in both papers.

It is my duty as an officer of the Illinois State Federation of Labor to uphold the policies determined by the federation thru its conventions, the organization itself and its affiliated unions against those who, for purposes of their own, seek to create dissention among the organized working people. That is all I care to say on the matter either to the Chicago Tribune or the DAILY WORKER.—Victor A. Olander, Secretary.

The Olander strategy, to link The DAILY WORKER with the Chicago Tribune is as clumsy as it is crooked. It is on par with his puny effort to connect the name of William Z. Foster with "Hell an' Maria" Dawes. The labor fakers, fast losing the confidence of the class conscious workers because of their open alliance with the capitalists, their secret and clandestine love for such strike-breaking organizations as the Ku Klux Klan and their frank endorsement of the Fascist American Legion, are obliged to dissemble and in lieu of a genuine defense resort to the time-worn trick of the shady lawyer, that is when in difficulty abuse the opposing counsel.

There are none so blind as cannot see thru the smoke screen raised by the ossified labor lieutenant of capitalism, Victor A. Olander.

It should also be noted that he did not deny his truckling to the Klan when given the opportunity.

Strikes and Politics

Strike murmers are audible thruout the entire textile industry. The workers are chafing under the conditions that the textile barons have been imposing on them. Part time employment, low pay, and degrading working conditions have been the lot of the great majority of the millhands and loom workers.

The drift towards a general strike in the textile industry has, in recent weeks, become so pronounced that the federal administration is beginning to feel very uneasy. Strikes on the eve of a national election are never conducive to the success of the employing class tools who happen to be incumbents in office at the time of unrest. Besides there are special reasons demanding that the Coolidge clique do everything in its power to delay a widespread textile strike until after the election contest is over.

Mr. William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican National Committee, which is in the extraordinary good graces of the textile manufacturers, is himself heavily interested in such operations. Then, a textile strike would in all likelihood be waged most fiercely in the president's own state of Massachusetts and in his stronghold, the New England tier of states. This close financial identification and political alliance on the part of the republican administration with the textile barons, accounts for the energetic efforts now being made by the reactionary interests to delay the revolt of the textile workers until such time as when there will be a greater likelihood of administering the latter a crushing blow.

We have great hopes and firm cause to believe that the textile workers will strike at their enemy when they themselves see fit and think best. Since 1920 the New England cotton and woolen mill workers have suffered a decrease of about 25% in their wages. This reduction has been made more oppressive by an increase in part time employment. At the same time textile magnates have waxed fat on fabulous dividends. Last year, for instance, the American Woolen Company reported net profits of more than nine million dollars, or an increase of about fifty per cent compared with the preceding year.

The time at hand is obviously propitious for the working man in the cotton and woolen mills of New England and elsewhere to lock horns with their exploiters. The present political situation can and must be utilized by the workers for their own advantages.

America and the League

To date the entry of the United States into the League of Nations has been only a secondary issue in the campaign. This was expected by many observers who were convinced that pressing domestic issues would supercede the fundamentally formal foreign questions.

But while Davis, Coolidge and LaFollette vie with each other in a contest of silence in reference to the European policy of the United States, the dynamic, ruling forces behind the scenes are working overtime clearing the paths for the next step in the open political participation by America in European affairs. We are told that the League of Nations' Committee working on a peace plan is planning to back an "American idea." That indomitable lackey of Yankee gold, M. Benes, titular head of Czecho-Slovakia, is the loudest proponent of this move.

Of course, it was to be expected that the acceptance of the Dawes plan would be a prelude to more open American participation in the European imbroglio. The whole trend of the Washington government's imperialist policy in Europe has been first, to sink the oil shafts, to lay the pipe lines, to seize the railways, to take over the collieries, to dominate the industry, and then to get "proper" legal sanction. The League of Nations, in its present form and structure, will, under the pressure of the American bankers, certainly be rechristened, revitalized, and reorganized to suit the needs and purposes of our financial oligarchs.

This accounts for the little noise that is being made now by the capitalists' presidential candidates over the "burning question" of 1920. This accounts for the decision of the directors of the National Association of Credit Men to demand that the United States enter the Permanent Court of International Justice.

There is a pointed lesson in the development of America's European policy for every working man and poor farmer. The whole trend of the Yankee imperialist encroachments in Europe indicates rather painfully the stranglehold that the employing class has on the lives and distinies of the working masses. The League of Nations, under any other name, can be only a League of Loot, a league of capitalist plunderers and pirates, seeking to despoil the resources and wealth that belong to the great masses of the population of every country.

Hence, camouflaged as the next American step towards Europe may be, it is only a step in the direction of a new world catastrophy.

Real Communist Work

In canvassing the industries located in this city in order to test the sentiment of the workers toward the leading candidates on the three capitalist and one Communist tickets, Local Chicago of the Workers Party has set an example that other locals thruout the country would do well to follow. This is real Communist work.

Aside from the news value which such a campaign has for the DAILY WORKER, the canvass sharpens the interest of the workers in the election struggle and brings the issues on which each candidate stands under discussion. The Communists stand to gain by such a discussion.

The result of the straw vote taken in the plants covered as these lines are written is very encouraging. It shows that large numbers of the workers, despite the desertion of the socialists and the so-called progressives to the bourgeois LaFollette, can see thru the LaFollette illusion and signify their preference for the Communist candidate, William Z. Foster. Bringing the issue of Communism versus Capitalism into the shops where the exploitation of the workers takes place in this manner is a forward step for the Workers Party and the enthusiasm with which the workers participated in the straw ballot gave the Communist militants a sense of doing effective propaganda work among the masses.

To the Workers Party taking a straw vote, means something more than testing the political pulse of the masses. Its propaganda value is the important feature and our comrades in the large cities should not let Local Chicago have a monopoly on this form of Communist campaigning.

Outlines of Empire

By Earl R. Browder

THE American Empire, under the rulership of J. Pierpont Morgan, and protected by the armed forces of the United States government, is just now rounding out in form as a world-embracing organization. Perhaps the most comprehensive outline of its far reaches, in brief as well as a classic expression of its spirit, is to be found in an editorial in the Chicago Tribune of September 14. Under the title of "White Unity on the Pacific," a picture is drawn that must make the Kaiser green with envy and King George fear for his future.

America's "huge destiny" in the East, in "the Pacific basin as the critical area of human progress in the next hundred years," is an expression of the absolute necessity of capitalism to conquer the last available section of the earth, rich in natural resources, undeveloped in industrial technique, vast and heavily populated, in order to have that field for expansion that is the breath of life to imperialism, the modern stage of capitalism.

The Pacific Empire.

The Pacific basin means for American imperialism above all China, Mongolia, Siberia. But it means more than that. It cuts into the heart of rising Japanese imperialism, backed by an ambitious young bourgeoisie that holds 200,000,000 people at its command, that has mastered the modern art of war. It does more: It carries with it the beginnings of dissolution of the British Empire, hitherto the "mistress of the seas"—until the Washington naval agreement established the 5-5-3 ratio and cancelled the British alliance with Japan. The Tribune points out, in the editorial mentioned, that Australia and New Zealand not only belong, by logic of Morgan's billions, in the framework of American Empire, but—more significant—that the bourgeoisie of these British colonies are conscious of this and already feel more closely tied to the United States than to Great Britain. That Canada and Ireland already have their separate ministers in Washington is pointed out quite cynically by the Tribune as a "source of what must be enduring friendship" with the British Empire. What logically follows—"On pain of war to the death between these rival imperialist forces in the struggle for possession of the world"—is left unsaid by the Tribune.

Empire in Latin America.

But America has also, the Tribune reminds us, other "huge destinies" besides the Pacific. "America has the Carribean and the Atlantic, the south and the east, to tie with the Pacific into one huge conception of world statesmanship." That is, Central and South America, the West Indies, and —last but not least—Europe itself which is to bow its head to Morgan under the yoke of the Dawes plan, which is designed to place in Morgan's hands the regulation of every phase of production, the market, and government.

One World System.

The Phillipines, the Aleutian Islands, Hawaii, Alaska, are some of the fingers on the hand of Morgan that reaches into the Pacific. Eleven republics in the Carribean, either directly under the rule of American armed forces or under the dictatorship of armed native agents of American capital, testify to the continued subjugation of the continent to the south. Canada, to the north, is openly severing the leading strings from No. 10 Downing Street, replacing them with bonds of gold from Wall Street. The Dawes plan, subjugating Europe, places the final seal upon the system as the most gigantic world empire in the making that was ever conceived in the mind of man.

That this "huge destiny" of Morgan's billions involves the certainty of gigantic world wars is an accepted commonplace. Only those who deliberately shut their eyes are unconscious of this fact. "Defense Day" was but one of the first, "psychological" mobilizations of the American millions, for their own "huge destiny" of fighting and dying for the glory and profit of Morgan's world Empire.

"Stealing Out" the World.

The recent around-the-world flight of American aviators was principally a grandiloquent political gesture to the world, an announcement of Morgan's world rule, to the other nations of the earth. It was a sort of preliminary survey of the possessions, present and prospective, of the Morgan Empire. It was a dramatization of what the Tribune calls the "huge conception of world statesmanship" that animates the American capitalist class today.

Imperialist wars with Japan and with Great Britain lie heavy within the womb of this "huge conception." The present civil war in China is but a stirring, a preliminary clashing, of the terrific forces that are gathering to drench the earth again with working class blood. The Washington agreement on the Pacific was but one maneuver for position, on the part of all the powers, in preparation for what all consider the "inevitable conflict." Announcements from time to time in the papers, always immediately hushed up, of discoveries of new death-dealing rays and deadly gases, indicate how feverishly the chemical laboratories of war are preparing. Feverish races in construction of airplanes and submarines are on in the carefully guarded yards and factories of each great imperialist power.

The Rising Nationalities.

But not alone between the rival imperialists are the seeds of war taking root and growing mightily. Thruout the Far East the great masses are rising in revolt against the imperialist exploitation of Western capitalism. In India, in China, even in "our own" Phillipines, great nationalist mass movements, fundamental and primitive protests against imperialism, are growing and swelling. A part of the "huge destiny" of American imperialism will be to drown these nationalist aspirations of the Eastern peoples in their own blood and the blood of the American workers.

There is but one power in the world that can halt this insane march of Morgan over the bodies of humanity. It is the power of the awakening proletariat of the imperialist nations, in alliance with the awakening nationalist masses of the subject lands of the East. This alliance, under the leadership and inspiration of the Communist International, is the one great remaining obstacle to the ambitious greed of J. Pierpont Morgan and the class of exploiters at whose head he stands. And by the same token the Communist International is the one rallying point for the world's working class, in its struggle against war, and against the damnable system of wage slavery and exploitation in every land except Soviet Russia, which is the source and inspiration of all imperialist wars.

Soviet Ambassador Addresses Chinese Teachers

pression, perhaps, that the other Oriental peoples. Tho you may not be ready for the struggle as yet, your sympathies go to the Soviet Union, for it is the only country that is following with the greatest sympathy the struggle of the Chinese people against their external and internal oppressors.

"I must say"—declares the Soviet Ambassador—"that the sympathy have been voicing for your fight against imperialism is meeting with much disapproval in certain quarters. In a conversation I recently had with a foreign diplomat, the latter pointed out that my speeches could not but make the foreign diplomatists feel uneasy. Well, I wish to avail myself of this opportunity to say that the danger which some people appear to see in my speeches only proves that imperialism has not learned yet the true reasons of the anti-imperialistic movement which is now rampart all over the Asiatic Continent.

Soviet Gets Sympathy from Oppressed.

"In fact, it is not a question of speeches or would-be propaganda and agitation of the Soviet government. If you like, I am ready to admit that the latter is rather inconvenient for the Imperialistic Powers, but this is so only because the policy of the Soviet government differs from that of other Powers. It is a policy which attracts to the Soviet government the sympathies of all oppressed peoples and stimulated them to the struggle against imperialism. Now, that can not be helped: it cannot be changed, as neither can the Soviet Union be overthrown.

"Indeed, there are but two ways of thwarting this so-called Soviet menace. One is to overthrow the Union. However, as you well know, such attempts were made in the past, but they were all fruitless, and I really do not believe there would be anyone now willing to try again. The other way is to change one's own policy and make it as full of respect for the sovereign rights of the oppressed peoples and based on principles of equality and reciprocity as the Soviet government had done. There is no third way.

"Naturally, everyone follows his own path. For our part, we do the policy that follows from our principles and interests, while the other powers do the one that follows from their principles and interests. One of these two policies—namely ours—is more successful, for it is more up-to-date, while the other is based on the past and quite naturally is liable to err.

Discusses Boxer Indemnity.

"Now, I should think you are more interested in the question put by Professor Ma Shu-lun, and so I will pass to it. In this matter of the Boxer Indemnity there is a misunderstanding which it is necessary to clear forthwith. Professor Ma believes the question is to be discussed at the Conference. I must assure you categorically that the matter of the Boxer Indemnity has been definitely settled in the Agreement signed on May 31, and that this question, which is one of the few finally solved, will not be taken up at the Conference.

"As a matter of fact, the purposes for which the Boxer funds have been apportioned are precisely defined in the corresponding Declaration, signed on May 31: those are purposes for the education of the Chinese people. True, there have lately appeared reports in the papers, purporting to convey that some militant generals would never see the Boxer sums expended for other purposes. Of course, I do not know how much truth there is in such reports, nor am I aware whether the news is true of some inter-departmental conferences meeting to discuss the question of how to use best the Russian share of the Boxer Indemnity. However I don't attach importance to such talk, and so did not react to any of this news.

Apportioned for Education.

"According to the Agreement of May 31, it is perfectly clear that the Boxer funds have been apportioned for educational purposes, so that under such conditions what have the fancies of one general or the other to do with the matter? Naturally, we cannot prevent generals from finding good ends to get possession of the Boxer funds. But I may assure you that for us it has no significance: no one shall deceive us, nor do I believe anyone would be bold to raise the question with us of modification of the May Agreement.

"I am sorry to say"—continues Mr. Karakhan—"that the Chinese government has not yet appointed delegates to the Commission, and that two months have already been lost which might otherwise have been spent in preparation for the use of the Boxer Indemnity funds. I do hope, however, that the Chinese government will very shortly appoint its delegates upon this Commission and that these delegates will be named in full accord with yourselves, gentlemen, and also that they will be prepared to co-operate in a friendly manner with the Soviet representatives upon the Commission.

Not Old But New Education.

"I would also point out, in this connection, that no illusions should be entertained as to the Boxer Indemnity sums being in any sense intended to replace the budget of the Ministry of Education or alleviate the budget of that department. Anyhow, I am strongly against it. The Boxer funds must be used for educational purposes unprovided for in the actual departmental estimates, in other words—for purposes of either enlarging the existing educational schemes or creating new ones.

"I may further be permitted to say a few words about one of the most important scientific and educational tasks that are facing China and one for which a part of the Boxer funds should be used. It must be said that the present social and economic conditions of life in China, and, in particular, the life of the peasants—the fundamental class of people of China —and of the laborers, are not studied at all, are, so to speak, outside of the scope of research of economists and politicians.

"I recently wished to study the agrarian problem of China, but I must confess that I could not procure any reliable or exhaustive information. And yet, the Chinese farmers constitute 60 per cent of the population, they are the foundation of the country, its fundamental class, on whose shoulders China could live till this day as one sole nation with all her culture and her national peculiarities. This peasant class supplies live material to all the spheres of Chinese life; soldiers to the army, workers to the mills and factories . . . And yet, who of you, gentlemen, can say in truth that the conditions of life of the peasants in China are well known?

More Attention to Farming Question.

"The sciences that have been applied to study China have left these basic classes out of their scope. Neither do the foreigners, who make a very careful study of China and the economics of this country, pay attention to the farmers, for they study China from quite a peculiar angle: they are interested in the external trade, the natural resources of the country, in other words—in all they can profit by in their own selfish ends. It is but natural, then, that they are not interested in the life of the Chinese peasants, either in their welfare or their sickness, or in what could make their conditions better. It is up to the Chinese people themselves to do it. For my part, I believe that a part of the Boxer Indemnity should be apportioned for the study of life of the Chinese peasants and workers. Some special institutions or organizations ought to be established, whose aim should be the work of scientific investigation of the existing social and economic conditions in China, and, in particular, the study and investigation of the economic situation of Chinese peasants and workers. I would very much request you, gentlemen, to consider this all-important scientific and educational problem.

"I address myself to all those present"—concluded the Ambassador amidst loud applause—"with a request to help me with their advice and support me, for it is only if this is done that it will be possible to find an effective use for the available Boxer Indemnity sums, and—which is paramount—to save each cent from falling into the wrong hands."

MUSIC - LITERATURE - DRAMA

AMERICA LAUGHS AT HERSELF
By IDA DAILES.

At the Adelphi Theater here in Chicago a curious performance goes on before the eyes of the dwellers in the city of smoke and stockyards. Capitalist society is held up to ridicule, and we find an inordinate pleasure in laughter. "The Beggar on Horseback," was written by George Kaufman and Mark Conelley, with incidental music by Deems Taylor.

The writers have taken a Saturday Evening Post story, the tale of a poor artist who loves a working girl and finds that art and love do not mix. He engages himself to the daughter of a rich manufacturer and falls asleep in his chair. He dreams a nightmare of his future life as the husband of the monied young lady. And here we bid au revoir for a while to the Saturday Evening Post.

The mother-in-law knits, rocks and sings hymns. The father-in-law plays golf and talks success and "giving them what they want." The brother in-law is sickly, takes powders and is a radio bug. And worst of all, his wife drags him around to teas, receptions, cafes and dances. When he wishes to finish his symphony she tears the manuscript and tries to haul him off to a new cafe. In despair he kills the whole damned family with a paper knife, and for a moment a look of bliss comes over his face.

Woven in with this horror of bourgeois life are moments of peace with Cynthia, the girl who didn't have any money. During the intermission newsboys distribute to the audience a small newspaper which gives all the news of the murder. This contains boiled down, all the rot that one finds in capitalist newspapers from coast to coast. It makes very amusing reading.

The scene of the murder trial is rich with humor, and to describe it in detail would be an injustice to the original. Our young musician is condemned to become a successful song writer and is put in a cell in an art factory to grind out popular songs. Finally Cynthia and his doctor friend come to bring him the peace of death, and he wakes up.

We now meet our friend, the Saturday Evening Post, again when the rich young lady comes in to break off the engagement, and Cynthia and Nell go off the scene trailing talk about a little cottage and a little red hen and a little dun cow.

COMPENSATION FOR LACK OF EXPERIENCE.
By JAY ENGEL.

In "Back to Methuselah" George Bernard Shaw deplores the fact that man does not live long enuf to really benefit by the experience gained in the seventy years allotted him. No doubt this is true. There is, however, a compensating feature which we must not overlook: Life must renew itself if we are to go forward to higher and better things, materially and spiritually. Experience may teach, but it also at the same time inculcates prejudices that fossilize and militate against change.

Supposing the Scheidemanns and Kautskys lived to be three hundred and thru all those years carried with them the now discredited idea of bourgeois democracy and the conquest of political power thru parliamentarism. Or, supposing that nearer to home the Gompers, Hillquits and Sparges lived hundreds of years and perpetuated their antiquated ideas, how much the worse for society. What holds good for individuals is even truer of organized movements.

The hope of the German Communist Movement is that only a fraction of its youth will go thru the outworn school of Social Democracy, and will therefore avoid unlearning its bourgeois prejudices. The same is true of America; the revolutionary youth is joining the Workers' Party and not the Socialist Party which died ingloriously with LaFollette as the undertaker.

Seventy years even for the Boudins, Watons and Kerachers is quite enuf. A new society is dawning and it belongs to the coming generation, a generation without experience, but also without prejudices.

WORKERS WAR ON LAFOLLETTE

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

RUSSIAN rebellions nowadays should be considered guilty until they are proven innocent. The latest "uprising" was as shameless a fabrication as any that have appeared yet. This did not prevent the Chicago Tribune from giving the story an eight-column head, only to shift it to the financial pages the following day. Of course, there was no revolution. As the DAILY WORKER pointed out, the workers and peasants of Georgia are so glad to get rid of the czar and enjoy their own rule that conspirators receive short shrift from them.

THE publicity given to the fake rebellion serves the purpose of impressing on the workers the unreliability of the news appearing in the capitalist press. The European correspondents of the papers that featured the yarn must have been perfectly aware that there was no revolt in Georgia outside of the bandit escapade which was no more serious than a few drunken officers in Chicago holding up a crap game or shooting up a soft drink parlor and robbing the proprietor.

THE papers featured the alleged burning of the Baku oil wells. Trotsky was reported rushing to Georgia to pep up his troops. All fantasies! The Soviet ambassador in Rome in a statement to the DAILY WORKER'S Rome correspondent, said that only a few czarist bandits took part in the so-called rebellion and that it was crushed by the Soviet troops as part of the day's work. In confirmation of the ambassador's story, an Italian economic Institute with connections in Russia, announced that it received telegrams from the cities which were supposed to be in the grip of great conflagrations. Another revolution gone up in smoke.

THE Daily Herald of London, publishes a very interesting account of the proceedings of the Trade Union Congress which recently took place at Hull. The most interesting event that took place at the congress was the appearance of M. Tomsky, chairman of the All-Russian Trade Unions and big gun in the Soviet government, as fraternal delegate. While other fraternal delegates, even Oudegest of Amsterdam, were received with comparative coldness, the congress gave Tomsky an ovation that lasted for several minutes. His speech was given practically as delivered in the Daily Herald, while the speeches of Peter Brady, the American delegate and those of the Canadian and Amsterdam delegates were dismissed with a few paragraphs.

IT should not be assumed that because Tomsky was given a great welcome by the British congress, that the British labor leaders are revolutionists or Communists. Not at all. The Communist minority at the congress was not large, but it was organized for the first time in its existence and its propositions received considerable support. So fast is the left wing sentiment among the masses developing that the trade union leaders themselves were obliged to put forward as their own some of the propositions for advocating which the Communists were accused of being disruptionists one year ago.

ONE of the labor leaders at the congress, tho professing a friendship for Russia and favoring the movement for unity between the red unions of Russia and those affiliated with the Amsterdam International, reminded that the Russians were not angels. Tomsky with a merry twinkle in his eye replied to the labor leader saying he quite agreed the Russians were not angels and nobody knew this better than the Russians. "But," he added, "angels don't make revolutions." This witty retort was received with gales of laughter by the congress.

ONE of the most militant delegates was A. J. Cook, secretary of the British miners' union. Cook was elected to office after the former secretary was driven out by the reactionaries.

"Hands off China!"

WORKERS OF WORLD ASKED TO AID CHINA

Communist International Issues an Appeal

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—The executive committee of the Third International at Moscow has issued a proclamation in which the workers of Europe, America and the Far East are urged to keep England, the United States and other imperialist powers from armed intervention in China.

Premier MacDonald and the English Labor Party regime are accused of being the protectors of the feudal-capitalist counter-revolution in China, and are denounced for sending warships to China for the purpose of crushing the Chinese working masses.

The trade union congress in Hull is urged to prevent the English murderers from arranging for a new blood bath in southern China.

The United States is accused of being a party to the plot to crush China's struggle for freedom and to prepare for an offensive against northern China.

WHEELER WARS ON LABOR PARTY IN COPPER STATE

Insists on New Electors for LaFollette

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Sept. 19.—The LaFollette forces under the direction of Burton K. Wheeler's law partner, James Baldwin, insist on placing independent electors on ballot in defiance of the farmer-labor party of this state.

The Wheeler forces are supporting Thomas J. Walsh, democratic reactionary, for the senate. This policy is creating a furore among the progressive elements.

There appears to be a tri-party combination in this state between Wheeler, the so-called progressive, Dixon, the republican governor, and Walsh, the democrat, against the farmer-labor party. The plan is to support Walsh and Dixon in return for their support for LaFollette in November.

CLARENCE DARROW TO ENTER CLEMENCY PLEA FOR POOR COP SLAYER

Clarence Darrow, defense attorney for Loeb and Leopold, may enter the lists to save the life of Bernard Grant, not the son of a millionaire as are both of the Franks slayers.

Attorney Swanson announces that Darrow has offered his services in an attempt to halt execution of Grant, who is alleged to have killed a policeman, and Swanson says that Darrow's offer will be accepted.

Clarence will probably make the clemency plea before Governor Len Small and his advisory boards and his first request will be a full pardon for the youth, who, tho 19, already has white hair from the worrying he has done in the last couple of years.

MONTANA COMMUNISTS PREPARE TO PUT FOSTER-GITLOW ON THE BALLOT

BUTTE, Sept. 19.—The Workers Party of Montana will hold a convention here next Sunday to nominate Foster-Gitlow electors for the coming election campaign. William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president, will attend the convention. The political situation in Montana, with Wheeler, Dixon and Walsh mixed up in a horse-trading deal is very troubled and has the progressive elements by the ears, and the Communists have an excellent opportunity to make a spirited campaign and put the Communist message across between now and November.

Fitzpatrick and Nockels Do not Deserve Support of Workers in Election

Statement on the Elections in the Chicago Federation of Labor, by the Workers Party and the Trade Union Educational League.

SUNDAY, Sept. 21, elections take place for officers of the Chicago Federation of Labor for the ensuing term. John Fitzpatrick, Ed Nockels and Oscar Nelson have been renominated for the offices of President, Secretary and Vice-President, respectively.

This is another instance in the trade union movement where leaders are seeking re-election on a record of complete lack of leadership.

The late records of Fitzpatrick and Nockels, which in every instance have been pointed to by the Workers Party and the Trade Union Educational League, show their miserable failures when they were called upon to fight squarely for the progressive measures demanded by the development of the labor movement and which they professed to stand for. The record of Oscar Nelson has been one of a persistent reactionary attitude and opposition to such progressive measures actually required by the labor movement.

At the crucial point, when Samuel Gompers launched his vicious attack upon the demands for amalgamation raised by labor everywhere and particularly by the delegates to the Chicago Federation of Labor representing their affiliated unions, Fitzpatrick and Nockels completely deserted the fight to get some action on this proposal by the American Federation of Labor. A proposal to which they had both given lip service.

The Farmer-Labor Party, established by a referendum vote of the unions affiliated to the Chicago Federation of Labor, was slowly knifed by Fitzpatrick and Nockels thru their utter failure to maintain the right of the unions to engage in such activities in face of the Gompers opposition and to give militant leadership to unify this movement on a national scale. Moreover, while the Farmer-Labor Party, established by the unions, was still in existence Fitzpatrick, Nockels and Oscar Nelson gave their endorsement to the candidates for Circuit Court Judges nominated on the two old capitalist tickets, many of them having injunctions against labor to their record; this despite the fact that candidates, members of labor unions, had been nominated for the bench.

At a time when injunctions against the Chicago labor unions in their struggle for better conditions have been handed down wholesale, Fitzpatrick, Nockels and Oscar Nelson have failed miserably to lead a militant fight against this usurpation of power by the courts.

Now, finally, Fitzpatrick and Nockels have completed the surrender to Gompers and given up their last pretense of fighting for independent political action by labor. They, as well as Oscar Nelson, who, further, still supports the Democratic Capitalist party, have given their endorsement to the Gompers "non-partisan" policy and to the candidates of the small bankers and independent manufacturers, LaFollette and Wheeler. They have even given their endorsement to such an outstanding reactionary as Governor Small who is still running on the program of the Republican Party which has nothing but scorn for labor.

These candidates for office in the Chicago Federation of Labor for the ensuing term can no more command the respect of militant, progressive workers.

PATERSON SILK STRIKERS TO PICKET IN MASS

(By The Federated Press)

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 19.—With the Paterson silk strikers ready for a mass picketing demonstration in the event of an adverse injunction decision Vice-Chancellor V. M. Lewis postponed three days the hearing on the application of five manufacturers for a permanent restraining order against the union.

The temporary injunction remains in effect but peaceful picketing has continued. Broadsilk manufacturers are pinning their hopes on a permanent injunction and say if such a writ is granted they will urge the police to a more rigid interpretation than has been followed to date.

Six more employers settled on the date the hearing had been set for. Piece work rates are increased to approximate the 15 per cent demand of the strikers.

Replying to the newspaper statements from the mysterious Broadsilk Manufacturers' Association—the alleged bosses' organization which conceals the name of its officers and is not listed in the telephone or city directories, Secretary Fred T. Hoelscher of the Associated Silk Workers declared the fight against the three

LEAD FIGHT ON LAFOLLETTE IN A. C. W. A. LOCAL

Militants Hit Alliance with Liberalism

One thousand members of the largest local in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of Amreica, 39 of Chicago, heard the issue of support for LaFollette debated in one of the most spirited and well-attended meetings yet held.

Samuel Levin, member of the general executive board of the union, spoke for the leading body which had endorsed the candidacy of LaFollette for president and Wheeler for vice-president.

Schneid Leads Against Bob.

"The Amalgamated was born as a protest against the reactionary misleadership of the Rickert bunch. We had no experience, no money, and the we were being condemned by the official labor movement, we succeeded in organizing the rebellious element within the United Garment Workers, which carried within it the faith and devotion to the ideals of revolutionary socialism, the only power that has made us what we are today," began Schneid.

"In the face of our traditions and history how can we jump on the bandwagon with the LaFollette crowd? Rickert is supporting LaFollette. How can we in the same breath endorse LaFollette, while we condemn the Rickert gang, when Rickert even so late as this year sent his henchmen in to break our strikes, signing agreements with concerns against which we were striking, and helping the manufacturers to defeat us?

"Then there is Big Bill Thompson, the man that the LaFolletteites wanted to have as their senatorial candidate. How can we support this movement which wants Thompson, when this same man, in the greatest struggle of the Chicago clothing workers in 1915, ordered them to go back to work, and betray their own interests; when three thousand men were arrested for the mere fact that they were carrying on peaceful picketing?"

Levin Evades Issues.

These arguments amounted to questions to Levin, but all of them were evaded. The arguments of the supporters of LaFollette in the meeting were that while it is true that LaFollette did not represent the interests of the workers, and in spite of the knowledge that we differ on fundamental economic problems, we see in this movement the greatest hope of breaking the workers away from their allegiance to the republican and democratic parties and of forming a third liberal party, which, while not to our liking, would be the first step towards the formation of a labor party.

This last was a repetition of the statements of the general executive board which in its declaration of support to LaFollette said that while it differed fundamentally with Bob on economic problems, they saw in the movement headed by him the first Wheeler!

Defender of Capitalism

BURTON K. Wheeler, candidate for vice-president of the United States on the LaFollette ticket, speaks tonight in Chicago. Because of the publicity which his millionaire backers have flooded the country with, thousands of workers are under the impression that the Montana senator is a radical, and a champion of the rights of labor. Wheeler's record does not support this assumption.

Burton K. Wheeler was an ardent supporter of the late war, a war that left 100,000 of the flower of America's manhood to rot on the bloody battlefields of Europe, and left behind it a train of misery from which the human race has not yet recovered and will never recover under capitalism. The vice-presidential candidate on the LaFollette ticket did his level best to defend the Morgan millions with the lives of others.

Wheeler's Friends.

There is an old saying to the effect, that a man may be known by his company. Who are Wheeler's friends in Montana? One of them, and perhaps the most influential, is Thomas J. Walsh, senior senator from Montana, author of the criminal syndicalist law of that state, a man who has nothing in common with the aims of labor or even with mild progressivism. T. J. Walsh was permanent chairman of the democratic convention in New York, where he eulogized John W. Davis and endorsed the platform adopted at the democratic convention, which entirely ignored the demands of even the ultra-reactionary officials of the American Federation of Labor.

Yet Burton K. Wheeler has entered into a horse deal with this reactionary foe of free speech, Senator Walsh, under which Wheeler agrees to support Walsh in return for Walsh's support of the LaFollette ticket in Montana. Furthermore, Wheeler has entered into a conspiracy with the democrat Walsh and the republican governor, Dixon, in Montana, to kill the Farmer-Labor Party in that state which is a thorn in the side of this ambitious political schemer.

The Daugherty Quiz.

Wheeler broke into the national limelight when he was appointed prosecutor for the committee to investigate the doings of the department of justice. The crimes of Harry Daugherty smelled to high heaven. No more notorious crook, grafter and all-around criminal ever headed that cesspool of corruption, the department of justice. But of far greater import to labor than the bootlegging deals of Daugherty and his grafting connections with the war fraud cases, was his spectacular act in breaking the strike of the railway shopmen by use of the injunction, the employment of thousands of marshalls to act as strike-breakers and his use of the investigation bureau of the department of justice to disrupt labor unions, and act as finks in radical movements with a view to getting the members of those organizations behind the bars.

Mr. Wheeler, you had an excellent opportunity to perform a great service to the labor movement by taking advantage of the Daugherty investigation to throw the light of publicity on the real character of the government and its machinery. The government was functioning under Harding and Coolidge as a strikebreaking agency and you could prove this by documentary evidence. You were in a postion to put the crooks on the witness stand and compel them to admit their crimes. Did you do this? Did you ever bring up the question of the infamous injunction issued against the railway strikers by Judge Wilkerson on Daugherty's demand? Did you ever deal with the strike-breaking activities of the Burns Detective Agency, of which William J. Burns was chief even while holding a government position? You did not. Why?

Wheeler for Capitalism.

The workers of the United States, hundreds of thousands of them, believe you have their interests at heart. We know better. We know that you are a supporter of the capitalist system and no matter how you quarrel with the dominant wing of the American capitalist class you will fight for that system against the workers in every important crisis, as you fought for it during the war.

Burton K. Wheeler did not deal with the anti-labor activities of the department of justice, because he declared it would narrow the scope of the investigation. It would confine it to the narrow limits of one class. But that class happens to be the reason why the department of justice is in existence, likewise the government. It is to keep this class in subjection that capitalist governments exist. The Daugherty crimes you brought to light thru the aid of spies, and women of easy virtue, were of the common garden variety and could be duplicated under the Wilson or any other Washington administration. Wheeler was not interested in exposing Daugherty as a strikebreaker. He only wanted to have Daugherty driven out of office so that his party, the democratic party, could use his dismissal as political campaign fodder.

For refusing to expose the most heinous crimes of Harry Daugherty, his crimes against the workers of the country, Burton K. Wheeler deserves the severest condemnation. He has shown himself in his true light as a friend of capitalism, and a dangerous man to the interests of the workers.

Took Vanderlip's Orders.

Burton K. Wheeler did not decide to accept the nomination for vice-president on the LaFollette ticket until he was given orders by Frank Vanderlip, capitalist and financier. Gary has his Coolidge; Morgan has his Davis and Frank Vanderlip has his Wheeler. Where is the difference? For the moment the newcomer into the political spotlight will play to the masses; will try to fool them with progressive phrases, but in the end he will stand shoulder to shoulder with the system that has enabled him to amass wealth valued between $100,000 and $200,000. Mr. Wheeler fights the Anaconda Mining Company in Montana, he has the Kevin-Campbell interests behind him.

Today Senator Wheeler is supporting David I. Walsh, reactionary democratic senator from Massachusetts. He is supporting Thomas J. Walsh, reactionary democratic senator in Montana. Senator Wheeler is a champion of the capitalists who are "on the outs" with Wall Street. He is the champion of small business against big business. He indulges in fair words to labor, but he insists that labor must not organize into a party of its own. He has done his level best to kill the farmer-labor party movement because he knows that if a mass labor party existed, based on those who toil in the industries and on the fields, capitalist politicians would not be so well able to realize their ambitions and at the same time help the interests of their class as they can by using the democratic and republican parties to further their personal ambitions as Robert M. LaFollette has done for decades, or by organizing a so-called "liberal" party.

The Communist Slogan.

Against LaFollettеism and Wheelerism, with their "back to '76" slogan, the Workers (Communist) Party raises the banner of social revolt and with its candidates, William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow, both union men, it hurls into the ranks of all the enemies of labor the demand for the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of a workers' and farmers' government.

SILLINSKY IS FAR AHEAD IN TAILORS' POLL

See Big Victory for the Cleveland Progressive

The membership of Local No. 5 of the Journeymen Tailors' Union vote today for their choice of General Secretary-Treasurer of the international union.

If the Chicago members of Local 5 follow the example of other J. T. U. locals thruout the country, Max J. Sillinsky, the Cleveland progressive, will win over Sweeney, his reactionary opponent, by an overwhelming majority.

Anger Rising Against Sweeney.

All over the country the members of the J. T. U. have been growing more and more incensed against Sweeney's incompetence and unheard-of censorship over the union's magazine, "The Tailor."

Despite the union rules, Sweeney has made a personal publicity sheet of the union publication, shutting out supporters of Sillinsky in violation of the constitution. This was bad enough, but the membership is becoming more angry than ever at the failure of Sweeney to publish monthly financial reports since June.

"Why doesn't Sweeney publish financial reports?" say hundreds of tailors, pointing to the union constitution providing that the general secretary-treasurer shall publish the financial accounts "for the preceding month." No such report has appeared since the June account, and the tailors are convinced that Sweeney has some ulterior motive for concealing accounts from the membership.

Sillinsky Majority Heavy Everywhere.

City	For Sillinsky	For Sweeney
St. Louis	172	56
Cleveland	166	14
Pittsburgh	106	25
New York City	24	5
Houston	22	4
Toledo, O.	14	1
Troy, N. Y.	19	3
Buffalo	19	6
Columbus, O.	10	6
Pittsfield	9	8
Montreal	9	2
Washington	41	36
	611	166

Not only is the disgust with Sweeney turning the membership to Sillinsky, but Sillinsky is known as the one whose fight for week work has won for the tailors this great benefit over the bosses' sweating the tailors thru piecework. Sillinsky is the one to whom credit goes for this.

No One Hurt When Sante Fe Limited Runs Into Freight

GALESBURG, Ill., Sept. 19.— The Chicago crack limited of the Santa Fe railroad, bound for Chicago, plowed into a freight train here today and altho cars were scattered like chaff no one was injured.

Rube Stoner, engineer, and William Ellis, fireman, both of Chillicothe, Ill. rode in the passenger train engine 300 yards into a corn field without injury. Steel coaches protected the passengers.

The buckling of a can in the freight train as it was taking a siding, caused the smash.

A Foul Disease.

COLUMBUS, Ind., Sept. 19.—An epidemic of "chicken appendicitis" has sadly diminished number of flocks of fowls in Bartholomew county. The malady has been pronounced "coccidiositis" or a "disease of the caeca" a dual appendix heretofore unknown to exist in a chicken.

CHINESE TROOPS IN WILD RETREAT FROM CHAO YANG IS REPORT

SHANGHAI, Sept. 19.— Chihli troops were claimed to be in wild retreat near Chao Yang today, following the opening of hostilities between the Fengtien forces of Chang Tso Lin and Wu Pei Fu's Chihli soldiers.

A communique received here from Mukden, Chang's headquarters, said, the troops had ambushed the Fengtien soldiers.

Chang Tso Lin will shortly assume personal command of his forces with field headquarters at Chinchow, the Mukden advices stated.

He is concentrating forces along the great wall from Shanghai Kuan to Jehol and is reported to be planning an attack on Wu's forces at Hai Fengow and Jehol.

JAMES DRAIN ELECTED NATIONAL COMMANDER OF AMERICAN LEGION

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 19.—General James Drain, Washington, D. C., was elected national commander of the American Legion at its closing session today.

The first fifteen states cast a solid vote for him, which was broken only when Maryland cast two votes for John McQuigg.

Drain was an ordnance officer of the tank corps and a member of the Anglo-American tank commission, quite a safe affair and a goodly bit removed from the trenches.

No rank and file soldier was even considered for the job as national commander, an indication of the legion's control by officers.

Drain pledged himself, of course, to the legion's program of Americanization and reiterated that the legion would keep out of politics. Political boomlets failed to materialize.

WORKERS HUNT DEAD IN WYO. MINE DISASTER

Eleven Bodies Remain in Death Pit

(Special to The Daily Worker)

KEMMERER, Wyo., Sept. 19.—Crews of workmen today continued their efforts to remove the remaining victims of the blast in Mine No. 5, of the Kemmerer Coal company at Sublet, near here, where the lives of 39 miners and workers were lost in a terrific explosion last Tuesday.

Official figures issued by the company show that eleven bodies are still in the death pit. Twenty-eight have been removed and identified while 12 of those in the mine when the blast let go worked their way to safety alive.

Huge masses of debris are being encountered as the workers near the spot of the actual explosion and it may be several days before all the bodies are taken out.

Volunteer grave diggers were at work today in the hillside cemetery, midway between Kemmerer and Sublet, preparing graves for the victims. Burials will be made singly and in small groups and a public memorial service is planned for Sunday.

According to Coroner Holmes, of Lincoln County, an inquest will be held Monday.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Thousands who came to see the modern Moses, who promises, all by his lonesome, to lead the "people" of the United States into the promised land provided they ask him no questions, walked out of Madison Square Garden after Robert Marion LaFollette reached the legalistic part of his speech on the supreme court.

Most of the effectiveness of the speech was lost, because of an engagement with the radio. Continual panning of the audience for money also created irritation. This function was in the hands of the socialist party and however we may quarrel with them because of their incapability as revolutionists, we must admit they are masters of the art of passing the hat.

Morris Ruminated.

The platform was graced by the presence of Morris Hillquit, whose memory must have gone back to other days when the strains of the International were heard in that auditorium and the message of revolution thrilled the hearts of the audience. But on this occasion, there was no talk of the red flag, of the class struggle, or the interests of the working class. It was a "better than thou" meeting, with a craw-thumping political revivalist playing the role of a Billy Sunday, and his rear brot up by old sinners like Morris Hillquit, who had reformed and no longer walked in the paths of evil.

The only real enthusiasm engendered at the meeting was that produced when LaFollette took a slam at the late war.

WORKERS HEAR COMMUNISTS AT BIG MEETINGS

Open Air Gatherings Are Very Successful

Thousands of Chicago workers are listening to the Communist message in this campaign in the nightly open air meetings held on dozens of street corners.

Hundreds of copies of the DAILY WORKER are being sold, and thousands of leaflets setting forth the Communist program have already been distributed.

As the campaign to educate the workers to vote for their class, represented by William Z. Foster, and Benjamin Gitlow, enters its hottest stage, thus far, every Workers Party member who can speak is being pressed into service.

Many Questions Asked.

The crowds at these meetings are not changing, but stand and listen to the Workers Party speakers straight thru the meetings. Many intelligent questions are asked, and interesting discussions held after the speakers are thru, demonstrating that the workers have their eyes open to the capitalistic fallacies broached by Davis, Coolidge and LaFollette.

Large outdoor mass meetings and open air demonstrations will be held during the coming week.

"Mother" Bloor in Pullman.

Tonight an outdoor mass meeting will be held at 114th Place and Michigan Avenue, Pullman, to be addressed by Ella Reeve Bloor, which will give the Pullman car shop workers a chance to learn why they are oppressed by the Pullman company. An early street meeting will be held on the corner of 113th street and Langley avenue, where the residences of the car builders are located, at which short speeches will be made in Greek, Polish and Italian. This meeting will be adjourned early and the crowd will be taken to the corner where Comrade Bloor is to speak.

Another big open air demonstration will be held Sunday afternoon in the park on North Clark street and Newberry place, where Comrade Bloor and others will speak.

Cicero is Peaceful.

Many large street meetings were held Thursday night. On the main drag of Cicero, 14th street, Comrade Bloor spoke to 300 people, and there was no sign of a policeman to disturb the "open air university" conducted there. Comrade Antonio Presi, of the Italian Federation, and an editor of Il Lavoratore, spoke to 400. Many copies of the Italian Communist daily, Il Lavoratore, and of the DAILY WORKER were sold by the children of the Junior Group of Cicero.

"Bill" Kruse held forth at 62nd and Halsted street, and the crowd of 200 people stayed thru the whole meeting, buying out every copy of the DAILY WORKER. Comrade Kruse was especially hard on LaFollette, and there was a lively discussion at the close of the meeting.

Get Many Signatures.

A good collection was taken up at the meeting of Comrade D. E. Early, 24th Place and Halsted street, and many signatures were secured to petitions for Workers Party Congressional candidates. Literature, including the DAILY WORKER, was also in demand at this meeting.

Pete Herd spoke on the corner of Roosevelt and Laflin avenues, and Karl Reeve spoke to a crowd of 250 in the stock yards section at the corner of Ashland avenue and 47th street. A comrade also spoke in Polish at this meeting.

Questions asked at the Workers Party afreet meetings indicate that both Coolidge and Davis have lost the support of many workers. The workers listening to the Communist speakers, showing that LaFollette is running on a personal program, that he does not concern himself with unemployment or any other vital problem that concerns the workers; that he is backed by millionaire exploiters of labor, and that he represents no independent manufacturers, became convinced. Then they hear the Communist speakers tell how the Workers Party is in favor of a workers' and farmers' government, abolition of the capitalist system, and a fight to a finish against the capitalist class, which causes wars and exploits the workers, until the working class gains control of the government and industries. Then they say, "Guess I'll vote for Foster."

Foster Vote Is Just Double That for Davis at Pullman

shops yesterday, as did John W. Davis, jackass candidate for president.

Foster received 38 votes, as compared to 19 for Davis. La Follette again led with 127 and Coolidge received 86 votes.

See Illusion At Work.

The large vote for Foster and LaFollette demonstrates that the masses of the workers have split away from the two old parties of capitalism. They place their faith in LaFollette, but as soon as they are disillusioned about the middle class candidate, thousands of workers will flock to the Communist banner.

Private detectives were planted in front of the Pullman company gates at 111th Street, when the Workers Party volunteers were distributing their sample ballots during the lunch hour. They did not interfere however.

Some Refuse to Vote.

Many of the workers expressed themselves as being disgusted with the two old parties, and some declared that they would not vote at all.

The vote in front of the entrance for executives again demonstrates that Collidge is the candidate for the bosses and the white collar boys who have hopes of some day becoming capitalists.

Underdogs For Foster.

The vote by the executive force of the Pullman company was 76 for Coolidge, 15 for Davis, 35 for LaFollette, and 3 for Foster. In direct contrast to this, was the vote of the workers themselves. The employes, who work under the most vicious non-union conditions and are oppressed by a speed-up system and by a blood-sucking company union, and who would not be expected to be in touch with the most militant ideas, nevertheless, gave 38 votes for Foster, 127 for LaFollette, and only 86 for Coolidge and 19 for Davis.

The DAILY WORKER is well known to the employes of the Pullman company, for it was the DAILY WORKER that helped the striking steel car builders in their strike a few months ago. At that time officials of the Pullman company arrested several members of the Workers Party for their activity on behalf of the Pullman workers, but they were found not guilty after a jury trial.

Hadley was expected to talk two or three days, after which Master in Chancery C. G. Briggle, before whom the suit is being heard, will draw up a report on the governor's liability to the Sangamon county circuit court, which will enter an order in the case.

FILIPINOS STRIKE AT MANILA IN 104 BIG SHOE FACTORIES

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

MANILA, Philippine Islands, Sept. 19.—The entire local shoe industry is completely tied up as a result of a strike which has just been declared in 104 shoe factories.

For some time the Filipino shoe workers have been preparing to press their demands for an increase in wages and the abolition of certain restrictions in their working conditions. The present tie-up is the answer of the workers to the refusal of the shoe bosses to deal with them or meet their demands.

The Filipino shoe industry is largely owned by British, American and native capitalists.

Communism Has Inning at Mass Meeting for John Wallstreet Davis

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the DAILY WORKER is much better known to an increased number of democrats in Chicago. When these democrats went to the carefully planned demonstration for their presidential candidate at the stockyard's Pavilion, Thursday night, they didn't expect to get better acquainted with the Communist daily. But such in the case.

* * * *

John Wallstreet Davis is strong for "our constitutional liberties." "I'm for a free press," yells Davis, into the loud speaker, and his voice thunders thru the great amphitheatre.

Just about that time several policemen, probably with First Ward training under "Hinky Dink" Kenna and "Bathhouse John" Coughlin, spy our comrade, John P. Heinrichson, with a bundle of the DAILY WORKER under his arm, and give him, what is popularly known along the river fronts as the "Bum's Rush."

"We don't want any of your 'red' papers around here," blurted the policemen, as they dumped their victim into the street.

* * * *

But it is hard to keep a good Communist down. Heinrichson immediately got in touch with our DAILY WORKER "newsie," Kitty Harris, who has seen service at the great conventions of the coal miners at Indianapolis, Ind., and Peoria, Ill. She had been selling "The Daily" on the outside. He sent her back into the great hall. And she went.

"I'm for personal liberty!" proclaimed Davis, and the cattle, sheep, hogs and other intended victims of the slaughter on the morrow, lost some more of their last night's slumber in the neighboring "Yards." It was the big demonstration of the night. To the great crowd "personal liberty" meant only one thing—the return of the saloon, a wet city. And when Davis continued with a denunciation of "unlawful search and seizure," the crowd outdid itself in defense of "Home Brew" and the kitchen still.

At about the same time the ever-watchful policemen discovered Kitty Harris with her bundle of the DAILY WORKER under her arm. And they did their duty, as they saw it. "Personal liberty" didn't apply to the right of Kitty Harris, to carry a bundle of Communist papers in a democratic meeting.

Large numbers of the DAILY WORKER were sold before the Davis meeting got under way. Early comers got the front seats and sat reading our Communist daily with its first page editorial on the democratic vice-presidential candidate under the heading, "Workers! Here is John W. Davis, Attorney for the House of Morgan."

Sales were better after Davis had finished. Crowds that refused to listen to the lesser candidates, and wended their way slowly to the streets, heard Heinrichson's own story of the democratic principle of "free press" in action.

"One man laughed so hard that he had to take out his handkerchief and wipe the tears away," reported our comrade.

"He saw the joker in the situation and he enjoyed it. But he also got a copy of the DAILY WORKER."

* * * *

The DAILY WORKER isn't worried much when its hornet's sting gets the enemy excited. Kitty Harris tells the story of how the DAILY WORKER sold better than ever after our reporter, Karl Reeve, had been ordered off the floor of the Illinois Miners' Convention, presided over by President Frank Farrington. Farrington is now out for Len Small, republican candidate for re-election, and he is seeking the vote of the Ku Klux Klan, in the miners' union, to insure his re-election as head of the Illinois Miners' Organization.

It was not an accident that the big capitalist daily in Detroit, Mich., "The News," gave special notice to the barring of DAILY WORKER "newsies" from the building where the convention of the International Association of Machinists is being held.

The "Brass check" press feels safer when the officials of labor make war upon the Communist press. The chairman of the Machinists' Convention is President William H. Johnston, who is also head of the Conference for Progressive Political Action that is backing LaFollette.

* * * *

The DAILY WORKER doesn't expect any consideration from the upholders of the present social system. By their actions the officials of labor, Johnston, of the machinists, supporter of LaFollette; Farrington, of the miners, backer of Len Small, the republican, have shown that they are little different than the Henry Dubb policemen doing the bidding of the Chicago democracy.

I sat at a press table and two high school boys, from the Parker High School, on Chicago's South Side, edged up a little closer. They were there to write up the meeting for their high school paper. They wanted to know what paper I was from.

"From the DAILY WORKER," I told them.

"Oh, you're for Debs!" they exclaimed in unison.

I gave them a copy of the DAILY WORKER. They looked at it, and it didn't take them long to make the correction.

"Oh, I see, you're for Foster."

They kept their copies of the DAILY WORKER. They promised to read them. And I added they might put something about the DAILY WORKER in their write-up of the meeting in their high school paper. They promised they would.

So Communism had its inning at the mass meeting addressed by John Wallstreet Davis in Chicago.

WORKERS REPUDIATE LAFOLLETTE

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The regular meeting of the Downtown Section of Local 22, International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, which has a membership of fifteen thousand workers, went on record refusing to support, or in any other way endorse, the campaign of LaFollette.

The action of the Executive Board in endorsing LaFollette, and sending delegates to the conferences of the American Labor Party and the Conference for Progressive Political Action was repudiated. The Local went on record refusing to send delegates to these conferences. They called on the Executive Board to recall its delegates and refuse further moral and financial support to the LaFollette campaign. It was also decided to call a special meeting for the purpose of entering into a full discussion of the political situation, and the merits of the various parties participating in the election.

Around the meeting hall many expressions of sentiment were voiced for the Foster-Gitlow campaign of the Workers Party. There was considerably more interest manifested in the Trade Union Educational League shop collections drive for the benefit of this campaign, than in the whole LaFollette campaign.

POSTPONE CASE OF FOUR MPLS. Y.W.L. MEMBERS

Four Bodies Demand Their Release

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 19.—Four members of the Young Workers League here today appeared before Judge Frank Reed of the Municipal Court on the charge of disorderly conduct.

The arrests occured in connection with a nation-wide drive conducted by the league against the rotten conditions of the youth employed in the National Biscuit Company, in front of which the four comrades attempted to hold a meeting.

Case Again Postponed.

This time the case was again postponed until October 2. The city attorney informed the court that there was no evidence upon which to prosecute the young defendants, Leslie R. Hurt, Carl Cowl, Gerry Pett and Morton Green, but the policemen who made the arrest insisted on the prosecution. These cops are organized into the American Federation of Labor, but they can show their servility to the bosses on any occasion.

The city council, the Hennepin county farmer-labor federation, and the local Trades and Labor Assembly are all on record demanding the release of the young Communists. Another attempt will be made today to hold a meeting in front of the plant gates by the four comrades out on bail.

real, definite steps towards a labor party. Later this was changed to a third, liberal party "not to our liking."

When Levin was asked to inform the members who deserved to know of the stand taken in the G. E. B. by Schlossberg, he refused to answer.

G. E. B. Contradictory.

Again no answer was made when it was pointed out that the G. E. B. had at first spoken of its differences with LaFollette and Wheeler and directly contradicted itself in an editorial in the official organ, Advance, of August 29, where it said of LaFollette that he was a man who "could be absolutely depended upon not to use the powers of the government against organized labor," and that Burton Wheeler had a record which was "100 per cent in favor of labor in its struggles." If Wheeler was 100 per cent for the workers, then there was absolutely no difference between him and Hillman or Levin. After all, there cannot be a loyalty to an idea or a group that rises above 100 per cent!

The discussion showed plainly that while many of the LaFollette supporters were undoubedly sincere, they were consciously or unconsciously misleading the workers. None of the arguments of the left wing wing members of the local that spoke, were replied to by the LaFollette boosters. A moral victory was won by the opponents of LaFollette. A show of hands showed that they had been refeated numerically.

Pope Wareth Senile.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—A letter from Pope Pius XI, extending his blessing to the convention of the Holy Name societies of the United States, said that since the society was founded in the United States it had "brought in its wake blessings to both the Catholic religion and to the civic welfare of the country."

FOSTER BEGINS TOUR OF COAST AND NORTHWEST

Eastern Meetings Big Successes, Reports

After a highly successful speaking tour of the east, where he gave the Communist message and program to thousands of workers in large eastern cities, William Z. Foster has left for a seven thousand mile speaking tour which will embrace the large cities of the northwest and the Pacific coast.

Foster spoke in Fargo, N. D., Friday night, and from there will go to Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma, Astoria, Portland, Berkeley, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City and Denver, returning to Chicago on Oct. 9.

Had Good Meetings.

"Every meeting on my Eastern tour just completed was well attended," Foster told the DAILY WORKER. "Much literature was sold at all the meetings. Losovsky's pamphlet, 'The World Trade Union movement' is being sold at my meetings by the hundreds of copies. Thousands of DAILY WORKERS are sold at the campaign meetings."

Foster was tendered a banquet in New York Sunday night, by the Needle Trades section of the Trade Union Educational League, at which more than 600 workers attended. Prominent Communist leaders welcomed Foster and pledged their support in the first Communist presidential campaign.

In the Paterson meeting, attended by many of the strikers in the silk mills there, Foster advised the strikers to defy the injunction served by four of the large mill owners and to keep solidly on the picket line. Foster pointed out to the strikers how the courts and police are used to come to the aid of the silk bosses when the workers demand their rights. He told them they must unite behind the Communist banner to wrest the control of government away from the employers and place it in the hands of the workers where it belongs. He urged them to pay no attention to the injunction, but to carry the strike thru to victory and continue effective picketing.

Under the spirited leadership of the Communists, Foster told the DAILY WORKER the strike is being fought thru to victory, with the fighting spirit of the strikers at the highest pitch. "They realize that their strike is an episode of the class struggle" Foster told the DAILY WORKER; "that the employers are organized in a united front with the judges, the police and the manufacturers' associations. The only successful method to combat the organized onslaught of the employers is for the workers to organize solidly with their class."

REPORT SHOWS WORKERS PARTY OF CHICAGO WORKING HARD IN IMPORTANT FIELDS OF ACTIVITY

THE matter of reorganizing the party in Chicago on the basis of Shop Nuclei and the progress of the campaign to obtain signatures to place Workers Party candidates on the ballot in the congressional districts in Chicago, formed the main topics of discussion at the city central committee meeting, Local Chicago, Tuesday, Sept. 16.

The industrial registration taken thus far indicates excellent possibilities for shop nuclei re-organization. Both the district organization and the local have gone on record to proceed with the work.

Discuss Nuclei.

In order to clarify the Party membership more on the shop nuclei, an attempt will be made to set aside meetings for discussion of shop nuclei in the branches. A special C. C. C. meeting will be devoted to the shop nuclei question. The C. C. C. delegates are enthusiastic for the change, recognizing in it the best means of furthering and intensifying political activity.

Delegates reported comrades working in a number of places in the same shop where the matter of reorganization on the shop basis can be taken up.

Must Get All Congressional Candidates on the Ballot.

In the DAILY WORKER can be read sufficient on the progress of the campaign to obtain signatures. The presidential and state candidates will go on the ballot, over three times the number required being on hand. Without detailing further we expect the branches to make a special effort to get their members out this Sunday. If done, we will get every candidate on the ballot.

Reports of the straw vote being taken in the factories also being given elsewhere in the DAILY WORKER. This straw vote is proving of excellent value in getting the election campaign of the Party outside of the Party among the masses. A great deal of discussion is aroused at the factory when the ballots are taken. The DAILY WORKER is getting extensive advertising with good possibilities for circulation.

The Jewish comrades have been especially active in organizing Foster for President Clubs among the Workmens Circle and left wing trade unions, particularly among the needle trades. Good results can be expected. Meetings will be held under the auspices of these left wing clubs and also special literature issued. A thousand tickets for Foster-Gitlow meeting on Oct. 12 have been taken for circulation among the Workmen Circles.

45,000 Platforms Out.

To date 45,000 election campaign platforms have been distributed as well as a few thousand of Mobilization Day leaflets.

The congressional Districts are already preparing for special meetings in their districts. District 9 and District 4 have already scheduled meetings. See other columns.

The work among the T. U. E. L. groups is picking up in virtually all the departments, especially, however, in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers group. Comrade Tom Bell is now the local secretary of the T. U. E. L.

Membership Increasing Swiftly.

Applications were accepted from the following branches: Czecho-Slovak No. 1-2; Czecho-Slovak No. 3-1; Czecho-Slovak Cicero-Berwyn-5; Lithuanian No. 6-1; Northwest Jewish-2; Italian 31st Ward-1; Rumanian-1; Douglas Park Jewish-2; South Side English-1; Northwest English 5; North Side English 2; Lettish-1; making a total of 27 new members.

Among these applicants were members of Horseshoers, International Ladies' Garment workers, Amalgamated Clothing Workers, Food Workers, Wood Turners and Barbers' Union.

The Czecho-Slovaks are doing excellent work in organizing and reorganizing their branches, other branches being organized in Berwyn and also a woman's branch in Cicero. This membership increase, however, is not sufficient and our efforts must be more than redoubled. Remember to get your Communist merit stamps for getting new members or securing a new subscriber to the DAILY WORKER.

Educational Bulletin Distributed.

Educational Director reported on classes being conducted and to be started. A resolution from the South Slav branch to discontinue the weekly educational bulletin sent out for the use of street speakers and for discussion in branches was turned down. The City Central Committee unanimously endorsed its issuance and asked, further, that its scope be extended as much as possible. Further development of educational activity for branches being considered by City Executive Committee.

The auditing committee on July 4th picnic reported all O. K.

In connection with financial accounts, however, the city office urges a speedy settlement of the debts of the various branches and federations, especially on July 4th picnic, Foster meeting and Press picnic tickets, since funds are greatly needed in the campaign, which as it progresses, naturally requires more and more finances.

Street meeting are still being conducted very successfully, about 25 being held weekly.

The next meeting of the city central committee will be held at the new hall, 722 Blue Island Ave. (Greek headquarters), Tuesday, October 7.

Young Workers League.

Following up factory campaigns started. Laying plans for conducting factory campaigns in mail order houses in the city of Chicago. Each branch to "adopt" a factory, to be responsible for carrying on propaganda and agitation at a factory employing youth labor nearest to that branch or where some of its members work. Giving good help to taking straw vote at factories. Jewish League branches have an English speaker regularly every month. Jewish speakers supplied to our branches by Jewish C. C. C.

Branches are urged to order the excellent pamphlets issued by the national office, especially for campaign purposes. One is the pamphlet on the campaign in the form of questions and answers by Alexander Bittelman and is sold at 10c. It is particularly valuable for street meetings sales as well as generally. Another is the pamphlet on unemployment by Comrade Browder at 5c and the Lovestone pamphlet on LaFollette at 15c.

The DAILY WORKER-Labor Defense Council bazaar still requires a number of comrades for special work. Call the local office for any aid you can give.

Tickets are out to all the branches for the big demonstration and meeting for Foster and Gitlow at the Ashland Auditorium, 2:30 Sunday, October 12. In addition to the speakers, The Young Workers League Orchestra will be on hand and it is almost certain the Freiheit Singing Society. It should be possible to dispose of all these tickets easily among outsiders. We also call upon comrades to help in the distribution of the DAILY WORKER. Special edition to be printed for this meeting as well as the leaflets.

Local Chicago is in the midst of many activities and work is going on well. With the election campaign and with the beginning of work for shop nuclei organization, we can expect to go forward even more swiftly in every field. Every branch should make an effort to give every member something to do in the branch.

Put every member on a committee and make him work.

Every member an active agitator and worker for Communism!

Fraternally yours,
WORKERS PARTY—Local Chicago

REVOLUTION IN GEORGIA WAS A BIG PIPE DREAM

Group of Bandits Thot They Were in "Chi."

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, Sept. 19.—Surprise is expressed here that even American capitalist newspapers should puff the activities of professional bandits in Georgia to the magnitude of an uprising.

That the Chicago Tribune should serve as a receptacle for the rubbish of every Czarist panhandler in Europe, was to be expected but the bourgeois press that makes a pretense of publishing news and not fables, hastened to feature the latest from the cellars of the plotting emigres.

It is sad news for those who have hoped against hope that something would pop up sometime and overthrow the Soviet, but the truth must be told. The "revolution" in Georgia was crushed in less time than it would take to walk from Chicago to Milwaukee and Leon Trotsky far from rushing madly to decapitate counter-revolutionists in the Caucusus, may be writing a theses on American imperialism in Moscow, for all your correspondent knows. If he left for Georgia, all I can say is that Moscow is not aware of the fact.

Rome Denies Georgia Revolt.

ROME, Sept. 19.—M. Jurenlev, Soviet ambassador to Italy, denied reports that anything like a revolution took place in Georgia. Some czarist and professional bandits kicked up a little shindy there, he said, but this was crushed in three days and things were running normally. No peasants or workers took part in the much advertised uprising.

Soviet Statement Confirmed.

The Independent Italian Economic Institute for Russia announced that it had telegrams from Batum and the oil region which the papers said was one mass of flame, denying that uprisings existed.

The Soviet ambassador stated that there was no danger of a revolution against bolshevism, and credited the present fantastic yarns to Premier Zankov of Bulgaria, who wanted some excuse to increase the army beyond the limits permitted by the treaty of Neuilly.

Can't All Be Singers.

EVANSTON, Ill., Sept. 19—Madeline Bailey, radio singer, warbled herself out of a $100 fine for speeding here after she told Justice Max Witkower she was hurrying from one broadcasting station to another when a motorcycle officer "got" her. Her first song, sung at the justice's request, cut down the fine $10 and her second did away with the balance. "Very good," opined the learned justice.

IAROSSI DIES IN N. Y. ACTIVE FOR THE CAUSE

Wouldn't Give Up Work in Spite of Illness

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The Italian Federation of the Workers Party has suffered the loss of one of its most active workers, Comrade Salvatore Iarossi, organizer for the Italian Federation, who died here of tuberculosis.

Comrade Iarossi was active speaking and organizing for the Workers Party here up until two weeks before his death, when he was forced to take to his bed. Comrade Iarossi was well known as an English speaker in the Communist movement as well as for his work in the Italian Federation. He was also the New York correspondent of the Italian Communist daily paper, Il Lavoratore, published by the Workers Party in Chicago.

Comrades in the Italian Federation state that Comrade Iarossi died for the movement, for altho sick for months before his death with tuberculosis, Comrade Iarossi refused to discontinue his work for the Communist cause.

The Proper Background

Paul M. Warburg, chairman of the International Acceptance Bank, has just returned after a two-months' stay in Europe. Mr. Warburg sings the same song that the other American financial overlords are now singing about Europe being on the mend.

The international banker tells us that "The German loan will 'go,' if offered at the right moment, with the proper backing and the proper background." One is tempted to ask for the full meaning of these pre-requisites to the success of the German loan. What does Mr. Warburg mean by the proper backing? And what is meant by the proper background?

If our experience is to guide us in our conclusions, then there is no puzzle or mystery in the findings of Mr. Warburg. By the proper backing is undoubtedly meant the full support of the biggest business interests which will in turn be adequately backed by the entire military and naval machinery of the United States government. Then, by the proper background is evidently meant the launching of a campaign to psychologize the country into accepting the American participation in the German loan as a step in the interests of humanity, reconstruction, civilization, and other high flowing, but meaningless statements.

Mr. Warburg is hopeful. He and his ilk have reason to be hopeful. The American imperialist interests are in the midst of a gigantic drive to tighten their grip on the industries and resources of the world. But can the American workers be hopeful? The answer is decisively no. The very "proper background" that Mr. Warburg and his class are speaking of is the foreground for another world war that is now being prepared. This very "proper background" is the fertile soil in which our exploiters are now sowing the seeds of new and more ghastly imperialist conflicts.

The Dawes plan, with the proper backing and the proper background, in all its devious and dark ramifications, is the latest stage of American imperialist aggression. The peace of the world is more and more at the mercy of the tightening thongs of our aggressive exploiters. The sooner the working men and expropriated farmers of our country fustrate the offensive maneuvers and manipulations of our capitalist class, the sooner will the peace and security of the world be at hand.

Rent and Wages

One of the favorite arguments used by the capitalists in their constant fight to reduce wages to as low a figure as the workers will accept, is the decrease in the cost of living. If the employers can prove that the cost of sugar has gone down half a cent on the pound, they consider this a good reason for cutting the pay of their employes another dollar a week.

The landlords exact heavy toll of the workers in the form of rent. During the war, while the productive machinery of the nation was engaged in turning out death-dealing weapons, building construction was at a standstill. This was seized as an excuse by the landlords to raise rent, but the workers were not given corresponding increases in wages; they were told it was unpatriotic to insist on a decent standard of living while the nation's "heroes" were risking their lives for thirty dollars a month to save Morgan's millions.

Since the armed truce, known as the Peace of Versailles, was signed, the capitalists have been driving consistently for a reduction in the wages paid to the workers. One of their arguments was that great reductions in rents had taken place. What are the facts?

A nation-wide survey, the results of which were published yesterday in The DAILY WORKER, show that not alone have rents not been perceptibly reduced but that they have increased. This despite the fact that the workers have been forced to accept a reduction in wages except in cases where they were able thru the power of their organizations to maintain existing wage scales.

When the workers succeed in forcing the bosses to pay them more for the use of their labor power, the landlords rub their hands in glee and soak them more for rent. But when wages drop the landlord sees no reason to lower his price for apartments.

The workers will be fleeced by the boss in the factory and the landlord from whom they must rent a place to sleep until they takeover the political power which the master class now uses to skin them alive. Only then can the workers begin to regulate society for the benefit of the producers.

It is about time Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief of the Locomotive Engineers, replied to the recent attack of John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America. Lewis charges Stone with co-operating with the non-union coal owners against the union. Lewis is in the Coolidge camp. Stone is on LaFollette's band wagon. We are waiting to hear from Stone.

Congratulating Themselves

Many observers have attempted to estimate the political significance of the endorsement of the LaFollette candidacy by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor. The opinions as to the real meaning of this endorsement have exceeded in number even those who have opined on this question.

But one conclusion has been arrived at with practical unanimity by the various interpreters of the present policy of the American Federation of Labor officialdom. This conclusion is most tersely and clearly expressed by the Magazine of Wall Street in an editorial captioned "Labor in Politics," commenting on the support tendered LaFollette by the Gompers machine.

This widely-recognized spokesman for the uppermost layer of our investing class tells us that the endorsement of LaFollette by Gompers and his crew affords no cause for uneasiness to the business interests of the country. This high oracle of highest finance informs us that the LaFollette party "is in very small degree radical compared with current communistic creeds." The Magazine of Wall Street then goes on to say: "It is evident that this country has in no way to fear from such institutions as the American Federation of Labor. On the whole, American business can congratulate itself on the inherent good sense of the average American laboring man."

This estimate of the political significance of the Gompers-LaFollette combination was written for home consumption. It was penned by the select scribblers for a select set of readers consisting primarily of those who are the real works in American finance and politics. The view expressed by the Magazine of Wall Street about LaFollette and Gompers is the view genuinely entertained by our exploiting class.

Indeed, the bosses are justified in congratulating themselves over the turn of events in the labor political field culminating in the temporary disruption of the farmer-labor class movement by the LaFollette-Gompers alliance. Not only has our business class no fear from the bureaucracy of the American Federation of Labor, but it actually finds a strong source of support, one of its main props and buttresses, in the machinery of the American Federation of Labor, as it is now operated and controlled by Gompers, Johnstone, Schlesinger, and the lesser lights.

Britain's Coming Issue

The raving Lloyd George is again on the political warpath. Mr. Baldwin, spokesman of the powerful British steel interests, is becoming ever more threatening. Unless presently unforeseen events intervene, there is every liklihood that Great Britain will soon have another general election. It appears that the Liberals and Conservatives, tho not as dissatisfied with the MacDonald regime as they first thought they would be, are preparing to sink a harpoon into its administration.

The forces of British reaction are massing their strength for an attack on the recently concluded Anglo-Soviet treaty. The fact that this treaty provides for a government guarantee of the loan that is to be floated for the Soviet Republic in England has around the bitterest ire of all sections of the employing class. The recognized spokesmen of the various capitalist groups are solidified in their hostility to the British government aiding in the slightest way the flotation of a Soviet loan in England.

This mad opposition to the guarantee clause brings to our minds significant facts. When a capitalist government defaults on its debt payments, the international exploiters run to its rescue. When a working class government does not pay the bills incurred by its predecessors thru maintaining a gigantic machinery for oppressing the working masses, then the international bankers ostracize and boycott this proletarian government. Witness the difference in treatment accorded the imperialist government of France, and the working class government of Russia by the United States.

Also, when the capitalists lend money to the governments of other capitalist countries, it is assumed, it is a sine qua non, that these loans are guaranteed by the governments of the creditor capitalists. But when a loan is proposed to a working class government, then it is the height of folly to suggest that the government accord the same treatment to such a loan as it accords to loans made for capitalist governments.

These incidents unmask the ugly face of capitalist democracy hiding behind the British and American parliamentary illusions. The working class of England will welcome the issue over the peace treaty with Russia. The Anglo-Soviet treaty has many shortcomings. We feel certain that the coming election will make it possible for the revision of this treaty so that it will be far more favorable to the interests of the British and Russian working masses.

Rudolph Spreckles, the California sugar magnate, does not think LaFollette is a dangerous radical. He believes on the contrary that only men like LaFollette can save the capitalist system from being overthrown. "I have a stake in the capitalist system," declared Spreckles, "and I want to save it for my children." Spreckles knows what he is talking about. But the workers who are supporting LaFollette under the illusion that he is a radical don't know what they are doing.

The Lawyers Defend Their Meal Ticket

By MANUEL GOMEZ

"BACK to the Constitution!" A familiar and significant slogan, often on the tongues of defenders of privilege. Particularly when they are worried that their own promiscuous transgressions may have weakened the respect of the workers for the "Manga Charta" of American capitalist rule.

It is the slogan of "Constitution Week," proclaimed by the American Bar Association with all due solemnity. "Constitution Week" began last Sunday and it will be with us until the coming Saturday night.

The time is well chosen. The numerous well-fed friends of the Constitution are especially effervescent just now; the most modest demand for curbing the autocratic powers of the Supreme Court makes them froth at the mouth. Coolidge and Dawes, Teapot Dome candidates, do not scruple to make "law and order" the fighting issue in their campaign! Pa(y)triotic societies spring up like mushrooms. Newspapers such as the Chicago Tribune print three and four editorials a week inciting to summary treatment of "the radical foes of our Constitution."

Lawyers Are Organized.

Now comes the American Bar Association, prepared to do its stuff. The A. B. A. is the official "trade" organization of all the lawyers in the country; it is dominated by corporation lawyers; its leading lights consist of such eminent mossbacks as Elihu Root, Charles Evans Hughes, William Howard Taft and John Wallstreet Davis. The Constitution means bread and butter to lawyers, and the A. B. A. would be unworthy of the men it represents if it did not properly cherish its meal ticket. Wherefore, "Constitution Week."

"Devotion to human liberty," is the motive given by the A. B. A. for its interest in the Constitution.

The tenderness of the lawyers is touching . . . rather too touching. For instance, on September 17, they discussed the so-called Bill of Rights of the Constitution, which is supposed to provide for religious freedom, freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of public assembly. What they will discuss on the six other days of "Constitution Week" will be mentioned later on.

When corporation lawyers and prosecuting attorneys and judges talk about free syeech it is time to suspect something. In every single state in the union, workers are languishing in jail because they dared to speak their minds. Does the Bar Association propose that these men be freed? Does it propose that no more meetings be broken up, no more labor presses destroyed, no more soapboxers arrested? Does it? Everybody knows the answer.

Berrien County Case.

Over thirty states have enacted "Criminal Syndicalist" and "Sedition" laws, largely thru the active co-operation of the Bar Association. Practically all of these laws are unconstitutional. In Berrien County, Michigan, in December of 1922, a score halls of the Communist Party was raided, in defiance of the constitutional guarantee of free assembly, and C. E. Ruthenberg is now appealing from conviction, and the Bar Association is lined up openly with the prosecution. What is the Constitution among lawyers! . . . except during "Constitution Week."

Free Speech for Communists in America!, the slogan issued by the Labor Defense Council, defending the Michigan Cases, was not urged in the September 17 exercises. That wouldn't fit in with the lawyers' plans at all.

Indeed the idea is to launch an offensive against the Communists. It is written into the program that on September 19, the juridicial admirers of the Constitution will consider "means of curbing Communism and organized Minorities." It would appear that organized minorities are a danger to our fundamental code; anyway the Communists are an organized minority and they must be suppressed . . . constitutionally or otherwise. The Constitution demands it! Thus, like good lawyers, reason the members of the American Bar Association.

John Marshall's Work.

Lawyers have always been given the job of "interpreting" the Constitution for the capitalists, anyway. The first lawyer to take this task seriously was John Marshall, chief-justice of the Supreme Court from 1801 to 1835. Marshall was a dyed-in-the-wool Federalist, the direct representative of the privileged classes; and his whole work was to keep the power in the hands of those classes. One of his first steps was to set a precedent giving the Supreme Court the right to declare acts of Congress unconstitutional! By a long series of judicial decisions, he helped to make the Constitution a bulwark against progress.

Pretty enough, the A. B. A. will devote an entire day to studying "the services of John Marshall in making the Constitution the supreme law of the land."

It is only natural that lawyers, for all their drivel about "a government of laws and not of men," should be precisely the ones to maintain in practice that the letter of the law has nothing to do with Law and Order. The lawyers know their trade. And they know that the essence of legalism is simply defense of the ruling class. That the Constitution is actually unwritten and it serves just as well as the rest. The whole Constitution is as elastic as the famous Elastic Clause.

This is why the various hirelings of the plutocrats can laud the Constitution to the skies because of its liberal Free Speech Clause, and in the same breath bitterly denounce, as "subversive," all those who presume to speak freely. It is why a highly-placed crook like Albert B. Fall or Harry M. Daugherty can fume against "law-breaking radicals" . . . without anybody honestly feeling any inconsistency. The only ultimate test of the legality of an act is its effect on the interests of the dominant social group.

Law, after all, is not government, but only one of a number of instrumentalities which make up the governmental machine. Another instrumentality is brute force. Yes, force and violence. Arbitrary use of the police power to break up meetings, smash strikes, silence opposition to war, etc. Insistence upon obedience to the law goes hand in hand with systematic violation of the law; both principles are co-relative features of everyday governmental procedure.

However pure and well-intentioned the workers may be in a clash with their bosses, however honest they may be, however they may strive to keep within the law . . . they will never get "justice" until the governmental power is in their hands. What is the most sacred doctrine of the American legal system? Private property. What is the distinguishing feature of the American democracy as expressed in the Constitution? Scornful disregard of popular majorities. And this is the spirit expressed, with thotful sublimation, in the admonition: "Remove not the ancient landmark which thy fathers have set"—which the lawyers and judges by the clergyman making the opening prayer before the Bar Association on the first day of its "Constitution Week."

Let the lawyers pay their respects to the Constitution! They have something to rejoice about. But workers should not be taken in. If they support the Constitution it is like supporting a rope which is strangling them.

Two Dictatorships.

The proletarian dictatorship of Soviet Russia is an instrument of class rule no less than the veiled Morgan-Rockefeller dictatorship in this country, but there is one essential difference. It is a dictatorship in the interests of the workers the only useful class in society. The class which is repressed is the capitalist class. The enemies of the Constitution in Russia are the financiers and money lenders, the former plutocrats, the old czarist aristocrats . . . the unemployed Russian colleagues of the American Bar Association.

retary Frank Hodges was compelled to resign when he joined the MacDonald government as First Lord of the Admiralty. Hodges is a notorious reactionary and has no more working-class sympathy than Samuel Gompers. Cook made a brilliant speech in behalf of the nationalization of the mines and said that if the Labor government was not willing to introduce a measure for nationalization the trade union movement should compel it to. "Capitalism operated thru a labor government is no different to capitalism operated thru a capitalist government" declared Cook. One of the most important resolutions passed was one declaring for the sympathetic strike. Tomsky made a great hit with the congress when he stressed the value of amalgamation as a method of consolidating the unions. "In Russia, there are only 23 great unions" he declared. The congress showed that labor in England is stepping toward the left.

ROUMANIA is badly off for want of funds. The finance minister, the gentleman who grabbed John D. Rockefeller's oil properties, returned from a begging expedition which took him to several European capitals, but he was not successful in raising any cash. The only solution for the crisis say the financial gentlemen is to issue more currency. That policy will bring as much relief to Roumania as another load of moonshine to one suffering from the effects of a drunk.

MARTIAL law has been declared in the nothern part of Mosul, following raids by British airplanes, according to a news report. Turkey claims that Mosul is part of Mesopotamia and therefore belongs to the Turkish Republic. But unfortunately for the Turks, Mosul is rich in oil, therefore Britain insists that it belongs to Irak, which as a geographical unit stands somewhere on a level of importance with the Island of Yap. Britain will fight to protect Irak's independence to the last oil barrel.

THE PRINCE OF WALES is having such a good time in the United States that he hates to leave for his ranch in Canada. Which is not surprising. Man is a social animal and the prince is a very sociable young man. The prince has very little to worry about. Ramsay MacDonald, good, pious, honest Christian socialist—who hates Karl Marx as devoutly as does the prince provided the prince does not think Marx is the third member of the Hart, Schaffner clothing firm,—is taking good care of the Empire. Given a good supply of whiskey and a choice collection of society ladies not bothered with Comstockian conceptions of female rectitude, His Royal Highness could enjoy his stay in the United States indefinitely. It is even reported that the prince may return again to visit the great industrial establishments. Perhaps the leftward trend in the British labor movement has set him thinking of the need for making provision for the future.

HUNGARY has signed a treaty with the Soviet government. A few years ago when some country recognized Russia it was good for a headline in the capitalist press. Today they are signing up as fast as they can. The only important government in Europe that has not yet recognized the Soviet Republic is France and even France is taking steps to resume relations. Nothing succeeds like success. The red army is quite a convincing argument.

Contributed Paragraphs.

EXTRACT from report on Chinese war: "Today was the Chinese mid-autumn festival, and by mutual consent, helped by a continuous downpour of rain, both sides stopped fighting until about six o'clock tonight, when they went at it again." This just about describes the social-democratic version of the class war. In tense periods, a smile and an automobile ride from the plutes, and the sham battle is stopped "by mutual consent." Only when the masses storm the works under Communist banners, do the workers get back into the fight—on the side of the enemies of the working class.

JOHN WALLSTREET DAVIS recently made the best anarchist speech since the death of Herr Most, or the departure of Emma Goldmon to overthrow the workers' government of Russia. "Shall we surrender (our personal liberty) to the will of the majority of the people? Never . . . to the majority of legislatures or congress? Never! . . . we will ignore the law and declare that it has no value or substance." John is most concerned with the "right" to rob wage labor. Surrender? Never! And not even then! Unless the workers decide otherwise.

Paterson Strikers Picket in Mass and four loom system would go on in spite of misrepresentation.

"Our one weapon used in building this organization is educational propaganda," he said.

For Open Ballot.

"The Associated Silk Workers' Union, to settle the problem of three and four looms, suggests that this so-called manufacturers' organization, if it can be located in Paterson, participate in a referendum to be voted upon by the silk workers of Paterson, the ballot to be no secret, and open to all weavers in the industry.

"The two-loom scheme is the limit of human endurance for most workers. To impose more looms upon them means to shorten their lives by demanding every ounce of energy they possess. This terrific toil, combined with low wages, brings the average human being to the point of collapse in a few years."

THE ASSOCIATED SILK WORKERS HAVE REPLIED TO THE STATEMENT OF THE SO-CALLED BROAD SILK MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION AS FOLLOWS:

A spurious organization, calling itself the BROAD SILK MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION, of Paterson, issued to the public press a statement on last Friday morning, setting forth various charges against the leadership of the strike of the workers in the broad silk mills.

This assault was unsigned, the individuals responsible for it evidently fearing the ludicrous position in which they would find themselves before the public if they dared attach their names to such a series of insinuations and bare-faced lies. The charge is made that the Associated Silk Workers' Union resorts to intimidation and violence to build up its membership.

This charge is known to be false by every one even slightly acquainted with the principles and tactics of this organization. Our one weapon used in building this organization is educational propaganda for the purpose of convincing the silk mill workers that it is to their material interest to become members of our organization. The worker with a modicum of intelligence readily recognizes the advantages to be gained thru affiliation with the Associated Silk Workers.

Urge Referendum.

Probably the greatest departure from the truth in the communication from this fake manufacturers' organization is its boast that it speaks for the vast majority of the silk workers of Paterson. In defending the nerve-racking three and four-loom system, these people, who are too cowardly to sign their names to the communication, are indulging in fantasies when they claim to speak for even a small majority of workers.

The Associated Silk Workers' Union, in order to once and for all settle the problem of three and four-looms, has suggested that this so-called manufacturers' organization, if it can be located anywhere in Paterson, participate in a referendum to be voted upon by the silk workers of Paterson.

The ballot to be secret and open to all weavers in the industry. If the majority of them vote in favor of the three and four-loom system, then the Associated Silk Workers will refrain from claiming to speak in the interests of the broad silk workers of Paterson, but if the majority of weavers vote in favor of a two-loom system, the eight-hour day, and living wages, then we will insist that we, and not a spurious organization controlled by cowards and poltroons, speak in the interest of the workers of Paterson.

Bosses Are Foreign-Born.

The attempt of this group to arouse sentiment against the organization by resorting to plea of patriotism is utterly grotesque, as it reveals the fact that this anonymous group still imagines the war is on, and that insipid appeals to patriotism are substitutes for convincing argument. Their patriotic plea again reminds us that "patriotism is the last refuge of scoundrels."

The further amusing feature in their appeal to patriotism and 100 per cent Americanism, is the fact that most of them are themselves foreign-born. The Associated further asserts that it is willing to take a census of the foreign-born workers in the ranks of the conference, and the foreign-born exploiters in the ranks of the manufacturers where the discovery will be made that the overwhelming majority of manufacturers are also foreign-born. Probably the reason that they didn't sign their names to the communication is because they are such pure and unadorned, glittering American names as Kauffman, Haenichan, Diamond, Schottland, Aronsohn, all of which are recognized as having come pure and shining down the centuries from the founders of Jamestown, Plymoth, and other early American colonies.

As to the use of out-of-town agitators, this spurious organization of silk manufacturers howls about, we merely point to the fact that these same patriots are scouring the underworld of nearly cities in a desperate effort to obtain strike breakers for their mills, but their efforts have thus far not proved enticing to even pick-pockets, porch-climbers, and other gangsters that usually serve as strike breakers in other industries. Concerning the merits of this case, we feel that they have been adequately presented to the public. There is no argument from any point of view, either of humanity, economics, logic, or morality, that can justify the multiple-loom system. The two-loom system is the limit of human endurance as far as most workers are concerned. To impose more looms upon them means to shorten their lives by demanding every ounce of energy they possess. This terrific toil, combined with low wages, brings the average human being to the point of collapse in a very few years. The strikers of Paterson are not fighting because the union tells them to fight, they are fighting because they themselves, thru their union machinery, have decided in a democratic manner, to challenge the multiple-loom system and fight it to a finish. We propose to continue this fight until the multiple loom system has been decisively eliminated in the silk industry of Paterson, and no amount of bombast or cheap bill-ingsgate on the part of an aggragation too cowardly to sign their names will cause us to pause in this struggle.

Wheeler's "Labor" Party - -

By Alexander Bittelman

Now, let's get that thing straight again. What is it for that the Socialist Party has surrendered to LaFollette? It is for the sake of getting a Labor Party formed sometime in the future, isn't it? This is what we are being told by Debs, Hillquit, Berger, Oneal, etc., etc.

to this our reply was that it is nonsense. No one in full possession of all faculties and could seriously believe that a Labor Party will result out of the Gompers-LaFollette-Socialist outfit. Why? Simply because this combination does not want a Labor Party. They are not interested in it. A Labor Party pursuing an independent working class policy would constitute a serious menace to the class and group interests of the La-Follette-Gompers combine.

Now Comes Wheeler.

Now comes Wheeler himself, vice-presidential candidate on LaFollette's ticket, and what does he say? Well, he says many things, but the one thing that is of most interest to us at this moment is that he is opposed to the formation of a Labor Party.

He does not mince words, either. In fact, he should be congratulated for his frankness in the matter. One would wish that his socialist followers might follow him also in frankness and sincerity.

For example: Wheeler does not like the word "workers," particularly industrial workers. To him the mere sound of it is objectionable. His healthy class instinct, the instinct of a petty bourgeois, of one who is identified and associated with the well-to-do middle classes, simply revolts at the idea of a party of workers.

Does he conceal this fact? No; he couldn't very well. His class instincts seem to be stronger than his political intelligence. Thus it happened that when confronted by a Federated Press reporter with the question of whether he would favor a Labor Party, he innocently replied: No, he doesn't favor any such thing. He is opposed to it.

Anything But a Party of Workers.

Here is a portion of the interview with Senator Wheeler as reported by the Federated Press.

"Are you in favor of a definite, organic third party developing out of this movement?" asked the interviewer.

"Yes," replied Wheeler.

"Would you like to see it a labor party, say the American Labor party?"

"No," answered Wheeler; "You must remember that laborers constitute only a certain proportion of the people. What about the farmers?"

"Well, of course," explained the interviewer; "I mean all workers—a party made up of industrial workers and farmers."

"Well, there is already a Workers Party—a Communist group," answered Wheeler. "We don't want to have anything to do with Communists. And as for industrial workers—I confess I do not like the use of that term either. There are the Industrial Workers of the World."

Please, note the reasoning of the man whom the Socialist party has seen fit to endorse as its candidate for vice-president. The reporter asks Wheeler whether he would like to see a Labor Party, say the American Labor Party. Wheeler says: No, he does not want that. Why? Because "you must remember (thank you, senator, for the kind reminder) that laborers constitute only a certain proportion of the people."

We just wonder how Gompers likes this identification of labor with laborers. The old betrayer of the American Federation of Labor usually draws a very clear distinction between what he considers labor and the mass of laborers. The latter are to Gompers just as repulsive as to Wheeler, only Gompers does not commit the folly of identifying "Labor" with laborers.

However, this is beside the point. We are concerned now with the senator, who objects to a Labor Party because laborers—you must remember that—constitute only a certain proportion of the people. The implication of this objection would seem to indicate that what the senator is after is a party not of a portion of the people, but of all the people.

The reporter understood the nature of the senator's objection and immediately volunteered an explanation. He said: "Well, of course, I mean all workers—a party made up of industrial workers and farmers." In making this explanation the reporter probably thought that a party made up of all industrial workers and farmers would look all-inclusive enough to satisfy the senator as to its being a genuine party of the people.

But no, you cannot satisfy the senator so easily when it comes to discussing the "people." He seems to be very anxious that the party which he is in favor of should include every single member of the people. Alright. How, then, does he propose to bring this about?

As to the workers, the senator is of the opinion that: "Well, there is already a Workers Party, a Communist group. We don't want to have anything to do with Communists." Bravo, senator! That's good. If you are looking for a party of workers, there is already such a party in the field—the Workers Party, and its candidates are not LaFollette and Wheeler, but Foster and Gitlow. Alright, this little statement of the senator suits us perfectly.

But how about a party of the people? Aren't the workers, the Communists, part of the people? Don't they deserve to be included in the senator's party, which is to be, according to Wheeler's own words, a party of the people? Don't these Communist workers suffer hunger and starvation at the hands of "special privilege" and "monopolies" which LaFollette and Wheeler are supposed to be fighting against?

And the Farmers.

Then what about the farmers? Surely they are entitled to be considered as part of the people. And the reporter distinctly explained that when he said Labor Party, he meant a party of workers and farmers. But the senator did not seem to have heard that. He merely passed it over.

But the reporter seems to have been determined to squeeze out of Senator Wheeler some sort of a party that would include the people who work, who produce, who are being exploited. So he proceeds to press the original question, only somewhat differently worded. The reporter's question:

"What about a party made up of all people who gain their living by useful work, whether of brain or brawn?"

Now, one would think, the reporter at last got the senator into a corner. Now, really, can LaFollette's vice-president speak against a party "of all people who gain their living by useful work, whether of brain or brawn?" Aren't these the kind of people that LaFollette is supposed to be fighting for?

It seems not. Just read what Senator Wheeler himself has to say:

"I am less interested in the avocation of a man than in his ideals—what he believes in," answered Wheeler. "I would welcome into the party any man who subscribes to the aims and purposes of the party. I will tell you what I mean. In Connecticut I had placed at my disposal a beautiful, enclosed automobile. And the man who owned it also contributed liberally toward the campaign fund. Are we to debar him because he happens to have money—even tho he is sufficiently with us to do these things?"

Senator Wheeler is interested in the "ideals" of a man more than in its avocation.

Ideals Mean Money.

The senator does not tell us what sort of ideals he is after, but he does say that he will not debar from his party a man "because he happens to have money."

Now, now, here the senator said something. He wants for his party the "people," men who have ideals, and who are they? Not the workers, these are Communists and with Communists we have nothing to do. Not the farmers, about them we keep quiet. We want the men who "happen to have" money.

Great stuff. We knew right along that this was the sort of a party that LaFollette and Wheeler are after. But what about Debs, Hillquit and Berger? Are they too, after Wheeler's men of "ideals"?

Refers to British Labor Party.

However, it seems that the senator has sensed that he had begun letting the cat out of the bag. So he proceeds to explain himself:

"Take the British Labor Party. Aren't there many such in it. In the British Labor Party in Britain, you will find all possible sorts of people—workers, farmers, school-teachers, bankers, manufacturers. They are all of them agreed on one common ground—the aims and purposes of the party."

Well, senator, you have not told us the whole truth about the British Labor Party. It is true that there are in that party bankers and manufacturers. Even lords. It is also true that MacDonald and his government are trying very hard to transform the Labor Party, which at present is based upon the organized labor movement of Great Britain, into a party of bankers, merchants and manufacturers, i. e., into a party of Wheeler and LaFollette. It is also true that the Labor government of England is already acting as if it were put into power by a party of bankers and manufacturers.

But that transformation—from a Labor Party into a capitalist party—which MacDonald seeks so anxiously to achieve—this transformation has not yet been accomplished. The British workers, the rank and file of the British trade unions don't want that. In other words, what's happening now in the British Labor Party is that

MUSSOLINI'S GOVERNMENT IN CONFERENCE

Decide to Remain at Their Posts

What Can Shop Nuclei Do? - By Martin Abern

THE Workers Party has now set itself in earnest to the task of reorganizing and building the Party on the basis of Shop Nuclei. Much has been and will be written concerning the need for this change of the organizational structure of the party. Everyone accepts the necessity for the change; nearly everyone hesitates to start making the change. Yet were the start once made, there can be no doubt, as experiences of the Young Workers League in America and the parties and leagues in other countries show, all would be enthusiastic for actual and practical reorganization.

Let us concern ourselves here with what our present territorial branches do and what shop nuclei do and can do.

Branch Efforts Are Scattered

What does a party branch activity usually consist of? Reports are made by branch officers. Reports are heard of city central committee meetings. Some comrades distribute or sell literature. Every now and then the branch listens to a lecture, in nine cases out of ten on some theoretical subject, to which there can be no objection of course, but which is hardly ever taken up in relation to some immediate work. Comrades discuss the necessity of joining the union and then go home to sleep on the thought. Everybody gives the other lots of advice, good and bad, and generally act upon neither kind.

The members of the branch have no real practical contact with one another. They usually see each other only at monthly or semi-monthly meetings or at general party affairs. They exchange a few words of greeting, express fond hopes and desires for the revolution, curse or laugh at the stupidity of the capitalist class.

It amounts to, "Well, comrade, you go your way, I go mine."

At home they read The DAILY WORKER and go to bed. Thus a day's work for the revolution has been accomplished. We speak here of the average activity of the party members. We even assume that all of them pay their dues regularly and are in good standing.

There is, of course that small section of the party which is alive, virile and active in the branch and outside of it, in the union, etc.

We do not find among the members thru their branch activities, real discussions on vital problems of the day. No real discussion of how to carry on the work among their fellow workers in the shops or factories. Instead of a direct vital working class thought, we find in the branch what might be called community or neighborhood thought, a sort of middle class rebellion tinctured with working class knowledge.

Shop Nuclei Ensures United Action.

But how about the shop nucleus? Where in does it differ from the party territorial branch? Why is it superior? First, what is a shop nucleus? It is the basic unit of the party, made up of party members working in the same shop or factory or mill. What does it mean when the party members are organized in that way? It means that the party members are in close contact with one another EVERY DAY. Further, the party members are in contact with the workers in the shop. But so are they with the workers in the shop when they belong to the branch. But there is a difference. In the shop nucleus the party members are in conscious contact with the workers. They know they are in the shop nucleus in that particular factory with a definite aim in view relative to their fellow workers, and they proceed to carry out a program in the shop.

In our present party branches, comrades tend to hypnotize themselves with all sots of phrases, prophecies and views about what they think, but do not know, is going on in the world. But organized politically in the shop with a program of action, the members strive to realize in reality what is what in the industrial and political world.

Shop Nucleus Work More Numerous Interesting and Vital

What are the things which party members in the shop nuclei do? First, they must have meetings, of course, and they can meet almost at any time since they are always together. They can meet together at the noon lunch for instance, and discuss some problem which may come to their mind. They pay their dues thru the secretary of the shop nucleus. They get literature from the shop nucleus literature agent, and they undertake to sell or to distribute it to their fellow workers in the shop.

Conscious of what needs to be done, they recognize in the slogan of the Communist International—"Education thru direct participation in the class struggle" not merely a phrase but a fact arising before them in a thousand different ways in the shop.

The party members look about them in the shop. What is really going on? Are the workers in the shop satisfied with their conditions? Are they thinking about shorter hours, more wages, better conditions? Are they thinking about organizing, if they are unorganized? Are their fellow workers giving any thought to political problems? Do they read anything else besides the capitalist papers? Do they think about anything else besides going home after work to eat, to rest, perhaps to go to a movie, a ball game, a prize fight, a pool room?

These are things which a member of a shop nucleus begins to think about because he with the other party members are organized in the shop.

The shop nucleus members see that, if they want to make any headway among the workers in the shop, they must try to respond to and to gauge and see all the needs and activities of the workers in the shop. The shop nucleus must meet regularly to take up the questions of the day in the shop, the economic questions. Then they must see what they can do to crystallize and carry out the problems in the shops with a view towards their political or Communist development.

The shop nucleus, therefore, works out a practical program for itself as a nucleus, as a party unit, and for the rest of the workers in the shop whom it tries to get to carry out that program.

Should the girls in the National Biscuit Company be in dissatisfied mood because of the dirty aprons they have to work with, the shop nucleus begins to carry on an agitation for clean aprons. Small, true, but step into a shop any day and find out what little things workers think about. Is the food in the cafeteria in the Hart, Schaffner and Marx firm poor? Is Ward's scab bread being used in the so-called union cafeteria? The shop nucleus members begin discussing how to compel the cafeteria to get better food, to get union made bread there. Is half an hour lunch time too short a time in which to gulp down the meager lunch? The shop nucleus takes up the issue of an hour for lunch time. Is there a possibility of a wage cut in the Pullman or Hegewisch car shops? The shop nucleus members begin to raise a protest, to discuss the standard of living today; how to organize the men against the wage cut; how a union could perhaps prevent that. Is there an election campaign on? The shop nucleus members make sure to distribute among the shop mates leaflets, to start a discussion on the candidate or to try to take up a collection to help our campaign. A machine shop nucleus in Chicago is doing the latter.

These are the small things, it can perhaps be said: it is true, but they are the living issues which arouse workers and which organize them for concrete issues of the day and develops their thought for greater, for political problems.

Party Thinks In Terms of Shop and Struggle.

What the shop nuclei activity does for our party members is that it changes their attitude towards the class struggle.

Not in a fundamental political sense, that is, but it makes our members face the realities of the every day practical world. It destroys any dilletante attitude toward the struggle and makes them, instead, apply political knowledge to concrete economic conditions and use their Communist understanding to develop their fellows workers politically.

There are so many things that can be pointed out which a shop nucleus does, but which a party branch cannot very well do.

There is the work to establish shop committees, to help organize the union, to make a conscious effort to develop politically. The activities and duties of the members in a shop nucleus are so numerous that pages could be written on each. But it is important to begin with, to point out only some of the immediate activities mentioned hitherto, to indicate the possibilities of shop nucleus work.

The small attempt at factory campaigns by the Young Workers League and Workers Party in Chicago at the Western Electric, International Harvester, Hegewisch and other places is only a slight indication of the propaganda and organization for communism that is possible. But if results of a good character can be shown when such factory campaigns, etc. are directed by the party from outside the factory, how much more effective would these and other campaigns be if the party membership in these factories were organized as political units within them to carry out such a campaign with preparations beforehand within the factory, and with a knowledge of what are the conditions therein and what the worker's think and want?

There is the question of wall newspapers or bulletins written in ink or pencil, if need be, and pasted in the factory somewhere for the workers in the shop.

It is very true that it is difficult at first to organize and to work politically in the shop; for these is the tendency to take up the shop and immediate problems and forget the main thing, the political development; however, in the work, all class struggle activities find, in one way or the other, political expression.

A manual cannot very well be given to a party member as to how to conduct themselves in a shop. Only general outlines can be given, but experience will show the shop nucleus how to round out its activities politically. First start the job of organizing the shop nucleus; being to lead the workers in the shop ideologically economically and politically, and you will begin to get and retain confidence of the other workers. You will learn to measure the political maturity of the workers and how to develop that further. The work is hard and there will be direct rebuffs from the workers and perhaps even worse, but that is another matter. The safety of the party is, in short, in political organization in the shops, but that is a discussion for another time.

To close, then, the party is serious in its efforts to reorganize the party, and the membership should give its support to the necessary change. There can be no question of this resulting in building and developing our party. Our slogan must be:

Every member an agitator!

Every member of the party a member of a shop nucleus!

Every factory a shop nucleus of the Workers Party!

the masses are preparing to resist the attempt of MacDonald to sell them out to the capitalists.

This, dear senator, is the real truth. What you really favor in America is not the British Labor Party as it exists at present, but the sort of a capitalist liberal party which MacDonald is trying to build. Why, the senator wouldn't even consent to call his future party a Labor Party! The reporter asked:

"What would you call it?"

"Liberal party would be suitable, or Progressive party would do."

A Liberal or Progressive party. A party of people who have "ideals," that is, money. A party of bankers, merchants and manufacturers, that is the sort of a party that Wheeler and LaFollette stand for.

Now, what sort of a party do the socialists stand for?

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. Unity of the International Trade Union Movement

By A. LOZOVSKY

DURING the course of its development the labor movement has undergone many crises. One of the most important of these crises, owing to its character and consequences, is the national and international split in the trade union movement. The root and source of this split is to be traced back to the outbreak of the war, when the leading elements of the socialist parties and of the trade unions identified the fate of the labor organizations with the fate of the capitalists of their respective countries. The four years of war and the six years of peace which followed it opened the eyes of broad masses of workers and made it clear to them wherein lies the source of weakness of the proletarian masses. This experience has proved the following: the more peacefully the socialist parties and trade unions were disposed towards the bourgeoisie, the deeper they drove a wedge into the working class. The history of the last ten years is the history of the decay of the social democratic parties and of the reformist trade unions; it is the history of a slow recovery on the part of the proletarian rank and file by means of the founding of Communist parties and revolutionary trade unions, or trade union minorities. The splitting of the political parties, the drawing of all sound proletarian elements away from the influence of these parties, was the prerequisite for the overcoming of the crisis. The process of the formation of the Communist parties began, with the exception of Russia, with the commencement of the war and found its international expression in the formation of the Communist International, the five years existence and success of which we have recently celebrated. While the political labor movement faces all the revolutionary elements with the direct task of building up the Communist parties as rapidly as possible, the interests of the labor movement demand the preservation at all costs of the unity of the revolutionary movement by means of a struggle within the trade unions for a revolutionary program and revolutionary tactics. There is no contradiction in the fact that the revolutionary workers have, on the one hand, split the social democratic and the so-called independent parties in order to form revolutionary Communist organizations and that, on the other hand, these same workers combat with all their power, those communists, who wish to split the trade unions. The different character of these two types of workers' organizations compels the communists to conduct a different policy regarding them in order to achieve the same end: the capturing of the masses. The setting up of the communist parties was everywhere accompanied by the slogan: "fight for the unity of the trade unions, fight against the theory of destroying the trade unions", and in those cases where such a theory has arisen, the Communist International declared the most energetic fight against it.

But if the Comintern has always fought against splitting the trade union movement, why then was the Red International of Labor Unions created? The R.I.L.U. was created after the Amsterdam International had linked up its fate with the League of Nations, after the Amsterdam International had along with the representatives of the largest employers' organizations, taken part in throttling the revolutionary labor movement in all countries, after the Amsterdam International had proclaimed the sharpest struggle against the Russian revolution and the Communist International. From the beginning of 1920 the discontent with the old program and the old tactics made its appearance in all countries, but this discontent did not yet possess a sufficiently clear and definite ideological character. It was necessary to bring together these multifarious views, to assemble the revolutionary forces existing in the International trade union movement around an ideological and organizatory centre, to work out a clear policy and to take up the struggle against reformism which was poisoning the labor movement in a common revolutionary front. There therefore arose in 1920 the R.I.L.U. which continued to develop. From the first day of its existence the R.I.L.U. emphatically pronounced against the splitting of the trade unions. That alone is to be seen from the following facts:

1. The R.I.L.U. pronounced itself against the slogan of destroying the trade unions.

2. The R.I.L.U. proposed to the Amsterdam International to restore the unity of the French and Czecho-Slovakian trade union movement.

3. The R.I.L.U. has at all its congresses decided that all revolutionary unions shall affiliate to their respective internationals.

4. The R.I.L.U. has several times openly declared that the International Propaganda Committees will be dissolved as soon as the revolutionary unions in question are admitted into the respective internationals.

5. The R.I.L.U. at its II. Congress issued the slogan of the united front and often approached the Amsterdam International with the proposal for common action.

RED UNIONS EXTEND FRIENDLY HAND

For a United International Trade Union Movement

6. At the International Peace Congress at the Hague the R.I.L.U. attempted to propose the united front to the Amsterdam International. Similar attempts were undertaken after the Ruhr occupation and before and after the Frankfort Conference.

7. The R.I.L.U. regards the united front in the trade union movement as the first step towards the organizatory union of the divided portions of the movement.

8. In every case in which tendencies to split the trade unions appeared in the ranks of the Comintern and the R.I.L.U. the R.I.L.U. has opposed this attitude with the greatest determination and defended the slogan of trade union unity with all the means at its disposal.

All these facts are known to those who have more or less carefully followed the activity of the R.I.L.U., the decisions of its congresses and the instructions of its executive organ.

How did the Amsterdam International and the organizations affiliated to it reply to all these measures of the R.I.L.U.? They replied with a furious campaign against the Communists and with their expulsion from the trade unions. If the R.I.L.U. had allowed itself to be actuated by the same motives as the Amsterdamers, that is by the wish to get rid of their opponents at any price, then to-day the disruption of the trade unions along the whole line would have been an accomplished fact. The R.I.L.U. was only prompted in its attitude by its regard for the requirements of the class struggle, and in spite of every provocation stood by its standpoint: against splits and for unity.

The III. Congress of the R.I.L.U. drew the logical conclusion from the four years' struggle for unity in proclaiming the slogan of amalgamating both Internationals by means of an International Unity Congress. The conditions for this have become much more favourable, as the consciousness of the necessity for unity has penetrated the broadest masses. A change can be seen in the English labor movement as a result of the bourgeois policy of the "Labor Government."

We must openly admit that the raising of this question at the Congress of the Comintern, as well as at the Conference of the R.I.L.U., met with resistance. This resistance is mainly to be explained by the fact that the opponents of this slogan had not thoroughly thought out the trade union tactics of the R.I.L.U. and of the Comintern. This slogan met with specially energetic opposition on the part of the German delegation which regarded the slogan of the amalgamation of the two internationals as "opportunism," even "menshevism." Why the communists can be together with the reformists in a common national organization and why they cannot be together in an international organization would be hard to say. The opponents of this slogan have unwittingly promoted the splitting tendencies which are to be found among a section of the German workers. We must prove our will to unity by facts, and the proposal to convene an international unity congress is the best proof that trade union unity is for us no empty phrase and no maneuver as a few over-clever comrades think. The National Council of the C. P. of Germany adopted a resolution regarding this question which is anything but clear. Here it was said that the slogan of uniting both internationals is to be understood in the sense that unity is to be accomplished on the basis of the programme of the R.I.L.U. To understand the decisions of the R.I.L.U. and the Comintern in such a way is not to understand them at all. Of course it would be best if all the workers were to recognize the platform of the R.I.L.U., but in that case what sense would there be to speak of amalgamating the two internationals? We propose however an amalgamation of both internationals and the creation of a united international in spite of the fact that half of the organized workers do not accept the program of the R. I. L. U. We are not at all afraid of being in an international organization with such people as do not recognize our program. Our program has been recognized by history and it will finally be recognized by the whole working class. This unity proposal is not, as some comrades think, a coalition between the leaders of the R.I.L.U. and the Amsterdam International. The unity of the international trade union movement can be set up in the event of our succeeding in arousing ten millions of proletarians to take an interest in this campaign. Some comrades are so afraid of reformism that they anxiously ask: "What will happen if the Amsterdam International accepts your proposal and agrees to the International Unity Congress?" To which we answer: "Excellent! We will be only too pleased if the Amsterdamers accept this proposal, as it is precisely the task of our unity resolution to realize this unity." — "Well, and what if you are in the minority in this united International?" ask the same comrades.— "If we are in the minority then we shall fight for the majority and hope to win this majority."—"You are prepared to take part in an international unity Congress without any previous conditions?"—"Yes, we are prepared to take part in an international unity congress without any previous conditions. The relation of forces at the unity congress will decide the program and tactics of the new international."—"And if the Amsterdamers lay down conditions, what then?"—"If that is the case, the negotiations will soon show what conditions of either party are acceptable and what are not acceptable by both parties. The working masses will judge themselves."—"And if the Amsterdamers refuse negotiations regarding unity?"—"If they refuse so much the worse for them. We will not abandon our struggle for unity."

In our struggle for unity we have our eye on the masses and attach very little value to the good-will and the mood of this or that leader. As soon as the unity of the international trade union movement is a necessity for the masses, we have to fight for this unity and mobilize the broadest masses against those who oppose this unity. And there is not the lest doubt that unity is threatened. The danger comes from two sides: before all from the side of the right wing of the Amsterdam International. This was to be seen at the Vienna Congress, when the right Amsterdamers endeavoured to render the resolution as vague as possible in order to leave open every loophole. After the Vienna Congress the Bureau of the Amsterdam International sent a letter to the All-Russian Central Trade Union Council proposing negotiations on the basis of the decisions adopted in Vienna. To these negotiations the Amsterdamers attached the following two conditions:

1. They will conduct negotiations only with the Russian trade unions and only with regard to the affiliation of the Russian Trade Unions to Amsterdam.

2. The negotiations regarding the affiliation shall have as their basis the program and statutes of the Amsterdam International.

That the Amsterdamers laid down such conditions is not to be wondered at. They are continuing the sabotage which they began at the Vienna Congress. If we look up the letters which have passed between the Amsterdam International and the All-Russian Trade Union Council during the last two or three years, we see that all these propoyals have already been made on many occasions, to which the All-Russian Trade Union Council has always replied that it had no hand in drawing up the program and the statutes of the Amsterdam International and therefore has no reason to recognize them as pre-conditions. It is in this manner that the right Amsterdamers sabotage the unity of the trade union movement. There is nothing surprising in this. But it is less easy to understand why the representatives of the left wing take part in this combination. Do the leaders of the left wing of the Amsterdam International belive that this way is the shortest cut to the restora-

"Pacifist" Imperialism of the United States

By L. TROTSKY.

THE advent of America into the field of active world imperialism is not of a very recent date. If we should attempt to trace events chronologically, we might say that the decisive change of foreign policy of the United States coincides approximately with the close of the XIX and the dawn of the XX century. The Spanish-American war took place in 1898. In that war America seized Cuba thus securing for herself the key to Panama and, consequently, an opening into the Pacific, China and the continent of Asia. In 1900, in the last year of the 19th century, the exports of manufactured products from the United States, for the first time in history, exceeded the imports. This fact alone placed America, statistically speaking, among the nations active in world politics. In 1901 or 1902 America is already securing for herself the province of Panama-Columbia. America has had a policy of her own in such matters. This policy she has carried out on the Hawaiian islands, on the islands of Samoa, I believe, and at any rate in Panama. She is now carrying out the same policy in Mexico. When a democratic republic wants to grab and subjugate foreign territory or enforce a humiliating treaty upon another nation, she first stirs up a little revolution among the nations and then appears on the scene as a pacifier and benefactress. That is what General Dawes is now doing in Europe. He has come from America to soothe and pacify Europe which was ruined by a war conducted with the help of this same America.

In such a manner America seized Panama in 1902, set out to dig the canal, first opened the canal for navigation in 1914, and in 1920 the completed Panama Canal literally opens a new and probably the greatest chapter in the history of the United States and of the entire world. The United States has radically changed the map of a portion of the globe in the interests and for the benefit of American imperialism. The industry of the United States is concentrated, as you know, in the East. The West is primarily agricultural. The trade and industry of the United States is gravitating towards China with her 400 million population, with her inexhaustable, immeasurable wealth. Thru the Panama Canal American industry has opened for itself a waterway from East to West thus shortening it several thousand miles. These dates—1898, 1900, 1914 and 1920—mark America's determined appearance upon the highway of world robbery, i.e. of world imperialism.

The imperialist war was the most important milestone on this road. As we all remember, the United States entered the war at its very end. For three years the United States kept out of war. Moreover, two months before America entered the war Wilson had declared that America's participation in the bloodbath of Europe's madmen was out of the question. Up to a certain moment the United States was content to coin dollars out of the blood of Europe's "madmen." When it appeared, however, that the war may end in favor of Germany, America's most dangerous potential competitor on the world market, the United States joined the allies. This event decided the outcome of the struggle.

Killing a Competitor for Love of Peace.

The remarkable point, however, is this: America has been greedily feeding the war with her industry, has selfishly entered the war for the purpose of destroying a menacing competitor, and yet she has managed to preserve her pacifist reputation. This is one of the most interesting paradoxes, one of the most curious jokes of history—jokes which are far from arousing our merriment. Unlike the imperialist swindlers of the old world, America has had the possibility of hiding her cruel, rapacious and thievish imperialism under the cloak of pacifism due to a special environment. In the imperialist game of the old world the motives are apparent on the surface. But in America things are different. Due to the special conditions of America's development this very pacifist mask has become so well attached to her imperialist physiognomy that it is impossible to tear it off.

This is not an incident. Both geography and history have contributed to this state of affairs. The United States has had no need for a large standing army. Why? Well, just try to reach them. On the right side there is the Atlantic, on the left the Pacific (even their ocean is pacifist)—how then can you get at them?

Peculiar Geographic Position of U. S.

England is an island and this is the most fundamental cause of her peculiar position and at the same time one of her most important advantages. The United States also represents a gigntic island in relation to the group of continents of the old world, England is protecting herself by means of her fleet. But if you once break thru the line of defense of the English fleet, the British islands remain unprotected, and you can run thru this narrow strip of land with the sword of your cavalry. But try to run thru America in this fashion! It is an island which has at the same time all the advantages of Russia—her gigantic expanse. Even without a fleet America would be almost invulnerable to an attack from Europe or Japan due to her immense distances. Here is the fundamental geographic cause for America's pacifist mask which has become identical with her true physiognomy.

Unlike Europe, unlike all other nations, America failed to establish a large standing army. And when during the late war she did create a strong army naturally, she was forced to do so. Who forced her to it? Why, of course, those barbarians, the German imperialists and the Kaiser, who were not brot up in the benevolent spirit of the Presbyterian church.

Our Peculiar History.

Another cause of America's pacifist piety must be sought in history. The United States has appeared on the world arena at a time when the entire world has already been divided up and enslaved. The imperialist advances of the United States are thus being carried out under the slogans of "freedom of the seas," "open doors," etc. Therefore, whenever America carries out an act of open militaristic robbery, the people of the United States and to some extent of the rest of the world are made to believe that the responsibility for such an act falls upon the citizens of other countries, but not upon America.

Wilson was the one who helped to complete the destruction of Germany and then, as you remember, he appeared in Europe, armed with his 14 points in which he promised peace and proseprity to all, self-determination to small nations, punishment for the criminal Kaiser, compensation to the virtuous nations, etc. Such was the Wilsonian Gospel! We all remember it still. And all the petty bourgeoisie of Europe and to considerable extent also the workers, i. e. the menshevist workers of Europe, lived for months and months by that Wilsonian Gospel. This provincial professor, called by American capitalism to serve as its spokesman, deeply immersed in blood—since he incited continuation of the European slaughter—later appeared in Europe as the apostle of pacifism. And all the people said: Wilson will give us peace, Wilson will restore Europe.

Wilson, however, did not succeed in reaching that goal for the realization of which General Dawes has later been sent to Europe accompanied by a host of bankers. Wilson had left Europe with a feeling of disgust. He returned home to America. And pacifist social-democrats all over the world came out with their lamentations and bewailings over the madness of the European bourgeoisie which did not want to come to an understanding with Wilson and thus failed to achieve peace and normalcy in European affairs.

Wilson was displaced. The republican party came into power. There ensued a period of prosperity based almost exclusively upon the domestic market, i. e. due to a temporary state of equilibrium between industry and agriculture, between East and West. This period of prosperity was of short duration. It lasted only two years. Then, since last year this period of prosperity came to a halt and became unstable—and in the spring of this year there could be noticed sure symptoms of an industrial crisis following in the footsteps of a most severe agrarian crisis which hit hard the agricultural parts of the United States. And, as it always happens in such cases, this crisis gave a new impetus to American imperialism as a result of which financial capital of the United States has sent its representatives to Europe in order to finish the business which was begun with the imperialist war and was pursued thru the peace treaty at Versailles, i. e. the business of the economic subjugation and enslavement of Europe.

MODERN "CHINESE SHADOWS"

A Plan to Put Europe on Rations.

What does American capital seek, what is it aiming at? It seeks, we are told, to reestablish the European markets for the Europeans to enable Europe to pay her debts. But how, by what means and to what extent? American capital does not want to create a competitor for itself out of Europe. American capital will not allow England, still less Germany or France, especially Germany, to regain their old world markets. It needs the entire world for itself, since American capital has reached the stage of self-export, i. e. American capital is now exporting both products and capital. American capital is seeking world domination and wants to establish an American imperialist monarchy on our planet.

But what about Europe? We are told that American capital wants to pacify Europe. But how? Under its own hegemony. And what does it mean? It means that American capital will allow Europe to recuperate provided it does so within certain prearranged limitations, i. e. American capital will allot Europe only certain limited portions of the world market. American capital is already giving orders, dictating to European diplomats. It is preparing also to dictate to European banks and trusts, to the bourgeoisie of Europe as a whole. It is moving in that direction. American capital will allot markets, will regulate the activity of the European financiers and industrialists.

If we should clearly and plainly answer the question as to what American capital wants with Europe, we shall have to say that it wants to put capitalist Europe on rations. It means to dictate to Europe the kind of products and how many pounds, litres and kilograms of such products she has a right to buy and sell.

Already in the theses to the Third Congress of the Comintern we stated that Europe was being Balkanized. Now this comparison is even more apparent. The governments of the Balkan peninsula have always had their protectors: Tzarist Russia or Austria-Hungary. Their entire political life, such as a change of ruling parties and even a change in dynasty (in Serbia) was centered around and was subject to the will of their powerful protectors. Now Balkanized Europe is being reduced to a similar position in relation to the United States and partly Great Britain.

In the measure in which the antagonisms among the European governments will become more acute, they will be found knocking at the doors of Washington and London. The final say in such matters as a change in political parties and governments will belong to American capital which will dictate to Europe how much she should eat and drink. Now, we all know from our own experience that a ration does not always taste sweet, especially when this strictly regulated American ration will be offered not only to the common people of Europe, but also to its rul-

The Modern Innocents Abroad

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

In the year 1867 a group of Americans chartered a ship to carry them on a pleasure excursion to Europe and the Holy Land, and Mark Twain's famous book, "The Innocents Abroad," one of his best literary productions, was a description of the tour and the great humorist's impression of the places visited by the "innocents."

Again the innocents are abroad, this time not to "see" Europe but to "save" it. And the impossibility of saving Europe by the methods employed by our modern innocents, suggested the title for this article.

The modern innocents who have set out to save Europe and rebuild its shattered constitution are the bankers and finance capitalists of America. By the time they are thru with Europe, that once healthy continent will have either passed thru the undertaking parlor or a revolution.

When a patriotic Serbian fired a bullet into the noble anatomy of the Archduke Frederick Joseph of Austria in 1914, causing that gentleman to make a hasty tho involuntary exit from a then smiling world, Europe was in a fairly satisfactory state of health and its ruling class was quite conceited, and looked on the shirt-sleeved aristocrats of America with ill-concealed contempt. Most of the American millionaires were of the Jiggs type, made immortal by MacManus in "Bringing Up Father." They did not have much of a family tree. If there ever was such an heirloom it is likely that some indigent ancestor had to chop it up for kindling wood, when making a fire to cook his breakfast preparatory to setting out to dig a ditch or lay track on a railroad bed.

But the shot that killed the archduke was heard round the world and before the echo returned to its base, there was a different story to tell. Many of the kings of Europe who made wars just to keep from getting bored, found themselves throneless and some of them headless. They started something that they were not able to finish. Instead they got finished.

The bullet that killed the archduke did not really cause the world war, tho it would appear that it was an agreed signal like shooting off a blank cartridge in a hundred yards dash. Hardly had the smoke from the explosion cleared away before Austria, Germany, Russia, England, France and other more or less consequential countries were mobilizing their troops and getting ready to shoot each other but the monarchs never expected that by the time the battle was over the ex-navvies of the United States who graduated into bankers, capitalists and manufacturers would be on top and the titled rulers of Europe would be very much at the bottom. But it came to pass.

Now, it happened that Europe tho apparently healthy was on the verge of a breakdown in 1914. The kings were getting unnecessary and the capitalists barely tolerated them for decorative purposes and because the masses were impressed by kings. Every time a king's concubine had a child or king's daughter was sold to another king's son the papers made quite a fuss about it, the priests dwelt on the affection in which the royal families were held by God and when the masses grumbled too much, the Little Father would warble a promise and say that he would right those wrongs which some misguided servants of his inflicted on the people.

The kings were tolerated rather than needed. Most of them were gouty and rheumatic if not worse. Those of them who had the use of their limbs were frequenting the watering places and setting up in business as bathing beauty judges. A few of the monarchs, notably the Emperor of Germany and the Emperor of Austria held on to their dignity, as best they could. So also did the Czar of Russia. The poor fellow did not live long to enjoy it. That however is another story.

The real power in 1914 was in the hands of the capitalists. In countries like Germany, Russia and Austria, vestiges of the feudal order remained, so the Kaiser with his "Me Und Gott" in the form of wages, the rest going to the capitalists in the form of profits. The capitalists sold what they could of the accumulated wealth, but as every capitalist country was producing more wealth than their own population could consume, they were competing for foreign markets. Finally they went to war to settle the question.

For four years they battled. Europe was divided into two armed camps and when it appeared that the Central Empires were about to win, the American capitalists who had bet their money on the Allies stepped in on the side of their investments and helped to snatch victory from the mouth of defeat. The Central Empires and their allies were vanquished. Democracy was saved! The war to end war was over! There would never be another! So the masses were told by the prophet Woodrow Wilson, who was the spokesman of the House of Morgan when this country entered the war.

But a funny thing happened. At first it looked good but a little later not so good. One of the crowned heads that was in on the ground floor when the European war started found himself non persona grata with his people, after he had killed several millions of them playing tag with his royal cousin the Kaiser. While the two Czars were enjoying this game of kings, none of them suffered as much as a scratch. But the Kaiser had better generals than the Czar and his capitalists were more efficient, so they produced more bullets than the Czar's capitalists with the result that the Czar lost more soldiers and got licked. Instead of sympathising with the Little Father in his misfortune as they were taught by their priests, the Russian workers and peasants and the soldiers at the front simply said: "Here is where the Czar gets his and we get ours" and they hiked with long swinging strides back to the rear of the front and the Czar took a fast train to the Crimea where he thot he was safe. But he was only for a while.

Socialists and capitalists got together with the intention of forming a government and bluffing the people of Russia with fine promises until the strom blew over but they were caught in the act by the Russian Bolsheviks, who shouted to the workers and peasants: "These rascals are only agents of the Czar in disguise. They will murder you and starve you even as the Little Father did. They want to continue the war in the interests of the Allied capitalists. You want peace bread and land. Go and take what belongs to you."

Soon Kerensky and his gang were in flight and are now doing mind reading stunts and other tricks to amuse the jaded bourgeoisie of England and America. The Bolsheviki seized power in Russia and are still in the saddle, making good time. That was the little thing that spoiled the game and made the capitalists who were yet in the fight, begin to furrow their brows. "Suppose our workers and peasants follow the Russian example" they said. They did not, however because for one thing they had no Lenin revolutionists in these countries and for another their rulers were wiser and more powerful than the Czar and his lieutenants.

But to make a long story short the war finally ended with Europe very, very sick. The capitalist system overexerted itself. It came very near drawing its last breath. In fact a little kick from the European working class boot would have saved the world a lot of subsequent bloodshed and misery. But the social democrats saved the system temporarily and it is still tottering along.

But peace has its terrors even as war and peace brot Europe no relief. Capitalism could not provide employment for the workers. The continent was impoverished. Millions were out of work. Rebellions and revolutions became the order of the day. America, the young capitalist giant of the West, loaned billions of dollars to Europe during the war. America grew rich at Europe's expense. We mean the capitalists of America. They had gold in their vaults until they threatened to burst and didn't know what to do with it. Soviet Russia was to them like a red rag to a wild bull. They made war on it. All the capitalists countries in Europe joined in the fight. Japan chimed in. It was all to no avail. The Soviet republic beat off all its enemies and insisted on surviving.

Then some of capitalists of Europe decided to make the best of a bad bargain and recognized Soviet Russia. They would sup with the devil for the sake of trade. Still the United States held aloof. It would not recognize Soviet Russia because there was a dictatorship of the proletariat there, tho it did recognize the black shirt dictatorship of the Italian Fascist chief, Mussolini.

Things were going from bad to worse in Europe. Germany stood trembling on the brink of a revolution. A revolution in Germany would set the fashion in the rest of Europe. The American capitalists finally decided it was up to them to "save" Europe for themselves and from a revolution, so the "innocents" were sent abroad to do the job.

Europe owes the capitalists of the United States billions of dollars and they have no money with which to pay their debts. In order to win the war for democracy and civilization France and England needed money so they borrowed from the United States. When the war for democracy was won American wanted its money back. Europe simply said "search me." Secretary of State Hughes scratched his whiskers and got an idea. The way to get this thing straightened out was to place Europe in the hands of a receivership composed of efficient American bankers who would run it along the lines of the Standard Oil and Steel trusts.

The plan was to make Germany pay the reparations to the Allies imposed upon her by the Peace of Versailles. When the Allies received these preparations from Germany they would then turn over the billions they owed to the United States.

Three great men were selected to do the job. Dawes, Young and Robinson. These bankers went to Europe and prescribed for the patient. They went over Germany and come to the conclusion that hundreds of millions of dollars could be taken out of the bodies of the German workers every year. In order to start the bleeding process, the German capitalists must have a gold loan, the German paper money being very good

MELANCHOLY

By Oskar Kanehl.

And those, who living still, are so:
The one is longing from dark cell for light,
Which behind grates tells him a lie of liberty.
Perhaps already happier, who in the neighbor-cell
Is running against stone-wall with the madness-skull.
The rest are working-animals.
Straps are cutting them deep in the flesh.
They don't more feel it.
They don't feel the whip upon the bony back.
They don't feel the wounds upon the naked foot.
They devour every fodder from the master's crib.
Joyless already long ago, now also without will.
Their faith chokes
In illness, dirt and disgust of treachery.
Hunger strangles revolution.
The fists fall and the hate becomes tired.
The hope-spark of their eyes goes out.
The hunter-poet's strophe hits upon deaf ears.
Look your exploiters' cynical luxury!
—it doesn't disturb them.
Do you hear raging the soldiery's victor-sneer?
—it doesn't provoke them.
Knowledge dies.
Sense extorted.
Farther no more.
On gas-cock hangs the hollow look.
Only this last class-pride is awake:
Although—then rather—
On pavement trickles our blood.
Slowly we are murdered.

ing classes who are accustomed to sweets.

In the last analysis this concerns not only Germany and France, but also Great Britain. Yes, even Great Britain will have to prepare for the same fate. In spite of what we often hear about the harmonious relations between America and England, of the Anglo-Saxon bloc, "Anglo-Saxon capital," "Anglo-Saxon policy," we are told that the most dangerous world antagonisms lie between American and Japan. This opinion, however, comes from those who do not understand the affairs of the world. The fundamental world antagonism is running along the line of interests of the United States and Great Britain. And this fact will become more and more pronounced as time moves along.

made quite a hit in social circles in the early days of the war.

Simple minded people and others not so simple minded held that the cause of the war was the hatred of Emperor William of Germany toward England because Queen Victoria once sneered at his withered arm. Others professed to believe that the crazy prophet Nietszche with his superman philosophy was the cause of it and that the great blond beasts from the Thuringian forests were setting out to rule the world. The socialists (who afterwards become known as Communists) held that it was a war between rival groups of capitalist nations for foreign markets and new territories. The socialists (who afterwards became lackeys of the bourgeoisie) held that every country in which the socialists found themselves, was fighting a war of defense and they felt it their duty to fight for the fatherland. The priests felt the same about it and they asked their God to bring victory to their country. At the same time other priests in enemy contries made similar requests on the same God. You can readily understand that he was in a most awkward position. The only thing he could do was to let them fight it out. They did.

An Appeal - -

By the Bulgarian Communist Party

Dear Comrades:—With the exception of a handful of big capitalists, bankers, speculators, and exploiters, the people as a whole, are determinedly opposed to the Fascist regime in Bulgaria on account of its anti-national internal and foreign policy, and because of unheard-of violence and bloody outrages perpetrated upon the toiling masses during its reign of terror. This fact is easily explainable to all those knowing that the terrorism and the extreme cruelty of the Zankov Fascist government, far surpasses the notorious outrages of all reactionary regimes ever known in the other countries, even the abominable cruelties of Italian Fascism; that in Bulgaria all the rights and liberties of the workers and peasants are suspended; that their organizations (parties, unions, co-operatives) are dissolved and every attempt at their restoration is most ruthlessly suppressed; that their press is continually raided and confiscated; that they are allowed no meetings; that the prisons are filled with workers and peasants whose only crime is that they are against the unbearable and intolerable Fascist regime; that the political opponents of the Zankov government are deprived of every kind of personal rights; that the organized political murders by the government secret service continue and finally that in the back of this political reaction, the gang of capitalists, bankers and exploiters are holding under their iron heels the workers and peasants and all the working people in the country.

The popular indignation against the Zankov government is rising still higher on account of the fact that the government appears as an agent of the old national annexationist policy of the Bulgarian bourgeoisie in regard to Macedonia and Thrace, thus pushing the people imminently toward new sanguinary conflicts with the adjacent countries, especially with Jugo-Slavia, Greece and Turkey.

The endurance of the masses is already exhausted. A national mass movement is spreading all over the country in order to liquidate once for all the unbearable Fascist regime. And it will inevitably be done away with, because it is impossible for a whole nation to allow itself for long to be robbed, terrorized and murdered by a small clique of criminal capitalists, bankers and speculators, who seized the state power in their hands by the coup d'etat of June 9, last year.

And it is just for this reason that the Zankov government, completely isolated in the interior of the country, is making superhuman efforts to get the support of the neighboring countries and the big capitalist governments, by endeavoring to present to the outside world the existing national movement against the Fascist regime as a bolshevist revolution "framed up" by the agents of Moscow, though it is well apparent at the present moment, that the question is not about a pending Communist revolution, but about a mass anti-Fascist movement, in which participate not only the workers, peasants and craftsmen, but also the Macedonian emigrants in Bulgaria, part of the reserve officers and a considerable majority of the intelligencia.

Simultaneously with this the Zankov government is planning new bloody pogroms upon the followers of the Communist Party and the Peasant Union, which pogroms it wants to justify with the necessity to avert the pending "bolshevist" revolution during the autumn.

The central committee of the Communist Party of Bulgaria, is in possession of positive information about the new plan of the government, according to which it will undertake during the second half of August, wholesale arrests of Communists and peasants, part of whom will be exposed to cold murder, as it happened last year, after the defeat of the September uprising, with several thousands of the best militant workers and peasants killed.

The central committee of Bulgarian Communist Party considers it its duty to warn the proletariat and all advocates of national liberty and all fighters against Fascism in the Balkans, in Europe and all over the world that the growing national movement against the bloody administration of Zankov is aimed exclusively toward removing the cruel Fascist regime and for the establishment of a real popular government in the country, and that the lies which the Bulgarian government is spreading concerning a pending "bolshevist revolution" planned by Moscow, is done with the purpose to justify the new bloody acts upon the masses which it has decided to resort to in order to save its shaky Fascist power.

The central committee of the Bulgarian Communist Party appeals most ardently to all other workers' and farmers' organizations and to all sincere friends of national freedom, to raise their voice of protest against the newly prepared terrors and murders of the working masses, by the Zankov government, and to exert all their influence in order to avert a new era of white terror by Bulgarian Fascism.

The Bulgarian working people need the broadest support of the international proletariat, in order to free itself of the unheard of tyranny which is menacing them with complete annihilation. They send distressing calls for this help, deeply convinced that they will get it and with this help will succeed soon in breaking the chains of the cruel Fascism and gaining its lost freedom.

Central Committee of the Bulgarian Communist Party.

Unity of International Trade Union Movement

tion of the unity of the international trade union movement? If they really believe that they will soon be convinced of the incorrectness of their standpoint. Some leaders of the Amsterdam International, apparently, consider it possible to prescribe conditions, thereby forgetting that the conditions depend upon the actual relation of forces. We must therefore advise the one and the other to abandon the idea of their being able to impose their will upon the revolutionary trade union movement.

What is the explanation of this policy of the Amsterdam International? It is due to the fact that there are a number of men in this international who would rather split the Amsterdam International than declare themselves ready to unite with the revolutionary workers. At the International Congress of the Metal Workers the representative of the French Federation declared that in the event of the Russian Metal Workers' Federation being admitted into the International, the French Federation would withdraw from it. For those people who have concluded an alliance for life and death with the bourgeoisie, who grovel before Herriot, splitting is better than unity. We must at all cost destroy that will for further splitting and dismemberment of the labor movement, which to a large extent still exists in the Amsterdam International. We can only do this if all the revolutionary organizations affiliated to the R.I.L.U. realize that the fight for the unity of the international trade union movement is a long and serious one, that it is no mere maneuver, but a real desire corresponding to the needs of the masses. Unity can only be the result of a long, persistent, systematic propaganda among the masses. The followers of the R.I.L.U. must link up the every day struggles against national and international capital, our struggles for the eight-hour day, for improving the conditions of the workers and our defensive and agressive actions, with the question of unity of the trade union organizations, we then shall be able to mobilize the masses for this slogan and convert this slogan into a battle cry of ten million proletarians. It is hard to say how much time we shall require to achieve this unity. But no matter how much effort it may cost us, the Comintern and the R.I.L.U. will continue the struggle they have taken up and will, in spite of all the sabotage of the reformists, bring about the national and international unity of the trade union movement.

I learn it with an awful shock that Pershing no more punch the clock. He hangs his sword upon the wall and won't work any more atall.

These army men don't till the soil, or mine the coal, or dig for oil. They build no houses for our use; no ounce of food do they produce; they make no clothes for us to wear. But of these things they get full share.

When real producers get too old, the boss, he shoves them in the cold. The boss he sez: "You are no good, because you can't work as you should."

If he had only told the truth, he'd say: "I've minted down your youth. Your strength has gone into my till; I've coined your energy and will; I've salted down your vital power for which I've paid you by the hour. Your limbs is stiff, your muscles weak, your energy has passed its peak. My bank account demands I should get younger men whose strength is good. Now out to pasture you must go. Praise God from whom all blessings flow. If no good pasture you can find, you can't blame people of my kind."

Not so with Pershing who's been able to feed his face at public table, whose rent and tailor bills wuz met by adding to the public debt. I see the daily papers say he will retire on full pay.

In summing up I must not fail to point the moral of the tale. The workers should be very wary of backing up the military. Just tell the bunch of khaki gobs that they must hustle for some jobs. They must create the means of life, instead of living off of strife. When you do this, you may be able to have T-bones on your own table, and usher in the glorious day when you'll retire with full pay.

Company fall out—and down!

THE COMMUNE.

From the red barricades of truth,
They stemmed the tides of tyranny;
Progressive proletarian youth,
Waged war on set senility.

The dying dawn blushed deepest red,
From a lad's breast, a waist was torn,
And wrapped around a worker's head,
And thus, the workers' flag was born.

Stained by the heart's blood of despair,
Washed with the tears that fell like rain,
Beneath its folds brave millions swear
That it shall never fall again!

For plebians everywhere have kissed
Now, at the mere word "Communist,"
Reaction trembles, faints and swoons.

Letters From Moscow - By Anna Porter

THIS week, I had the opportunity of joining a very interesting excursion into the country with Padboeski, the head of the Young Pioneer and Sports movements. He is a most vivid and delightful personality, and full of the idea of developing the working class, thru out door life and vigorous sports, into a strong and healthy race, to carry on the great proletarian task of rebuilding the world.

We met in front of the First House of the Soviets—two other Americans and myself—where we were joined by our host, who took us in; for without tiresome formalities (no doubt, necessary) of giving our credentials, taking a receipt, and receiving them again on leaving, you may not call even upon a friend in any of these hotels set aside for officials and representatives. It is nearly as hard to see Bill Dunne and Haywood (tho I have not tried) as to call on our Mr. Coolidge. So we were glad that Padboeski came along just then with his breezy salute and his red Pioneer neckerchief, and white Russian blouse and ushered us in without formalities. In his large family room, a few flannel shirts were strung on a rope across the extravagant window space, and his wife at once brought tea and bread and butter, which were served, as I imagine all meals are, on a small table drawn up informally before a sofa. His young son appeared, also in white blouse and red neckerchief, equipped with a camera and tripod, and with an air of great eagerness and responsibility. Then there was a tedious time of telephoning for an official "automobile," and of receiving a message that a working men's excursion club was about to board their train and must without fail have the honor of Padboeski's presence.

We finally picked up an attractive young Czecho-Slovak couple, and packed in, sardine-fashion, drove off directly thru the Red Square for the railway station. It was worth a sensation or two to dash thru the Red Square in a Soviet car, and we payed that tribute. The excursion train had already left, so, calling a G. P. U. man, (successor to the Cheka) we requisitioned, on the Crimea train, a "hard" or third-class section, sacred to railway officials. As we passed thru the car, crowded with all sorts and conditions of people, a young nursing mother quickly closed her dress. Another mother was glad to exhibit her little one, and answered proudly that he had been thru the "October ceremony," a rather new and not yet fixed form of dedication to the Red cause. October, the month of the Bolshevik Revolution, corresponds of course, in the Russian calendar, to our November, and we find streets and other places bearing the name of "Red October."

Our train pulled into Podolsk, a special stop for our distinguished selves, just ahead of the excursion train. A moment later, our company of Young Pioneers streamed out of the latter, and drew up in a very exact line all in their red neckerchiefs, boys and girls, in no fixed arrangement, and listened to a short address from their chief, followed by the young Bohemian, who spoke in German, in a spirit that was perfectly understandable if his words were not. Meanwhile, the Excursion Club, bearing the name of a comrade who had died in the cause, had descended and formed in line of march with a brass band at its head, and we fell in behind the band, and marched thru the little village with its deserted Singer sewing machine factories, to the place of encampment of the united Moscow Young Pioneers. As we entered the village street, two stately geese fell into line just in front of us, behind the band, taking themselves very seriously, but falling out of step with the "International," abandoned us like Tired Radicals.

At the encampment-place, a vast hollow square was formed, the excursionists, the Young Pioneers and the villagers making a crowd of perhaps a thousand. In the center, on a low mound, the guests of honor took their stand while half a dozen addresses were given, punctuated by salutes and watchwords and as usual at such gatherings, by strains of the "International". It was a beautiful and rather a gorgeous sight, all the boys and girls with their gay red neckerchiefs, many in abreviated gymnasium suits with their great red banners, mottoed in gold, and surmounted by the hammer and sickle, enclosed in a flame-shaped hollow metal frame; and mingled with them the young excursionists jointing with equal spirit in the ceremonies; and in the background on one side, a shaft with a statue of Marx, symbolizing, as it were, the new faith, and challenging on another side, the old faith, symbolized by a picturesque little old domed village church.

After several addresses, and many exchanges of salute by word and lifted arm, the working-men went on to their excursion grounds, and we left them and the Young Pioneers, in order to join others in the Moscow suburbs; but not until we had visited their Lenin Memorial House, in its litle fenced apple-orchard, with lawns and flowerbeds about the house, behind it an open-air theater and back of that again a football ground. Within the house, on each side of a central hall, with a large portrait of Lenin facing the entrance, were a library with reading table and literature and a visitors' book, and a work room with exhibits of various kinds of art and handwork of the young people. From there we caught the train, and enroute back to town ate the huge slabs of bread and butter that our host's thoughtful wife had provided for us.

At the Moscow Station, we were met again by the Soviet car and driven out to the Lenin Hills, where one formerly went for a well-ordered evening meal and to see the place from which Napoleon had shelled Moscow. The old restaurant is in ruins, and the whole locality has been taken over for a people's play-ground, and specifically for a great stadium, which in hope at least will be built in the triple amphitheater of terraced wooded hills that follow the bend of the river, gay with clusters of row boats. Washing the Kremlin walls, the Moscow River sweeps out in great curves through the country, and from these vantage hills, one looks out across two curves of the river to the domes and towers and walls of "Mother Moscow."

The green plateaus and wooden terraces were alive with Sunday picnickers. The Young Pioneers had organized the day,—as they have organized the place. Concessions have been leased to Nep providers, which helps to pay expenses and to start a fund for future development. Kiosks are scattered about and we had milk and cookies in an airy pavilion. Far off on the green, we spied a group of red satanic imps, who as we drew nearer, proved to be dancing group of workers' children, who have been taught by the children of the Duncan School. Only now and in this way has Isadora been able to begin to fulfill her dream of carrying her art among the people, for her struggle for existence (as an instructor) has paralelled the struggle of the Soviets, and I hear at the School the tale of the struggle and hopes and discouragements and the courageous persistence which have been hers. Out at the station, these workers' children gave a dance interpretation there on the green, of the "International,"while another large group sang with the band "con amore." Here too, we found the inevitable open-air theater, though today nothing dramatic was offered. Instead, all the different groups were amusing themselves quite independently with ring-games, ball, gymnastic or rowing, and finally forming in military line, each with its own banner and drums, and each leaving at its own time this idyllic gathering on the terraced hills beside the river.

This "Stadium" is not only a sport place, where sometime an architectural enclosure will be built, but is also an organization,—an organization with a dream of a great future. The dream is Padboeski's,—of an International Red Stadium to build up the working class of the whole world for worthy fulfilment of its mission. Its name already suggests the dream,—"Mekrastad,"—formed after the Soviet fashion, from the leading syllables of the words of its title, "International Red Stadium." We all joined the organization, of course, signing membership cards and paying in our rouble. And sooner or later, our American young people will be appealed to for membership roubles, and will be shown the very picture we made on this holiday. Watch for Pictorial Russia, and the Makrasted number, and be prepared to give your whole-hearted enthusiasm—young and old—to the support of Padboeski's dream, the building of an International Red Stadium.

On our way back, we visited the Exposition outside the town where we saw the Red mounted-soldiers jump-inf hurdles. It really was interesting watching the worker-soldiers training for the defence of the Revolution.

Back again in Moscow, we dropped Padboeski at his "Soviet dom" with outstretched hands ready to express our gratitude and enthusiasm, and to seal our promise of help for his Red Stadium with a cordial grasp. And we felt just a little rebuffed when we found we must part with a mere salute even so gallantly and joyously given. For, says this original man,—one of the signers, by the way, of the October Ultimatum,—the bourgeois hand-clasp is meanipgless, and the thing that unites us is higher than the personal—above our heads, as he raises his hand high. And so we can only imagine what a pleasure it might be to feel Padboeski's cordial hand-grasp. But the thing that unites us, we shall remember just the same, and that specifically for the moment is the International Red Stadium.

MODERN INNOCENTS ABROAD

for certain purposes but it had lost its self respect.

Now, the trouble began. Our American bankers were so innocent! But France did not want to see Germany getting on her feet and England thot France was too strong for her own health and the United States did not like the idea of having German goods flood the world's markets in competition with her own products. If the Germans must pay reparations, they must pay it in goods and if they produce goods that means congested markets which is not to the liking of the manufacturers in the so-called "enemy" countries.

It is a ticklish job. For instance Belgium was receiving thousands of tons of reparations coal from Germany. The Belgian coal mines not being able to compete with the German coal mines whose coal diggers worked for a lower standard of living shut down their mines throwing thousands of Belgians out of work. What can be done about it? The "innocents" are abroad but they cannot save Europe.

England wanted France to get out of the Ruhr, because the once proud dictator of Europe feared a combination of Alsace-Lorraine iron and Ruhr coal. France finally decided to get out, but slowly. Germany is beginning to pay reparations and a young American banker is chief bill collector. Already England fears that a great industrial revival in Germany will shut down British factories and the French fear that the same condition will place Germany in a position which threatens the safety of France. The capitalist groups hate and fear each other, because they know each other.

They also hate and fear the United States capitalists because they see in them young and powerful competitors, with plenty of money and raw wealth. America has become the dictator of Europe. The shirt sleeve aristocrats are now sitting on top of the world and the only thing that stands between them and happiness is the fear of a revolution.

The American bankers cannot restore Europe, because the capitalist system has outlived its usefulness. Germany can pay reparations only at the expense of further sacrifices of the German workers and the increased production in Germany necessary to pay the reparations means decreased production and unemployment in other countries. A system under which wealth is produced socially but owned privately cannot last. It cannot survive its own contradictions.

There is only one solution to what ails Europe. That solution is not the Dawes Plan. It is revolution. Had the workers of the rest of Europe followed the lead given by the Russian Bolsheviki in 1917 the world today would be on the road to recovery from the systematic poisoning of capitalism. But necessity will compel them sooner or later to follow that example.

Capitalism as a world system has seen its best days. In Europe it is making heroic efforts to return to normalcy with the aid of blood tranfusion from its lusty American cousin. But history has decreed that it will die. And to aid history perform its mission the Communist International is organizing the proletariat of Europe and of the world to hasten its exit and build on its ruins the Soviet Republics of Europe and of the world.

The Negro Worker and the Next War

The War That Made The World Safe For Imperialism

By PASQUALE RUSSO

DURING the presidential campaign of 1916, the democrats organized a huge political machine, spending millions of dollars in an effort to re-elect the late Woodrow Wilson, ex president of the United States.

In every political campaign it is customary to use slogans, the purpose of which is to mislead the people. In the Wilson campaign, the slogan brought forth was: "He kept us out of War." Implying by this that the safety of the country demanded the re-election of President Wilson. The phrase became popular and aroused a wide spread interest and enthusiasm. It created the impression that Wilson was a lover of peace and under no circumstances could he be induced to consent to the participation of the United States in the war then raging in Europe. The result when the votes were counted was to be expected. It was a great victory for the democratic party and for the second time Woodrow Wilson was honored with the high office of the presidency.

All during the campaign, election and inauguration of Wilson, Europe was in the thoes of the greatest war in history. Europe had been brought to the depths of agony and was bleeding from the iron rule of the militarists.

From the very beginning of the World War, in 1914 a very insistent propaganda was carried forward in the United States, by Morgan and other financiers in an effort to induce the government to join the other European assasins in the slaughter of the working people.

After three long years of effort, the ruling class was successful and decided to satisfy their demand for a war by entering the one then raging in Europe. As usual they did not ask the permission of the people. All the wolves of Wall Street saw fit to do was to instruct the newspapers, churches and chambers of commerce, in fact all bourgeois institutions to sanctify and bless our participation in the carnage.

The newspapers, as loyal servants of big business, began printing falsehoods alleging that atrocities were committed by German soldiers during the invasion of Belgium, while remaining silent regarding the ten million colored people in the United States living under worse conditions, many of whom were persecuted and lynched, not by Germans but by 100 per cent loyal Americans.

Woodrow was inaugurated as president early in March and on April 6th, 1917, forgetting the promises made to the people, informed congress that a state of war existed between the imperial German government and the United States of America. Thus the former pacifist and internationalist changed from "keeping us out of war" to "Make the World Safe for Democracy."

The next move of the president was the issuance of an appeal for volunteers but since the responses were wholly inadequate it became necessary to pass a compulsory draft act, thus saving the situation.

When the people definitely realized that the war was to be prosecuted with force and vigor they gave way to hysteria declaring for the defense of the Belgians and death to the Kaiser and German huns. Every lackey of the capitalist class declared themselves for the war; preachers, bankers, profiteers and other parasites, as far as speech was concerned declared for war. They instructed the people to make preparation for the battlefield while they secretly made arrangements to stay at home. Their policy being, of course to encourage and preach war while it was quite well understood the working class would do the actual fighting.

Some few individuals and several labor organization protested against the war policy but were quickly and rudely suppressed by the government. The colored population, in no instance offered a protest, but appeared to be very enthusiastic for the war and endeavored, up to the limit of their ability, to help the government crush Prussian militarism.

For several generations, the Negro race have been presecuted and exploited in America, but when the country was in need of their service they straightway forgot the past and gladly offered their lives for the glory of the "Stars and Stripes." This attitude during crises has happened during every wor. In the World War, 500,000 colored men and boys were drafted without one of this number attempting to evade.

They would have shown some strength of character if they had at that time asked the capitalist class this question: "You ask us to fight the Germans in order to make the world safe for democracy, but why do you not first make America safe for the colored people? You speak to us about German atrocities, but what have you to say respecting the atrocities actually committed against the colored people in the United States? In the past you have persecuted us, now you demand of us our lives that your interests may be furthered, to which we say 'nothing doing.'"

Right at that very moment an excellent opportunity presented itself for the Negro workers to refuse to fight. Like the white workers they had nothing to fight for. Unfortunately the Negroes had not their minds on their own best interests and foolishly let slip a golden opportunity. In place of taking advantage of the opportunity they offered their lives for imperialism and demonstrated that they heeded the negro politician and preacher. Everywhere colored men and women were exceedingly proud of helping the capitalist class in their war upon the Kaiser and it is with some regret that we remember seeing thousands of the parading in Michigan avenue exhibiting their loyalty to their masters.

The Reaction Against The Negro

It was an important event in the lives of many colored persons when they marched in one of the world's great boulevards, singing war songs while the white business men stood on the fringe of the crowd and vociferously applauded them. Every banker was enthusiastic about the loyalty of the Negro; every crooked politician, every business man was proud of the Negro soldiers. Their sentiments, at that time, were, "the Negro boys are good boys." Meaning, of course, that the boys were willing to die for the interests of their masters, the bankers of America. But this fake love for the Negro did not last long.

At the conclusion of the war, the war which had made the bankers of America safe in their exploitation of the workers, the Negro and white soldiers came back. The white soldier was told, by the master, he was no longer wanted in the factory because of over-production with no market for the goods already on hand. This was cruelty and ingratitude indeed, but the Negro received even worse treatment. Not only was he denied work but it was as much as his life was worth for the Negro soldier to appear in the streets of Chicago, Washington, Tulsa and many other cities in the country.

Gratitude for colored loyalty during the World War manifested itself during the years 1919 when many negroes were lynched or killed in the barbaric race riots of that year. The capitalist beast, organized mobbery, was at large, hunting and gunning for Negro blood, for which we may thank the folly of the colored people in their suport of a capitalistic war.

Two years have now passed since the atrocious race riots but the general situation has in no wise changed. Today Negroes are lynched, discriminated against in factories, restaurants, hotels and other public places, just the same as in the days before the war, aye, even the days before the civil war.

Letters From Our Readers

"Force and Violence."

To the DAILY WORKER:—You can hardly pick up a newspaper without reading the words, "Force and Violence." A bulky, brutal-looking policeman brings in a frail, innocent girl, beaten up and bleeding, and accuses her of "force and violence," while the truth is, the girl is the innocent victim of a bully with blood in his eyes, exercising force and violence under the convenient camouflage of, "law and order."

A man with a night stick in his hand, a gun in his holster, or blackjack in his pocket, represents Force and Violence. So does the soldier, the Baldwin-Feltz cutthroat, the Burns and other detectives, the under-cover man, the labor spy.

Use Force Against People.

The writing of an article, the criticism of an illegal act, the freedom of assemblage and speech, the peaceful picketing by a striking worker, are not "force and violence," but are termed so by the authorities who want to keep knowledge from the great mass of people.

As soon as a state becomes aware of its infirmity, it issues decrees of restriction, curtails liberty of the masses and uses force and violence against the people, especially against the workers at every opportunity.

Germany, because of its infirmity and fear of revolution has established a military dictatorship to deny birthright to the inevitable revoltion.

Say Revolution Is Manufactured.

Reactionaries in America slyly try to create the conception that revolution is a manufactured thing; that something like a trick could be put over by a few revolutionary, educated men.

The world is confronted with two alternatives, either to let history pursue its natural course and grant birthright to the new state of society or murder the child revolution, bolster up the old hank of hair and let that staggering carcass drag on for a few years longer and perform that same reactionary trick over again. See Austria!

Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria, Italy, all have the same reason and the same fear.—PETER KRONBURGER.

Hears Wheeler After Foster.

To the DAILY WORKER:—I receive you paper in my home daily (my first subscription for it) and altho I am not a member of your party, I sympathize with it in every respect.

The night after I heard Foster speak I went to hear Wheeler, the progressive party's candidate for vice-president, at the labor hall with about 2,000 more workers.

Wheeler Says Nothing.

Coming to my purpose in writing this letter I wish to inform you (and if space permits in your paper to publish my letter) I wish to inform those thousands of your readers, that Wheeler's speech was, in plain words, "First Class Capitalistic Bunk."

Besides the child amendment he practically said nothing that would benefit the masses of workers. He classed the workers as the "common people."

He didn't tell us what he stood for or what his party would do when elected except that such "crooks" as Dougherty would go to the Atlanta penitentiary. He did not prove to us that his party could destroy a system in which such men as Daugherty can be put in high office. He did not even mention the K. K .K.

His whole talk was practically devoted to jokes about the old parties and about Coolidge. He said he would tell us the real inside facts about Teapot Dome. Many of those present thot that he did, but you can go to 95 per cent of those present and ask them to tell you about Tea Pot Dome and they'd be "stuck."

Any one of your Communist speakers could have made him feel like "two cents" if they were there to ask him just about two questions. I'm sure two questions is sufficient. I hope I have "shown up" Wheeler and that you can find room in your wonderful paper for my "first" letter.

JOSEPH BASKIN.

Tribune for Jim-Crowism.

To the DAILY WORKER— The Chicago Tribune in its issue of Aug. 22, contains an editorial suggesting to Jim-crow recreational and amusement places in Chicago.

The Tribune states that Negroes and whites work together on the job without friction, but that the attendance at a theater, park or other amusement or recreational places of both Negroes and whites causes friction.

What About South.

Of course this is the worst sort of rot and fubbish. According to the Tribune, ideal relations should exist in the southern states between Negroes and whites. But we know just the opposite is true. The Negroes are cohstantly emigrating from the southern states, due to the very bad relationships between them and the whites in Jim-crow Dixie land.

The Chicago Tribune knows very well that Negroes and whites become friendly and understand each other by mixing and mingling together. The Tribune, the mouthpiece of the employers, endeavors at all costs to prevent that condition between black and white workers.

Jim-crow Good for Bosses.

The ideal state of Negroes and whites, according to this yellow capitalist sheet, is to keep Negroes and whites separated so that it will be easy for the bosses to direct the hatred of white workers against Negro workers, and the hatred of the Negro workers against white workers, while the exploiters and real enemies of both groups of workers, the employers, will escape unnoticed.

Negro Baiting in Tribune.

Of course the employers keep up The Tribune by their advertising, and this kept mistress must cater to their every want and desire.

This accounts for the constant Negro baiting of The Tribune.

Likes O'Flaherty Column.

To The DAILY WORKER:—I wish to renew my subscription on The DAILY WORKER for another six months. It is a very good paper for the workers and farmers to read. Mr. O'Flaherty is a powerful writer. I read his articles before I read the others, but of course, the others are good too.

I wish we had a paper like the "Worker" here in Minneapolis. We had a paper once, the "Daily Star," but it is gone against the wall. 6,000 workers and farmers lost our money (including myself) in that paper when the court ordered it to be sold. But I hope some day we in Minneapolis and Minnesota will have a real paper like the "Worker" to tell us the truth.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

WHEN the story of Ramsay MacDonald's acceptance of an automobile, plus $135,000 in American money, or thirty thousand pounds in English money, reached here it was suggested that this column offer a reward for the most stupid defense of the premier's action. It is too late now. E. B. Ault who writes a column, for the Seattle Daily Record, is awarded the prize even before it is offered. In order to effectively kill any ambition on the part of our readers to reach the pinnacle of stupidity scaled by Mr. Ault, his brief in behalf of MacDonald is hereby quoted in full:

"THE row about Ramsay MacDonald's endowed auto sounds something like the discussion when it was first proposed to buy an auto for the business agent of the painters' union in Chicago." There are plenty of people ready at all times to throw mud, no matter whom the target nor what his motives may be. That MacDonald would trade a baronetcy for an automobile is the sheerest nonsense. That MacDonald is greatly in need of an automobile and may not live much longer if he is compelled to spend so much of his time in London's underground railways may be the animus of the attack on him. If he cannot be killed off politically, maybe it can be accomplished in some other genteel way without having to resort to the favorite weapon of Italian politicians."

WE fail to see the analogy between a business agent employed by a union to transact its business, accepting an automobile from his union, and a labor premier, who is supposed to serve the interests of the class that placed him in office, accepting an auto with a bar of gold thrown in, from the capitalist class which the Labor Party came into being to fight and conquer. There is no analogy. Had the Chicago business agent accepted a limousine from Samuel Insull, along with enough American dollars invested in, let us say, the People's Gas Company, to keep it in gasoline, and pay a chauffer, then the analogy would be perfect.

MR. AULT did not mention the trifling matter of the $135,000 invested in Sir Alexander Grant's biscuit factory. HOW did that escape his attention? Of course in principle it was just as sinful for Mr. MacDonald to accept the automobile as to accept the auto with the dough. But if he first accepted the auto and took the money afterwards it might be better diplomacy. Something like the story of the unmarried Catholic lady who went to confess an indiscretion to a priest. Fearing priestly anger and a heavy penance and being gifted with a sense of diplomacy, she first admitted that while wooing Morpheus one night she found herself in close proximity to a pair of pajamas—the kind worn by the opposite sex. The priest did not consider this a mortal sin, and so informed the lady who replied: "But father there was a man inside of them." Mr. Ault might be able to explain away the auto on the ground of Mr. MacDonalds' health but what about the $135,000 inside the auto?

DAVID LAWRENCE, a writer for the Chicago Daily News on the political situation evidently is on the payroll of the republican campaign committee. He sees republican victories on all sides. Capitalist reporters like alienists, come to whatever conclusions their paymasters paychecks call for. Mr. Lawrence sees a republican victory in Minnesota, which proves that his eyesight is good. One of the reasons for his coming to this conclusion is that the vote-getting power of Magnus Johnson's limps is more than offset by the physical blindness of his opponent on the Coolidge ticket, Thomas D. Schall. "He is blind, which wins sympathy for him," says Dave Lawrence. If he has thirteen children and sold newspapers when five years old, Magnus will have to blow like a whale in order to lick him.

MR. SCHALL may be blind but he is not half as blind as the workers who vote for either himself or Magnus Johnson. It is remarkable how slow the workers are to learning the lesson, that if they are ever to get anything done for them they must do it themselves. The old fable of the lark in the meadow who never moved her brood until the farmer who was always waiting for somebody else to cut his hay finally decided to do it himself. So long as the workers wait for LaFollettes, Johnsons and other saviors to rid them of their troubles they will remain slaves.

THERE is something admirable about the way a capitalist politician puts up a bluff. All capitalist politicians assume that the masses are

Outline Problems of Carpenters

CARPENTERS CAN LEAD LABOR THRU FIGHTING POLICY

Convention Asked to Plan for Struggle

Carpenters meeting today in convention, in Indianapolis, are addressed in a statement, discussing the burning issues before the building trades, issued by J. W. Johnstone, on behalf of the Trade Union Educational League.

Calling for unity of all progressive forces to put the carpenters in the vanguard of the labor movement, Johnstone proceeds to get down to brass tacks on the knotty problems that must be solved to accomplish this purpose.

Johnstone's statement for the T. U. E. L. follows:

Statement by Johnstone

In the name of working class solidarity the Trade Union Educational League greets the delegates to the 21st Convention of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, beginning today in Indianapolis. We sincerely hope that in the deliberations to follow, the Brotherhood will lay down plans for the solidification of the ranks of the building trades workers, both on the economic and political fields of struggle.

The splendid advancement made by the carpenters in the years past, by progressing from weak and disconnected local groups to the present great organization, embracing some 327,000 members, is an achievement of which the carpenters can well be proud. But our pride in past accomplishments must not cause us to be

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 21.—There are 234 people in Dallas who hope to get a divorce this week. That is the number of suits filed for immediate action. Quite a number of these are Negro women. The cotton picking season being on, they have more funds than usual for such expenses.

ONLY THE MOST UPPER OF UPPER CLASSES CAN ASSOCIATE WITH WALES

SYOSSET, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Only persons having their names in the social blue book are eligible to parties in honor of the Prince of Wales. At a private dinner party in the home of John Sanford in Brookville, an elegantly dressed man got by the guards and danced with guests for an hour. By that time he had been looked up and found wanting socially. Two servants pitched him down the steps, matacca cane and all. State police are guarding the Borden home where the prince stays.

NEW JERSEY ON BALLOT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 21.—New Jersey became the ninth state to put the Foster-Gitlow ticket on the state ballot when this task was finally completed here today.

"We have put it over," declared Charles Krumbein, district organizer of the Workers Party, enthusiastically. "Now for the campaign and a tremendous vote on election day."

In addition to the presidential electors, District Organizer Krumbein reports that the candidate for United States senator has also gone on the ballot, while congresional and state legislative candidates in Hudson County too have gone over.

It is expected that a heavy vote will be cast for the Communist candidates in Paterson, N. J., where a big strike is now going on, in which the Workers Party is taking an active part. The silk strikers have gone thru a thoro education, both in the exploitation of the bosses and under the clubs of the police, aided by court injunctions. Thousands are expected to vote Communist in this election.

SURVEY SHOWS NO REAL MOVE TOWARDS JOBS

Slight Rise in Demand Changes Nothing

By JAY LOVESTONE.

Despite the increased demand for certain commodities occasioned by the seasonal influence of the Fall, the unemployment situation remains unchanged and as serious as it was during the summer months.

The boasts of the republican administration that industry is again on the upward grade find little substantiation in the latest official department of labor survey of industrial employment thruout the country.

Stagnation in New England.

In the New England district where the Coolidge clique is looking for its greatest support, the industrial situation shows no signs for the better. We find that the textile industry and the foundries and machine shops of Maine continue on part time schedules. The surplus of workers in this state is unable to find employment in other lines.

The lull continues in the New Hampshire textile industry, where the majority of mills are operating on a part time basis and others are entirely closed. The textile industry of Vermont is in as bad shape. In this state, part time operations obtain also in the wood working plants and railroad repair shops. In Coolidge's own state, Massachusetts, many textile mills are closed and others are run

I. L. G. W. DESPOT BANS MEMBER FOR SPEAKING

Seconding of Motion Is Crime, Says Perlstein

Chicago members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union are discussing the latest instance of official tyranny and gag-rule in that organization.

A girl who seconded a motion to reject a resolution submitted by International Vice-President Meyer Perlstein, which carried a condemnation of the "Freiheit," Jewish daily, was deprived of her membership rights for one year.

Dreams He's Czar.

On account of the vicious persecution that Perlstein visits upon all expressions of opposition to his Czarist rule in Chicago, it is impossible to publish the names and details involved in the case.

It is well known, however, the decision in this case specifically provides that it is a punishment for "seconding a motion" in a local union meeting. Perlstein rules that to stand for freedom of press and opinion is a crime so long as he reigns supreme in the Chicago organization. Members are no longer allowed even the right to "second the motion."

Feeds Flames of Revolt.

This case is adding new discontent to the already growing revolt against Perlstein's arbitrary action in raising the dues, by his own act, after the organization had rejected his motion to that effect. Members who failed to act in opposition to Perlstein's wrecking of the union last year are realizing at last their mistake.

I. A. M. DEFEATS JOHNSTON'S WAR ON COMMUNISTS

Convention Turns Down "Red Baiting" Proposal

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Sept. 21.—The convention of the International Association of Machinists gave a severe drubbing to the attempt of the Law Committee, inspired by President William H. Johnston, to slip thru a provision to legitimize "red baiting" in the union, placing the proposition on the table by an overwhelming vote after left-wing delegates had shown the true meaning behind it.

The Law Committee proposed a substitute for Par. 8 of the Platform, evidently aimed to give the officials ground for expulsion of all progressive and radical groups and members, and justifying the recent order issued to Toledo members to leave the Workers Party or stand expelled from the machinists.

Emme Gets the Floor.

The motion of the committee that was rejected, read as follows:

"We condemn and oppose any political group or program that contemplates the use of violence in achieving its purpose or the setting up of a dictatorship by any group."

Delegate Emme of St. Paul, spoke effectively, pointing out that this was but a veiled attempt to start this heresy-hunting within the union, and stifle radical opinion. Delegate McEacron of Tacoma, moved to table the proposal of the committee.

President Johnston tried his usual trickeries, first declaring the motion to table out of order, and when over-

BRITISH LABOR CHIEF FOR CLASS TOLERANCE AT MACHINISTS' MEET

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 21.—Brownley, head of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers of England, spoke today before the convention of the International Association of Machinists.

His speech seemed to be a delicate forerunner to the B. & O. plan which is to come up soon. He advocated the theory of the community of interest between the employer and the employee and pleaded for the joint control of industry by the two classes. This bird poses as a socialist occasionally!

He spoke in favor of admitting the Russian metal trades unions into the metal trades workers' international at Berne after indulging in the usual sickening red baiting.

The law committee is to report this afternoon.

LA FOLLETTE-WHEELER FORCES JOIN "STANDARD OIL" WALSH; FRAME-UP OF MONTANA LABOR

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BUTTE, Mont., Sept. 21.—Inside political circles in Butte and Helena are all agog over the latest "news" of the inwardness of the strategy of the Baldwin management of the LaFollette-Wheeler campaign as it has more or less become public property.

It is now declared that the refusal to recognize the Farmer-Labor ticket and the efforts to wreck the Farmer-Labor Party of Montana which has been continuous, vicious and nasty for the past month, was based upon specific orders from Senator Burton K. Wheeler himself concurred in by Senator LaFollette, because of an understanding had with Senator Thomas J. Walsh, the "Standard Oil" senior senator from Montana.

This is the Senator Walsh, who voted with the rest of the oil senators to oust LaFollette from the senate, ostensibly because he was unpatriotic during the war to protect Morgan's millions, but in reality because he opposed laws designed to further the interests of Rockefeller, which were sponsored or supported by Senator Walsh in company with the rest of the oil senators including Senator Smoot of Utah.

The deal is to vote for Wheeler instead of Bryan for the election by the senate of its candidate for vice-president in the event of there being no choice for president and vice-president in the electoral college, chosen next November, which, in the further event that the lower house becomes deadlocked on president up to March 4, next, the senate's selection for vice-president will automatically become president.

LaFollette Aids Standard Oil.

As a necessary part of this deal, so the inside story goes, both Wheeler and LaFollette are to use their best efforts to re-elect Senator Walsh. The latter will not be bound to vote for Wheeler for vice-president unless Walsh, old pal of Doheny, is successful in his own campaign for re-election, which now looks very doubtful in spite of Wheeler's ardent support.

Of course Senator Walsh, as a part of the deal, is to retire from the national campaign, forget about Davis and give his silent support to Wheeler and LaFollette. This idea is subtained by the fact that the LaFollette-Wheeler overlord of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana, Dewey Dorman, one time socialist alderman of Minot, and propagandist, but now a renegade, known to fame in Montana and Dakota as "Anarchist Island" Dorman, is the paid agent of Senator Walsh.

Two years ago he was a paid barker for Senator Wheeler, whose particular job in Montana for the past six months has been to deliver the labor and bankrupt farmer vote to Senator Walsh on the grounds of Walsh's labor record.

Dorman Is Renegade.

What made Dorman's support worth paying for is that he was once the Montana state manager of the old non-partisan league.

To have accepted the farmer-labor electors by the LaFollette-Wheeler forces would have greatly aided State Senator J. W. Atchison, a poor farmer of Richland County. Prominent as one of the old war horses of the non-partisan league, to whom Wheeler owes his election to the United States Senate more than any other one man, Anderson's name is on the ticket of this new party as its candidate for United States senator, hence the refusal to recognize that party or its campaigners had been prosecuted.

NEW YORK MILITANTS TO HOLD CONFAB FOR FOSTER AND GITLOW

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—On Sunday, at 2 p. m., Sept. 28, the militants of New York City including delegates from trade unions, Workmen's Circle and other fraternal organizations, and Workers Party and Young Workers League branches, and left wing groups, will hold their first conference at the Labor Temple, 243 East 84th street. The purpose of this gathering is to organize the local campaign in labor organizations in support of William Z. Foster and Ben Gitlow.

All the above mentioned organizations should immediately elect delegates so as to make the conference a tremendous demonstration for the Communist ticket.

The supporters of Foster and Gitlow are working actively to raise funds on the appeal which has just been sent out by the Workers Party Campaign Committee to local labor organizations.

electors, though all of them were publicly pledged to vote for LaFollette and Wheeler in case of their election.

Supports Infamous Reactionary.

As a result of Wheeler's deliberate sabotaging of the farmer-labor party and his open and unblushing support of the reactionary Walsh, who voted for the Esch-Cummins bill and who drew the infamous draft laws and the espionage act under which thousands of American working men and women, including Debs, were thrown into prison, the farmer-labor party members, all of whom worked so loyally to put Wheeler where he is, are becoming embittered and disillusioned and it will undoubtedly result in the LaFollette-Wheeler forces losing the State of Montana.

Cops Cut It Out.

TORONTO, Sept. 21.—Police persecution of Communists and other labor advocates for taking up collections at street meetings have ceased. The prosecutions started some time ago have fallen thru because the magistrate held that taking up a collection for the purpose of a society was not begging, under which head the labor

Help Mobilize 100,000 Workers for Communism

AN APPEAL TO THE PARTY BRANCHES

By C. E. RUTHENBERG
Executive Secretary, Workers Party

WE are in the midst of a campaign which is a test of our Party. The character of the work we do, the energy and enthusiasm we put into the work and the results which we achieve will be an indication of how far our Party has developed in becoming really a Communist Party.

We have been obliged by the objective circumstances of the class struggle in the United States to make a quick change in our policy. We were in the midst of a United Front campaign which we had been conducting for two years. We gave up that campaign because, for the moment, the conditions were such that we could not go forward. We entered the election campaign as the Workers Party, on our own platform, with our own candidates, in a straight out fight for Communist principles.

Such a change of policy is a test of a Communist Party. On the road to the Proletarian Revolution every Communist Party will face the necessity of making many such quick turns and right-about faces. Our Party will have to change its tactics as fundamentally as it did in July many times before it reaches its goal. The road to victory for a Communist Party is not a broad, straight road, on which we easily roll along.

The test of a Communist Party is whether it can, after such a change of tactics, quickly re-mobilize its strength and throw it into the work of carrying the Party along the new road it has entered upon. That is the test which our Party faces today. Can we, have we re-mobilized our forces? Is our Party working with the same energy and enthusiasm in the Communist election campaign as it was in the Farmer-Labor United Front? Are we making the most of our opportunities in the present campaign?

• • • •

More Work. Harder Work Needed.

These questions cannot be answered optimistically. Our Party has not yet re-mobilized itself completely for the Communist election campaign. The Party members and the Party branches are not working with the enthusiasm and energy which is necessary if we are to make the most of the present opportunity to forward our cause.

Some parts of the Party have responded and are working, but not with sufficient energy and enthusiasm. Other units of the party have not done any work at all so far as the election campaign is concerned and the campaigns which are part of this main campaign.

The whole Party was circularized and sent supplies for a Membership and DAILY WORKER Subscription campaign to be conducted in connection with the Election Campaign, but nothing at all has come of it, in spite of continued agitation from the party centre. The distribution of campaign literature is lagging and not enough meetings are being held. It seems only a portion of our Party is working.

Six Weeks to Intensify the Campaign.

We have six weeks in which to prove ourself, to intensify the campaign and to get the greatest possible results out of it for the Communist movement.

What are our possibilities? What can we hope to achieve during those six weeks if our Party throws itself into the work as a really Communist party would, if every member and every party unit goes to work with energy and enthusiasm to advance the support for Communist principles and to build the Communist organization?

WE CAN MOBILIZE A HUNDRED THOUSAND WORKERS IN A DEMONSTRATION FOR COMMUNIST PRINCIPLES BY CASTING THEIR VOTES FOR THE COMMUNIST CANDIDATES.

WE CAN ADD TEN THOUSAND MEMBERS TO OUR PARTY.

WE CAN SECURE TEN THOUSAND NEW READERS FOR THE DAILY WORKER.

We ask of the members of the Party whether to achieve these things is not worthy of the utmost effort on the part of every member of the organization. Would we not have a right to be proud of our work, if, when the election is over, we had rallied a hundred thousand workers behind our principles thru their casting their votes for our candidates, had added ten thousand members to the Party and ten thousand readers to the DAILY WORKER list?

A hundred thousand Communist votes would be real victory for us. Considering the hundreds of thousands of foreign-born workers who are disfranchised, the hundreds of thousands of native-born workers who are disqualified from voting, and that these workers are exactly those who feel the oppression of capitalism most and will be first to rally to the Communist cause, a hundred thousand Communist votes will be something we can be proud of.

Need any argument be made about the great gain which ten thousand Party members and ten thousand additional readers for the "Daily" means to us?

Achievements Within Our Grasp.

We can still make these gains for our cause, if WE PROVE THAT WE ARE INDEED A COMMUNIST PARTY. We must go to work in the

TEACHERS PLAN DEMONSTRATION FOR THURSDAY

Praise "Daily Worker", May Resort to Radio

With a ringing denunciation of the school officialdom, which is led by Superintendent William McAndrew and Charles M. Moderwell, president of the board of education, the organized teachers of Chicago, at the last session of the Teachers' Federation, decided to hold a mass meeting at the Studebaker theater on Thursday afternoon, the day after the final decision of the board becomes known, to present their case to the people of Chicago.

A suggestion that the proceedings be broadcasted by radio may be acted upon.

DAILY WORKER Wins Applause.

The teachers roundly applauded the praise given by one of their members to the DAILY WORKER for the attitude which the Communist organ has taken towards the war being waged between the rank and file teachers and the men in control, and accepted as just the criticism which the DAILY WORKER has made of the policy of the federation—that it is not firm and militant enough.

Margaret Haley, business agent of the federation, bitterly assailed the newspapers of the city which have been publishing false accounts of the actions of the teachers.

"The Chicago Tribune has come out with one false story after another," said Miss Haley. "The newspapers have repeatedly refused to print real news which might help people to understand our point of view. Other newspapers have followed the same policy."

While teachers were applauding Miss Haley's denunciation of the Chicago press, one of the teachers arose, saying:

"While we are knocking we might as well do a little praising. I wish that everyone would follow the complete, accurate and helpful reports carried in the DAILY WORKER."

Turn On The Tribune.

What basis the teachers have for dissatisfaction with the accounts of the teachers' fights against official control which the capitalist papers have printed, is shown by the story published by the Tribune on the day after this meeting of the federation, at which militant steps were determined on. The Tribune story was headed: "Rebellion (Among the Teachers) Is a Myth."

Rebellion—real rebellion—raised its head at the federation meeting while Margaret Haley told of the high-handed and tyrannical actions of Superintendent McAndrew in refusing to comply with a rule of the board which provides for the calling of teachers' councils, and the dismissal of the schools for a few hours during the year to allow these councils to meet.

Tries to Tire Teachers.

"This may seem a very trivial matter," said Miss Haley. "It is not. I have been reliably informed that this is but a preliminary attack—that the real purpose of McAndrew's present stand is to weaken the resistance of the teachers so that later on he can cut their salaries.

"Already McAndrew is planning a salary schedule based on secret markings, so that no teacher will have the right to complain if her salary is cut."

Present Case to Public.

The school board, at its regular meeting next Wednesday, may take one of two steps. It may decide to endorse Superintendent McAndrew's report amending the rules in such a way that he may call them at his discretion. It may refuse to endorse the report, in this way implying that it is the duty of the superintendent to call the meetings in accordance with the rule—an implication which it is generally understood that McAndrew will ignore.

In either case, the teachers of Chicago will meet at the Studebaker theater on Thursday afternoon, present their case to the public, and decide on further action.

DEFENSE DAY PROGRAM IN TOLEDO IS FIZZLE; JUST A FEW TURN OUT

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 21.—The Defense Day program held here, designed to promote interest in the Coolidge administration, and create sentiment for the next capitalistic war, was a frost, only a few turning out. Most of those who appeared on the streets in the parade were forced to march by their bloodthirsty employers. The rest were swaggering Legionaires anxious and glad of the chance to show off their uniforms, and thirsting for Communist blood. Altho the republicans tried to stir up enthusiasm, only a few flags were being displayed in twenty-five blocks.

NEVER HEARD OF NIETSCHIE, YET HE'S IN THE CAN

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Sept. 21.—Rev. Lawrence M. Hight, 48, Methodist minister of Ina, 13 miles from here, waived preliminary hearing when arraigned here today before Justice of the Peace, T. Morse, on a charge of first degree murder, in connection with the death of his wife, Anna, 44, demanded an immediate trial and was ordered held without bail for action by the October grand jury.

Pending his indictment by the grand jury the first week in October, Sheriff Holcombe said October 13 had been agreed on tentatively as the trial date in circuit court here.

Meanwhile, the little community of Ina is in an uproar with its population about equally divided between those who believe the pastor guilty, and others who believe his protestations of innocence and regard his arrest as persecution.

Canadian Labor Body Takes Firm Stand on Unemployed Problem

TORONTO, Sept. 21.—The Toronto Trades and Labor council is looking after the unorganized as well as organized labor in regard to unemployment. A sharp debate in the council was percipitated by a letter from Carpenters' union No. 27, which declared that the unemployed union man should be relieved before the council tackles the difficulties of unorganized labor. After a vigorous debate the council passed a resolution condemning an attitude unsympathetic to unorganized labor.

DUNNE SPEAKS AT CONFERENCE FOR CAMPAIGN

Call to All Workers for Wednesday Night

The militant workers of Chicago have issued a call to all class conscious workers to come to a mass meeting called by the Foster-Gitlow Conference Wednesday night, Sept. 24, at 8 o'clock at 2733 Hirsch Blvd., where William F. Dunne, just returned from Russia and candidate for Governor of Illinois on the Workers Party ticket, will be the principal speaker.

The capitalist parties in this election as in all others are trying to catch the votes of the working masses with their usual promises.

The reactionary leaders of the unions (who until this year have supported either the republican or democratic party) have combined with the socialists for the candidates of the bourgeoisie, LaFollette and Wheeler.

Workers Party Hope of Workers.

In this election the only hope of the workers is the Workers Party, which has put out a class conscious workers' ticket headed by the well-known militant labor leaders, William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow.

The question before the workers in this election is whether they will vote for the candidates of their employers: Coolidge, Davis and LaFollette or act as class conscious workers and support the candidates of their own class.

Those of you who want to know more about the issues before this campaign, are urged to come to this meeting Wednesday night, where Dunne and other prominent speakers of the Workers Party will put the issues clearly before you.

MOTHER BLOOR TO TOUR THRU THREE STATES

Mother (Ella Reeve) Bloor, famous Communist orator, is scheduled to make a tour thru the states of Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana, in the interests of the candidates of the Workers Party nationally and locally.

She will visit most of the mining camps of Illinois to bring the message of Communism to the unemployed coal diggers, and speak to the steel slaves of Lake County and Gary. Comrade Bloor's itinerary is as follows:

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 29-30, Street.

WISCONSIN, Sept. 22-30.

Milwaukee, Street and factory meetings, Sept. 22, 23, 24.
Racine, Thursday, Sept. 25.
Kenosha, Friday, Sept. 26.
Milwaukee, Saturday, Sept. 27.
Sheboygan, Sunday, Sept. 28.

ELECTION IN CHICAGO FEDERATION OF LABOR TO BRING NO CHANGES

The results of the election of officers to the Chicago Federation of Labor, which were held yesterday in the Musicians' Hall, Washington Avenue and Wells street, will be announced in Tuesday morning's DAILY WORKER.

Altho John Fitzpatrick, Edward Nockels and Oscar Nelson are supposed for election as president, secretary and vice-president, respectively, they no longer are leaders of the Chicago Federation of Labor. Fitzpatrick and Nockels, since their desertion of the Farmer-Labor Party, have made their surrender to capitalistic politicians complete by indorsing Len Small, republican candidate, for governor and are controlled in the federation by reactionaries like Olander and Nelson.

Fitzpatrick told the DAILY WORKER that no change in the policy of the Federation of Labor is contemplated as long as he is president, at the election yesterday.

The statement of the Workers Party and Trade Union Educational League of Chicago, that Fitzpatrick, Nockels and Nelson are unsupported by the trade unionists created a favorable impression on the rank and file trade unionists.

Many workers who are devoted to independent political action of the working class, and to aggressive action to organize the unorganized workers, left their ballots blank where the names of these three men appeared, they told the DAILY WORKER.

MEXICAN LABOR IN DEMONSTRATION OF SOLIDARITY TO 53

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 19.—A 72-hour strike of all textile workers in the state of Puebla is a protest against the arrest of 53 union workers who fought against the strike-breakers of the textile factory of Metepec in Atlixco. In an armed skirmish 18 were killed and many wounded. The carmen, the bakers and the milkmen will strike unless the 53 union men are released. The solidarity strike asks that the Metepec factory be closed and that three of its foreign directors be deported from Mexico.

SILLINSKY STILL LEADS SWEENEY IN TAILORS' POLL

Reactionary Stronghold Can't Overcome Lead

Max J. Sillinsky is still leading in the election for general secretary-treasurer of the Journeymen Tailors' Union.

That is the outstanding result of the voting in Chicago and reports that continue to come from other cities.

Tries Last Hour Roorback.

The present reactionary incumbent, Sweeney, made a last minute effort to roll up a majority in Chicago sufficient to overcome the lead Sillinsky has been piling up, thru a dastardly charge, published without the slightest supporting evidence, that Sillinsky had "defrauded the union" out of money.

By this eleventh-hour election trick he may have gained a few votes in Chicago, but this will be more than offset by the reaction against Sweeney and in favor of Sillinsky that will inevitably follow such cheap and dirty politics.

Trump Card Fails.

The votes reported to this time show that Sweeney failed in his trump card, which was to pile up a vote in Chicago that would outweigh the Sillinsky majorities coming in from all over the country. The vote stands so far:

	Sillinsky	Sweeney
12 cities reported Sat....	611	166
Kansas City	79	91
Chicago	195	522
	885	779

WORKERS PARTY SPEAKERS WELL RECEIVED HERE

Five hundred Pullman workers, mostly employes of the Pullman Car company, listened to Comrade Ella Reeve Bloor speak Saturday night at an open air mass meeting on the corner of 114th Place and Michigan Avenue.

The DAILY WORKER copies on hand were entirely sold out, and intelligent questions were asked by the audience who stood for two hours listening to Comrade Bloor expound the class struggle and tell of the program of the Workers Party.

Two more open air mass meetings were held Sunday, one in the afternoon in "Bug House Square," Clark street and Newberry place, and the other in the evening at the open forum, in Washington Park on the South Side.

Comrade D. E. Early reported a good meeting at Division and Washtenow streets and Pete Herd spoke to 200 people at the corner of Roosevelt and St. Louis.

Several hundred Garveyites who held a meeting at the corner of State and 30th streets, stayed to hear Gordon Owens, Negro candidate for U. S. Congress and George Maurer, also a candidate for the House of Representatives, explain the position of the Communists on the Negro question. Gordon Owens explained to the 400 people the futility of attempting to migrate to Africa. He declared there should be no division of the workers along lines of color or creed, but that all workers should unite with their class to war on the employers of labor. Owens showed the impossibility of solving the problems of capitalistic society by withdrawing to another capitalistic country. He urged the Negroes present to join the trade unions wherever possible.

A sympathizer with the Ku Klux Klan resented Comrade Bloor's remarks denouncing the Klan for its attempted disruption of the miners' organization, at her Pullman meeting. This worker, however, was lauched to silence by the crowd when he admitted he is of foreign birth, and as such, is being persecuted by the Klan.

LaFollette and Wall Street Agree on Next War's Preparations

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, "Cautious Cal" Coolidge and Senator LaFollette are practically agreed on the question of preparing for the next war.

While Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, after his hurried transcontinental tour to Washington, is closeted with President Coolidge, at the nation's capitol, Senator Wheeler, running mate of the Wisconsin senator, is on tour talking about "the war record of LaFollette."

* * * *

I heard Wheeler make his speech in Chicago. Merely the mention of "the war record of LaFollette" brought some applause. But that was as far as Wheeler went. He dropped the subject like a hot potato, turning instead to the Lorimer-Dawes bank scandal.

For further information, however, about LaFollette's attitude towards war, turn to the last page of the pamphlet, "Where LaFollette Stands on Fifty Living Issues" and read what is there set forth under the heading, "National Defense." These pamphlets were distributed free of charge. This last page declaration says:

"I believe the people should be informed that the great battleships now under construction, at a cost exceeding forty million each, offer little or no protection, and that our true safety lies, even if we are to be attacked, which is an impossibility for years to come, in the laying of mines, the strengthening of coast defenses, and the building of a reasonable number of submarines and aircraft."

* * * *

The above paragraph is taken from a speech made by Senator LaFollette in the United States Senate, May 16, 1921, on the Naval Appropriations Bill. It is typical of his attitude during the entire war, trying to show the big capitalists how to conduct their war; and it is his reiterated position now, thru the circulation of this material as campaign propaganda.

* * * *

LaFollette raises the fiction of "national defense," that leads on to so-called "defensive wars." Every capitalist nation in the last world war declared it was waging a "defensive war." The Russian workers and farmers exploded this fiction when they quit fighting for the czar, drew out of the imperialist slaughter house and established their own rule.

LaFollette is opposed to $40,000,000 battleships. So is Wall Street. So is Morgan. So are the navy experts at Washington. So are the war experts of Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan. They agree with LaFollette that battleships are out of date. They agree with LaFollette that "submarines and aircraft" will be the murder weapons of the future.

LaFollette did not oppose the last war. He is not now opposing preparations for the next war. When the next war comes he will not oppose it. He will merely offer his advice on how to run it, especially urge the capitalists to adopt his plans for financing it.

* * * *

But there are those who will exploit "the war record of LaFollette" to the limit. Among these will be found the German capitalists and small business men in the United States. The Steuben (German-American) Society has endorsed LaFollette. One of the members of the constitutional council of the Steuben Society is George Sylvester Viereck, during the war, before the United States entry into it, the Kaiser's propaganda agent in this country.

Viereck was literary agent for Theodore Roosevelt during the height of the Bull Mooser's career. It will be remembered that Roosevelt, during his tour of Europe in 1910, stood side by side with the Kaiser reviewing the German imperial army, lauding the Hohenzollern military machine.

Roosevelt came to Europe after his lion hunting expedition in Africa in 1909, and the Encyclopedia says of his European tour, "His most striking experience was in Germany, where he was received with cordiality by the Emperor."

* * * *

The German capitalists in the United States, those who long for the return of the Kaiser and the monarchy in Germany, are supporting LaFollette in this campaign. When there are indications of revolt within the Steuben Society, against the endorsement of LaFollette, it is the ex-Kaiser's agent, Viereck, who is most strong in his defense of the Wisconsin senator.

This is one of the main reasons why German workers and farmers in the United States should bitterly oppose La Follette.

LaFollette is not opposed to the wars of capitalism, and in the next Wall Street war, to protect the loans of the House of Morgan, it will be the German workers and farmers, in this country, as well as workers and farmers of all other nationalities who will be called into the trenches, to bleed and die for the Almighty American dollar.

* * * *

The interests of the German workers and farmers in this country are identical with the interests of the hungry and jobless workers and poor farmers in Germany. They are all faced with but one struggle—the ending of the rule of the capitalists in both Germany and in the United States.

* * * *

Let workers of all nationalities, in these United States, as well as native-born Americans, ponder these facts, and then they will realize why they must give their support to the Communist candidates, William Z. Foster, for president, and Benjamin Gitlow, for vice-president. Foster and Gitlow lead in the fight for the working class against the capitalist class. Coolidge, Davis and LaFollette are on the side of capitalism against the workers. On which side are you?

Machinist Delegates Defeat Johnston's War on the Communists

ruled on that, declaring that the "noes" had defeated the motion to table. A division was demanded from the floor, however, and all Johnston's cleverness availed him nothing except to expose him, for the division showed that the convention was overwhelmingly in favor of killing the proposition.

The convention is in a rebellious mood against the raw attempts at domination of the Johnston machine. Emme struck a responsive chord in the debate on the above question, when he said: "If you are going to go hergey-hunting in the machinists' union, why don't you come out in the open and say who it is you want to be thrown out of the organization." Another delegate declared that the whole proposition was so veiled that it meant nothing and anything, and could not be understood by anyone.

Johnston is using "red-baiting" tactics to regain his lost ground, two of his principal assistants being Robert Haberman, renegade socialist now in the service of the Mexican government, and the British representative, Mr. Brownlie. But the convention has shown that it is absolutely opposed to throwing out members because of their political beliefs. And some of the old fighting spirit of the organization is again coming to the fore-front.

MACHINISTS KILL FAKE INSURANCE PLAN IN DETROIT

Delegates Down "Compulsory" Scheme

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 21.—The convention of the International Association of Machinists rejected the proposal of the general officers to turn the union into a compulsory insurance society.

It was the first major defeat of the Johnston administration, and when the vote was shown so overwhelmingly against the insurance proposal, predictions were rife in the convention that this foreshadows an even more bitter struggle over the "B. & O." plan, which reactionaries are even more determined to establish and the radicals to defeat.

Chicago Delegates Lead Fight.

The progressive forces in the convention, led by Bernard Koretz and Pete Jensen, of Chicago, and John Otis and A. T. McNamara, of Pittsburgh, made a frontal assault upon the insurance scheme, condemning it as a part of the wholesale plans of class collaboration of Wm. H. Johnston and his lieutenants. Even the old-timers in the union who have been sentimentally following Johnston voted against him and his measure.

In spite of all the well-planned efforts of the reactionaries, this convention has not repudiated the class struggle. Every speaker has admitted the necessity of a fighting policy against the capitalist class, and even President Johnston, bowing to the spirit of the convention, makes occasional mention of the class struggle.

It is the B. & O. plan that is going to furnish the biggest battle of the convention. The real test between progressives and reactionaries comes on this issue. No matter how the delegation is violently opposed to the plan, and many delegates from cities in the U. S. who came here still under the influence of the efficiency engineer, Beyer, and his propaganda, have joined to forces pledged to sink this collaboration scheme into oblivion.

Ask About "B. & O." Workers.

The fact that the Glenwood local, where this scheme was first put into effect, has not even a delegate to the convention, has had quite an effect upon the delegates here. Delegates are preparing to demand an explanation also, as to why the locals on the "B. & O." railway, where thousands of machinists work in the shops, only have 100 to 200 members. Why are these men not organized? William H. Johnston and his "expert," Captain Beyer, will have a hard time explaining to the delegates.

According to the Pittsburgh delegates, the men in the "B. & O." shops are themselves opposed to the plan The railroad delegates here are so overwhelmingly against the scheme, that it is absolutely impossible for it to be carried unless the delegates from the contract shops vote it over on them. The contract shop locals are in a majority in this convention.

Railroad Locals Demoralized.

At the Rochester convention, four years ago, the reverse was true; the railroad locals were in the majority. But the railroad locals are badly demoralized as a result of the defeated shopmen's strike, so that they have been unable to finance delegates to this convention. Johnston is counting upon this fact as his only hope to jam the B. & O. plan down the throats of the railroad machinists.

Benny to Call Chamber.

ROME, Sept. 21.—Premier Mussolini today decided to reassemble the chamber of deputies on Nov. 15.

Vote Communist This Time!

RAIN HALTS STRAW BALLOTING; WILL CONTINUE TODAY

The straw ballot which was to have been taken Saturday in another of the factories being covered thru the DAILY WORKER-Workers Party straw ballot, was called off because of the heavy downpour of rain. The ballot was to have taken place at 6 a. m. at which time rain was still strong. However, the factory missed in addition to the one regularly scheduled for today, will be handled tomorrow. Results will appear in Tuesday's issue of the DAILY WORKER. It may be pointed out that the Workers party were organized inside the shops, on the basis of Shop Nuclei, then there would be no postponements of any party activity on account of rain. The straw ballot is proving very popular and is stimulating discussion on the three capitalist candidates and the only workers' candidates on the presidential ballot, Foster and Gitlow of the Workers Party.

KU KLUX KLAN SHOWS ITSELF UP IN PAPER

Big Fight is to Kill Bolshevik Ideas

Admission that the Ku Klux Klan, under the cloak of supporting the American constitution, is in reality a bosses' organization which fights working class parties is contained in the latest issue of the Illinois "Kourier," official organ of the Ku Klux Klan.

"The most dangerous foes are false ideas," declares this paper. "We prepare against the entrance of Bolshevistic Russia, but let the ideas of Bolshevism come in. If we are to keep undesirable aliens out, by all means let us keep out their undesirable ideas."

For Class Collaboration.

The Klan, while claiming to be tolerant and freedom loving, lines up with Frank Farrington for class collaboration. "We believe in a closer relationship between capital and labor," says the Klan mouthpiece. "We believe in the prevention of unwarranted strikes by foreign agitators. We believe the rights of American citizens are superior in this country to those of unnaturalized citizens."

The Klan thus throws off the mask and comes out flatfootedly as a Fascist movement formed by capitalists to fight the working class. In another part of the paper the Klan brags that it took a leading part in defense day September 12, designed to promote interest in capitalistic wars. "A distinct honor was conferred upon Charles G. Palmer, Grand Dragon, K. K. K., Realm of Illinois, when he was invited to be one of the principal speakers at Chicago's official demonstration in Lakeside Park," says the paper. "Mr. Almer, who is a prominent attorney, was a member of the Governor's Committee for Defense Day arrangements."

A Black United Front.

The Ku Klux Klan, while it tries to create riots and dissension among the ranks of organized labor, and while it seeks to divide the workers by race, creed, religion, and in any other possible way, at the same time puts up a united front with the capitalist politicians, with the church, with the capitalist militarists, and with the enemies of organized labor. The Klan comes out for class collaboration, against strikes, and against the "communists" and "foreign agitators."

The Ku Klux Klan, like the Italian Fascisti, is the enemy of the working class, and must be exterminated and shunned by all workers who are loyal to their class.

Crown Prince Sick.

PUERTO REAL, Spain, Sept. 21.—The Crown Prince of Abyssinia, who has been touring Europe, became suddenly ill here today while preparations were being made for public festivities in his honor.

RAILROAD LORDS MEET TO FIND OUT HOW TO CUT WAGES OF LABOR

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The association of railroad executives have held a meeting to discuss plans for extending the influence of the open shop drive and devise ways and means to reduce the wages of the railroad workers.

The announced purpose of the meeting which was attended by the presidents of the principle railroads of the country, was "stabilization of unemployment." However, it is understood that discussion of the unemployment problem included ways and means to cut down the force and retrench during the industrial depression.

Interview With Karakhan, the Russian Ambassador to China

Editor's Note.—We print the following interview with Ambassador Karakhan, Russian representative to China, who has been negotiating for over a year for a Russian-Japanese treaty, which we think gives a clear insight into the situation.

By ROSTA.

PEKING, China, Sept. 19.—The Rosta News Agency is in a position to publish the following interview which was granted by Mr. Karakhan to Mr. Fuse, representative of the Japanese paper, the Osaka Mainichi.

"Profiting by the interval in the Russo-Japanese negotiations," reports Mr. Fuse to his paper, "your correspondent called on Ambassador Karakhan, who is still living in the building of the Soviet Mission ouside of the legation quarter.

Note Must Be Free of Conditions.

"'It is probably my last opportunity to talk with you in this study.' I remarked. 'Why?' asked Mr. Karakhan rather astonished. 'Well,' my reply was, 'tomorrow or the day after, or at any rate one of these next days, you will receive from Mr. Yoshizawa, the present doyen of the diplomatic corps, an invitation to take possession of the building of the legation, and you'll move there' This reply drew a smile from the Ambassador, who remarked that he was 'not so sure of it, anyhow until he would receive a note free of any conditions. . .'

Then I continued: "You have been in Peking nearly one year. I should think you have never been so busy during this last year as you are now—since you have to wage diplomatic war simultaneously on two fronts: the Japanese and the Chinese. . .' 'No, not exactly,' proclaimed so loudly Mr. Karakhan, 'for think how many fronts it will make if you look at the diplomatic body here!'"

Relations Friendly.

"My next question was: 'Both your name and the name of Mr. Yoshizawa are most popular with Japanese today. In both your persons we have 'the right men in the right places.' We have heard it reported that the the negotiations between you and Mr. Yoshizawa often assume an acrimonious character, you are, however, good friends in your personal relations. Am I right, then, in believing that this circumstance does much to facilitate the fulfilment of your most difficult task?—'You are perfectly right'—came the Ambassador's reply. 'We respect each other and have mutual confidence. This is certainly of great importance. But for this circumstance, it is easy to imagine how difficult it would be to continue these most difficult conferences. Indeed, if our negotiations are doomed to failure, the sad end would certainly have come earlier than necessary were it not for the mutual respect and trust shown by the two negotiators.'

For Open Diplomacy.

"Your correspondent then expressed admiration at Mr. Karakhan's success in concluding the treaty with China. 'It is truly a wonderful diplomatic ability and, especially, in the tactics of strictest secrecy, that you have shown in your recent negotiations with Dr. Koo' I remarked. 'However, does not such tactics of secret diplomacy stand in contradiction with the principle of open diplomacy, which your government proclaimed so loudly to the world at large in the early days of the Octhober revolution and to uphold which you have yourself, as one of the leaders of the Soviet external policy, personally so energetically strenuously these last years?'

"'But we are still now for open diplomacy,'—retorted Mr. Karakhan—'for we believe that every people must know what its government says when speaking with foreign governments. We call secret diplomacy the policy of concealment from one's own people. Now, in the negotiations with China it was not from our people, but from our enemies that we had to keep the secret. You must know that we have not a few enemies who could hinder our work, and it was from such that we kept secret the negotiations. This is not at all secret diplomacy, but only a war ruse, which even the best strategists never fail to have recourse to.'—And so it was that my attack on Soviet "secret diplomacy" was repulsed by a resolute counter-attack. Then, after brief pause, Mr. Karakhan added: 'It is a pity I am not in a position to make public the course of Soviet-Japanese negotiations.'

Negotiations Not Off.

"To my question: 'How would it be right to call the present position of your negotiations with Mr. Yishizawa: an adjournment, a rupture, or a breathing-space?'—Mr. Karakhan's reply was: 'Your question I can answer as follows: at the last session, Mr. Yoshizawa proposed to adjourn the conference, as he must report to his government on the course of negotiations. So the latter were interrupted. The negotiations are to be resumed immediately Mr. Yoshizawa (either after he receives instructions or without waiting for them—I don't know) invites us to a session.'

"The next question was: 'Referring to the Soviet-Chinese and the Soviet-British negotiations, it was first reported that they had ended in failure, but then news was soon received about the signing of the two treaties. Now, five days ago you said about the Soviet-Japanese negotiations that the situation was critical, and a day after that they were interrupted. If we look at the experience of the Soviet-Chinese and the Soviet-British conferences, should we not say that we are now oto on the eve of a Soviet-Japanese agreement?'

Mr. Karakhan's reply, however, was: 'It is risky to draw such a parallel. As you know, the Russo-Chinese agreement was finally signed but two months after the rupture. True, the Soviet-British agreement was signed twenty-four hours after the breakdown. However, in neither case did we make any concessions. As regards our negotiations with Mr. Yoshizawa, they have not been broken up, but only adjorned. This has happened before. The only thing is that now this interruption has taken place at a time when the conference had reached a crucial and decisive point: that is why the impression created is more vivid. However, we are waiting quietly. I hope Tokyo will take stock of the seriousness of the situation and will come to realise that we cannot give Japan more than we gave other states.'

Believes Situation Is Serious.

"The next question was: 'When Kiyura's cabinet gave place to Kato's ministry, Trotzky, Yoffe and other Soviet leaders in Moscow made statements to the press, expressing most optimistic views on the future course of Soviet-Japanese negotiations. However, if the conference is now deadlocked, as you say, does not it show that the optimistic views of the Moscom public men have not been justified?'

"Mr. Karakhan's answer: 'I must say that immediately after the change of cabinets in Japan I myself had the opportunity of voicing, in an interview, my hope of a turn for the better. However, I must say now that the situation is most serious.'

"Before leaving, your correspondent asked one more question: 'Do you believe the complications between Japan and America may have any bearing on Russo-Japanese relations?'—'Well, it's a question I wanted to ask you myself. . .' remarked Mr. Karakhan.

Thus ended your correspondent's conversation with the Soviet Ambassador. Abiding by an understanding with Mr. Yoshizawa, the details of the actual Russo-Japanese negotiations were not touched upon—much to the regret of both interlocutors."

100-PERCENTER GETS IT IN THE NECK AT UTICA

Workers Party Speaker Holds Big Crowd

By ROSE PASTOR STOKES.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 21.—I had the best meeting yet—here in Utica. I spoke on Franklin Square. The capitalist press, for some reason, had announced that the socialist party was going to hold a meeting there and when we arrived the comrades found an old local SP-ite with a woman speaker ready to take possession, but we beat them to it.

We had a large crowd, over 600, and they stayed thru to the end of the meeting.

As the questions I called for were not forthcoming, the crowd was beginning to disperse when a 100-percenter started something. He asked why I don't like America. And that gave us an opportunity to reach a new crowd.

It was just the hour when theaters crowds come out on the streets. I pitched in on the answer and I soon had an even larger crowd than before.

D. of J. Bully Squelched.

Several times reactionary hecklers tackled me and got the worst of the argument every time. One man who turned out afterward to be a detective in the department of justice service, was rough-handled by a policeman for attempting to disrupt the meeting. He was indignant and showed the policeman his badge, and I, noting the gesture announced to the crowd the reason for this man's 100-percent enthusiasm for things as they are, Daugherty, oil and booze figured in the explanation.

The great crowd from the start were won over and nobody could start trouble. After coming close to the ear from which I spoke, and shaking his fist in my face, the bully slunk away to the outskirts of the crowd and nothing was heard from him after that.

DAILY WORKERS Sold.

I made a special DAILY WORKER talk showing the workers' need for viewing their problems in the light of their own interest and not in the light of their bosses' interest as in the capitalist press where the news is colored in the interest of those who own the press. This called attention to the DAILY WORKER and we sold all the copies we had.

Long after the meeting was over the crowd stood about in little knots and discussed the question of Workers and Farmers government and Sovietism against Capitalism.

SLIGHT GAIN IN JOBS THRU TWO STATES IS INSIGNIFICANT; JOB PROBLEM FOR MILLIONS UNSOLVED

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

The sharp drop in employment which began in April and created an army of jobless workers unparalleled in any recent year except 1921 appears to touch bottom. That is the interpretation put upon August employment reports by the state labor departments of Illinois and New York. The Illinois department sees evidence of prospective improvement in an increase of three-tenths of 1% in the total volume of factory employment. Illinois coal mines show a 14% gain in the payrolls and per capita earnings increased from $28.66 to $33.16 in 30 days.

Still Severe.

In spite of this optimism unemployment continues severe thruout Illinois with 152 applicants at the free employment offices for each 100 jobs. This is an improvement over the two preceding months but it marks this August as the worst in five years with the exception of August 1921 when there were 211 registrants for each 100 opportunities to work. There are still at least 80,000 factory workers out of a job who were employed in the state a year ago.

More plants in Illinois took on workers during the month than laid them off. Of 10 industrial groups, six made gains and of 55 individual industries 39 showed increases. Of the 13 principal cities for which employement data is analyzed, eight showed more workers employed in August than in July.

Merely Checked.

The report, however, points out that such figures are more important as showing that the downward course of industry has been checked than as showing any improvement of great consequence. The slight gain during the month, it says, still leaves the number of workers in manufacturing industries at a point 3.3 per cent below the average for the year 1922 and 14.2 per cent below the level of August, 1923.

Per capita weekly earnings, on the other hand, increased 1 per cent to $26.96. This also represents a gain over August, 1923, altho it is still $1.37 below the peak which was reached in June, 1923.

Several important reductions were reported in New York state factories, says commissioner B. L. Shientag's report, but there were enough increases in work to offset the decreases so that the total volume of employment went no lower from July to August. That means that over 200,000 workers who were on New York factory payrolls in July, 1923, are still out of work. It means that employment in the state is still 14 per cent below March.

Building Material Drops.

Shientag reports the important decreases in the building material industry, while the significant increases occurred in furniture, pianos, shoes and other leather goods. The farm machinery and electrical equipment group of industries together with the iron and steel mills held practically even. Slight gains were reported in automobiles and stoves. Textile mills were reported still in the midst of severe depression with only about half of the cotton mill employes of a year ago still employed.

Employment in New York City fell during August in contrast with the rest of the state. Shientag attributes his in part to the failure of the clothing trades to show the usual seasonal revival.

The situation in these two states is typical. Altho the next months will probably show some revival there are no indications that this can absorb the millions of unemployed before winter sets in.

Charge Mayor With Assault.

DIXON, Ill., Sept. 21.—A warrant charging assault with a deadly weapon and with intent to do bodily harm was to be served today on Mayor George W. Johnson, of Franklin Grove, as a result of his alleged attack on Bertha Zoller, following a controversy over his orders that her dog be killed.

The Last of the Mohicans.

ANDERSON, Ind., Sept. 21.—Only eight of the 116 survivors of the one hundred and thirtieth Indiana regiment of Civil War veterans were present today for the organization's fourtieth annual reunion.

WORLD WAR HAS LEFT TRUST IN DICTATORSHIPS

Ramsay Mourns Decay of Capitalist Democracy

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald, writing today in a special "No More War Edition" of the laborite organ, Daily Herald, compared present conditions with those that existed in 1914, before the war burst upon the world.

The War Failed.

"No one has come into direct contact with the facts can doubt that the mentalities of nations today, their fears and the safeguards they seek are as menacing to peace as those before 1914," wrote the premier. "The war failed lamentably as it was bound to fail, in settling moral issues and changing spirit. It has not established democracy nor a spirit of democracy, but has left a trust in dictatorship and force and an impatience with ordered progress and national good feeling.

Cursed With Fakers.

"The old enemies were beaten and yet none are safe. What curse is this under which mankind lives that we seem to sacrifice, but never attain?

"This country has just escaped from one of the greatest military dangers ever threatened under the guise of peace—a treaty of mutual guarantees."

Premier MacDonald said that the laborite governments had given Europe its chance of peace by raising the banner of arbitration. He concluded:

"What we have achieved at London and Geneva cannot be wholly undone."

What a Hypocrite!

While MacDonald was thus proclaiming himself as a man of peace, British armed forces, with his consent and under his authority were busily engaged suppressing the liberties of people in China, India, Egypt, Mesopotamia and several other countries.

MacDonald mourns the decay of bourgeois democracy. He takes a veiled slam at the dictatorship of the proletariat in Russia, which is a government of, by and for the great majority of the people of that country the workers and peasants. The premier knows, unless he is suffering from premature senility, that there can be no peace as long as the capitalist system exists, and that the real struggle now is, which dictatorship shall rule in the near future, that of the workers or the present veiled dictatorship of the capitalists?

Export Coal from Russia.

KHARKOV, Russia, Sept. 21.—During 1924 it is planned to export coal from the Donetz basin both to Mediterranean ports and to Baltic countries. The mines have so improved, and the need of Russia for purchasing power abroad is so great, that it is planned to export about 300,000 tons of anthracite and the same amount of soft coal. The production of coal for July, 1924 in the Donetz basin was 800,000 tons.

May Seattle Spanish War.

PARIS, Sept. 21.—High Spanish officials today had reports that the Spanish directorate had opened negotiations with Abdul Krim for a settlement of the Riff warfare in Morocco.

stupid and have very short memories. It must be acknowledged that the majority of the workers are quick to forget. John W. Davis delivered a speech in the stockyards district of Chicago last week and for sheer impudence and effrontery he outdid himself and all competitors. The district in which he delivered his speech has a large Irish population, which likes the British Empire as a terrier likes a weasel. The Irish prohibition amendment as the Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan likes his Holiness the Pope.

NOW, John W. Davis was once upon a time, during the reign of Woodrow Wilson, American ambassador to the Court of Saint James. He was once torches, was made Knight of the Middle Temple, supported the Free State government against the republicans and was elected president of the American section of the English speaking union, which has for its object the liquidation of the American revolution and the strengthening of the ties between the ruling classes of America and Britain. All these things are as palatable to an Irish audience as a milk shake to a man recovering from delerium tremens.

BUT Wallstreet John was not in the least nonplussed. George Brennan was there. "Pull the lion's tail until his rear beats anything ever heard in the stockyards," suggested George. "Make them lick their lips as if they were looking into the biggest schooner that ever passed down a thirsty gullet" hinted Mike Igoe, candidate for state's attorney. "Recognize the Irish Republic" warbled Martin O'Brien "and this crowd will crown you Emperor of Yap." By the time Davis got thru with his speech that audience was ready to listening to Eamon DeValera in College Green. How those fellows vote on election day is another matter. But we must hand it to Davis.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE insists that there is a big revolution in Georgia, the Caucusus, but has only faint hope that it will be a success. The Trib is dead set against the use of "force and violence" in the United States by the workers against the government of the capitalists. But words fail to express its admiration for the "gallant Russians" who are battling desperately against the "Soviet tyranny." Many revolutions may come and go before the hated Bolsheviks are overthrown, but it hopes—tho weakly—that someday the Communist government will find itself at the wrong end of the rifle.

LIKE the man who whistles to keep up his courage while passing by a graveyard, the Tribune snorts to nourish the fires of its unquenchable hatred for the Workers' Republic. The other capitalist papers hate Russia as much as the Tribune does, but they are more dignified and intelligent. They realize that a certain kind of lying is not even good propaganda, so they tell their hirelings what kinds of news to write about Russia. The result of this policy is that papers like the Chicago Daily News is read widely for its foreign correspondence while the Tribune is popular among those who swallow the headlines, people who follow the political activities of Andy Gump and those who are obliged to read the enemy press in order to expose its perfidy.

THE TRIBUNE'S correspondents were kicked out of Russia and Mexico because they not only lied about those countries but acted as spies and agents provocateur. They are now forced to sell as news, the fantastic yarns, spun by the Czarist opium eaters who will do anything for the price of a shot in the arm. But the Russian revolution is now a matter of history and the dope fiends who would have it fail, see in their dreams between them and their desires the bayonets of the red army. It is there to stay.

NEW YORK TOILERS HOLD BANQUET FOR COMMUNIST NOMINEE

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The banquet, attended by over 600 comrades who packed the hall to capacity, tendered to Comrade Foster by the needle trades' committee of the Trades Union Educational League, was a huge success.

Many speeches were made by representatives of the various sections of the needle trades' committee endorsing the candidacy of Comrade Foster and the entire ticket of the Workers Party.

A splendid spirit was shown by all present and each and every worker present pledged his unstinted support to the party. An excellent program was arranged and before Comrade Foster spoke a collection of over $250 was taken up.

Comrade Foster was enthusiastically received and the workers cheered for the Workers Party, for Soviet Russia and for the coming Soviet America.

Gompers' Political Policy Doesn't Work in Washington Poll

SEATLE, Sept. 21.—Edward Clifford, indorsed by the Washington State Federation of Labor and by many of its constituent organizations, ran a bad third in the republican primaries for governor. Labor officials who follow the A. F. of L. non-partisan political policy and who look with disfavor on the Farmer-Labor Party of Washington attribute the defeat of Clifford and of most of the other labor-indorsers to the indifference of working men and women to politics. Anything but independent action!

Campaign Collection at Wedding

TONY CONEGLIA was heart broken. Felicia's elders had insisted on a grand marriage at the Church of St. Rosalia. They compromised on a wedding celebration at the home of the bride, and Felicia has been won over thru sympathy for their feelings.

Poor Tony just then was deeply immersed in the problems of the class struggle. He was busy planning the details of a grand celebration by the proletariat, and was utterly impatient with the idea of providing a free show and lunch for a bunch of useless relatives.

In the midst of his gloom, Tony received an urgent letter of appeal for funds from the Workers Party campaign committee. Enclosed was a subscription list. This cast him into still greater gloom. Here would here been a worthy way to apply the money that this wedding celebration was costing.

Tony sat lost in his trouble, with the cartoon entitled "The Race—to Washington," on the back of the subscription list, before him. Suddenly he became conscious of the cartoon, and this gave birth to an idea. He would make a speech at the wedding! He would tell his guests about "The Race for Votes!" Because it was his wedding they would listen to him. He would show them the picture,—demand that they fill in the list with their names, and the amount of their donation to go to the race of the Communist Party. He would compel them to help emancipate the workers from the system of wage slavery!

Lacking something of self confidence, and somewhat nervous, Tony carried thru his program.

On Tuesday morning Tony Conegila delivered $32.25 net proceeds, to the Workers Party campaign headquarters, 210 E. 12th Street, New York City.

Comrades, Tony's example must be followed in every way. The Trade Union Educational League drive for shop collections is on, and Tony's contribution must be matched by help from every shop where a single radical worker is employed. The expense of carrying on a political campaign is enormous, and yet we can hope to reach the ears of the workers only in proportion to the amount of money that is raised for the work.

Comrade! Sympathizer! Provide yourself with a list and make a canvass of all the workers with whom you come in contact. Encourage our collectors with large, easily given donations.

Send all contributions to the Workers Party Campaign Committee, 210 East 12th Street, New York City.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the arguments and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. GITLOW EXPOSE OF WOOL TRUST WELL RECEIVED

New England's Textile Workers Enthused

By JOSEPH MANLEY.
Campaign Manager, Workers Party.

Benjamin Gitlow, vice-presidential candidate of the Workers Party, in his present tour thru the New England states, is doing much to give direction and conscious leadership to the revolt now brewing against the American Woolen Company and the textile trust. His election addresses give the Communist program in reply to that of New England capitalism.

Gitlow's meeting just held at Maynard, Mass., and Providence, R. I., both principalities owned and controlled by the American Woolen Company, were a great success. At Maynard, Mass., Gitlow spoke in the Public Square, right in front of the American Woolen company's mill.

Exposes Textile Trust.

A great mass of textile workers congregated. They paid the closest attention to Gitlow's merciless exposure of the methods of "Charley" Wood, and the American Woolen company. Many of the bosses from the mill were present and their consternation at the effects of Gitlow's speech on the crowd, was apparent.

Gitlow showed that the American Woolen company is heavily interested in the political success of Coolidge and the republican party. The interest is best typified by the famous "schedule K," the republican protective tariff policy under which the huge profits of the American Woolen company have been piled up. The Aldrich family, large stockholders in this company, have reaped a fortune from the workings of the Payne Aldrich tariff bill. This protective tariff combined with the tyrannical exploitation of its workers enabled the American Woolen company to pile up its profits of over nine million dollars last year.

"Charley" Woods, the czar of the American Woolen company, complains about the poverty of the woolen industry. Using poverty as an excuse he has cut the wages of his workers 15 per cent since 1920. Now he talks of the necessity for a further cut in wages of 20 per cent.

Creates Sensation.

The revolutionary speeches of Gitlow, both at Maynard and at Providence, have created a sensation in the ranks of the textile workers. The past struggles of the textile centers have been in many cases of a mass character and have had all the characteristics of the class struggle. Gitlow's emphasis on the class struggle as a basis for militant industrial unions aroused stormy enthusiasm. He marshalled facts that demonstrated the control of the government by the Textile Trust and Wall Street, and the necessity for a political struggle against capitalism. Former syndicalists and socialists were present at these meetings, and if one is to judge by their expressions, new developments can from now on be looked for in the class struggle in New England. The sincere socialists of this section know that LaFollette cannot break up the textile trust, and many syndicalists formerly opposed to political action are beginning to see the point to such arguments made in the speeches of Gitlow.

His expose of the control of the old parties and the government, by the financial oligarchies such as the American Woolen company, clearly proved to his audiences the necessity for a revolutionary political party and the participation in political struggles. Textile workers of New England as a result of the Gitlow meetings and our election campaign in that section, are beginning to realize that the textile trust and Wall Street owns the government which has repeatedly smashed their strikes. The future strikes will be conducted with these facts in mind. Gitlow's meetings are carying the message of Communism to the workers of New England.

KLYSHKO, RUSSIAN MEMBER OF FOREIGN TRADE IS IN PEKING

By ROSTA.

PEKING, China, Sept. 4.—Mr. Nikolai Klementievitch Klyshko, councellor of the embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and, concurrently, trade representative of the Union in China, arrived at Peking accompanied by members of his staff.

Mr. Klyshko was born in 1880. He is an old member of the Russian revolutionary movement, and has played a prominent part in the diplomatic and foreign trade service of the Soviet government since the October-November revolution in 1917. Mr. Klyshko was, first, secretary and, then, deputy chairman, of the Soviet trade delegation in London, which, under Mr. Krassin's chairmanship, concluded the Russo-British trade agreement of 1921. Previous to that he was secretary to the Soviet peace delegation which signed the treaty with Esthonia. And in 1923, he was chairman of the Soviet delegation upon the negotiations with Rumania for the conclusion of a commercial treaty.

During the last year and up to his present appointment in China, Mr. Klyshko was a member of the collegium of the People's Commissariat of Foreign Trade, dealing especially with the regulation of exports from and imports into the Union of Soviet Republics. His arrival in this country is stated to have a most favorable bearing on the development of economic and trade relations between the Soviet Union and the Republic of China.

WHEN R. R. MAKE MORE CARS THEY MAKE MORE DOUGH

Companies Wearing Out U. S. Gifts in 1921

(By Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Manufacture of cars for steam railroads by 130 private contract companies in the United States was 217 per cent greater—in the number of cars—and cost the railroads 109 per cent more, in 1923 than in 1921, according to a report issued by the census division of the department of commerce.

The increased investment in passenger cars was only 17.7 per cent, but the increase in investment in freight cars was 131.2 per cent, as between the 1921, when the private companies were wearing out the rotting stock they received from the government, and were fighting the striking shopmen, and the year 1923, when the cars that had gone thru the strike were junk. The investment in new cars in 1923 was $369,974,942, as against $176,774,656, in 1921.

The report shows that the number of wage earners employed in making these steam railroad cars in 1923 was 76,438, as against 45,121, in 1921. The wages amounted to $123,047,237 in 1923, as against $67,745,689, in 1921. This same force produced other goods also, the whole output bringing the companies a gross profit of $55,500,000, in 1923, as against a gross profit of $58,800,000, in 1921. The average wage in 1923 was about $1,600 per year, for men having steady work, while in 1921 it was about $1,500.

Morgan Watchman Dies Because He Was Fired by J. P.

GLEN COVE, L. I., Sept. 21.—Chas. A. Price, watchman on the J. Pierpont Morgan estate, was charged with sleeping at his post. He was dismissed. Price dropped dead six weeks after his discharge. Said Dr. J. B. Connolly, health officer of the township:

"He took the loss of his job very much to heart, and since leaving Mr. Morgan's employ his health declined gradually."

The deceased Morgan sentinel had been stationed at a concrete bridge over a 15-foot strait that separates East Island from the mainland. His employer has such guards posted at all the strategic points around his estate under a semi-military discipline. Price denied the charge but was given no appeal.

One Fake Drops Other For Third.

SIOUX FALLS, S. Dak., Sept. 21.—An announcement that Gov. W. R. McMasters had deserted the LaFollette fold and would publicly announce himself for the Coolidge-Dawes ticket at the meeting here tonight greeted Gen. Charles G., republican vice-presidential candidate on his arrival here today for his second address in the agricultural midwest.

Editor Dies.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—J. Y. McPeake, editor of Nash's Magazine and Good Housekeeping, died here today at a private hospital, following an operation for gallstones.

LATEST 'DAILY' SPECIAL GOES TO ERIE, PA.

Orders Rolling in From Many Other Cities

Orders for the Special Campaign Editions of the DAILY WORKER have climbed well over 100,000, in addition to the orders which have already been filled. From every section of the country requests are piling in for the special editions of the DAILY WORKER which contain an entire front page of local news in addition to the regular five pages of news, editorials, articles and other features of the DAILY WORKER.

Los Angeles is the latest to fall in line with an order just received by wire for 1,000 copies of the special Los Angeles Campaign Edition.

New York to the Front.

New York has sent in the largest order for 50,000 copies of Special New York Campaign Editions which will be sold at Foster's meeting on October 19 as well as at street meetings.

The Chicago office of the Workers Party has ordered 10,000 copies of the Special Foster and Gitlow edition of the DAILY WORKER to be sold at the mass meeting in the Auditorium, October 12 where Foster and Gitlow are both scheduled to speak. Chicago will order other editions later.

"Special" to Erie, Pa.

The Erie Campaign edition of two thousand copies has just been sent out. This edition carries a front page story announcing Benjamin Gitlow's address to a large mass meeting to take place at the Central Labor Union Hall, 1701 State Street, on Wednesday evening, Sept. 24, and other special Erie news on the front page.

Not only are the various party branches ordering City Editions of the DAILY WORKER, but in the larger cities the Workers Party offices are ordering state and county editions as well. Detroit, giving the other party branches a mark to shoot at, has ordered four editions, including two Michigan State Editions which will be sold and distributed to the smaller towns of the state, and two Detroit editions. A Wisconsin state edition of the DAILY WORKER of 20,000 copies, which will be distributed thruout the state showing up LaFollette as a political fake with presidential ambitions, who represents only the middle class business men, has been ordered by the Milwaukee office of the Workers Party.

50,000 Copies to Philadelphia.

Philadelphia is going to put some fighting spirit into the Quakers by selling and distributing a Special Philadelphia Campaign Edition of 50,000 copies. New York not to be outdone, is ordering a splendid edition to advertise James Cannon's mass meeting on October 2.

The Communist message, by means of these Special Campaign Editions of the DAILY WORKER, is being broadcasted to tens of thousands of workers in every section of the country. In and around Chicago, as well as in the other industrial centers, special attention is being paid to getting the DAILY WORKER into the hands of the factory workers right at the work-shop gates. A Special Lake County Edition, now being prepared, will be distributed to the steel workers and railroad shopmen in Gary, South Bend, Hegewisch, Hammond and other Indiana Steel towns near Chicago. Fifteen thousand copies of the Lake County Campaign Edition have been ordered.

Sell "Daily" at Stockyards.

The DAILY WORKER was sold at The Western Electric gates, where Foster polled such a big vote this week. Yesterday, following up the DAILY WORKER presidential straw vote, Chicago Workers Party volunteers sold DAILY WORKERS in front of the stockyards. Several hundred copies of the DAILY WORKER have already been sold at factories where the straw vote was taken the preceding day. The straw vote serves as an introduction to the DAILY WORKER, and the whole plan works to give Communist principles the widest advertisement during the election campaign.

DAILY WORKERS were also sold at the Davis democratic meeting Thursday night.

Workers Urge Clemency.

ANDERSON, Ind., Sept. 21.—A petition urging clemency for Bernard Grant, under sentence of death at Chicago for the murder of a policeman, is being circulated among factory workers here. More than 100 signatures already have been obtained, it is said.

Spanish Seek Peace.

PARIS, Sept. 21.—The Spanish directory today sent a demand to Abdul Krim, leader of the warring riffs in Marocco, that he enter negotiations to effect a settlement of hostilities, according to an unconfirmed dispatch to the Petit Parisien from Tangier.

Carpenters Can Lead Thru Fighting Policy

less alert to present problems. In these days of giant financial and industrial combinations, on the part of the employing class, and their daily attacks upon the labor movement, we must be ever on the alert, strengthening and perfecting our own policies and organization.

Foremost in the minds of many delegates to this convention is the proposition of establishing of a home and pension system for aged members. This is an important issue, no because it is occupying the thoughts of so many members, and because every proposal for strengthening the union nd bettering conditions finds justification and support in the advocacy of a home for aged members; it is also of great importance because the necessity of such a home brings vividly before the delegates the class nature of the society in which we live, and the bitterness of the struggle between the working class and the capitalist class. The right of membership to establish a pension and home fund is a fine gesture of solidarity. But at the same time we must be clear in our own minds that it is not a solution of any fundamental problem. It brings out the problem for us to see—that the capitalist system of society, after using the carpenters up to the age of 50 or 70 years, throws us on the scrap heap, leaving us to charity, our children, or our union to support. Pension funds can not solve the problem, however, for the problem can only be solved on the field of the class struggle—by building up power, political and economic, in the hands of the workers.

Any assistance to our members can only be as strong as our union. Are we making our union more powerful every day? Are we doing all that we can to build a stronger protection for the workers against the encroachments of the greedy bosses? One moment's reflection wil convince each of us that we are lacking in this respect.

Building Boom Almost Over.

We have been depending almost entirely upon the extraordinary power placed in our hands by the building boom. This boom is drawing to a close. When building operations slacken, as they are already doing and as they will do much more in the future; when unemployment begins to show its face among the building tradesmen—what then? We have been fortunate in the past, considering the chaos that exists among the organized workers of our industry, but luck will not carry us thru the future.

Strong as the Brotherhood has become, yet other trades have made greater wage advances than the carpenters. In Chicago, for example, the carpenters are the lowest paid mechanics in the industry, receiving only $1.25 per hour, while others get from $1.37½ to $1.50. In spite of the carpenters' skill, the strength of the union membership, the expense of keeping a huge chest of tools, yet we find only too often the carpenters at the low end of the wage scale among building trades mechanics.

The Disgraceful Chicago Agreement.

The Chicago agreement, signed by President Hutchinson, is a disgrace to the Brotherhood of Carpenters, and is an example of the kind of policies that weaken the movement. It is an "open shop" agreement. It was entered into one day before the district election of the union, without the membership having a word to say about its provisions. This was done for purely factional political reasons. The agreement provides for recognition of the union under such conditions that make the union a part of the "open shop pers" strikebreaking machinery.

The Chicago agreement gives contractors the right to use scab material (except prison-made), which is a betrayal of the inside carpenters, surrendering a hard won fruit of previous strikes. It compels carpenters to work with scabs of other trades, even under protection of police or gunmen, threatening expulsion of members who refuse, individually or as groups and locals, to work under such conditions. Such expelled members, it is provided, cannot be reinstated without the unanimous consent of the Joint Arbitration Board. The Job steward ceases to be an agent of the union, coming instead under the jurisdiction of the arbitration board. Wages are set at $1.25 per hour as a maximum, a higher figure being prevented in any case be-cause mere splitting of a job is considered a breach of contract.

This Chicago agreement, entered in to by the contractors and President Hutchinson, is a complete surrender to the notorious Landis Award, designed to break the building trades unions, and which the carpenters had previously fought so successfully.

Job Control.

The union must have other control over the job besides a set wage scale. The real strength of a union can be measured by the amount of job control that it exercises.

A policy like that of the Chicago agreement, that surrenders all job control, must be reversed. The entire system must be stopped. The right of hiring and firing must be controlled by the union. The stewards must be agents of the union.

There must be union regulation of the materials of work. Scabs of all trades must be eliminated from the industry. These are the policies of class struggle—of fighting against the bosses; to surrender these points is class collaboration—which means to let the boss run the union.

Amalgamation by Industry.

The bosses in the building industry are being solidly organized by the great financial interests behind them, for the purpose of fighting and breaking the unions; they are determined to establish the "open shop," and are ready to spend millions of dollars to accomplish their purpose. They are using contractors' organizations, citizens' committees, arbitration courts, and a thousand instruments and devices to do this. But their biggest weapon is their own unity, against the divided condition of the unions of the building trades workers.

No single union, standing alone, can put up a successful battle against the bosses, once the building boom slackens. Let anything upon 1,150, a fool or a faker will say that the "open shop" drive will not soon be upon us again. The carpenters cannot stand alone. Our officials recognized our weakness, already, when they agreed to the lower wage of $1.25 in Chicago, instead of standing upon $1.50, and gave up hard won concessions What can we expect when depression sets in earnest?

The only answer is to be found in closer unity of the building trades, leading to a final amalgamation into one powerful industrial union. The carpenters must affiliate to the Building Trades Department, and propose and fight for the amalgamation of all building trades unions into one industrial union, with departments to provide for the necessary branches and trades, but uniting all our power against the bosses.

Break Away From Capitalist Parties.

One source of defeat and corupption in our union, and of division of forces in the face of the employers, is the practice of entering politics in support of the same candidates and policies as the employers. The republican and democratic parties are controlled from top to bottom by the same class which is trying to destroy our unions; the so-called progressives are merely republicans and democrats fishing for discontented labor votes without pledging themselves to anything. The carpenters must make a clean break with this ridiculous and antiquated policy of "rewarding friends and punishing enemies," and adopt a clear-cut policy of labor participation of politics, as a class and independent of the capitalists and middle classes.

Fight for Amalgamation.

Labor's struggle against capitalism is world wide. When Morgan is able, by means of the Dawes plan, to take away the eight-hour day from the German workers, it means also a blow against the eight-hour day in America. So with all other international problems. The workers must unite across national boundary lines. The carpenters must affiliate with the International Federation of Building Workers, with headquarters at Hamburg, Germany, and strive for the inclusion therein of all building trades unions, including those of the Workers' Council Republic of Russia. The slogan of the international united front, as foughtfor by the Red International of Labor Unions, must be energetically supported.

Democracy in the Union.

A menace to the life of the carpenters' union is the recent attempts to stifle free speech and press, and to violate the inner-union democracy, seen in the expulsion of eleven members of the Los Angeles locals. These expulsions were made in an effort to prevent agitation for amalgamation, for a labor party, and for other progressive measures now before our union.

The problems of the labor movement cannot be solved by suppressing discussion. Progressive measures cannot be killed by punishing those who advocate them. The class struggle exists, not because a few "radicals" agitate about it, but because of the very structure of society. And when reactionary officials try to expel members for their opinions on policy, then the very life of unionism is in danger. Freedom of opinion and expression in the union must be protected, whether the opinions be held by a majority or a minority. The minority must be guaranteed the right to advocate its views, and to try to convince the majority. The convention must reinstate the expelled members if this vital principle is to be protected.

A Strong Union—A Strong Policy—A Strong Fight.

These and hundreds of other questions will come before the carpenters in convention. Upon your decisions will depend whether the future shall be full of achievements and advancement, or whether it shall witness defeat and a falling back. If approached in a narrow craft spirit, with jealousies toward other workers and distrust, if attacked from any point of view except faith in the solidarity of labor and the necessity for relentless struggle against the capitalist class, these problems cannot be solved. Only by adopting the line of class struggle—a strong union, a strong policy, and a strong fight—can the next big "open shop" drive be stopped and defeated, and our union begin its triumphal march forward toward a workers' and farmers' government.

So let us band together all the forces of progress in our union, and fight for these, among other, vital and necessary policies:

Repudiate such policies of surrender and class collaboration as those shown by the Chicago agreement!

Fight for the establishment and strengthening of job control!

Affiliate to the Building Trades Department as a step towards greater unity, and final amalgamation of all building trades!

Propose and fight for the amalgamation of all present separate crafts in the building trades into one industrial union, with departments for the branches and trades as found necessary or desirable!

Break away from the capitalist political parties, and support independent political action of the workers as a class!

National campaign to organize the unorganized must be started immediately!

Restore democracy in the union! Reinstate the expelled members!

Support and sympathetic solidarity with the first workers' republic, Soviet Russia, and demand recognition by the United States government!

Abandon the policies of class collaboration, and conduct the fight against capitalism upon the lines of the class struggle!

With good wishes for the victory of the progressive delegates and measures before your convention, we are,

Fraternally yours,

The Trade Union Educational League,
J. W. JOHNSTONE, Acting Secretary.

TOLEDO S. P. GOING OVER TO ELEPHANT

"Socialists" Leave For the Juicy Plums

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 21.—Former socialists in this city are now fast falling into the political camp which more nearly fits the ideas of the yellow socialists of the present day.

Men who used to call themselves socialists have thrown off the mask and deserted even the LaFollette shirt-tail socialist party of today, joining the republican camp.

Hand Out Plums.

Harry Curtis, who at one time represented the socialists in the city council, has just been given the juicy political plum of auditor by the republican administration. Curtis was appointed to fill the vacancy left open by the retiring auditor, who quit to make room for Handsome Harry.

Yellow socialists seem to either fall into the Coolidge camp or else get some fat job as fake labor leader, as John Walker did when he deserted the workers on the political field in Illinois, to become the well paid reactionary president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor. Another renegade socialist here is now a leading republican ward politician.

Robert T. Haworth who was at one time candidate for mayor of Toledo on the socialist ticket is now rephilican ward chairman. Haworth is said to be looking around for a juicy republican plum just as Curtis did, in order to secure his reward for betraying the workers.

But the prize unripe quince in the renegade socialist orchard is Thomas Devine, who at present is running for congress on what is known as the independent progressive ticket. He has been a socialist councilman for several years. Devine is running against General Sherwood, the LaFollette candidate for congress.

Was Canned by Left Wing.

Devine, who posed as a socialist until he was found out and expelled by the left wing immediately after the split, will be remembered as one of the most active Liberty Bond salesmen during the world war. Devine marched in the preparedness parade at that time and did his best to inveigle the workers into the slaughter. He himself, however, took no chances of getting wounded or messed up in action in France.

Devine was elected for councilman on the socialist ticket from Klan ward. Devine is known as "three car Tommy," because he supported the traction company in voting for a raise in fares. When Devine took office Toledo was known as the "three cent fare town," but with Devine's help, the street car companies raised the fare until it is now ten cents.

In a speech before a Womans' club some time ago Devine praised the present administration, headed by Mayor Bernard Brough, as the best administration Toledo ever had, altho Brough is a Kluxer and a reactionary republican. In his recent speeches he has been appealing to the people to stop calamity howling" and support the Ku Klux administration.

Workers here suggest that since General Sherwood is known as the "Bob-Cat" candidate for congress that Devine should be called the "Tom-Cat" candidate.

THE TALE OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

By MAX SHACHTMAN.

ONCE upon a time, many years ago, there existed in this country a political organization that was called the Socialist Party. The basis of its program and aims was that there was absolutely nothing in common between the workers on the one hand and the capitalists on the other. They believed in the class struggle and even wrote about it in their papers and books. Very often they would actually speak of this class struggle.

They maintained that this government was a capitalist government, and that it didn't matter a piper's squeak whether an honest man was in office or whether he was a second story man. They said that "good men in office" would not solve the problem, and that the thing that was necessary was a complete change not only in government but in the system of society in which we are all unfortunate enough to live. They believed in doing away with capitalism and inaugurating the co-operative commonwealth.

But that, dear children, was many years ago. O, many, many years ago.

Today, the funny little thing that is left of the Socialist Party has collected unto itself a number of freaks. Amongst these is a gentlemanly Jevcrend, by the name of Norman Thomas, whose nearest approach to the class struggle has been the editing of a sports newspaper with an alleged socialist appendage, The New Leader, which died a quiet death.

In a speech made by this honorable and learned man, who is now the candidate of the socialists for the governorship of New York State, he lets loose the following original stream of English: "Eternal vigilance is the price of civil government."

The reverend is touchingly generous. If the capitalist will only be clean, and not exploit the workers in such a silly, open fashion, will not use the government so openly to beat down the objections that the workers have to getting cuts in wages and increases in the working day, then the reverend is perfectly willing to share the management of this fair land with him.

In the meantime, Dr. Thomas is vigilant. Every evening before he dons his nightie he lights a lamp and says a prayer for clean government and hopes that the workers will forget that there is or should be or might be such a thing as a class struggle. Then he goes and makes up another speech for the Socialist Party.

What we started out to say was that once upon a time there existed a political party which believed in the class struggle. Once upon a time Not now.

WON'T GIVE UP UNION BUTTONS SAY UNION MEN

N. Y. Cleaners Picket in Spite of Thugs

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The Guarantee Window Cleaning Company of 110 West 42nd Street, which has many times tried to drop the union, embraced the opportunity presented by the strike situation here to lock out all their union employes.

When their 23 window cleaners came to the office to get their routes they were told they either had to throw their union buttons away or lose their jobs.

Union Men Quit.

The union men quit immediately and reported to the union. The window cleaners are determined to see this fight thru to a finish to prove to the bosses that their union is here to stay.

This is not the first attempt made to break the union by the employers' association, the union officers say. H. Weinstein secretary of Local 8, told the DAILY WORKER: "We had a strike five years ago, when the employers tried to put this open shop proposition over on us and they have been at it since. This fight will prove to them once and for all that this union is something they will have to accept.

Cleaners In Constant Danger.

"The window cleaner must have an organization to look after his interests. The work of cleaning windows carries with it many dangers that only the combined understanding of men on the job can help to alleviate. For instance, the danger a window cleaner is submitted to every day on the job by working on buildings many stories high. Only working conditions and salaries that can keep a worker fit can help to lessen the dangers of disastrous accidents to the men. The men's only friend is their union. They know it and there is not the slightest chance of their ever giving it up. It is a fight to a finish."

The Guarantee Window Cleaning company is employing gangsters, private detectives and all the police are at their assistance to scare the pickets away from the vicinity of the office. But the men cannot be intimidated and they are on the job picketing every day.

Survey Shows No Real Move Towards More Jobs

ning on part time schedules. The unemployed workers are unable to find jobs in other trades. In Rhode Island, the textile situation is likewise bad. The jewelry factories are working on a part time pasis.

No Improvement in Middle Atlantic District.

New York state is still afflicted with part time employment in many sections. Though a number of manufacturing lines are showing faint signs of moving upward, because of seasonal demands, the army of jobless workingmen has not been reduced materially. The employment situation in the Albany district, for instance, is very poor.

Going over to New Jersey, we find extreme inactivity in the machinery and rubber industries. Turning to the keystone state of Pennsylvania, we are confronted by a large surplus of common labor, clerical and factory workers, electricians, carpenters, and painters. The Philadelphia industrial district is particularly hard hit in the latter industries. In the Scranton section a further recession in operations and employment is evident in the mining industry and textile trades. Here skilled mechanics and moulders are being dismissed in the foundries and machine shops. Unskilled workmen are suffering in the Erie, York, and Wilkes Barre district where part time operations prevail in the iron mills, axle plants, and silk industries.

Surplus of Labor in East-North-Central States.

In the Chicago district there is still apparent a surplus of labor. In the East St. Louis industrial district of the same state there is an overflow number of workers in practically all industries. Steel, and allied industries are continuing to work only on part time and with reduced forces. In Springfield, and Cairo, common labor bears the brunt of the suffering.

The Hoosier state of Indiana finds practically all of its industrial plants operating below normal. The Indianapolis furniture manufacturing and automobile industries are hard hit by unemployment. In the Detroit manufacturing industries unemployment continues in all manufacturing industries which are operating at a maximum of seventy percent. In the Flint district of the same state there is a great surplus of labor in the automobile industry. Machinists and tool and die workers and common labor are jobless in the Kalamazoo district.

The building industry of Wisconsin is showing strong signs of slackening. In the Milwaukee industrial district, the surplus of skilled and unskilled labor continues. In Ohio a large number of coal miners are still out of work. With the exception of the textile, clothing, and food industries, all plants are operating on part time in the Cleveland district. The building, machine, and machine-tool trades, are operating on part time in the Cincinnati district. In Columbus, several blast furnaces are closed and most departments in the steel plants are working with reduced forces.

North-Central States Still in Slump.

Though the demand for building trades workers in Minnesota has increased slightly last month, there is still a surplus of workmen in this line. Harvest labor demands are temporarily proving a source of relief. Missouri shows no increase in the demand for common and skilled labor. Building operations in this state are slackening with the consequent surplus of skilled mechanics. Some of Iowa's cereal and flour mills are closed. The demand for harvest labor in this state is practically over.

In Kansas City, Kansas, the local supply of common and skilled labor is more than sufficient to meet the demand. There is reported a surplus of building trades workers and machinist in North Dakota. There is an oversupply of common labor in South Dakota. Nebraska is especially hard hit by the influx of men from the North West harvest fields. Omaha is now confronted with a surplus of common labor.

South-Atlantic District Shows No Signs of Increased Activity.

Several leather plants are closed in Delaware. The hosiery, jute cordage, and fibre mills are working on a part time basis. Many major industries in Maryland are continuing to work with curtailed forces. The Virginia cotton mills are operating on part time schedules. In North Carolina common labor continues to suffer most from reduced operations. In South Carolina there is a great surplus of labor because many of the larger industries are working with curtailed forces and, in some instances, on part time schedules.

In Georgia many textile mills remain closed and there is a surplus of this class of labor and unskilled workers in general. Florida shows very few demands for farm labor.

No Improvement in South-Central District.

The Kentucky leather industry reports part time operations. In Tennessee the industrial employment conditions do not show any marked improvement for the last month. A surplus of labor exists thruout Alabama. Though some slight improvement was noted in Mississippi, the surplus of labor still exists.

Louisiana is still faced with a surplus of labor. This is especially evident in the building industry. There is a slackening of activity in the building construction thruout Arkansas. In Oklahoma the surplus of common labor continues. Unsatisfactory conditions prevail in the cotton mills of Texas. Here part time operations and further decreases in the number employed are reported.

Mountain and Pacific Districts Show No Revival.

New Mexico's railway shop employment continues on a reduced basis. Building operations are slackening. There is a surplus of workers in the metal mines and smelters of Arizona. In Utah employment in the railway shops continues on a curtailed basis and on a five-day schedule. Wyoming shows slight improvement in coal mining and railroad activities, but there still exists a surplus of migratory common labor.

In Nevada there is a surplus of agricultural labor and industrial employment continues below normal. The surplus of common labor in Idaho remains unchanged. In Butte, Montana, the unemployment situation shows no signs for a turn for the better. A copper company has just suspended its smelting operations and curtailed its mining activities. Harvest demands have temporarily lightened the industrial burdens in Colorado.

California is faced with considerable unemployment. There is a great surplus of labor in the mining districts and in the oil industry. In Oregon the lumber mills of Portland continue on part time. The lumber industry of Washington is still working on a restricted basis.

LABOR FAKERS DISSECT BOB'S NEW YORK TALK

LaFollette Must Know Gotham Is "Dem" City

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—After a meeting with representatives of the American Federation of Labor, Samuel Gompers, its president, will report this afternoon to Senator Robert M. LaFollette the extent to which the federation will interest itself in the progressive presidential campaign. People thought that this question was already settled.

LaFollette's first speech of the campaign, delivered last night in crowded Madison Square Garden, in which he denounced the republican and democratic parties as the "corrupt and decadent" serfs of corporate interests, was being used today by the labor representatives in deciding what stand they shall take.

LaFollette's address was an appeal to voters to forsake the two old parties this year and vote for "honest government." He said that the re-election of President Coolidge would mean "four years more of misgovernment, with a continued cynical betrayal of special privilege on the favored few."

The candidate declared that, altho evidence of fraud and corruption had been overwhelming, there had been no housecleaning in Washington under President Coolidge. He charged that the republicans had attempted to lay at the door of a dead man, President Harding, the blame for all acts of maladministration that had occurred in the republican regime.

LaFollette promised to fight for revision of the, peace of Versailles, which he blamed for many of the world's present ills.

The Wisconsin senator did not refer except in a vague way to the anti-labor acts of the republican and democratic governments, or to the syndicalist laws which take away the right of free speech guaranteed by the constitution.

FLEET OF BUSES TO REPLACE TROLLEY CAR AND BUGGY IN MOSCOW

MOSCOW, Sept. 21.—The transportation system of Moscow is becoming more modern and efficient than it was in pre-war days. Eight omnibuses of the London type will make their appearance having been bought by the city. They are the forerunners of a fleet which will displace the horse-drawn carriage and to some extent the conventional trolley car, which for many years have been the backbone of Moscow's transportation system. Officials declare this will do much to relieve the congestion in the growing Soviet city. Bus lines are to connect the suburbs with the central sections of the town in order to encourage residents to move into the edges of the town.

Openly Arrived At.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 21.—In the heart of the noon hour rush today, Charles Vendenstreet and Arthur Maurer, two messengers of the Iron-bound Trust company were held up and robbed of $6,700, the payroll of the Blanchard Brothers leather factory.

CANADIAN LABOR MEET IN WALLOP AT GOVT. FAKER

MacDonald Hits Labor Minister

By JOHN ROBUR.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 21.—Refusing to scrape and truckle before a secretary of labor as a number of American labor conventions have done, the Canadian Trades & Labor congress in its annual session at London vigorously censured James Murdock, minister of labor in the present cabinet and former vice president of the trainmen's brotherhood.

The original resolution bluntly accused Murdock of hypocrisy toward labor but this was modified after a warm debate. The resolution further contained a demand on the government to put into force the agreement on the 8-hour day.

Labor Opposes Murdock.

During the debate on the censure Jack MacDonald of Toronto, declared, "Labor generally is clearly opposed to James Murdock." "Every labor man in the dominion," said Delegate Bock of Toronto, "has suffered at one time or another thru the trickiness of the minister of labor."

Murdock came under criticism specially for his opposition to a proposal, made in parliament by labor member Woodsworth, that the 8-hour day should be adopted on government work. Murdock defended his policy of maintaining the "prevailing" wages and conditions of each district on government work.

LABOR SPY IS DRIVEN FROM HIS LAIR BY T. U. E. L.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 21.—The local branch of the Trade Union Educational League has finally forced the labor leaders to take action against the notorious stool pigeon, Robert W. Beattie, labor banker and secretary of the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union.

The T. U. E. L. issued a leaflet demanding that this notorious spy, reactionary and red baiter be given the boot out of the labor movement. It is rather peculiar that the labor fakers who are so quick to prefer charges against radicals, were so slow in lighting a fire under the crook, Beattie.

Easy with Crook.

Even, when action was forced and Beattie decided to tender his resignation, the reactionaries did not want to move. After three hearings Beattie decided to resign but the trade union rank and file were not satisfied with that. They wanted to expel him.

Mr. Nelson, acting secretary of the C. L. U. wanted to have the resignation accepted but the members voted to defer action until the executive board had an opportunity to make a report on the charges.

No Hopes From Europe.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—None of the large European debtors of the United States has any immediate intention of liquidating their debts, Senator Medill McCormick, republican, of Illinois, who is just back from Europe, declared here today.

"MOST POISONOUS MIND IN THE U. S. TODAY," WAS OPINION OF RAYMOND ROBINS ABOUT HUGHES

By ROBERT W. DUNN
(For The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Raymond Robins is a different man between elections. Before the political spellbinders in the republican machine got Raymond worked up he used to have very liberal views on Russia. One might expect this strong Christian gentleman to express himself on Soviet recognition the issue recently excavated by secretary of state Charles Evans Hughes as his contribution to campaign propaganda.

A Few Months Ago.

Robins should speak out. It was only a few months ago, early in 1924, that this gentleman came to the offices of the Russian American Industrial corporation to collect his dividend check and tell the staff what he thought of Russian recognition prospects. I made notes on his conversation. He said he had just come from several days on the Mayflower with the president who he declared was practically won over to the recognition of the workers' state. The only stumbling block, he said, was our bewhiskered secretary of state. Robins on that date lost no love on the secretary.

"The president asked me why I didn't put my views up to Hughes. I told the president the next time I want to see that blankety, blankety old whiskers, is in a box with a lily in his hand," Robins told us. Blunt, but not bad at all for the evangelical Raymond Robins. Evangelists are in the habit of expressing themselves forcefully.

The Most Poisonous Kind.

He went on talking while the office force listened with some respect. "The most poisonous mind in America today is the secretary of state. Indeed he's as bad as Wilson or Gompers—and that's saying a good deal.

I asked the colonel why Hughes had such a closed mind on Russia.

"Three reasons," he snapped. "First he's a friend of Standard Oil. Second, he had something to do with a little rakeoff on the Bakmeteff millions. Third, he's a hardshell Baptist and wants all the Bolsheviks to join the Baptist church before he'll deal with them."

Robins went on incisively: "Sam Gompers went to the Civic Federation and told them I was a paid agent of Lenin and Trotsky. I can forgive Whiskers, the moralist and Wilson, the Presbyterian, for being against Russia but Gompers, the workingman and the Jew? If he had his way in Russia, more Jews would have been slaughtered than ever in Russian history and hundreds of thousands of workers would have fallen under the White Terror."

Robins Resigns.

These were the sentiments of the colonel a few months ago before a political campaign began. It would be interesting to see him deny that he ever harbored such regards for his fellow-republican Charles Evans Hughes. Apparently he had subordinated the trifling issue of Russia recognition to the higher expediency of the campaign. Today Mr. Robins, the redoubtable orator at Y. M. C. A. gatherings, the militant Christian leader stands with the anti-Russian, anti-working class capitalist dictatorship. He has forgotten what he saw in Russia in 1917-18 and what he thought in America early in 1924.

Hat Workers Get Wage Advance in Boss' Agreement

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Wages of week workers in the Ladies' Hat Frame Workers' Union, Local 50, are advanced from one to five dolars thru an agreement just signed with the Hat Frame Manufacturers' Association. The agreement provides for hiring thru the union, for the 8-hour day, with four hours on Saturday and seven annual holidays with pay. A maximum of eight hours' overtime is fixed, with pay for week workers at time-and one-half. No more than two hours overtime is permitted in any one day. Saturday afternoon overtime is interdicted except on certain Saturday afternoons agreed upon between the union and the manufacturers in conference at the beginning of each season. Workers discharged can appeal to a representative of the employers' association and a representative of the union and if these two fail to agree there is further appeal to a board of adjustment.

Burglars Are Inconsiderate.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 21.—While a deputy sheriff, revolver in hand, waited at the front door of the Wellston Trust company here today to waylay six or seven bandits who were robbing the place, the bandits seized between $25,000 and $30,000 cash and escaped by the back door.

The robbers locked five employes in the cellar.

MANUFACTURE OF RAILROAD CARS DOUBLES IN U. S.

Wages Rise But Profits Rise Higher

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Manufacture of cars for railroads by 130 private contract companies in the United States was 217 per cent greater—in the number of cars—and cost the railroads 109 per cent more, in 1923 than in 1921, according to the census division of the department of commerce. The increased investment in passenger coaches was only 17.7 per cent, but the increase in investment in freight cars was 131.2 per cent, as between the year 1921, when the private companies were wearing out the rolling stock they received from the government and were finding the shops inadequate, and the year 1923, when the cars that had gone thru the strike were junk. The investment in new cars in 1923 was $369,924,942, as against $176,774,656 in 1921.

Profits Increase.

The report shows that the number of wage earners employed in making these cars in 1923 was 76,438, as against 48,121 in 1921. The wages amounted to $122,047,237 in 1923, as against $67,745,689 in 1921. This same force produced other goods also, the whole output bringing the companies a gross profit of $55,500,000 in 1923, as against a gross profit of $53,800,000, in 1921. The average wage in 1923 was about $1,600 per year, for men having steady work, while in 1921 it was about $1,500.

Mexicans Agitate Against Death.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 21.—In Yucatan, there is a strong movement to abolish capital punishment. All classes are supporting it. If it meets with success, Yucatan will be the first state in Mexico to take that step, just as it was the first in much of its social legislation.

That's The Wage of Sin.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Sept. 21.—Mrs. Charles W. Dicken, Ottawa, Ill., in jail here charged with swindling Dr. W. A. McConkie of this city out of $250, today was awaiting the arrival of her husband from Peoria, following which she told police, she would prove her innocence.

Die In Industry.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 21.—One hundred and forty-five workers were sacrificed to New York industry during August, according to industrial commissioner Shientag.

The Wilbur Recall

The recall by President Coolidge of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur from his speaking tour on the Pacific coast has aroused widespread interest of an international character. Not only has there been made an attempt to learn the why and wherefore of this sudden "come-home" order, in the United States, but there has been manifested some anxiety even in Japan and England.

As usual, Mr. Coolidge would have the country believe that everything is just normal and that there is no occasion for disturbance. The facts belie the explanations or rather the absence of explanations on the part of Coolidge. The truth of the matter is that Mr. Wilbur was talking just a little too much and above all was telling too plainly the aims and plans of the American militarist clique. Mr. Wilbur's unguarded and uncamouflaged pleas for gun elevation at a time when Great Britain was protesting this move as a violation of the Washington Conference agreement were considered as unfortunate and inappropriate.

Nor did Japan welcome the bombast of Wilbur when he declared: "Marching hosts of two civilizations stand face to face across the Pacific," and that the maintenance of a powerful fleet in the Pacific "would be a deterrent against hasty, passionate, and ill-advised attack and conflict." Indeed, the answer of Japan to this confession of purpose by our first war lord of the sea is the plan of its navy department to elevate the guns of the Niponese fleet.

The art of diplomacy, like other arts, can be mastered only with time. Mr. Wilbur will learn to ply his trade of befuddling the minds of the masses and serving his employer, the capitalist class, after he stays in the game as long as some of his colleagues. Messrs. Mellon and Hughes have been too long at it to spill the beans so clumsily. No doubt the, comparatively speaking, novice Wilbur was ordered to come back to his post in order to improve his skill as a diplomat and in order to avoid the embarrassments which usually follow plain, blunt talk in imperialist politics.

Balkanizing South America

It has oft been said that the Balkans are the curse of Europe. This is true if war plots, imperialist machinations, royal conspiracies, and capitalist conflicts are to be accepted as the basic criterion of the curse on the continent.

More major wars have had their origin in the Balkans than in perhaps any other section of the world. The Balkans are the least industrialized portion of Europe, except for some great stretches of Soviet Russia. The Balkans abound in natural resources. The Balkans are the threshold to the near-East and the unlimited wealth of Asia. It is precisely for these reasons that the capitalist imperialists of Europe have promoted national strife, political chaos, economic stagnation, and wars in the Balkan peninsula.

Our American imperialists also have their Balkans. The chronic chaos in Central America is only a staging of Balkan politics on a smaller scale. Geographically speaking, the political instability and economic under-development of South America are a staging of sinister Balkan maneuvers on a larger scale.

Just now, there is going on a great race for naval armament in South America. In March 1923, the United States was instrumental in holding a Pan-American Disarmament Conference in Santiago, Chile. Thru the very efforts of the Yankee imperialists this conference was a flat failure. Since then Peru has ordered a fleet of submarines, the construction of which is being directed by an American naval mission established in Lima. Chile has opened the largest drydock in South America in order to maintain its fleet at the maximum efficiency. In Brazil there is an American naval mission planning the greatest naval development in South American history. Argentinia is considering a bond issue of about two hundred million dollars for military and naval purposes. The leading Argentinian battleship, Rivadavia, is now in the United States being thoroly modernized.

This mad navalist race is the result of America's refusal to put a halt to it at the Santiago conference. Apparently the American capitalists are bent upon fostering national strife, group jealousies, political turbulence, and economic instability in South America for their own class purposes. The Yankee imperialists do not desire to see a unified Latin-American continent. Solidarity and common purpose among the Latin American peoples would only hasten the end of Yankee imperialist domination.

The capitalist class whose industrial throne is in Wall Street and whose political seat is in Washington, is deliberately Balkanizing South America as the European imperialists have Balkanized Southern Europe for their own sordid imperialist purposes.

Americanizing Canada

The Dominion of Canada is planning to borrow a hundred million dollars in the United States. The offering of an issue of short term notes for the Canadian government is part and parcel of a plan to refund the Dominion's debt of about two hundred million dollars.

The flotation of this loan in the United States is another indication of the rapidity with which American capitalist interests are assuming control of the economic life of our northern neighbor. There are today invested more than two and a half billion dollars of American capital in Canada. American investors hold nearly twenty per cent of the Canadian government provincial and municipal securities. Twenty-five per cent of the Canadian Pacific Railway shares are in the hands of American capitalists. The situation involving the control of Canada's mines, railways, motor car and accessories industries, meat, rubber, metals and refined petroleum is essentially the same.

Momentarily there is a new angle to this Canadian loan. It appears that the Chase Securities Corporation is planning to compete with J. P. Morgan & Company for this loan. It had been assumed that the House of Morgan, which financed the Dominion government during the war, would, without question, be the sole financial institution called upon in this instance. Besides, recent years have witnessed a specialization on the part of the Morgan firm to deal in government loans or serve as a direct agent of large corporations.

This little brush between Morgan's concern, which is principally an underwriting house, and the Chase corporation, which is primarily a commercial bank, is interesting in the sense that it shows that the process of complete unification of our biggest financial interests is not yet consummated. However, it holds out no hope at all for Canada. The connections and dealings between J. P. Morgan & Company and the Chase Corporation, are too numerous and too firmly rooted to be disturbed by this temporary competition. The two giants of finance will undoubtedly get together to tighten their grip on Canada's resources and to secure a more complete "Americanization" of our northern neighboring country.

Purifying Democracy

Our national election campaigns appear to the careful observer as dress rehearsals of the sham democracy with which we are blessed.

On the eve of these campaigns the employers whose class interests are served best by the fraudulent parliamentary system tend to get busy to purify our democratic institutions in order to make these dress rehearsals gala affairs. It was this desire for political advantage that animated John W. Davis to resign, temporarily at least, from many of the corporation directorships held by him. Of course, Mr. Davis refused to give up these financial footholds before he was sure of getting the democratic nomination.

Such dishonest and meaningless attempts at purifying our national politics are not the privilege of the democrats alone. All employing class parties vie with each other in throwing sand into the eyes of the workers by attempting to assume the holiest of holy attitudes in the quest of pure democracy.

The constitution provides that "No person may serve as a presidential elector who is holding an office of trust or profit under the United States." Therefore, Colonel Francis T. Maxwell has given up all his banking connections including the directorship in the Hanover National Bank of New York and the Hartford National Bank, and the Rockville National Bank of Connecticut.

This is the second instance where a republican elector has resigned his business directorships in order to avoid a possible contest of eligibility in the electoral college. Apparently, Coolidge and his supporters are sure of a sharp contest in the electoral college and are not prepared to risk a single vote. We wonder where the textile baron, William Butler, who is now the republican big boss, will stop in such purification in order to avoid possible conflicts over the election of the Sphinx of the Potomac.

It is of course, the height of asininity to consider these resignations, whether they be temporary or permanent, as steps in the direction of the purification of capitalist democracy. Germs can't be purified. A cancer cannot be cleaned up, but must be cut out if the patient is to stand the slightest chance of living. The illusory employing class democracy, in reality a terrorizing exploiters' dictatorship, holds out no hope to the masses, even at its purest. Surgery, and not the quack patent medicines, offers the only road to salvation.

Wheeler's crime in trying to scuttle the Farmer-Labor Party in Montana is greater than Doheny's steal of Teapot Dome. After all Doheny never claimed to be anything but a capitalist. Wheeler is parading over the country as "a friend of labor," but really stabbing it in the back at every opportunity.

Capitalism must be in a very bad way when it invites the representatives of Soviet Russia to a disarmament conference. Well, that is what we have been saying all the time, that capitalism is on its last pins.

Workers and farmers are beginning to analyze the LaFollette illusion and discovering there is nothing in it for them. They are casting their lot with the Communist candidates, Foster and Gitlow.

"Hands off China!" is the demand of the Russian workers and peasants upon the capitalist world, that should be taken up by labor everywhere.

spirit of: WE HAVE MADE OUR CHANGE OF TACTICS. WE ARE IN A NEW STRUGGLE. AS COMMUNISTS THE WHOLE STRENGTH OF EVERY MEMBER AND EVERY PARTY UNIT MUST BE GIVEN TO THAT STRUGGLE.

Six weeks of work in that spirit will get us one hundred thousand votes for our candidates. It will get us ten thousand new members. It will get us ten thousand new readers for the DAILY WORKER.

Six weeks of such work will enable us to register the election as one of our victories along the long and difficult road to the Proletarian Revolution, even as the Farmer-Labor United Front campaign was a victory for our Party, tho we did not attain our objective, because we strengthened, built up and extended the influence of our Party, the Workers Party—the Communist Party in that campaign.

* * * *

What We Can Do—The Election Campaign.

The results we achieve in the form of support for our candidates at the polls depends upon the number of workers we reach with our speakers, our literature and our slogans.

We have distributed a half million copies of our election platform. But our Party should be able to distribute at least two and a half million copies. That means only one hundred copies per member. Distribution of leaflets is something every Party member can do. We must increase the number of platforms which have been distributed. We must distribute millions of the new leaflets on the Capitalist Dictatorship and Unemployment, which are being published.

The Party is issuing special campaign pamphlets. These must be sold by the thousands in order to give the workers a more thoro knowledge of capitalism and of Communist principles.

The stickers, bearing our slogans should be put up by the millions. The number of meetings held must be doubled, trebled, and more effective work done in arranging the meetings.

The Campaign Fund must be supported by the Party. The work of the National Organization and the Districts has been crippled because the work of raising funds has not gotten under way promptly. Every member must sell CAMPAIGN FUND STAMPS among his friends and shopmates and thus help intensify all the work of the campaign.

* * * *

THE MEMBERSHIP DRIVE.

All our work of agitation avails us little if we do not follow it up with organization. We have not had an organized campaign for new members. We cannot expect the workers to join our Party if we do not ask them.

We must make appeals for new members at all of our public meetings. The audience must be systematically solicited in regard to joining the Party, as we systematically solicit our audiences for collections and in the sale of literature. A Membership Application Committee should function at every mass meeting.

Members individually must enter systematically into the work of securing new members. Let every member of the Party make himself a list of the five persons nearest to him who should join a Communist Party, furnish them with literature systematically and then extent an invitation to become a member. One out of every five will join.

TEN THOUSAND NEW MEMBERS CAN BE ADDED TO THE PARTY BY ELECTION DAY IF WE CARRY ON A MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN.

* * * *

THE DAILY WORKER.

With the ten thousand new members should go ten thousand new readers for the DAILY WORKER.

The election campaign offers the best opportunity to secure subscriptions. The workers are interested. They will listen. Public meetings bring them together.

THE DAILY WORKER is a power for Communism now. It is preparing the way for a stronger Communist party. If we add ten thousand readers we will put it on a safer foundation, extend its influence and prepare more material for party membership in the future.

A NEW MEMBER AND DAILY WORKER SUBSCRIPTION FROM EVERY PRESENT MEMBER OF OUR PARTY IS OUR SLOGAN. THAT IS NOT TOO GREAT A TASK TO PERFORM IN SIX WEEKS. IF WE WORK AT ALL WE WILL SURELY GET TEN THOUSAND NEW MEMBERS AND TEN THOUSAND NEW READERS.

Work! Work! Work!

Comrades! The Proletarian Revolution does not fall from the skies. The Communist Party is not organized by wishing for it. It is work, work, work, and more work that carries along the road to our goal.

Now is the best opportunity for work. Now we are in the midst of a great election campaign. Now is the best time to get results.

Can we mobilize all our forces during the six weeks of this opportunity which lies before us? Can we prove that we are really Communists by working for our Party when the Party requires work from us.

Comrades! Today we fight one way, tomorrow another, the next day still another. We must learn that lesson. We must learn to always fight for our principles and our Party.

Let us prove that we can do that.

Let us throw our whole energy into the election campaign and work with enthusiasm to achieve:

At least a hundred thousand votes for our candidates.
Ten thousand new Party members.
Ten thousand new readers for the DAILY WORKER.

JAPAN'S WITHHOLDING OF RELATIONS WITH SOVIET RUSSIA HIT BY KARAKHAN

(By Rosta.)

PEKING, China, Sept. 10.—With reference to Viscount Kato's interview, as transmitted by the Nippon Tempo Service, Mr. Karakhan, Soviet Ambassador to China, expressed the following views to representatives of the Japanese press.

"The interview given by the Japanese Premier, Viscount Kato, goes far to explain why relations have not as yet been restored between the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and Japan. Even today the Japanese government is mistaken in its estimate of the importance of the question.

"Indeed, Japan thinks she is making a big concession to and putting the Soviet Union under an obligation by recognizing the Soviet government. Until Japan realizes that both sides are equally interested in the restoration of mutual relations and that neither party is doing a favor in this matter, but that both are fulfilling what is essentially in their own interests, it is difficult to achieve a common end.

Japan Wants Unmasked.

"What are the points at variance between us? Only in that Japan, while she has no right save de-facto illegal possessions, wishes to receive under her control, on conditions which only victors could dictate to vanquished, the material resources of Northern Sahalin. What we say is that Japan cannot claim any monopoly or exclusive rights in that part of the island. But Japan can get concessions on a general basis in Northern Sahalin as well as in other parts of the Union.

"It is in this point, and not in the question of the evacuation of Northern Sahalin, that lies the difference. And yet this point is beyond question. There could be no negotiations unless Japan were from the very outset willing to evacuate the Northern part of Sahalin at a definitely fixed date.

Japan Must Evacuate.

"The draft of the article concerning the evacuation of Sahalin, as presented by myself and by Mr. Yoshizawa, contains one divergent point. Namely, whereas we insist on evacuation within a fortnight, considering this term amply sufficient, the Japanese government agrees to evacuate within a period of three months, explaining the necessity thereof by technical difficulties.

"As regards international faith and obligations, upon which Viscount Kato makes dependent the question of recognition and, the settlement of the Russian problems, there are, as it seems to me, no special difficulties in this matter. Mr. Yoshizawa took with him three propositions covering the subject. It is up to Japan, demanding as she does the fulfilment of international obligations, to decide whether she is herself ready to shoulder the international responsibility for those material claims which exist on the part of the Soviet Union.

Russia Will Make No Sacrifices.

"Our policy vis-a-vis Japan is based on strict responsibility, and we will not recede from this principle. I hope that Mr. Yoshizawa, to whom the definite point of view of the Soviet government on all questions is known, will very well explain it at Tokyo, so that I hope that if the Japanese government is sincere, it has, while sending Mr. Yoshizawa to Peking, done everything so that it should not be necessary to have interruptions again. I also believe that Mr. Yoshizawa has been able to give documentary proof to his government that we are not "given to too much diplomacy," but say frankly and openly what is possible and what is not.

"We want an agreement with Japan, but can make no sacrifices, nor do we demand any sacrifices on the part of Japan. I shall use all efforts to bring the negotiations to a positive result and in this I count on the friendly and sincere co-operation of Mr. Yoshizawa."

TREATY WITH RUSSIA BRINGS HOPE OF NEW PROGRESS TO CHINA

(By ROSTA)

MOSCOW, Russia, Aug. 22—(by mail.)—On celebration of the signing of the Russo-Chinese Agreement the Soviet Representative in the Ilyisk region, Mr. Petchatnikoff, held a reception at Kuldja, which was attended by all the Soviet community and Chinese officials with the Chinese Governor and Commander of the garrison at their head, and also representative Chinese big and middle merchants.

In their speeches, the Chinese representatives expressed their firm belief that now that the Soviet-Chinese treaty has been signed it will be easier for the Chinese people to shake off the yoke of imperialism and resolutely follow the path of economic and all-round national progress.

Cal Favors Couzens' Plan to Quiz His Pal Andrew Mellon

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—President Coolidge approves the plan which has been laid down for the senate investigation of the internal revenue bureau, Senator James Couzens, republican, of Michigan, chairman, announced today after a conference at the White House.

"When I told the President of the general scope of our inquiry, Mr. Coolidge declared he believed it was a constructive program for investigating the bureau," Couzens said.

Couzens is listed as a "progressive" and has the support of the Detroit labor leaders, who think they are fighting Coolidge.

PERSIAN MERCHANTS DID GOOD BUSINESS AT RECENT BAKU FAIR

By Rosta.

MOSCOW, Russia, Aug. 22 (by mail).—According to information received by the Russo-Oriental Chamber of Commerce, the Persian merchants were able to sell nearly all the stocks of goods they brought to the recent Baku Fair, to an amount of over 345,000 poods and a value of about two million gold roubles while they purchased some 1,350,000 roubles' worth of goods. These figures do not include the deals transacted between the Persian merchants and the mixed Russo-Persian companies, the "Centrosoyuz," or the State Trading Department.

GITLOW MEETINGS IN PENNSYLVANIA WELL ATTENDED

Communist Candidate is Eloquent Speaker

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 21.—In view of the splendid audiences that greeted comrade Gitlow, candidate for vice president on the Communist ticket, thru out Pennsylvania, the Erie comrades expect one of the best attended meetings in the history of the city on Wednesday eve., Sept. 24. The capitalist press thruout the great steel and coal states have given much publicity to the Communist meetings addressed by Gitlow.

The Smoky City.

In Pittsburgh, the city where the air is black with the smoke from the sweating steel hells, where the lives of the workers are ground into gold for the master class, and the anti-labor record of the government officials is blacker than the smoke stacks of Gary's mills, comrade Gitlow spoke to a throng of steel workers during the first week in September.

Aims of Party.

Gitlow exposed Coolidge, Davis and LaFollette as capitalist agents and stated the aims of Communism. "The purpose of our campaign" declared Gitlow, "is not primarily to elect the Workers Party candidate to office in the government, but to spread the message of Communism in America." Comrade Gitlow is an eloquent speaker and he held that Pittsburgh audience spellbound.

Calvin Coolidge has to pay labor fakirs to come and listen to him but these exploited workers paid to hear Gitlow expound the Communist message and then chipped into the collection basket.

The LaFollette, Davis and Coolidge parties have their millionaire angels like Sprecles, Rockefeller, Morgan, Rockefeller and Gary but the Workers (Communist) Party must depend on the loyalty and generosity of the workers in the industries and on the land.

Wotta Sum! Wotta Sum!

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, formerly Miss Helen Gould, was instructed to appear next Wednesday in the $52,000,000 accounting suit brought by the Jay Gould estate against the trustees of the late George Gould, after brief and perfunctory questioning today. She is one of the four Jay Gould estate's trustees.

CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATE OF W. P. ON TICKET

Gordon Owens First to Go Over in Chicago

Gordon Owens, the Negro, who is the candidate of the Workers Party for congressman from the first congressional district, Chicago, is the first of the congressional candidates to obtain the needed number of signatures to go on the ballot in the November election.

This is a worthy achievement for the efforts of the Party and Y. W. L. branches in that district. There was presumably a difficult district, but the comrades have made good. The Young Workers League, Englewood branch, did exceptionally well, the comrades obtaining nearly two-thirds of the 1200 signatures wanted.

All Will Go On.

From now on we expect at least one congressional district per day to finish the job of obtaining signatures. Every Workers Party candidate must go on the ballot. When the results of Sunday's work by the comrades is in, we shall have a quite accurate estimate of how soon every candidate can go over. There is a race on between District 4, Joseph Podkulski, candidate, and District 9, Jack Johnstone, candidate, for the honors of being the second candidate to go on the ballot. However, the comrades in these districts will have to hurry or District 8, George Maurer, candidate, may slip by them and take the lead.

Earley Takes Charge of Dist. 5.

In an effort to get District 5, H. Epstein, candidate, on the ballot, Delbert Earley, who has been campaign manager for District 9, has been placed in charge of District 5 by the City Campaign Committee. He replaces Comrade W. S. Milson. Comrade H. Henderson, who has been aiding Comrade Earley in District 9, will finish the job in that district. With the change made, the City Campaign Committee hopes to make sure of getting District 5 on the ballot. Comrades in District 6 were out Sunday and early returns have been good for a large number of signatures. The same with District 7, which is working very hard to get the 4,000 signatures wanted. Comrades have every reason to feel encouraged with the results so far and should spare no efforts the remainder of this week in getting signatures.

Every Signature In This Week.

Comrades must be sure to get in all their signatures this week. There can be no delay. Bring or send in your signatures as fast as the petitions are filled out. Every comrade on the job every day. Put the Workers Party candidates on the ballot.

The results to date are:

Dist.	Candidate	Signatures obtained	required
No. 1	Gordon Owens	1,200	1,200

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

"SLY" BASCOM SLEMP, "Silent" Calvin Coolidge's canny secretary, besides assisting his boss in his effort to retain the janitorship of the White House for the next four years, has taken on another task. It appears that the crab industry is running on the rocks, paradoxically enough, be cause the dredging of Chesapeake Bay removes the rocks and other shelter which means as much to the crabs as the White House means to Calvin and Slemp. In telling of the crab-saving crusade, in which Slemp joined, the Chicago Tribune, has the following headline: "U. S. Asked To Make Nation Safe For Crabs." It is a snappy headline, but if the United States showed as much concern for its presidents as it does for the crabs the headline would read: "U. S. to Make Its Presidents Safe From Crabs." Did not a dose of poisoned crabs lay the late Mr. Harding low? But is was rumored that the G. O. P. secretly offered the crabs a vote of thanks for getting rid of Warren. Mr. Slemp's action in their behalf lends credence to the story.

MISS SUSAN LAWRENCE, labor woman member of the British parliament recently returned to London after a visit to Russia. She speaks highly of the Soviet regime and the progress being made by the Workers' Republic along the lines of social reconstruction. The plain press is angered because she has not followed the lead of such counter-revolutionary hags as Emma Goldman and Mrs. Philip Snowden, who attacked the Soviet government to the delight of the workers' enemies and to their own profit. In an attempt to detract from the value of Miss Lawrence's testimony to Soviet progress, the capitalist papers warn their readers that Russia took a month off during the English woman's visit in order to "stage" things for her benefit. One would imagine that the U. S. S. R. turned itself into a gigantic Hollywood in order to give Miss Lawrence a rosy view of life in present-day Russia. So desperate is the position of the anti-Soviet die-hards that they risk arrest on suspicion of lunacy, as a result of their lying yarns, in a futile effort to poison the minds of the masses against the Workers Republic.

ALL is not well in "Bob's" camp in Illinois. Or in New York, Missouri and Montana for that matter. But to deal with Illinois is sufficient for the present. It appears that the original progressives and "Bobites," the heads of the railway brotherhoods are allied with the socialist party against John H. Walker, Olander and the forces of which William Quesse, the flat janitor, is the rather unvocal head. Because of Small's career as a friend of grafting labor officials, the boys who rule certain unions with the aid of the gat owe him a debt of gratitude which they pay with votes. It is better to pay with votes and dine at Henriet's than lishten to the unmusical voice of the prison trusty every morning say: "Come and get it." And what they get is nothing like what wide-awake labor leaders can order in the noted food emporium on Randolph Street. It usually consists of indifferent oatmeal, sans sugar with a can of hot root beer, mislabeled coffee to wash it down.

NOW, money makes the mare go and even Napoleon knew that armies march on their stomachs and capitalist political orators find many things in the matter with their vocal chords unless they can hear the clink of the coin in the box office. The friends of Governor Small may not be strong on ethics but they are not weaklings when it comes to playing politics. They are perfectly willing to pass resolutions praising LaFollette and Wheeler and denouncing General Dawes, but when Bob stretches out the hand for the dough that is needed to make his campaign sing, he hears only a horse laugh, coming from the general direction of Quesse and Co.

TWO MINE BLASTS SAME DAY

I. A. M. CONFAB CUTS DOWN ON OFFICEHOLDERS

Fight to Come on Power to Appoint or Elect

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 22.—The battle for the soup bone, as it was called by one of the vice-presidents, is on in full swing at the convention of the International Association of Machinists here.

By a vote of 325 to 163, the convention voted to adopt a change in the constitution which is supposed to eliminate a number of useless jobholders in the general executive administration, but which actually hands over more power to those at the head.

Rank and File Line-up.

The rank and file supported the proposition when the vote was taken, not because of its allegiance to Johnston, but because of its desire to take some of the fakers off the payroll, the burden of which rests on the backs of the membership.

The proposal was to change the constitution of the Grand Lodge, so that the number of vice-presidents would be reduced from ten to seven, and the executive council to consist of the international president, the general secretary-treasurer and the seven vice-presidents. It was supported by Johnston, the president and Davison, the secretary-treasurer, who don't give a hoot as to how many are on the payroll, but who wanted to centralize the control of the union in to the hands of the Johnston family, by giving him the power to appoint the organizers of the international.

Appoint or Elect?

Now that the matter of a reduced payroll is settled, the fight will take place on the question of appointing or electing the organizers. Johnston, of course, wants to have them appointed—by himself. The rank and file delegates are overwhelmingly in favor of the various territories electing their organizers, thus giving the membership direct control over them.

It was amusing to see the various vice-presidents who were in fear of not being elected again, make a fight against the reduction amendment. The struggle within the old administration was brought out into the open and every bit of dirty linen went thru the process of cleansing right there.

The first one to speak was vice-president Anderson, who admitted that he was fighting to hold his job. He said that it is not the officialdom, but the rank and file that makes the sacrifices in the organization.

Vice-president Dave Williams suddenly got his dander touched and he pointed out the growing friendship between the administration and Wall Street, Johnston's picture having been featured in the Wall Street Journal. He made the interesting prediction that if the Johnston proposal went thru, Victor Gauthier, a Toledo faker, who expelled the Communists, would be left salted high and dry.

Charges Bank Is Open Shop.

Nicholson, another vice-president, took a terrific swat at the administration, charging that the amendment was written in the Grand Lodge's office at Washington. He charged that if the amendment was adopted, it would put more power into the hands of the administration that formerly

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 22.—The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. freight car repair shop, in addition to layigg off a large number of men is dealing out a 20 to 25 per cent decrease in wages to five or six of the remaining men daily.

WHEELER NOW ADMITS DEAL WITH WALSH

Confesses Opposition to Montana F.-L. P.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, candidate for vice-president on the LaFollette ticket, does not deny he is trying to scuttle the Farmer-Labor Party in his home state.

In fact, he practically confesses to the main charge in the DAILY WORKER'S correspondence from Butte, Mont., published in yesterday's issue, that he has a deal on with the Montana "Standard Oil Senator," Thomas J. Walsh, who was the permanent chairman of the proceedings in the democratic madhouse at Madison Square Gardens, that nominated the Davis-Bryan ticket.

Will Be Very, Very Pleased.

"I shall be very, very pleased if Senator Walsh is re-elected to the senate on the democratic ticket," is the way Wheeler puts it.

Wheeler confessed to his best wishes for Senator Walsh while in the city stopping at the Morrison Hotel. The DAILY WORKER, in its correspondence from Butte, Mont., charged that Wheeler would get, according to the deal, the support of Senator Walsh for the vice presidency, if the election is thrown into congress.

It is known that similar deals are being made among the democrats and republicans, the latest combination being "Davis and Dawes." This means that the republicans would ditch Coolidge for Morgan's lawyer, if the democrats will throw their vice presidential candidate, Bryan, into the discard, and support the Chicago banker.

MILAN, Sept. 22.—King Emanuel officially opened a section of Milan-Barse boulevard system on which 76,000,000 lire has been spent in new road construction.

SEARS-ROEBUCK CLERKS MAKE GOOD SHOWING

Straw Ballot Uncovers Growing Discontent

William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president, made a startling showing at the great plant of the Sears-Roebuck Company, mail order house, in the DAILY WORKER'S straw ballot taken there yesterday.

Foster got seven per cent of the total vote, the results showing as follows: Foster, 59; Davis, 113; Coolidge, 315; LaFollette, 340, with Andy Gump getting three.

Employ Young Workers.

The DAILY WORKER straw ballot distributors went to the Sears-Roebuck plant with many misgivings. Here is a great institution employing mostly very young workers.

While the vote was going on, some of these youngsters flippantly declared, "Oh, we don't want to vote," or, "We don't care who gets elected." But large numbers were interested. They voted.

"The ballot taken at the Sears-Roebuck plant," declared Manuel Gomez, "is the most significant yet taken. It was a tremendous success. It shows that even among the youngest workers there is a great undercurrent of unrest."

Bolshevik at "Sears."

The first straw ballot presented to a Sears' worker, brought its startling response.

The man took the card from my hand. He read it. Then whispered in my ear.

"I'm a Bolshevik," he said, and took an extra ballot for the girl with him. "She is Bolshevik, too."

More Women Than Men.

"Cast a straw vote for president," was the greeting to the thousands of office workers that poured out of the tremendous Sears-Roebuck company buildings, at Arlington and Homan avenues, on the west side of Chicago, as the DAILY WORKER straw ballot distributors got on the job Monday.

The Sears-Roebuck plant is the latest to be visited. The comrades handed out the ballots rapidly to the men and women, mostly women in fact, very few men coming out of the doors of the Sears-Roebuck plant.

There are many buildings. The reporter counted as many as six. There are more. There are doors thru which only the office help and executives come. There are other entrances for mere clerks.

Most of those who greeted the straw vote getters, were the office clerks. Most of the time it seemed more like a high school dismissing classes instead of the world's largest mail order house vomiting its help.

Many Remain Indoors.

There were very few actual workers who came out of the buildings that are used for manufacturing. They bring their lunch and remain indoors. The DAILY WORKER vote getters were greeted first of all by secret ser-

MA FERGUSON FEARS CONSPIRACY TO HALT ELECTION IN TEXAS

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 22.—Charging that conspiracy had been entered into by her opponents, mainly disgruntled democrats and Ku Klux Klan supporters, to bring about her defeat in the November elections and to aid the republican nominee, Mrs. Miriam "Ma" Ferguson thru her attorneys today filed a demurrer in the suit to prevent her candidacy for governor when the case was called in district court here.

GASTON MEANS MAKES ANOTHER "CONFESSION"

Burns Spy Hopes to Dodge Penitentiary

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Gaston B. Means, professional stool - pigeon, incurable liar, bootlegger, international spy, accused murderer, and star witness in Burton K. Wheeler's quiz of the Department of Justice under Harry M. Daugherty, denied the truth of all statements made by him on the witness stand reflecting in any way on the character or acts of the ex-attorney general.

Means is now under threat of imprisonment having been convicted in New York on a bootlegging charge shortly after his testimony against Daugherty.

He charges that Wheeler, Senator Dill and LaFollette's two sons, Robert and Philip, framed Daugherty with the object of ruining him, having him expelled from his office and putting something over on the administration. That all these objects were accomplished even Daugherty is willing to admit.

Coolidge, Silent and Slow.

The famous investigation of the department of justice under Harry M. Daugherty almost completely ruined that strikebreaker.

While Daugherty was under fire, Calvin Coolidge kept his silence and only moved to demand resignation when Daugherty's continued presence in the cabinet threatened to bring down the administration.

Missed Injunction Issue.

There is considerable comment in labor circles here on Wheeler's failure to investigate the strikebreaking activities of Daugherty, particularly in connection with the railway shopmen's strike. Wheeler would not have to rely on the testimony of such men as Means or women of the Roxie Stinson type in nailing Daugherty on

FIVE COAL MINERS ENTOMBED IN UTAH WHILE OHIO BLAST KILLS ONE AND MAIMS FIVE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 22.—Five men are reported to be entombed in the mine of the Carbon Fuel Company at Rains, as a result of an explosion at six o'clock last night. Efforts to verify the report were fruitless, but reports reaching the city today stated that the Rains mine was on fire. This disaster follows on the heels of the Kemmerer, Wyoming, catastrophe.

DILLONVALE, Ohio, Sept. 22.—One man was killed and five others injured in a mine explosion here today, according to a report to the state mining department at Columbus.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 22.—One man was killed instantly, two probably fatally injured, and five others sustained serious injuries when a mine motor car in which they were riding was buried by a fall of stone and slate in the H. Walker Mining Company mill at Dillonvale today.

William Maleski, mine foreman, was crushed to death. John Riffle and Aleax Travis were crushed so bad they probably will die, and H. Govric, Joseph Sundóra, Henry Anderson, Joseph Bazor and Henry Buzer were those hurt.

Let's Quicken Our Step

WE are addressing ourselves to the party membership. What to say, well, what we know. But HOW TO SAY IT so that it will make them quicken their step, that may take a minute or so. We are asking for that minute or two from you.

For instance, if all we needed to say was—"GO GET THE MONEY," and if as a result of this command every comrade would take the campaign fund stamp book and not sleep another wink nor eat another bite until every 25 cent, 50 cent and dollar stamp had been sold—if that were all we needed to do—hasten the day, is all we'll say to that.

As it is, we're all out of step in this eampaign fund collection effort. We don't seem to have gotten the swing of it yet. And it's not too late to expect returns. The stamp books have been in the hands of the members three weeks. Three weeks is a long enough time to sell the ten dollars' worth of stamps the book contains.

We're all out of step in this election fund campaign effort. That's why we shout—ATTENTION!

Because, you see (and we hope you do)—the election campaign is our today's offensive against capitalism. Yesterday we fought capitalism at another front. Tomorrow we may have to change fronts again. Communists battle with the enemy everywhere and every way. Weaken the enemy, strengthen our ranks—this is what we will be doing for time to come.

There can be no battle without weapons. There can be no weapons in the campaign under way without money. The weapons right now are our press, speeches, leaflets, pamphlets.

HOW MANY OF THESE WEAPONS WILL WE PUT INTO ACTION?

FIVE MILLION LEAFLETS? Sell every campaign fund stamp in your book and we will do it!

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND PAMPHLETS? Sell every campaign fund stamp and we will do it!

A HALF MILLION STICKERS? Sell your campaign fund stamps and we will do it!

A HALF MILLION CAMPAIGN ISSUE OF THE DAILY WORKER? Then sell the campaign stamps!

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY MAJOR CAMPAIGN RALLIES? Sell the campaign stamps and our best speakers will make every large city in the country!

We repeat. There can be no battle without weapons. There will be no weapons unless you send us money. Do you intend to fight or not? Is this battle to be a big fight or just a little fuss?

All who are opposed to making this election campaign a major offensive will please write us a letter. All others will please get into action—TODAY!

There are hesitant souls, we know. And they will eventually get lost in the clouds of dust at the rear of the advancing proletarian army.

That's the point! In the rear or AT THE FRONT!

At the front, you say? Well, then let's quicken our step! IN WITH THE DOLLARS!!

DUNNE SPEAKS AT CONFERENCE FOR FOSTER-GITLOW CAMPAIGN

William F. Dunne, Communist candidate for Governor of Illinois, recently returned from Russia will be the principal speaker to address the meeting of the Foster-Gitlow Conference tomorrow night, at 8 o'clock, at 2733 Hirsch Boulevard.

Alexander Bittelman and other members of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party will address the meeting. M. Schuchter who will preside will open the meeting at eight o'clock sharp. The call for the meeting reads as follows:

Appeal to Workers.

"Workers! This meeting is called by the organized workers of Chicago and is the most important political meeting held in this city because the speakers will take up the problems that are nearest to the interest of workers. The Workers Party is a purely workers' organization, you will not be entertained with this and that scandal and you will not be buncoed with empty promises by corporation lawyers who love the "dear people" before election, but you will come to lay plans for the conducting of your campaign to carry out your needs.

"Workers! Your bosses are organized and the political campaign of the Coolidges, Davises and LaFollettes are there to serve their interests. But the political organization to serve your interests is the only workers' political

BRAZILIAN COMMUNIST PARTY SUFFERS UNDER PERSECUTION OF REACTIONARY OLIGARCHY

(From Our Brazilian Correspondent)

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 1.—The Communist Party of Brazil is facing tremendous difficulties and hardships. The Brazilian oligarchy has mobilized all its forces for the suppression of the proletariat. No mercy is being shown to anyone who is for the working class.

There are many Communists languishing in the terrible prisons of Brazil. Recently one of the members of the central executive committee of the party was jailed. The gruesomeness of the Brazilian prison system and jails is comparable only to those of China and Japan.

CARPENTERS IN CONVENTION AT INDIANAPOLIS

Amalgamation Urgent Need of Union

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 22.—The twenty-first convention of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America opened here today with President William L. Hutchenson presiding.

John L. Lewis, notorious reactionary, president of the United Mine Workers of America, made an address at the morning session to the over 800 delegates who are assembled.

Jurisdiction Problem Up.

Among the many problems before the convention is jurisdictional disputes. These disputes in the building trades have left a long and ruinous trail of disorganization and demoralization that will compel intelligent discussion in the convention.

The carpenters have been the center of many of these disputes, and so far the only remedy offered is to leave it to the joint board of jurisdictional awards or else for the unions to enter a life and death struggle.

Neither of these remedies lessen, let alone solve, the problem. The board of awards is a class collaborationalist plan controlled by the bosses and only aggravates the situation. In the scrap between the carpenters and the sheet metal workers over the setting of hollow trim, etc., this board decided against the carpenters who then refused to accept the award Hutchenson's refusal to accept this decision, was not, of course, because he is against class collaboration, but merely because the decision would mean less members paying dues to the carpenters.

K. C. Fight An Example.

The militants in the union also point out that the other method is suicidal and brings demoralization, the destruction of one of the combatants and the weakening of the other. That is exactly what the employers want to see. The fight now going on in Kansas City, Mo., between these two organizations is an example of the stupidity of settling disputes by this method. The whole of the Kansas City movement is arrayed against the carpenters and if it is allowed to continue it can bring only destruction.

With the centralization of the building industry, and the great changes made in construction thru modern and improved methods, the craft unions are continually coming into conflict with one another, involving them in struggles amongst themselves instead of against the bosses. With the present state of development the craft form of organization stands in the way of the advancement of the workers. Their interests lie only in the solidification of the ranks.

Jurisdictional disputes are quarrels over per capita tax and the officials who hold that it means more work for the present members of the union are merely spreading the buncombe. If the carpenters' union finally won the right to the hanging of hollow metal work, it would just mean that those who do this work would have to join the carpenters' union. It is a fight between officials for power and is detrimental to the interests of the rank and file. It strengthens only the employers' associations.

Amalgamation Only Solution.

The left wing is prepared to carry on a fight on the convention floor for the only logical solution of the problem, the amalgamation of the craft unions into industrial organizations. Jurisdictional disputes, it is indicated, can never be wiped out until there is a complete amalgamation of all workers on a departmental basis, for the simple reason that these disputes are a disease arising from craft unionism.

By Pure Gall.

A nattily dressed holdup man today robbed Gordon Heck, 18, messenger for the Lake View Trust and Savings Co., of a grip containing only cancelled checks. The holdup occurred just outside the bank in the midst of early morning traffic, but the robber held a gun so close to the boy's back that passers-by were not aware of the robbery.

BILL DUNNE TO SPEAK AT LOCAL T. U. E. L. MEETING ON WEDNESDAY

William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, who has just returned from Soviet Russia where he attended the congresses of the Communist International and the Red International of Labor Unions, will speak at his first open meeting before the general membership meeting of the Trade Union Educational League, Wednesday, September 24, on the decisions of the third congress of the Profintern.

The meeting will be held at the Northwest Hall, North and Western Avenues, and will open at 8 o'clock sharp. "Bill" Dunne is not only a capable speaker, but he has a long record of activity in the labor movement of this country. He is a member of the executive committee of the Profintern (Red International of Labor Unions) and took an active part in the discussions at the third congress.

Earl Browder will give his regular interesting Review of the Labor Movement series and all trades unionists are invited to attend. Admission, of course, is free.

vice men, or private detectives. There was also one policeman on each corner. We arrived wearing our ballot box hanking from our shoulders. We were ten in all. We carried little yellow slips—the ballots.

The private detectives wanted to know what we had come for. We told them that we were there to take a straw vote. They warned us not to stand on the steps nor in front of the buildings. However, they did not bother us much.

Presently the workers began to pour thru the entrances. They were going towards another building on the other side of the street which we learned later, was the lunch room. At first they did not know what we wanted. They did not want to stop to take the ballots. Finally they did begin to take the ballots. The older ones took them and started the voting.

A man asked the writer, "Who is this fellow Foster? He must be a new one," he said. "I haven't heard of him yet."

I told him of course, to read the DAILY WORKER.

Many of the women said they would take the straw ballots home with them, they couldn't spare the time to vote during working hours, and they were late. The Negro porters, and there seemed a good many of them, all voted. One voted for Foster and tried to let me see that he did.

There are about 10,000 people working at the Sears plant. I should judge that about 3,000 workers left the building during the noon hour. During all the time that we were there the dicks and police were on the job, but they did not make themselves conspicuous.

Vote at Car Shops.

Ballots for the DAILY WORKER straw vote were distributed to the employes at the Car Shops of the Chicago North Western Railway company early yesterday morning when the men were going to work.

They will be collected in the evening when the men leave their work and the count on the votes will be published in Wednesday's DAILY WORKER.

MEANS IN ANOTHER "CONFESSION"

the injunction activities of his department.

While people of the Means-Stinson type are able to testify to facts that would not come to the knowledge of more decent citizens, they, being underworld types, are purchasable and are liable to switch their stories in return for money.

Wheeler missed a great opportunity to serve the trade union movement when he refused to bring in the activities of the Burns Detective Agency and the Daugherty injunction into the scope of his investigation. Such a development would undoubtedly end in giving the detective agencies, which fatten on agent-provocateur work in the trade unions a blow from which it would take them a long time to recover.

Dicks Might Be Exposed.

But fear that a probe into the detective agencies might expose many prominent labor leaders, who like Mr. Beattie of Pittsburg, former president of the Central Labor Union of that city, acted as a spy and a baiter of radicals, was a factor in inducing Wheeler to lay off the most vital part of the investigation. Wheeler had political ambitions and millionaires like Vanderlip, while anxious to see the government cleaned of its grafters for the sake of the capitalist system, had no desire to see capitalist government exposed as a class weapon and a strikebreaking instrument in the hands of the hands of the capitalists.

Means has repudiated his testimony on the witness stand, it is believed in the hope of avoiding a jail sentence for his bootlegging activities. It is not publicly known whether Harry M. Daugherty acted on his own account in inducing Means to come across or whether the Coolidge faction of the republican party had a hand in the game.

The Coolidge gang cares nothing about Daugherty's fate, but as Harry's indecencies are causing Silent Cal to sweat blood, it is not unlikely that he has taken steps to wipe some of the slime of the ex-attorney-general so that his own carefully manufactured purity should not lose any of its whiteness in the mud-hurling contest.

The Means confession charges that the Wheeler investigation was to be used against the administration. It was proposed that Means be also used by the oil committee, but Wheeler would not stand for any of the politicians who were ruining the oil show. This is Means' story.

Daugherty Failed to Show Up.

Means is the second of those who testified against Daugherty to retract. But those who would make much of these retractions to clear Daugherty of guilt, are reminded that when Daugherty was invited to take the witness stand and clear himself, he availed himself of every legal technicality in order to dodge examination. This fact stands out very clearly against Daugherty.

It is a matter of regret that Burton K. Wheeler, relied on professional liars, crooks, and other underworld characters to build up an indictment against Daugherty, in order to make political capital for the democrats and particularly for himself, when he could have dealt a sever blow to the system which produces crooks like Daugherty, by showing up the government departments as instruments of class rule used by those who own the country against the workers.

Roxie Denies Allegation.

Means would have it believed that the testimony of other witnesses, including Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of Daugherty's former confidant, Jess Smith, was "put in the mouths of these witnesses by Senator Wheeler, primarily to confound and discredit the department of justice and the administration."

However, Miss Stinson, when informed of the repudiation by Means, branded as "ridiculous" the reference to her testimony.

She said none of her testimony was obtained under coercion and that she was not forced to go to Washington to appear before the committee.

Daugherty Upbraids Davis.

Former attorney general, Daugherty, who addressed his statement to John W. Davis, democratic nominee, upbraided him for attacks on the department under Daugherty on charges "without making a thoro investigation of their truth."

Means told newspaper men who questioned him about the new statement to Daugherty that in his "business" it was necessary to sign many things, and that "the full story is yet to come."

LEFT WINGERS POLL WELL IN ELECTIONS OF CHICAGO LABOR

John Fitzpatrick was re-elected without opposition to the office of president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and Edward Nockels again took office as secretary, also unopposed, at the last election of the Chicago body.

The feature of the election was the high vote reached by John W. Johnston, left winger, and assistant secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, for the office of member of the executive board. He polled 62 votes, and John Werlik, another militant, got 31.

Arne Swabeck, left wing candidate for delegate to the convention of the American Federation of Labor, got 27 votes. Thomas F. Kennedy was elected to the position. Oscar F. Nelson was re-elected vice-president of the federation.

MOTHER BLOOR HITS BOBBIE'S PLATFORM HARD

Workers Gather to Hear Communist Speakers

Hundreds of workers rallied to the open air meetings Saturday night, and bought numbers of copies of the DAILY WORKER, at the seven meetings held in the city by the Workers Party.

On Sunday, Mother Ella Reeve Bloor spoke at Newberry place and Clark Street, where she exposed the petty bourgeoise platform and record of LaFollette to a crowd of workers who deserted the free lance artists and eagerly read the hundreds of party platforms that were distributed. Many copies of the "LaFollette Illusion," by Jay Lovestone, were sold to workers who carried LaFollette buttons in their lapels and much good propaganda was spread.

The following meetings will be held in the next few days by the Workers Party:

STREET MEETINGS.

Tuesday, Sept. 23.

Wilton and Belmont—Auspices, North Side English Branch; speakers: Joseph Manley and others.

Division and Washtenaw—Auspices of Maplewood and Hersch Lekert Y. W. L.; speakers: Nat Kaplan and others.

18th St. and 49th Ct.—Cicero Lithuanian Branch; speakers: Maurer and Lithuanian comrade.

49th and Keeler—Douglas Park English; speakers: Earley and others.

Wednesday, Sept. 24.

32nd and Halsted—Auspices, Lithuanian Branches; speakers in English and Lithuanian.

Roosevelt and Marshfield—Auspices of Lutemburg Y. W. L. Good speakers.

32nd and Morgan—Auspices of Polish Branch; speakers in English and Polish.

Madison, about 200 west—Auspices of Local Com. W. P.; speakers: Earley and Maurer.

PREACHER HAD MUCH PITY FOR HIS ILL FRIENDS

MT. VERNON, Ill., Sept. 22.—With the aid of a bible, state's attorney Thompson secured a signed confession form the Rev. Lawrence M. Hight, admitting the murder of his wife and Wilford Sweeting, husband of a woman with whom the preacher had illicit relations.

The only defense the man of God offered for the murder was that both were ill when he dosed them with arsenic and he wanted to relieve them of pain. Wilford passed away sweetly, declared the divine and expressed his faith in God in a way that would bring joy to the heart of any clergyman.

Whether the court will consider this mitigating evidence remains to be seen. The minister's confession follows:

Kind Husband!

"While I was temporarily beside myself with grief at my wife's condition, she suffering intensely and believing she was surely going and wishing to save her a early Wednesday morning, Sept. 10, while Mrs. Lucy Laur, my daughter, Marie Eaton and Mildred Hight, were in the kitchen of my home at Ina, and my son Robert, was in bed at home, put some arsenic in her coffee. My sole thought was to relieve her from her dying moments."

The Sweetin confession reads:

"I placed some arsenic in a glass of water and gave it to Wilford Sweetin. He was ill in bed and I was sure he was dying. My motive was to make his last moments easier."

As a postscript to this he added:

"And there was never anything between Elsie Sweetin and myself in any way."

MC GRADY FAILS TO AROUSE ENTHUSIASM AT MACHINISTS' MEET

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

DETROIT, Sept. 22.—Edward McGrady, representing the American Federation of Labor, received a very lukewarm reception from the delegates to the machinists' convention when he appeared here today to deliver a eulogy of Samuel Gompers and President William H. Johnston. McGrady failed to evoke any enthusiasm and was awarded only a few handclaps on the conclusion of his speech. The forenoon was entirely taken up with a jurisdictional dispute over automobile mechanics.

Storm In South Bend.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 22.—South Bend was recovering today from a cyclone that dropped out of a clear sky Sunday afternoon paralyzing traffic, leveling trees and telephone poles, dismantling light and power lines, flooding the city from gutter to gutter and drenching thousands of amusement seekers.

Operator Killed In Storm.

NEW CASTLE, Ind., Sept. 22.—Adelene Stewart, of Louisville, a telephone operator in that city, was killed and two other girls seriously injured in an automobile accident during a heavy rain storm last night on the National Road ten miles south of this city.

Means, the Detective, Decides to Stick by His Pal, Daugherty

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, a private detective, formerly employed by the William J. Burns' International Detective Agency, and later in the secret service of the United States government, under Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty, becomes the central figure of the presidential campaign.

His name is Gaston B. Means. The labor baiter, Burns, at one time referred to him as "America's greatest detective."

* * * *

Gaston B. Means enters the back door of the presidential campaign thru the fact that he was a witness before the Wheeler Committee investigating the department of justice. In the language of his profession he "peached" on Burns and Daugherty. Like all stool pigeons, he has now had a change of heart and repudiates his testimony. There is some talk that Means is planning to repudiate his repudiation. This is believable.

In the meantime the subsidized press is busy publishing denials and counter-denials, statements and counter-statements, affidavits and counter-affidavits, with the result that mud is sticking everywhere, notably on Senator Burton K. Wheeler, vice-presidential candidate on the LaFollette ticket.

Wheeler is held up as a framer of witnesses and a fixer of testimony. The whole capitalist press gets another opportunity to befog the class issues involved in the Teapot Oil Scandal and the corruption in Daugherty's department of justice.

* * * *

Wheeler has shown himself the best ally of his "friendly enemies" in the opposition capitalist political parties.

Wheeler prepared the trap in which he has been caught. And LaFollette stood at his shoulder helping him do it.

In his campaign pamphlet, "Where LaFollette Stands on Fifty Living Issues," the Wisconsin senator quotes himself as saying, under the heading, "Communist Dictatorship," the following:

"If I were a citizen of Russia I should resist this communistic dictatorship as vigorously as I have endeavored to resist the encroachment upon our democratic institutions in America. I hold that government by one class, denying other classes the right to participate, is tyranny."

* * * *

The above paragraph appeared in LaFollette's series of articles on "What I Saw in Europe," published in the Hearst papers, the extract being taken from the Washington Herald, Dec. 16, 1923.

It is not an isolated expression of opinion. It is a statement embodying the backbone of the whole LaFollette-Wheeler political philosophy.

La Follette does not believe in class political action and so he fights the organization of the Farmer-Labor Party, betraying it at every opportunity into the hands of its enemies. An example of this was his attack on the St. Paul, June 17th, Farmer-Labor Conference. LaFollette has never raised the class issue in behalf of the workers and farmers during his whole political career. His refusal to do this has made him one of the best supporters of the Wall Street social order.

* * * *

Similarly with Wheeler. As prosecutor of the department of justice, he spent his time chasing bootleggers and underworld characters of many kinds, instead of using the opportunity to place the American capitalist government on trial.

It was Daugherty's department of justice that helped break the nation-wide strike of the railroad shopmen; Daugherty acting on behalf of the biggest moneyed interests. But Wheeler claimed an investigation of Daugherty's record in the shopmen's strike would be raising the class issue of the railroad workers against the railroad capitalists. Especially it would show that the government was but an instrument in the hands of money oligarchy of Wall Street.

The golden opportunity to render a real service to the American working class knocked at Wheeler's inquisition chamber. He refused to listen. He would not turn upon his own class—the capitalist class. He would not attack his own government—the American capitalist government—showing it to be the enemy of the workers and farmers.

Instead he spent his time in dabbling with characters like Gaston B. Means, the detective of Daugherty and Burns; with Roxie Stinson, the widow of Jesse Smith, pal of Daugherty, who made half a million in one year thru issuing whisky permits; George Remus, the millionaire bootlegger; Howard Mannington, the keeper of "The little Green House on K. Street" and a host of others.

* * * *

But never, at any time, did Wheeler call a single witness to the stand to expose the strike-breaking activities of the department of justice.

Never, at any time, did Wheeler call a single witness to expose the "red baiting" activities of Burns and Daugherty against militant labor.

Never, at any time, did Wheeler direct his attack against the capitalist class, an attack that would have brought beneficial results for the American working class; an attack that could not be repudiate by private detectives, bootleggers, stool pigeons and other riff-raff of the underworld that has wormed its way into the upper social strata.

* * * *

The Communist fight makes that class cleavage. That is why it fights LaFollette and Wheeler, as well as Coolidge and Dawes, Davis and Bryan, all upholders of the most oppressive class rule in all history, the American capitalist dictatorship.

The class struggle leads on to triumph of the Workers' Dictatorship over the Capitalist Dictatorship. But where the dictatorship of capitalism is an instrument for maintaining capitalism in power, the dictatorship of the workers is merely a transition period ending in the Communist Society where all classes have disappeared; where there are no parasitic shirkers nor cruelly exploited workers, where all are common producers in full enjoyment of their labor.

* * * *

Only the Communist candidates in this campaign, William Z. Foster, for president, and Benjamin Gitlow, for vice president, carry the standards of the class fight against capitalism.

LaFollette and Wheeler, republican and democratic themselves, have helped the Wall Street parties, better than they know, to muddy the waters in this year's presidential struggle. They have created confusion that will help the big "open shoppers," more successfully than ever, to carry on their fight against the workers.

Only the Soviet Rule of the Workers' and Farmers' Dictatorship will win the final victory for city and land labor over capitalism and all its lackeys, even down to the LaFollettes and the Wheelers.

SPANIARDS IN LOSING FIGHT ON MOROCCANS

Imperialist Demands of Spain Rejected

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Dictator Primo de Rivera, at the head of the Spanish forces which are attempting to crush the rebellion of the natives of Spanish Morocco, is facing the necessity of withdrawing his troops from the colony so that the Spanish government may negotiate immediate peace, dispatches from Morocco indicate.

The terrific losses inflicted on the Spaniards by the rebel forces are said to be responsible for the sudden decision of King Alfonso's government to come to terms with the Moors. The Moors demand that Spain withdraw to four posts along the coast.

It is generally understood that Abdel Krim, leader of the Moorish forces, will not comply with the demands of Spain that Tetuan be left to the Spaniards or to the Sultan of Morocco, whom he considers the agent of Spanish imperialism. Spain has demanded in a preliminary conference that the nominal sovereignty of the sultan be preserved over the entire territory, and that Tetuan be guaranteed as the sultan's capital.

If the Spanish refuse the demands of the rebels, it is understood that Abdel Krim will continue his offensive on the Spanish troops. The Spanish garrison at Sheshuan has never been relieved, in spite of the use of 100,000 men with airplanes and artillery to preserve it from attacks of the rebels. The entire route from Tetuan to Tangier is occupied by the Moorish troops.

Eastern Morocco is practically lost to Spain, and Western Morocco cannot be held for more than a few days, the reports say.

Government circles in France are said to be considerably worried over developments in Morocco. The establishment of a Riff republic, on the borders of the French possessions in Africa, would endanger the security of French dominion.

Machinists' Meet Votes to Cut Down on Officeholders

was held by the czar of Russia. In his attack, the labor bank of the machinists at Mount Vernon came in for its share, Nicholson pointing out that out of the 21 directors, only five "carried cards." According to him, it was not a labor bank at all, but an open shop financial institution.

Executive Board member, McMahon made the statement that the Grand Lodge had gone into the hole to the extent of $17,000 a month to keep the organizers on the payroll, instead of canning these dough artists and giving some money to the men out on strike or those in jail for the organization.

The real struggle will take place on the question of appointing or electing the organizers, and it is expected that the rank and file will not vote for the Johnston proposition, since Johnston wants to have the right to appoint them, while the left wing wants to have them elected by the districts concerned. If the left wing keeps up with the same showing of strength as it has done up to now, the convention will no doubt, go down in the history of the American labor movement as one of the most progressive ever held by the International Association of Machinists.

PENNSYLVANIA COAL DIGGERS' JOBS FAILING

Lewis' Treachery Felt in Fayette County

By ART SHIELDS.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 22.—The great coking fields of Fayette county—so intimate a part in the Pittsburgh steel industry—are smitten by the same depression that has laid its hand on steel. Most of the 45,000 miners of the county are idle and the others are working on part time.

In the vicinity of Uniontown, the leading city in the southern end of the coke district, the shutdown is 85 per cent complete. All the Frick mines here are idle and the little Frick company towns, of monotonous red frame building, each exactly like its neighbor, are filled with unemployed men and anxious women.

Desert Homes.

Many of the Frick miners have deserted the homes they lived in for 30 years and moved on. The miners are becoming migratory workers in the greatest depression that has hit their industry.

The unemployment is made worse by operators opening up new coal pits and still further inflating the industry. The Fayette or Connellsville field, is an old one and the best chal is further from the surface than it used to be. So the steel corporations are going into the virgin coal lands of beautiful Green county on the edge of Ohio and the trainloads of coal from there are throwing still more men from the old fields out of work.

Haul Non-Union Coal.

I was sitting in West Brownsville on the front porch of the A. F. of L. organizer for the coke regions, hearing his recital of unemployment conditions when a doubleheader train came rumbling over the tracks a few feet away, hauling 70 cars of Green county nonunion coal for the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.

The Connellsville district is openshop. It has been openshop since Henry Frick crushed the Knights of Labor and the early efforts of the United Mine Workers 30 years ago. Only in the great 1922 strike did the men become organized again for a time. Then they gallantly joined the national struggle, cutting off this great source of fuel on which the operators had counted, and thereby saving the national strike.

Betrayed by Lewis.

They continued this strike for months after the general settlement, in which they were not included by the international officials of the union.

Since there is no union agreement in the coke region no uniform wage scale exists. The 1917 scale prevails in the big Rainey system; the Monessen Coal and Coke recently cut its men another 33 1-3 per cent, approximating the 1917 rates; the Hillman mines are close to the same scale and the Frick mines, the paying a wage not far below that in union mines for day men have the reputation of making it up on the tonnage miners by extra heavy "tons." There are no check-weighmen on the non-union tipples to guarantee accurate measurement.

Hughes Worrying His Whiskers Loose Over Roumanian Oil Field

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22. — Peter Jay, American minister to Rumania, who was recalled by secretary Hughes to give a detailed report on the Rumanian law, enacted in July, under which foreign oil companies operating in Rumania are to be forced to sell a majority of their holdings to Rumanians, has reached home. His report will cover the text of the confiscatory law and the secret understandings that may have been reached by Standard Oil and other concerns with the millionaire Bratiano brothers who control the government in Bukharest.

Since the law was enacted, over the protest of the American and other diplomats, speaking for their respective oil companies, a quiet but effective financial blockade of Rumania has been established.

CAPITALISM, COMPERS, HILLQUIT

"CAPITALISM has had its day. It cannot be patched up and made liveable for the workers, whether the patching is done by a Gompers, who frankly admits that he wants to perpetuate the present system, or by a Hillquit, who hypocritically tells the workers that he is establishing socialism. The capitalist system must be abolished root and branch, and the Russian working class have shown the workers of the world how to do it."—William Z. Foster.

WHEELER ADMITS DEAL WITH WALSH

of the Montana oil senator means his repudiation of the Farmer-Labor Party candidate, J. W. Anderson.

Ditches Anderson.

Workers and farmers in Montana point out that it was Anderson, a plain old farmer, who prominently led in the fight that originally sent Wheeler to the United States senate. They charge that Wheeler is now betraying the Montana workers and farmers, and their Farmer-Labor Party, in the role that he now plays on the LaFollette ticket.

Wheeler is on his way back to Montana and he has outlined a policy for himself in an effort to justify his position. This is the old, worn-out trick of charging militants with being "the agents and the stool pigeons of the employing interests."

This is the charge that Sam Gompers loves to level at the radicals in the labor unions when they espouse progressive principles.

It is the charge that socialist reactionaries, like Hillquit and Berger use against the revolutionists in their own organization when they demanded affiliation with the Communist International.

It is the charge that LaFollette himself, in trying to disrupt the Farmer-Labor movement for a class party, has made on various occasions, notably in his stack on the St. Paul, June 17, National Farmer-Labor Conference.

Stool Pigeon Fake.

"From what I am informed a lot of stool pigeons and radicals are in control of the Montana Farmer-Labor Party, and are trying to break up the progressive forces and swing the election to Coolidge and the republican candidates," Senator Wheeler brazenly told the DAILY WORKER.

"Do you think that Mr. Anderson, who helped in your election, and who is now the Farmer-Labor candidate for United States senator against Mr. Walsh, is a stool pigeon?" Wheeler was asked.

Senator Wheeler was in a corner. He had to confess that he, "did not refer to Anderson as one of the stool pigeons and radicals," who are disrupting the progressive forces of Montana. He could only comment favorably on Anderson.

When asked how it was that he could desert and ignore the Farmer-Labor ticket, by favoring the reactionary, anti-labor lawyer, and at the same time praise Anderson, who is the Farmer-Labor standard bearer against Walsh, Senator Wheeler evader the question by declaring he would comment no further until he had visited Montana and could look into the situation for himself. This was very evidently an evasion.

"The Farmer-Labor people of Montana are playing into the hands of the Anaconda Mining Company," was the parting shot.

No F. L. P. for Him.

This declaration of LaFollette's running mate is further evidence that the LaFollette camp has no interest in forming a working class party after the presidential elections. Wheeler, who told the DAILY WORKER, "I admire Senator Walsh very much because of his Tea Pot Dome exposures, and would like to see him get re-elected to the senate," is thus trading with the corrupt old parties and knifing the Farmer-Labor party movement.

When asked if he were in favor of the formation of any sort of a third party after the elections, Senator Wheeler told the DAILY WORKER, "I am for the formation of a third party on the lines of the Labor Party of Great Britain." Wheeler accepts the world Liberal, shrinking with horror from any thing which might earn him the name of radical.

An Ancient Trick.

Wheeler, in raising the "radical" cry in the Montana senatorial and presidential campaign, is using the old trick of raising a smoke-screen to confuse the issues, and to hide his own political trickery and dickerings with the politicians connected with big business. Wheeler has placed himself in the position of fighting the party in Montana whose members aided him into office yet he tries to create the impression that the Farmer-Labor Party of Montana is a party dominated by Coolidge and by stool pigeons in the pay of the Anaconda Copper company.

But in reality, Wheeler in making a political deal with Thomas Walsh, has himself entered into an alliance with the representatives of the very business interests which he pretended to fight with so much noise in Washington—the oil interests.

Action Is Betrayal.

Wheeler's betrayal of the Farmer-Labor Party of Montana is added proof that the LaFollette group is merely a loose organization of individual vote-getters, who will ally themselves with any sort of business—big or small—and any sort of politicians, corrupt or otherwise, as long as they can pull out the vote for themselves in the election. Without principles or constructive platform that will interest the workers, their strength lies in maneverings with millionaires and betrayals of workers' organizations.

Use Old Pretext.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 22.—A raid staged by detectives on the California Branch General Defense committee, I. W. W., in San Francisco, brought 9 arrests. All were dismissed except Ed Delaney, secretary, who altho having a regular salaried job, as secretary, was sentenced to 90 days for vagrancy. Delaney appealed and is out on bond.

GRAFTER IN VETERANS' BUREAU, FORBES, WILL BE TRIED IN OCTOBER

Demurrers to the bribery indictments against Col. Charles R. Forbes, former head of the United States Veterans' Bureau, and John W. Thompson, millionaire St. Louis contractor, were dismissed in federal court here today and the defendants ordered to stand trial.

The date for the trial will be set at a hearing October 14.

The demurrers were based on claims of the defense that the indictments do not set forth in specific terms the exact nature of the offense.

The court ruled, however, that "conspiracy to defraud the government" was a broad term and need not be couched in detailed complaint.

The indictments in the case grew out of graft in connection with the conduct of the veterans' bureau.

DEFENSE DAY IN SAN PEDRO BIG FIZZLE; LABOR NOT THERE

By J. STEVENSON.

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Sept. 22.—From a master class viewpoint "Defense Day" in San Pedro was a fiasco, but from a workers' viewpoint it was a decided victory.

In this city with its evil reputation for bourgeois tyranny, the consistent repression of the workers, had its effect in the lack of enthusiasm amongst the slave class to defend or show their willingness to defend the profits and property of the bourgeoisie.

True there was a procession—why yes—a procession that took just four minutes and fifteen seconds to pass a given point; the parade, numbering 500 persons at the most, was composed almost entirely of military or semi-military forces, police of course, firemen, a squad of infantry, a detachment of sailors a squad of boy scouts. The only civilians in the parade were a gang of Elks whose numbers were reinforced by several elderly ladies who would undoubtedly be out of place on a long march or under campaign conditions. There were also present a handful of ex-service men and a few G. A. R. veterans. Not a single working class organization was represented—why should they?—the workers of this city have had some experience of war—class war—and the lesson has not been forgotten.

Kidding The People.

The favorite theme of the G. O. P. press agents is an interview with a standpat senator or national committeeman, who is called in from a distant state to confess that Coolidge will carry his state by a majority as big as Harding secured in 1920. Minnesota is claimed, about three times a week, for Coolidge, while Dawes is reported as arousing the enthusiasm of the Germans in St. Louis.

ALL PARTIES IN GREAT PUBLICITY PIFFLE CAMPAIGN

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Not since 1896 have newspaper correspondents in Washington been supplied with so heavy a volume of political pressagent product as during the past few weeks. While the G. O. P. headquarters issues almost hourly statements, interviews and digests of campaign news, the LaFollette-Wheeler publicity bureau, directed by Ernest Gruening, formerly of The Nation, comes a close second. It issues from 5,000 to 7,000 words of press material every week-day. The democrats come third, with printed and mimeographed statements, and the American Federation of Labor trails with an average of two statements each day.

PLEDGE $2700 TO CAMPAIGN IN NEW YORK

T. U. E. L. Members for Communist Ticket

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Twenty-seven hundred dollars were pledged here by the militants in the labor movement at a meeting of the Trade Union Educational League. With few exceptions all the groups were present.

The furriers pledged $1,000; the ladies' garment workers, $500; the metal trades, $250; the building trades, $300; the teamsters, $100; the food workers, $100, and the window cleaners announced that despite the fact that they were on strike they would contribute a good portion of the money.

Others to Contribute.

The members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and other needle trades were not present because of union meetings that were being held; special meetings will therefore be called for these groups and it is expected that large sums will be raised from that source.

A shop chairman of the capmakers' union announced that altho his local had officially indorsed LaFollette, no shop chairman had volunteered to take a list for "Bobbie." He pledged $500 on behalf of the militants in the capmakers' union.

Comrade William Weinstone dwelt on the political problems of the campaign, showing how the LaFollettites were disrupting the organized Farmer-Labor parties in the western states, and pointed out the betrayal of independent political action by the socialist party. He presented a resolution, adopted by the conference immediately, which pledged the T. U. E. L. to the support of the Communist candidates.

Outline Campaign Plan.

Charles Krumbein, district organizer, urged the assembled workers to push the issue of the Communist campaign in their local unions, and the eastern district organizer for the league outlined a plan for action for the groups to follow. Suggestions were made and approval given to the general plan. Numerous subscription lists were distributed and it is expected that large sums of money will be collected in a short time.

A special conference of militants from labor and fraternal organizations is to be held on Sunday, September 28th, at the Labor Temple, 243 E. 84th St., at 2 o'clock. All progressives are urged to be present.

REDUCTION IN RAIL RATES IS PAID FOR OUT OF THE SLICES IN WAGES OF RAILROAD LABOR

By LELAND OLDS.
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Who is paying the price of reductions in railroad rates which are saving the country nearly $5,000,000 a day? Not the big railroad capitalists whose profits are holding right up to average in spite of the depression. No, the bill is being met in large measure by railroad employes and their families who have been hit by successive wage reductions and by layoffs which have left many of them on the street looking for a job.

Three Million A Day.

The total amount which the railroad workers contributed to the rate reductions for which railroads are claiming credit is estimated in railroad circles at $3,286,000 a day. That means about $1,200,000,000 a year. Wage cuts account for approximately $1,576,000 a day in this saving. Approximately $1,700,000 a day has been cut from the cost of transportation by reductions in force affecting 365,000 workers.

Some Profit!

Meanwhile the profits of the railroads for the first 7 months reached a total of $465,616,601. On a property valuation determined not by the interstate commerce commission but by the railroads themselves this points to a return of more than 6 per cent for the entire year. On a fair valuation basis it means a return in excess of 6 per cent. The latter part of the year is expected to prove even more profitable.

Of 41 leading railroads whose probable income for 1924 has been computed on the basis of returns for seven months, 23 show increases over 1923, 27 show profits for stockholders which will exceed 6 per cent and 12 show profits of more than 10 per cent. The predicted returns to stockholders in 1924 compared with 1923 in the case of 20 leading carriers are as follows:

Wotta List!

	Pct.	Pct.
Atchison, T. & Santa Fe	11.0	15.4
Atlantic Coast Line	20.0	18.6
Baltimore & Ohio	8.6	13.2
Chesapeake & Ohio	17.0	12.5
Chicago & Northwestern	6.4	4.9
Delaware & Hudson	11.5	11.1
Delaware, Lacka & Western	9.5	7.1
Great Northern	7.9+	7.2
Illinois Central	16.7	13.5
Louisville & Nashville	9.0	11.5
New Orleans, Tex. & Mexico	23.7	16.2
New York Central	14.5	16.9
Nickel Plate	14.0	15.1
Norfolk & Western	16.0	11.8
Northern Pacific	6.2	5.2
Pennsylvania	9.6	9.0
St. Louis-Southwestern	11.0	14.7
Southern Pacific	10.3	12.9
Southern	8.6	10.1
Union Pacific	15.7	16.1

The railroads whose common stock holders can look forward to returns of more than 6 per cent for 1924 operate together over 125,000 miles of main track, or more than half the total mileage of the country. The railroads for which more than 10 per cent is forecast operate a combined mileage of more than 58,000 or approximately one-quarter of the country's transportation system.

The Next Meal.

Families of unemployed railroad workers may wonder where the next good meal is coming from but railroad owners have reason to be satisfied with the profits of a depression year.

Rockefeller "Sups" Proves Good Picking for Yale Graduate

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Montague Pike, 29, graduate of Yale and Sing Sing, was under arrest today in connection with the robbery of Miss Edith Bobe, Broadway modiste, and Robert L. Hague, marine superintendent of the Standard Oil company, of New Jersey, of jewels and cash estimated at over $50,000 under circumstances similar to those surrounding the robbery of "Dot" King and Louise Lawson.

Pike was arrested charged with extortion after it was alleged he had telephoned Miss Irene Flaherty, Miss Bobe's secretary, and demanded $4[illegible] for which he promised to reveal where the stolen gems now were.

Miss Bobe has disappeared as the result, it is reported, of a mysterious telephone call which threatened her with the same fate of "Dot" King and Louise Lawson because of information she has given to the police.

ORGANIZE FIGHT AGAINST RULING ON NEGRO BELTS

N. A. A. C. P. in Fight on Segregation

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People is striking a legal blow at black-belt segregation in its appeal to the U. S. supreme court in the case of Mrs. Helen Curtis of Washington who is enjoined from taking title to property outside of the socalled Negro district, which she purchased from a white property owner. The injunction alleges that the sale violated a white property owners' agreement not to sell to Negroes. The federal district court upheld the agreement.

$5,000 Fund.

A fund of $5,000 is being raised by the association to fight the case. Walter White, assistant secretary told The Federated Press that if this case is won a gap will have been torn in the wall of the black belt, the Negro ghetto. The association contends that residential segregation leads to unfair and exhorbitant rentals to Negroes who have no choice but the segregated district. Their statistics show that Negroes are compelled to pay rents 25 per cent and more above those charged whites, who have the privilege of selecting their own district.

Segregation is also cooposed as leading to hostility between the races and making difficult the inter-racial co-operation the association is urging. It is pointed out that compelling Negroes to live in isolated districts hinders co-operation between Negro and white workers and makes it easier for employers to use the workers of one race to crush the organization efforts of workers of the other race.

PREDICT PLACE ON BALLOT FOR CONNECTICUT

Workers Party Pushing Hard in Campaign

By WILLIAM SIMONS,
District Organizer.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 22.—The Workers Party district executive committee is determined to strain every nerve to get our state and national tickets on the voting machine. We have until Oct. 7 to collect 3,665 signatures, but in order to assure this amount it will be necessary to gather a far greater number. The slogan is "Five Thousand by Sept. 30." On Thursday, Sept. 11. Bridgeport had 325; New Haven, on Monday, the 15th, 546, and Hartford, 200—a total of 1,071.

The best showing so far has been made by the Bridgeport comrades, especially J. Gombos and Jennie Feldman. Gombos had 80 and promised 200 in all. In New Haven 365 of the signatures were obtained by Comrade H. S. Bloomfield, who had been called in from Worcester for this specific purpose.

Members to Meet.

On Monday, the 15th, a special membership meeting was called in New Haven, where 30 comrades pledged all their energies toward getting signatures. The total obtained is growing from day to day.

Quotas have been assigned to the major cities as follows:

	Have	9-23	9-30	10-7
Stamford	.....	200	600	750
Hartford	200	500	1200	1500
Bridgeport	325	500	1200	1500
New Haven	546	1500	2000	2500
	1071	3000	5000	6250

Judging from the zeal with which the comrades are attacking the job, Connecticut will go on the ballot. It must be remembered that this is no small task for the small membership in Connecticut. Districts with six times the membership have had to secure one-fourth of the number of signatures. But, despite this handicap, Connecticut is going over the top.

Open Air Campaign.

An open air campaign is being arranged, to include Bridgeport, Hartford, Waterbury, Stamford, Ansonia, New Haven, New Britain, South Norwalk, Naugatuck, Torrington, and Meriden.

The noon hour shop meetings which are being conducted in New Haven, are reaching the workers with our election program, and campaign literature. Since August 22, there were held five noon hour meetings; two evening; two on the corner Green Bandstand; and one indoor meeting. Total attendance 2,575; 124 DAILY WORKER copies sold; 100 copies II Lavoratore distributed, as well as 5000 copies of the election program.

Difficulties S. P.

In marked contrast to the Socialist Party, the Workers Party is carrying on a clean-cut, working class campaign. The S. P. official bulletin under date of Sept. 12, (Defense of the Fatherland Day) declares a Connecticut S. P. member thus: "Our party members are joining the LaFollette clubs and neglecting the socialist party meetings." The Workers Party faces in this nutmeg state a solid amalgamation of the Socialist Party and the LaFollette forces. Getting the W. P. ticket on the voting machine will be a mighty weapon against this movement of the small manufacturers, business men and indepedent bankers, as well as against the old party tickets.

Views of Our Readers

To the DAILY WORKER:— Some of the members of the police force connected with Stanton Ave. station on the south side, make it their business to stop, molest and question couples composed of Negro men and light complexioned ladies.

This vicious and unlawful practice of these big rawboned sapheaded policemen, is bound to lead to serious trouble if allowed to continue.

Numerous protests have been made by Negroes to Chief Collins against this practice, but evidently to no avail.

Time and again Negro men escorting their light complexioned Negro wives and lady friends have been bullied and molested by these so-called guardians of the law.

Last week two of these policemen separated a Negro man from his fair complexioned Negro lady friend, and proceeded to question the lady as to her racial identity, residence, etc.

It is time that a halt was called to these illegal practices of policemen, before something serious happens.

The Chicago Tribune printed an editorial telling of the fine police protection that Negroes received in Chicago. It appears as tho Negroes need protection from the policemen.

WORKERS TIE UP GREECE IN HUGE RAILWAY STRIKE

Demand 8-Hour Day, 15 Pct. Wage Increase

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ATHENS, Sept. 22—A one hundred per cent strike of the railroad workers here has tied up transportation all over the country. The workers are demanding an eight-hour day and an increase of 15 per cent in wages.

Sympathetic strikes are being called in one industry after another. The bakers and printers have already walked out.

Premier Repulsed.

Premier Sofoulis, demanding of the General Confederation of Labor that the strikers come to terms with the government, was told that negotiations would be carried on only after the strike had been won.

Dissatisfaction among the working classes with the republican government of Greece is shown in burning revolutionary addresses made by labor leaders all over the country. A large majority of the members of the General Confederation of Labor, which includes all of the organized workers of Greece, are active members of the Greek Communist party.

The fury of the workers against Premier Sofoulis and his cabinet has been roused to fever heat with the discovery a few days ago of the theft by government officials of millions of drachmas from the funds set aside for Greek refugees who fled from Asia Minor after the retreat of the Greek army. The refugees are on the streets starving.

The scandal concerning the administrators of the Refugees' Financial Bureau follows close on the discovery of the theft of 14 million drachmas by a committee appointed by the government to evaluate the property lost by the refugees in Asia Minor, and to return to them a certain proportion of their losses.

Arrests Numerous.

Members of both committees have been arrested, but it is not expected that action will be taken against them. A bishop of the official Church was arrested seven months ago for stealing money from the funds of the Church committee, but no attempt has been made to bring him to trial.

The workers are now proclaiming their intention to refuse participation in the threatened war of the Greek government on Bulgaria. The Communist movement in Bulgaria is enormously strong, and the effect of a Communist uprising on all the countries of the Balkan peninsula is feared by Greece.

The two governments have for a week been exchanging ultimatums, giving as cause for war the "killing of citizens in foreign territory."

Communists Call for Action.

The Communists of Greece, thru proclamations and speeches, and especially thru their daily organ, Risospastis, is rousing the Greek workers, in the event of war, to seize their arms against the bourgeois governments of both countries and to establish Soviet rule.

Pittsburgh Y. W. L. Meet.

Oliver Carlson, delegate to the Young Communist International, will give his report to the membership of District 5 at the membership meeting to be held on Thursday, Sept. 25, at 8 p. m., at the Labor Lyceum, corner Reed and Miller Sts., Pittsburgh.

Carlson has spent 24 months in many European countries and will have many interesting things to tell of conditions in Europe. Every member of the Young Workers League must attend and the members of the Workers Party are urged to attend also. Branches out of the city are expected to attend this meeting as it is very important.

Admission will be card only.—Morris Schindler, District Organizer.

Announce Birthdays of Political Jail Victims This Month

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 22.—Birthdays in October of political prisoners, confined in prisons in the United States, are announced by the Workers' National Prison Comfort club:

San Quentin Prison, Cal.: Oct. 5, James LaLonde, Reg. No. 38122; Oct. 23, John Hannon, 35565; Oct. 28, W. H. Wright, 38537.

Lewisburg, W. Va., County Jail: Oct. 19, H. C. Hickey, (a coal miner).

Thomaston, Me., Box A.: Oct. 24, Jack Lucille.

Carl Meyer, National Secretary, invites friends and sympathizers to send birthday cards and letters (money is advisable for gifts) to these political prisoners. Books and publications must be sent direct from publishers.

Recently a member of the club called on one of the political prisoners, and was advised that when prison officials know a prisoner has not been forgotten, but receiving visitors, even letters and other communications, they are decent toward the prisoner in order to create an impression upon his visitors.

The club helps all political and class war prisoners, regardless of their political or industrial affiliations.

Expel Member for Violating Principles of Workers Party

In accordance with the decision rendered by the Central Executive Committee of the Party the Superior Wisconsin English Branch has expelled Earl Milde from the Party.

The ground for this action was the fact that Milde supported a republican candidate for sheriff in the primaries on the basis of a promise of a job as deputy sheriff if the republican was elected to office. Later Milde accepted a position in the employ of the Wisconsin state government which obligated him and he desired to support the candidacy of Governor Blaine of Wisconsin thru the distribution of advertising matter during at least one day of the campaign.

The decision of the Central Executive Committee expelling Milde was based upon the fact that the records show that he has not the slightest conception of the class struggle and the class character of the Communist movement and therefore had no place in a Communist Party.

AUTOCRAT RULE OF FARRINGTON TO BE JUDGED

Expulsion of Local to be Reviewed

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 22.—The question of whether or not Frank Farrington, autocratic president of the Illinois miners, has the power to arbitrarily expel individual members of a local union, and to revoke the charters of local unions in an unconstitutional manner will be the issue here October 12 when John L. Lewis reviews the revocation by Farrington of the charter of Local Union No. 448.

Farrington, because local union 448 contains a large progressive element, including two of the militant leaders in the organization—John Watt, secretary-treasurer of the Springfield sub-district, and Duncan MacDonald who has a large progressive following thruout the state—has centered his attack on this local.

Violated Constitution.

"Frank Farrington violated the constitution of the United Mine Workers of America and the state constitution of the Illinois miners in ordering MacDonald expelled from the union before he had a fair and impartial trial," Thomas Parry, vice-president of the Springfield sub-district, told the DAILY WORKER.

"This is a disruptive move on Farrington's part. Farrington, in his talks against the reds, is always pleading for unity within the organization, yet to further his own political ambitions, he attempts to fire out of the union those who are for the rank and file and against his autocratic machine. The constitution says that no member shall be expelled from the union until given a fair and impartial trial, but MacDonald was ordered dropped from the rolls of his union without any kind of a trial."

Is Election Trick.

Progressives here declare that the move revoking the charter of Local Union No. 448 is a move to make John Watt ineligible to run for re-election as secretary-treasurer of sub-district four, Springfield. Farrington is running one of his satellites as candidate against Watt, but unless Watt is removed by some such illegal means as this he is practically certain of re-election.

Farrington has twice ordered MacDonald dropped from the rolls on the ground that MacDonald did not pay his Herrin assessment. Members of the local union charge that Farrington deliberately sent his auditor into their local in an effort to "get" MacDonald and Watt if possible. The attempted expulsion is the flimsiest technicality, as the miner who was secretary of the local at that time, has admitted that MacDonald was not at fault, that he did not pay his assessment because the secretary overlooked asking for it, and MacDonald understood it had been paid. As soon as MacDonald discovered the assessment was unpaid, he paid up in full and secured his receipt from the secretary.

Local Union No. 448 immediately wired President Lewis of Farrington's illegal actions, calling it to his attention that under the constitution only the international president has the right to revoke charters, and asking him to intercede in behalf of the local union.

Lewis replied that he would review the case in Springfield on October 12

Exploitation of Little Children Shown in 'Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 22.—An investigation by the Juvenile Protective Association shows that children are being exploited in California theaters. The investigators claim that 270 performances of child singers and dancers between 5 and 15 years of age include 442 violations of the state child labor law, with 45 per cent of the appearances entirely or partially illegal. 162 cases were noted where children without permits were substituted for those having permission to appear. It is claimed that the children receive little or no money, the compensation going to their dancing teachers, and that the performances they are obliged to give are in many cases vulgar and degrading.

Texas Birth Control Clinic.

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 22—Anne Kennedy, national secretary American Birth Control league explained the purposes of the organization at two well attended meetings in the Dallas city hall. The meetings were indorsed by many local physicians. There is no law in Texas against information on birth control methods. It is proposed that a clinic be established here.

The Workers Party in Action

Membership and Discipline

THE Executive Committee of the Workers Party is in receipt of a communication from the secretariat of the Communist International announcing the adoption of three new paragraphs in the constitution of the Communist International which automatically becomes part of the constitutions of all Communist parties.

The Section V, dealing with the basic organization of the party, of course, is not yet applicable to the Workers Party inasmuch as the work of organizing shop nuclei is just being begun and the party cannot be based upon these shop nuclei until the organization is completed which will require a considerable length of time.

The sections in question, which also apply to the Workers Party, read as follows:

"4. Any person accepting the program and statutes of the Communist Party of the country in which he is resident and of the Comintern, who is attached to a basic party organization, is actively working in it, and who submits to all the decisions of the party and the Comintern and regularly pays party dues, is accounted a member of the Communist Party and of the Comintern.

"5. The basic party organization (its unit) is the nucleus at the place of employment (factory, mine, workshop, office, store, farm, etc.) to which all the members of the party employed in the given enterprise must be attached.

"6. The Comintern and the Communist Party are constructed on the basis of democratic centralism. The fundamental principle of democratic centralism is the election of the lower and higher party organs at general meetings of party members, conferences and congresses; periodical reports of the party organs are obligatory for the lower party organs; strict discipline and rapid and precise execution of the decisions of the E. E. C. I. and the leading party centers. Party questions may be discussed by members of the party or party organizations only up to the moment of their decision by the competent party organs. After decisions have been arrived at on the given question by the Congress of the Communist International, the Party Congress, or the leading party organs, these decisions must be unconditionally carried out, even if there is a difference of opinion amongst the members of local organizations with regard to the decisions."

In illegal conditions lower party organs may be appointed by the higher party organs and individuals may be co-opted to various party organs with the endorsement of the superior party organ.

THE POWER COLUMN

Twice every week—this column uncovers to your view the motive power behind the DAILY WORKER. Here for the interest and inspiration of every reader—and especially the DAILY WORKER agents and committees—are tried and proven suggestions and accomplishments to drive the DAILY WORKER to further conquests.

Here is POWER—the power of brain and effort of men and women of the working class who not only believe—but ACT!

Inventory.

SOME sections and many comrades in our Party are thoroly American. Even to the extent of taking part in the great American sport of "kidding themselves."

Despite their opinion today's great opportunity for the Party and the DAILY WORKER is not being made most of. Altho the DAILY WORKER today is established and truthfully has become "The National Labor Daily" it is not gaining in leaps and bounds that it should during a presidential election campaign.

Perhaps no better time than this could be chosen to take stock; to take a look at our nine months of existence. During this period and out of some twelve hundred branches in this Party of ours OVER ONE HALF have NOT as yet elected a DAILY WORKER agent. ONE HALF OF THE POWER OF THE PARTY IS NOT BEING UTILIZED to drive the DAILY WORKER to greater gains and strength. This would be serious if it were the only fact our inventory discloses.

Of the remaining half only fifty per cent can deservingly be called active. Only one quarter of the branches of our Party have hustling, hard working agents for the DAILY WORKER! Today, due to the efforts of only a quarter of our branches and a handful of valiant, loyal comrades (not all Party members!) the DAILY WORKER is the leader in the working class press. A leader and an influence in the American Labor Movement.

With a greater percentage of the Party Power driving the DAILY WORKER during this period not only would the growth of the Workers Party be accelerated but the DAILY WORKER would gain in strength to better fight the workers' battles. And the first Communist election campaign would have a greater drive behind it.

Today we can—we must—make a greater use of our opportunity. New York, Minneapolis, St. Paul and other locals are showing the way by first thoroly ORGANIZING themselves. Wherever this is done results are immediately forthcoming. If your local or branch has not done this as yet see it is done NOW—AT ONCE.

1—A DAILY WORKER agent must be chosen for your city—from among your most capable comrades.

2—Every branch (regardless of language) must have a DAILY WORKER agent.

3—The branch agents, with the city DAILY WORKER agent compose a body (meeting at least once a month) that systematically secures subscriptions and renewals and arranges for the sale of the DAILY WORKER at factory gates, meetings, etc. It sees that no important meeting of the Party is held without a speaker for the DAILY WORKER on the program.

To keep functioning always at its best, the DAILY WORKER committee must see that branches are visited when they have not chosen a DAILY WORKER agent—or when these agents are not functioning. Every detail in the city's program of activity in behalf of the DAILY WORKER should come from this body and be put in operation on the approval of the City Central Committee.

Any local not having done this as yet is not making most of our Party's Power—is not doing its obvious Communist duty. The DAILY WORKER can be built into the greatest weapon of the American workers—if it has the full Power of the Party behind it—if it has YOUR shoulder at the wheel.

APPEAL IN CASES OF FARRELL COMMUNISTS SHOWS PERSECUTION

FARRELL, Pa.— Arguments by the defense in the appeal of the Farrell sedition cases under the Pennsylvania sedition law are showing Judge McLaughlin that unusually brazen methods were permitted to the prosecution. Two Workers Party members were convicted last May of sedition against the state in this steel trust town because they were Communists. The prosecution which had the help of a federal spy named Lennon made it appear that the Workers Party is an illegal organization.

In arguing for the appeal the defense is now showing that the party cannot well be illegal since it is running Foster and Gitlow on its presidential ticket and is already legally on the ballot in half a dozen states, including Pennsylvania.

The cases of four other Farrell workers are being held in abeyance pending the outcome of the appeal. The Labor Defense council of 166 W. Washington St., Chicago, is collecting funds for the defense.

Soviet Russia Hits Exhorbitant Demands of the Japanese

PEKING, Sept. 22.—The report of Japan's terms to the Soviet, as carried by the Kokusai News Agency, not only fails to give an idea of the actual terms presented by Japan, but tends to represent the position of the Japanese government as more reasonable than it really is.

Indeed, not one Great Power—neither Britain nor Italy—puts forth such exhorbitant demands as Japan. It is difficult to understand the reasoning of the Japanese government wishing to get such concessions from the Soviet Union as were not granted even to powers which were the first to recognize the Union.

Your correspondent was told in well informed circles that were all Japan's terms to be published, the world at large would wonder how even in 1924 Japan has not learnt yet to correctly estimate the international situation.

It is reported that in reference to the last loan in America, Japan presently pays much attention to American opinion in the Russian question.

PERFORMANCE BY JUNIOR REDS IS GREAT SUCCESS

Special Magazine Issued for Occasion

Oh, capitalists ain't gonna reign no more.
They ain't gonna reign no more.
Yes, by heck, they'll get it in the neck,
And they ain't gonna reign no more.

Oh Mister, buy a paper,
We know you won't refuse,
We've got the DAILY WORKER,
But down with the Daily News.

These were two stanzas of the song sung by the Vanguard branch of the Junior groups of the Workers party, at a rousing red entertainment which they gave Sunday afternoon.

Get Out Paper.

For the entertainment the Juniors got out a special magazine, called the Junior Voice, which gathers into its seven pages news of the Communist propaganda which the young revolutionists are carrying on in the schools, in their homes, and among the children that swarm on the streets. The paper is profusely illustrated with pictures of Communist children in their revolutionary work.

Babe Cohen, one of the members of the group, performed a dance symbolizing the struggle of children bound to the wheels of industry to escape from their slavery. When they free themselves they hear the herald of a better life. The herald is the forerunner of the Communist Revolution, which is symbolized by the shining of the "International."

The funds derived from the performance will go to the treasury of the Junior groups.

Would Bar Negroes.

BERKELEY, Cal., Sept. 22.—Berkeley is in the throes of another agitation to keep Negro residents from erecting homes in its "restricted neighborhoods." The present point of attack is S. T. Tillman, a clergyman. A protest mass meeting is opposing his building of an $85,000 apartment house.

Russians Postpone Play.

On account of the affair to be given Saturday, Sept. 27, for the benefit of the DAILY WORKER, the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia has postponed its performance to Saturday, Oct. 4. A Russian play, "The Devil's Kitchen," in four acts, will be given by the Society at 1902 W. Division St.

PLEDGE ARMENIA $75,000 TOWARD SOVIET TEXTILES

Send Two Textile Men to Survey Plans

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Seventy-five thousand dollars has been pledged towards the development of the textile industry of Soviet Armenia by an Armenian organization in New York City named after the old Armenian textile city of Arabkir, from which its members came. The society has assigned $30,000 to the work and will pay the rest when factory building gets under way.

To Select Workers.

Two Armenian textile experts have been dispatched to Armenia from New York City thru the co-operation of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia. These men are authorized to select factory sites, make contracts for materials and arrange for an operative force. The workers will be selected from the men and women deported from Turkish Armenia and robbed of their lands there.

Members of the Arabkir society are confident that other Armenian organizations in America will follow their example and that the textile industry of Armenia will be brought to a flourishing condition. All Armenia needs is capital, they point out. She has a sufficient number of highly skilled workers. Armenians have long been famed for their textile products, particularly carpets.

There are about 130,000 Armenians in America, and a large per cent of these are in the textile trades.

SEATTLE WORKERS IN PETITION FOR RELEASE OF I.W.W.

SEATTLE, Sept. 22.—Because six of the jurors who convicted the defenders of the union hall at Centralia have signed affidavits repudiating their verdict, and for many other reasons the Seattle Central Labor council is petitioning Gov. Hart of Washington to pardon the eight I. W. W. who have been behind the bars on second degree murder charges for the past five years. They were arrested after American legion rioters who assaulted the Centralia I. W. W. hall on armistice day in 1919 had been killed. The state, inflamed by the lumber trust and the legion, tried to get a first degree conviction but in spite of the intimidation and the prejudiced judge the jury gave a second degree verdict, indicating selfdefense. The sentence was 25 to 40 years. Labor all over the world is agitating in behalf of the workers now buried alive in Walla Walla penitentiary.

U. S. Marines Hold Haitian Newspaper Owner in Hoosegow

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Another instance of persecution in Haiti under American occupation is furnished by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in the case of J. Colibois, proprietor of a daily paper in Port au Prince. The Haitian editor writes that he is in prison for the eighth time for criticising occupation methods.

Colibois forwarded this letter by secret means. He is kept in solitary confinement, deprived of books and newspapers. Relatives and friends are barred and his attorneys also. The prison chaplain is not even allowed to visit him.

The editor's charges are supported in another letter signed by three Haitians.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. THE DAILY WORKER MAY BE PUT OUT BUT IT CAN'T BE PUT DOWN

FROM A MACHINIST.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 22.—William H. Johnston, international president of the machinists, was making a speech to the convention here. It was a carefully prepared speech for the convention on the LaFollette-Wheeler campaign.

Just as he was telling the delegates what a nice, beautiful personality LaFollette had, how he had such a big heart, how he loved everybody, the workers and the bosses and everybody, and how the bosses man trusts will surely get them if they don't hide behind LaFollette's apron, what should he spy but those terrible Communists selling the DAILY WORKER.

Now the DAILY WORKER is a disturbing element for Mr. Johnston at a meeting of the machinists. Every time he gets ready to put over one of those deals nearest to his heart, along comes the DAILY WORKER and spills the beans.

So the newsies selling this newspaper caused great thumps inside of Mr. Johnston that threw him into to white fever and he yelled for them to be thrown out and the doors barred.

When the DAILY WORKER is thrown out thru the door it finds its way in thru the window. The delegates did see copies of the Communist paper. Johnston and the rest of the fake labor leaders of the working class cannot be saved from the dump heap awaiting them. For the workers everywhere are reading the DAILY WORKER be they sold inside or outside meeting halls.

The World of Labor — Industry & Agriculture

TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY OF FIRST INTL.

Daily Worker to Have Special Edition

The sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the First International will be celebrated September 28 by special Communist meetings and special editions of the Communist publications in every country thruout the world.

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party has just issued a statement, announcing the celebration of the founding of the First International in 1864 under the leadership of Karl Marx.

Special Number of Daily.

A "First International Anniversary Number" of the DAILY WORKER, with special articles by Communist writers will be issued September 27. The entire Saturday magazine section on that day will be devoted to articles describing the history and significance of the First International.

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party, in issuing the communication just received from the Communist International declares: "The anniversary is to be used for strengthening the ranks of the party ideologically and organizationally, for encouraging international solidarity, for the revolutionary working class, for unmasking the treacherous Second International and for strengthening the bonds between the Communist parties and theworking masses."

"The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party endorses the proposal of the Executive committee of the Communist International and calls upon all party units to make an event of this celebration. Party units in their party meetings closest to Sept. 28, discuss the slogans as set forth in the communications to the party from the Communist International, and where ever possible mass meetings should be held on Sept. 28."

Big Coin In Sewing Machines.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The Singer Manufacturing Co., producers of sewing machines, announces approximately $15,000,000 net profits for the past year. At Elizabeth, N. J., a few miles from New York, the Singer company has one of its largest plants, with a speed-up system hardly exceeded anywhere.

TERROR RULES IN BRAZIL

has been raided. An effort was made to suppress its movement and its leaders were arrested. Police and detectives are on guard and swarm about the Federation building day and night. It is interesting to note that this labor organization is almost of the same character as the General Federation of Workers in Mexico. The buildings of many local unions are also under constant watch and their leaders in continuous fear of being arrested and thrown into prison without any rhyme or reason.

Our streets are filled with police, soldiers, and spies. Anyone who is at all suspected is watched every minute of the day. The Communist Party members are hounded like dogs. Members of the Central Executive Committee of the Party are compelled to live under cover. There is a strict censorship over and against every move and movement made in behalf of the working class. Indeed, there is so much of fear, that one tends to be afraid of his own shadow. Your correspondent has time and again felt the cruelties of the iron heel. I have had the most difficult job in getting connections with Communists because of the brutal terror.

Two Jail Ships.

In the Bay of Rio de Janeiro there are anchored two prison ships. These are somewhat larger than an average American lake ship, which accommodates at most twenty-seven men. But these Brazilian prison boats serve as a jail for more than a thousand prisoners apiece. The holds of these ships are cemented, and closed so that no air or light ever reaches those who must lie on the cold cement and starve. Of course, this is murder. It is known that not only military leaders who have revolted against the government, but that also labor leaders are being thrown into the holds of these ships to starve, or die of tuberculosis.

The city of Santos is under martial law. Sao Paulo is also under martial law. The city of Pernambuco which, only a few days ago, was considered one of the safest, has now espoused the cause of the revolutionaries. Here and there outbreaks occur. No one knows what the next day will bring. The censorship is so strict and the propaganda of the government is so intense that the population is kept in complete ignorance. Many really believe that everything has been settled long ago.

The other day it was reported that a revolution broke out in Para, and other northern parts of Brazil. The revolutionary armies have placed themselves in the state of Sao Paulo, not far from the city by the same name. In some instances, this army has gained the sympathy of the proletariat.

Raid Communist Meetings.

The meeting places of the Communist Party in Santos and Sao Paulo have been raided, the furniture and literature have been destroyed. The comrades are being terrorized and forced to leave the cities because of their being hounded day and night by the Brazilian gendarmarie. The Central Executive Committee has been unable to maintain constant communication with the various locals. Just now the only local that is in a healthy condition is the one in Rio Grande do Sul.

Recently the oligarchy "discovered" a bomb in the post office. This bomb was of its own make. The authorities however claim that the Communists manufactured it. As a result several comrades were arrested. These protracative methods, so often used by the United States government, are being copied by the Brazilian dictators.

Notwithstanding this intolerable persecution, the membership of the Communist Party in Rio is growing. Its influence is rising even more rapidly. The syndicalist elements are beginning to side with the Communist Party. More and more the workers are learning the truth about their leaders and about the great sacrifices being made by those belonging to the Communist Party. The field of battle, against the white terror is now principally occupied by those of great courage and revolutionary spirit. The latter are to be found mainly in the Communist Party.

The Brazilian Party is only four years old. Its legal existence was limited to the first four months. Its present membership totals twelve hundred and is organized in shop nuclei. The strongest section of the Party is in Sao Paulo where the greatest industrial development is to be found. Today, however, most of the Communists have deserted the city, except those who could not make their getaway. Industry here is relatively speaking still small. Modern machinery has not been fully introduced. Small shops predominate. The industry has not yet been trustified as completely as in the United States and other countries, foreign capital is very strong, and controls every railroad in the country. A Canadian company controls the railways in Rio and pays the most miserable wages. This British corporation has great influence with the government and exercises a decisive voice in its policies.

American Finance Is Here.

The National City Bank of New York has great branches in every port and city of Brazil. Numerous other American enterprises of considerable strength, wield great influence on the government and really dictate its policies.

Let us consider the recent revolution and try to trace its origin. First of all it should be understood that this revolution can in no way be considered a proletarian revolution. It is a military revolution, but not a Fascisti outbreak of the type that took place in Spain and Italy. This is true despite the fact that all the proclamations and propaganda resorted to by the Fascist leaders in their attempts to give a Fascist coloring to the revolution.

A few military officers who were in opposition to the present government were imprisoned. This struck terror in the hearts of other officers who feared that the same fate would befall them. Here we have the immediate cause of the outbreak. Also, here and there were a few members of the working class involved in the revolutionary activities.

The military rebels do not have a definite policy to guide them. If there were a well organized Party, with sufficient strength, it could step in and formulate a policy which would win for these leaders the support of the intolerably exploited masses, and give an entirely new turn and character to the revolt. It was precisely this fear that was uppermost in the minds of the Brazilian government leaders, and incited them to resort to the most brutal suppression and murder. This also accounts for the latest attempts to break up the labor movement and to imprison its leaders. On the whole, however, the masses seem to be indifferent to the military movement. The present Brazilian government would be much better off if it would not resort to suppression of the workers' organization at this time.

To Translate Lovestone.

In conclusion let me say that I have conferred with the leaders of the above mentioned Federation of Labor. They all appear to be very much interested in a general revolutionary Pan-American conference. They certainly will participate in it. We are planning to translate the pamphlet on American Imperialism by Comrade Jay Lovestone.

My next reports will deal with the present situation in Santos and Sao Paulo, the centers of the recent revolutionary activities.

ROUMANIA MAKES PREPARATION FOR MOVE ON RUSSIA

Is Tool of Imperialism in France

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

BUCHAREST, Sept. 22.—The machinery of the international anti-Soviet officialdom, which is operating here, continues to send out rumors of Bolshevik raids on the frontier of Roumania.

Roumania French Fool.

It is understood that Roumania is the instrument of France who is at the head of an international conspiracy to throw the Roumanian workers into a war against Russia.

The government of Roumania is said to be strengthening its forces in Bessarabia, presumably in preparation for an attack on the Russian border. Bessarabia is now under the control of the Bratiano government of Roumania, having been carved out of Russia against the will of the Bessarabian people, shortly after the Russian revolution.

Officers of the Roumanian army have for years been under the training of French army officials, and France has given financial aid to the Roumanian government. The money which France uses for this purpose is supplied by loans from J. P. Morgan.

The proximity of Roumania to Bulgaria, a country in which the Communist party is showing enormous strength, is understood to be another reason for the desire of France and of other capitalist countries to keep control of Roumania.

Some Interesting Views on War by a 100 Percenter

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 22.—Mrs. George T. Palmer, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs had a copy of the DAILY WORKER handed to her and the first thing she saw was a cartoon which pictured the Sacco case of war. This made her very mad. She immediately sent her picture to the capitalist press here and issued a statement which was given wide publicity.

It would be a terrible state of affairs not to have any wars to send her husband and sons to, she said. She admires a fighting man. Then she blamed Germany for the militarism thrust upon the world. She wound up this very consistent reasoning by giving her position on war. More wars and more preparedness for war, she said, will completely wipe out militarism. Maybe she believes in a future pacifism after all the men are killed out.

But war was not the only subject this intelligent lady discussed when she sent her picture to the press. She also has an opinion on other things. For instance, she called the American Civil Liberties Union a wanton outrage and she said she did not want free speech and free press in America. She said she was a 100 per cent American.

ILLINOIS SHOPCRAFTS WORKERS IN 27 MONTH BATTLE AGAINST BOSS

SALEM, Ill., Sept. 22.— For 27 months the shop crafts on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois have been holding out in their strike against the road, which is attempting to maintain its equipment with strikebreakers. The Salem Federation of Railway Employes, comprising the shopmen on strike reports that the side tracks of the road all over the system are crowded with bad order cars. Poor equipment and lack of business caused the company to operate at a loss all summer. Wrecks resulting from bad equipment and miserable shop work are reported frequent.

The C. & E. I. shopmen walked out with their fellows all over the country in July, 1922, as a protest against wage cuts, farming out of contracts and destruction of union working conditions.

OVERWORKED MANICURISTS FORM INDEPENDENT UNION TO CARRY ON DRIVE FOR GOOD CONDITIONS

By ESTHER LOWELL.
(For Federated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Proof enough that the manicurists and beauty parlor girl workers work overtime is shown by the scheduling of meetings of their new union for 10 o'clock at night. The first meeting was held in Styvesant Casino with an enthusiastic crowd of girls present in spite of the fact that most of them were dead tired after their long, hard day of work.

The neat new charter of the Independent Beauty Parlor Workers' organization was exhibited to the gathering by Anthony Pagano and Mario Adinoli, another barber, are assisting the girls in their new venture to improve the vile conditions which have existed so long in the hairdressing shops and beauty parlors. With the barbers' union now admitting women barbers to its ranks, the day may come when the manicurists and beauty parlor workers will join the barbers in a national union. Adinoli would not predict, when interviewed, but shrugged his shoulders and said, "Maybe. We must organize the girls here first."

Gurley Flynn Helps.

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, always active where there is a chance to help organize the workers, addressed the first meeting of the beauty parlor girls and may speak to the meetings planned for the immediate future in the Bronx and Brooklyn. Gurley Flynn told the girls not to mind the efforts to poke fun at the new union. She pointed out that the Actors' Equity, the barbers' union, and almost all unions were mocked and taunted by newspapers and antagonistic interests, but that in the end the workers found their organizations commanded respect and won them better conditions.

The manicure girls themselves were all in a hubbub about the new organization and the chance it will give them to win better conditions from their employers. All sorts of tales of long hours and meagre wages were told in the meeting and in the little groups after.

What a Tip Means.

"If a fellow gives you a fifty cent tip, he wants something for it besides a good manicure. It means a luncheon engagement at least."

"The women don't tip at all in our beauty parlor and the men who come in just kid us and leave a dime."

"We get only $10 a week and if I make $18 with tips I'm doing well!"

"And I paid my boss $50 to learn the business and then didn't get a raise in a year!"

"We don't even get the holidays off in the beauty parlors. The manicurists who work in the barber shop at least get that much of a rest—or chance to do their little household duties."

"Let's get an 8-hour shift and if the beauty parlor bosses want to stay open half the night they can use two or three shifts of girls. I never get a chance to go anywhere or see anyone except in the shop and you can't talk to your friends there."

Plan Training Schools.

These were some of the bits of conversation floating around the hall. The girls are planning to have their own training schools and eliminate the hold-up agencies which train so poorly and then don't get their pupils jobs. The tipping system was vigorously condemned but the girls reiterated that their living depended upon tips.

"I wish we could get away from the tipping system and get real wages. Tipping makes us feel so servile sometimes and it puts such a false valuation on service," commented one of the girls.

Want No Monkey Competition.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 22.—The fact of evolution received a serious setback in Georgia, when the committee on education in the lower house of the legislature reported favorably on a bill to withhold state aid from any school or other institution that teaches evolution. Georgia is one of the most illiterate states in the Union.

Fascisti Fail Again!

TURIN, Sept. 22.—The fifth annual national congress of Italian jurists and lawyers, meeting in Turin, despite Fascisti opposition today reaffirmed the principle of complete liberty for the press.

Five More Victims of Race Riots Are Paroled from Pen

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Five more Negroes, former members of the 24th infantry, have been paroled from Leavenworth penitentiary, where they were serving life sentences, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People announces. The men were serving life sentences for the so-called Houston riot during wartime. Forty-nine of the Houston men are still imprisoned out of the 67 originally sent there. Four have died, the others were paroled. Thirteen were hanged on evidence, which the N. A. A. C. P. declares would never have hanged white men. The trouble started with insults and violence offered to colored girls in Houston by white soldiers.

Cline's Hardships Are Lightened.

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 22.— Charles Cline, life terms prisoner for an alleged murder in connection with a freedom expedition against the Mexican dictator, Diaz, has been transferred from the prison farm to the main penitentiary at Huntsville. The labor press of the country recently carried appeals to have the sick man transferred back from the inhuman prison farm to the work he was accustomed to within the walls.

WORKERS' SCHOOL IN NEW YORK NOW HAS NEW BUREAU

To Collect Data for Use of Party Workers

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The Workers' school is organizing a clipping service for party campaign workers and speakers. Data is being compiled on various phases of the labor movement and tendencies in politics with the aim of building up a permanent file of clippings to be available for ready reference.

Aid Is Urged.

All comrades and sympathisers are urged to help in this work by bringing or sending to the school any printed matter they may be able to part with. Not only Communist publications, but back numbers of the Call and any other socialist and labor publications are welcome. While old copies of the DAILY WORKER, the Masses, the Liberator, Soviet Russia, Soviet Russia Pictorial, Communist International, or International Press Correspondence are very important for records, the Nation, the New Republic, Current History, the Federationist, and Wall Street Magazines may also be used to advantage.

Immediate action on this is very necessary. Facts and comments are needed bearing upon a great variety of subjects, including Fascism, imperialism, labor disputes, immigration, capitalist courts, Soviet Russia, the Second and Third Internationals, etc., etc. If the material cannot be delivered by those who have it, the school will send someone for it when so notified.

In addition, the active assistance of a number of comrades is needed in entering these clippings and carrying on other research work. All volunteers are urged to report for clipping and research service every Saturday at the headquarters of the school, 206 E. 12th St., Room 1. Saturday has been set aside as Mobilization Day at the Workers' School, and this should enlist the co-operation of comrades interested in developing a real educational institution of the party in New York.

Banker Frames Cotton Growers of California

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

IMPERIAL VALLEY, Cal., Sept. 22. —A banker of the Imperial Valley obtained a large loan from the larger banks in Los Angeles, to finance the cotton growers this year.

In the contract that this banker drew up with the growers, he inserted a clause that in case the Los Angeles bankers crowded him for money on their loan, he reserved the right to sell some of the farmers' cotton at the market price. However, he told them that this was not a likelihood.

Later, when cotton was down to 25 cents, this banker notified the farmers that he had to sell 25 bales of each one's crop, as the Los Angeles banks demanded payment of part of the loan.

This constitutes the entire crop of a good many growers, and under the expensive methods of farming in the Imperial Valley, the crop has already cost the farmers 25 cents per pound to raise.

Farmers say that if they live up to their contract, they will have to harvest the crop and get nothing for the work of harvesting.

Since then, cotton has gone up, and after the harvest cotton usually goes much higher, so by holding the cotton 60 days the bankers will double their money.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A UNIQUE BUT SIMPLE STYLE

4615. This portrays a one-piece straight line model, with a sleeveless overblouse in tunic style. It is a good model for combining two different material. Velvet and figured crepe, or lace would be a good contrast. Or satin with brocaded silk or chiffon.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires 6 yards of one material 40 inches wide. To make as illustrated requires 2¾ yards for the tunic and 3¾ yards for the dress and facings on the tunic. The width of the dress at the foot is 1¼ yard.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

A NEW AND STYLISH MODEL

4624. Here is an old friend with new features. This is a splendid style for remodeling or to use in combination with other materials. It has the new high collar and a smart sleeve of the "Peasant" type.

The pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires 4½ yards of 32-inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

The Right to Vote

Many of the biggest employers' associations are now engaged in a nation-wide campaign to bring to the ballot a large proportion of the great mass of non-voters in the country. We have no illusions as to the purposes animating these lovers of dollar democracy.

It has been one of our main tasks to point out the frauds and the snares inherent in the purest of capitalist democracy. We have repeatedly pointed out that the right to vote is today deprived of its efficiency as a weapon in class conflicts thru the artificial bicameral system, the ownership of the means of information by the exploiters, the private ownership of the means of production and exchange, and the control of the governmental machinery by the capitalists.

The bosses who own the workers' jobs never fail to utilize this ownership for their own political class interests. The present election campaign affords abundant evidence to show the extent to which the exploiters are ready to travel in order to minimize the smallest value that the right to vote can prove to the workers. Many republican employers are bringing pressure on their workers to vote for the strikebreaking Coolidge-Dawes ticket. The exploited workers are being told that "business will suffer," and that they will lose their jobs.

Our attention has just been drawn to a letter sent out by Mr. T. F. Manville, chairman of the Johns-Manville, Inc., one of the biggest trustified concerns in the country. Each of its hundreds of workers has received a letter informing them that Chairman Manville, "after carefully reviewing the political situation," is "fully convinced that the election of Messrs. Coolidge and Dawes means a great deal to this country, also general business conditions." Mr. Manville goes on to say to each one of his workers: "I hope you will agree with me."

It is these tricks and cajolery, this brow-beating, that the employers are continually resorting to. Precisely the same tactics were pursued when the Mellon plan was being sold to the country. Exactly the same tactics are now being followed in Tennessee, where federal employes are being forced to contribute part of their salaries to the republican campaign fund. It is these methods that the reactionaries have never failed to use in the steel and coal baronies.

We know that dictatorship and democracy are synonymous under capitalism.

Jarring the Labor Bankers

That eminent banker and business unionist, Mr. Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, is certainly having his ups and downs in the alleys and byways of Wall Street.

Now the foremost banker of the trade union movement is exchanging harsh words with the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineeers has organized the Coal River and Eastern Railway. The organization recently applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authorization to operate its line in West Virginia between the coal mines of the Coal River Collieries Company and the Chesapeake and Ohio. The Interstate Commerce Commission turned down this request.

The noted banker, Stone, who also is reputed to be the highest-priced labor leader in the world, appears rather jarred by this action of the Interstate Commerce Commission. He now contends that this decision "can spell nothing except that the Commission has joined a partnership with the Chesapeake and Ohio in oppression."

We suppose that this little venture of Mr. Stone and his coterie of labor aristocrats into the world of capital and profiteering will tend to make the Grand Chief of the Locomotive Engineers more aware than ever of the difficulties and hardships under which the capitalists are compelled to work nowadays! Perhaps the ingenious Stone will also change his mind about government ownership and regulation of public utilities.

But all of these conjectures as to the extent to which Mr. Stone and the business unionists will become more sympathetic towards the plight of the individual capitalist take a back seat when compared with the significant lesson this incident holds out for the great mass of workers. This decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission to dismiss the application of the labor bankers adds only more brick and mortar to the rising mausoleum that is destined to hold all such still-born schemes of removing the exploitation of the working class as industrial profit-sharing, employes' stock-owning, company unionism, and the economically and politically suicidal labor banking.

Certainly no one need be amazed at a capitalist government jarring a well-kept reactionary labor leader even when he attempts to become a hundred per cent capitalist.

What's Ahead This Fall?

The managers of the republican campaign, led by Chairman William M. Butler, are working overtime spreading the notion that the unemployment problem has disappeared and that the country is in the midst of great industrial prosperity.

We have refuted the principal contentions of these fraudulent prosperity peddlers by calling upon the department of labor to testify as to the actual conditions at hand. We merely want to shed further light on the feverish activities of the employing class politicians engaged in a sinister attempt to mislead the working and farming masses.

Much capital has been made out of the fact that the August figures indicated a slight upward trend in the steel industry. Of course, not a word was said about the extremely seasonal basis for this rise. Now, the Wall Street Journal tells us that the steel mills are "having a strenuous time endeavoring to maintain the pace. Orders are being sought very keenly and are being filled with remarkable celerity." We are also impressed with the fact that "there are conflicting reports about the real volume of steel buying in the past fortnight."

Dun's Review further blasts the false reports of Coolidge's headquarters when it says that: "The iron and steel industry continued very quiet," and that "the demand for structural steel has fallen off." The pig iron market is dull and featureless. The Wall Street Journal then says: "As to the appraisal of the future by steel producers themselves, there seems to be no doubt that they are disappointed."

At the same time the cost of living is going up. The Bureau of Labor Statistics advance reports indicate an increase of about two-thirds of one per cent in the retail cost of food in August as compared with July. The Department of Commerce index of factory employment for the United States shows no change in August from the July position.

The silver linings of the Dawes plan are beginning to show their menacing clouds. The great hope which Mellon, Hughes, and Coolidge have been asking the country to place in their European reconstruction conspiracy is not meeting with much response from the masses. The highly advertised farm prosperity is proving of very little relief to the rural masses. The recent increase in the price of wheat is constantly menaced by the improving Canadian crop reports.

All present evidence of the barometers of industry do not indicate that there will be a turn for the better in the Fall or that the country has already turned corner and is out of the slough of economic depression.

Election Prophecies

On the eve of every national election political writers and observers of current events dabble extensively in election prophecies. This year the election rumor industry is flourishing.

We need not lay threadbare the numerous lines of gossip that the principal election rumors have assumed. Yet this year the general trend and the particular form of election estimates have taken on a significant feature. This is not the first year in which three parties committed to the maintenance of the capitalist system are in a struggle for the control of the administrative machinery of the government. But this is the first national election in which the employing class entertains, consciously or otherwise, serious fears regarding the stability of the two-party system.

The two-party system is an integral feature of the entire American capitalist system of government based on checks and balances. It is one of the firmest buttresses of the entire edifice of Wall Street democracy. It is not so much the rise of a third party movement that the exploiters dread in the present campaign as the aftermath that will more easily tend to follow once the hard and firmly rooted political practices of yesterday are shaken. It is not so much the immediate labor and farm following that LaFollette has attracted that worries the employing class, but what these masses will do when they are disillusioned with LaFollette and his private panaceas.

It is not at all unlikely, therefore, that the two big parties of capitalism will come to some sort of an agreement to the exclusion of the smallest party of capitalism, the LaFollette organization. The Davis-Dawes schematic prophecy may never see daylight, but the very fact that it can even be discussed by the leading agents of the republican and democratic paties is indicative of the undercurrent of disintegration in our national politics. In times of sharp challenge to the fundamental class interests, the employers always close their ranks, sink less basic differences and form firmer alliances against the dissidents within and the enemies without.

The particular individual election rumors are of no pressing importance to the workers and poor farmers. The general character of these rumors, however, is indeed a warning and a challenge to the workers that they had sooner and better be prepared to face a closely united enemy determined on maintaining and extending the privileges of exploitation.

Some workers say that they would vote for Foster if he had a chance to win, and since he hasn't, they will vote for the Wisconsin toreador. Well, if LaFollette is elected, he will have won, but not the workers. He stands only for a piece of felt, wrapped around the toe of the capitalist boot that is always striking the workers at the end of the spinal column.

The C.P.P.A. Drops the S. P. in Toledo

By MAX BHACHTMAN.

EVER since, if not before, the speech of Charlie Dawes, in which he attacked the LaFollette ticket as being supported by the allegedly red socialists, the Wisconsin senator has been doing his best to prove that he is firmly opposed to any and all things radical.

Dawes, it will be remembered, attacked LaFollette some time ago on that basis, and repeated it in his Iowa speech the other day by referring to him as "LaFollette, behind whom is massed a heterogeneous combination of the forces opposed to the existing order of things in this country, the largest portion of which are the socialists, flying the Red Flag."

LaFolette's Antics.

Leaving aside for a moment the fact that Dawes doesn't know wnat he is talking about when he says the S. P. is the largest portion of the senator's support, it is obvious to anyone who has been following the verbal antics of LaFollette that he has been doing his damnedest to wipe from his fair escutcheon the stain of radicalism.

Now the LaFollette gang is taking more concrete steps towards eliminating the socialist appendix. The S. P. which was simply tickled to death over the fact that it was at last in contact with respectable people who were running a real big show, has pulled a sort of a boner on a small scale.

Many months ago, the Hillquiters were impolitely kicked out of the New York state conference for progressive political action at Albany, by the labor fakers in control. And it was only by pressure brought to bear from the center that the New York bunch took the socialists back into their expansive bosoms, will kill in their hearts, ready to pull the same stunt at the first opportunity.

They Crowed Too Soon.

The S. P. began to point with pride. They were an accepted part of the "progressive movement." But they laid their egg without even building a chicken coop.

The news has just come that in Toledo, Ohio, the S. P. has been gently but firmly ousted from the C. P. P. A. The labor skates have dumped the socialists back into the can.

It happened thusly:

The Toledo C. P. P. A., controlled by rabid labor bureaucrats, indorsed, together with LaFollette and Wheeler, the candidacy of General Isaac R. Sherwood, for re-election to Congress. At the county convention where Sherwood was nominated, the Independent Progressives—which is the local moniker of the C. P. P. A.—discovered that the S. P. had nominated by petition one of their members for the office of congressman on the ticket of the Independent Progressives. The S. P. had slipped in first, nominating their man, Thomas C. Devine, (a war jingo incidentally), before the indorsement for Sherwood had come down to the local fakers from headquarters in Washington.

S. P. Is Dumped.

Did this embarrass the S. P.? Not for a minute! Did it embarrass the local fakers? Go to! Amongst them was Victor Gauthier, who had just practiced expulsions in his own organization by kicking half a dozen Communists out of the Toledo local of the International Association of Machinists. So the S. P. job was simple. It was moved, second, argued and voted that the S. P. be obliged to sever its connection with the C. P. P. A., and that their representative, John Kocinski, who had also been nominated for congress, be ousted from the executive committee.

One of the "progressives" said: "We wouldn't have any socialist party in Toledo if it were not for the Toledo Blade and the republican party. The Blade gives Klotz and his socialist organization of 12 people the first page and headlines on all occasions now and Klotz jumps every time the Blate tells him to." Which doesn't speak well for the S. P.

The Troublemakers.

Said Walter Guntrup, another LaFollettelte: "If the socialists are not getting paid for what they are doing they are being cheated." And R. P. McManamon, of the railroad brotherhoods, added: "The socialists are trying to perpetrate a fraud on the voters. We cannot afford to be a party to it." And C. A. Stevenson, also of the brotherhoods, made the concluding statement: "The only way to preserve harmony is to keep out those who bring the discord. Klotz and Bartholomew (local S. P. sharpers) are the authors of this trouble. Let the socialists come clean or get out."

What a comedy when the fakers fall out!

Chairman Gauthier, the red-baiter in his union, ended the onslaught against the socialists by stating that they were certified as delegates from the residence of Ellis Bartholomew for four organizations that simply did not exist.

Now, contrast this interesting little take with the words of George R. Kirkpatrick, in the official press service of the national office of the S. P. on September 19, 1924:

"Millions of LaFollette-Wheeler club members are now learning how sincere, how loyal, how unselfish, how open-and-above-board the socialists are in their fellowship and eager willingness to do anything—everything—possible to help the plain people build a labor party. . . ."

Who Knows, George?

Maybe so, George, maybe so; but while this moonshine may be all right for the six dentists and lawyers who are still in the party, it doesn't seem to work with LaFollette and his crowd. Who knows, George, some day just a little while before the November election, LaFollette may play you fellows a dirty trick and kick you out altogether, if only to make "Hell-an'-Maria" Dawes feel good.

AS WE SEE IT -

By T. J. O'Flaherty

BOB'S campaign is neither a donkey nor an elephant, but it is a many headed monstrosity with the heads desiring to go in different directions. Quesse and his crowd handed Small to the LaFollette boys in Illinois. Small, politically speaking, is a polecat, and is as welcome in a respectable party as a strict monogamist would be in the House of David. But owing to political exigencies the LaFollette crowd are forced to accept him, tho with a look which indicates that the medicine is anything but agreeable. Quesse and his crowd are progressive. Anybody is who supports LaFollette. But his progressivism so far as substantial assistance to LaFollette is concerned is rather platonic. He gives Indian unstinted praise but insists that money collected thru the unions goes to Small. Isn't Small one of the progressive boys? And is he not an enemy of Hell-an'-Maria Dawes, the convenient bogey man who is used by the labor fakers as a smoke screen to hide their own misdeeds from the union members they are constantly betraying?

THE gas pipe section of the trade union movement is lined up with Small; the more respectable section, represented by the railroad brotherhoods and the social careerists give "Bob" first preference and still another section supposed to have the backing of the now almost homeless Fitzpatrick-Nockels combinations is running around like a hen about to lay an egg, looking for an inviting nest.

• • •

THESE factions care nothing for the interests of the working class. Like Tammany Hall, in New York, their own parochial interests come first and their political alignments are determined by those interests. Labor fakers who hold up contractors will support Small in return for the keys of Joliet prison. Socialist careerists will place their eggs in LaFollette's baskets. They might cackle their way into congress with a good experienced sitting hen like "Fighting Bob." And a "third party" in the Illinois combination, the orphans who are looking for somebody to adopt them will land somewhere provided they play the game right. The interests of labor are nowhere considered, but the majority of the workers will not worry about that for another while.

WHEN the democratic convention which nominated Davis ended its labors, the DAILY WORKER predicted that the donkey party received a fatal blow, from which it would never recover. Of course political parties with a past do not perish in a year, or even in a decade perhaps, but it is evident that the party of Jefferson has seen its best and happiest days. As Frank Munsey, Senator Frelinghusen of New Jersey and other supporters of Big Business stated, there being no fundamental difference between the democratic and republican parties, the sensible thing for the conservative elements in both parties to do is to unite and leave the so-called radicals in both camps to get into a party of their own.

SUCH a development may result from the present election campaign. The rumors of a possible deal between the republicans and the democrats for a Davis-Dawes combination may have more substance than shadow to it. Davis is perfectly satisfactory to the republicans. In fact his nomination by the democrats was hailed with more enthusiasm by the republican editors than by the democratic contemporaries. The attorney for the House of Morgan—could any body be better qualified to represent Big Business? With the violent Fascist Hell-an'-Maria Dawes as vice-president, in case of accidents—unless the crabs already referred to are done away with and the osteopaths succeed in relegating ptomaine poisoning to the ash can of history—Dawes would make a better president than Silent Cal.

THERE is a strong possibility that the next election may be thrown into congress, with the result that Bill Bryan's brother might have a chance. Now, the capitalists don't like Bill Bryan. Why? You may ask. Is he not a supporter of the capitalist system? It is true that he is, but he rocks the boat once in a while and it would take the big fellows some time to break him in properly. They prefer one who is already trained and who is not afflicted with any notions about a revival of competition, government ownership and the like. The tiger will fight for the tips of his mustache as vigorously as he will defend his heart, for the good reason that if he can be shaved with impunity, somebody else might come along and take more liberties with him. The capitalists will surrender nothing without a struggle. Should they fail to avert the calamity of the Bryan Brothers in the White House, they would make the best of things and give the noted political vaudevillians more presents than Ramsay MacDonald received from Sir Alexander Grant.

• • •

BUT why go to the troubmle of having Skull-cap Bryan in the White House when they can have a pair that any capitalist country could justly be proud of? Davis and Dawes! Silent Cal can step up and get a good salary as editor of the Ladies' Home Journal. The Brayin' Brothers would command higher fees on the Chatauqua circuit and Fightin' Bob and his managerie could step in with their third party, representing those who are fighting with Wall Street over the division of labor's marrow bone. It may not be a Third Party but a second party. Those who expect a labor party to spring from that combination are going to be disillusioned we fear. If there is going to be a labor party in this country in the near future, it will not be born as a result of the efforts of the leaders in the LaFollette movement. They want a party after the fashion of the British Labor Party which is labor in name only.

• • •

THE alleged disarmament conference held in Washington under the auspices of Secretary Hughes, was not such a bad thing for certain people. Millionaire junkmen are not crying over the results. Ships that cost $200,000,000 to build are sold as junk for $2,000,000. Private companies got paid for building the ships originally and private companies are getting paid now for scrapping them. It is a splendid system! Battleships get old very quickly. New designs are being constantly introduced. The United States laid no new keels since 1920, but when the time comes to get ready for the fray, Morgan can show some speed in the shipbuilding line and the warships will be up-to-date. Disarmament conferences seem to be good for the iron and steel business in particular.

UNITED STATES soldiers are busy killing striking Filipino sugar plantation laborers in Hawaii. It is reported that Rudolph Spreckles, one of LaFollette's millionaire angels is a large employer of Filipino laborers on his Hawaii sugar plantations. But even tho he is a progressive, Uncle Sam's troops will kill strikers in his behalf and Bob will never shake his pompador denouncing Mr. Spreckles.

A GENTLEMAN who styles himself Grand Duke Cyril of Russia, has issued a proclamation declaring himself emperor of Russia, and naming his seven-year-old son, heir to the throne. Mr. Cyril is living in London, where the Volstead laws are not held in high esteem.

BRITISH "heroes" who won medals for their gallantry in the world war are now returning the medals to the donors with the legend, "Unwanted." Nothing was too good for them while fighting for King George's throne, and the interests of the British capitalists, but now, the ex-soldiers who were employed by the government as clerks without undergoing civil service examinations are getting their walking papers. It is a long, long time since Lloyd George's government was grateful to generals. Marshall Haig got half a million dollars from a grateful empire and other military leaders got a proportionate share of the reward for superintending the butchery of the working class. But a piece of junk is considered sufficient compensation for the rank and file. Perhaps it will teach them a lesson. If they fought for their own class instead of their masters they would now be sending the capitalist system to the junk pile along with their military decorations.

An American University in Russia

By ANISE.

ONE of the finest estates in Russia, formerly the property of Baron Steingel, and exhibited by means of pictures at the Paris Exposition of 1900 as a model farm, is to be turned over to the group of Americans headed by Harold Ware and Mr. Hillkowitz for the establishing of an American Farm-University. Ware and Hillkowitz are now in Rostov completing the contracts with the Southeastern Agricultural Trust, after which Mr. Hillkowitz will return to the United States via Odessa and Mr. Ware will go on to Moscow for the final arrangements with the Chief Concessions Committee.

Work of Americans.

The Agricultural University is the result of two years' planning by two groups of Americans who have now united. Two years ago Mr. Ware took a group of Russian Soviet Friends of Soviet Russia as a means of famine reconstruction. At that time he laid the foundation of experience necessary for the plans, and discussed the project with many leading Communists in Russia. The one thing lacking was money. This is now in sight secured thru a combination with the International University Commune, an organization started by several Californians with the aim of establishing a Russian-American University in Russia. They had already raised large funds, but were quite without Russian contacts and experience.

The estate which is to be turned over to this group is one of the most celebrated in Russia. Not long ago the Russian government refused to consider giving it as a concession, even tho half a million roubles was mentioned as the first sum to be paid down. But the government of its own accord suggested this estate to the Americans, on account of the educational character of their work. It contains some 15,000 acres of the richest black soil in the Kuban basin, with a main trunk railway running right across the estate. There are several factories, a candy factory, and a biscuit factory chiefly operated by the products of the place. The manor-house, an old hunting lodge of the baron's, has 38 guest-rooms, and is set in a 60 acre park.

Dakotans to Help.

"When it is organized on 'American lines,' it can become the very flower of Russian agriculture" said the statement of the Americans after seeing it. Mr. Ware will organize the grain production, with the help of a chosen group of North Dakota farmers, most of whom have already seen service in Russia. Mr. Hillkowitz, himself a successful fruit and raisin grower on a large scale in California, will organize the horticulture.

The plan is to make the farm from the very beginning a prosperous industrial farm, and on the basis of its prosperity, to build a school teaching modern farming methods to the entire district. It will be run on a joint un-ion basis with the Russian Department of Agriculture, but the Americans will have full charge of the organization, merely sharing profits with the government. Except for such funds as are needed to pay interest on loans, most of the income will go into the educational features.

Arrangements are in process with the Army Headquarters of the region to furnish young men, during the time of their mobilization, selecting those who themselves wish to learn agriculture, and station them in organized groups, under their own leaders, on the estate. Thus the farm will secure exactly the age and type of young men desired, chiefly peasants of 20 years of age, from the surrounding district. The army supports the students, and they give about six hours daily to farm work, so organized as to give them, by the ends of the summer, a well-rounded course in both grain and fruit-raising and the use of tractors. At the same time they receive instruction in the organization of co-operative farming groups in their own villages. After they return to the villages they may secure their tractors on credit thru the school, which will also act as a permanent repair and instruction base for machine-farming.

A BOLSHEVEEK RHYME.

The Russian word "Bolsheviki" is defined
As Majorit. Kindly keep this in mind.
When Plutocrats speak of the Bad
Bolsheveek,
To demand MAJORITY RULE, they seek!
Wars end will end until Kaisers, and Kings,
And Kapitalists, and such blood-sucking things
No longer encumber the face of the earth,
Our Civilization must have A NEW BIRTH!

No taker of interest, Profit, nor Rent,
No Tyrant, Czar, Emperor, nor President,
Shall Workers enslave! ALL the wealth
they create!
PRODUCERS shall take not for Profit,
but USE!
Production, Exchange, Transportation shall be
FOR USE OF ALL FREELY—No ticket, no fee!
THE WHOLE OF HUMANITY then shall belong
TO THE ONE WORKER' UNION of story and song!

Now, do not be scared! SOVIET is the word
In Russian for UNION of which you have heard,
The Kapitalist Klass hates each word alike!
They fear that Wealth-makers will go on a strike
Which quickly will take ALL the wealth
they create!

GERMANS WANT TO JOIN LEAGUE

AS WE SEE IT
By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE British Trades Union Congress instructed the General Council to proceed with the task of amalgamating the craft unions, so that in Great Britain the workers will be organized along industrial lines. This is a decided step in advance for the British trade union movement. Several delegates criticized this step as not being advanced enuf. One of the critics is the celebrated Jack Jones, the Communist baiter, who wanted Walton Newbold, former Communist member of the British parliament lynched, at the time the Polish bishop was executed for treason to the Soviet Republic. Jones wanted one union for every worker in England. Industrial unionism was too tame for him.

ANOTHER delegate recalled the treason of Black Friday when he declared we must get together not to compromise with the capitalists but to fight them. He had reference to the action of J. H. Thomas and the leaders of the Triple Alliance who sold out the British miners during the miners' strike in 1921. But the great sentiment was for industrial unionism thru amalgamation and the motion carried by an overwhelming vote. It is admitted that the speech made by M. Tomsky of the Russian Communist unions, in which he stressed the necessity of consolidating the many unions into one for each industry as was done in Russia, had considerable effect in breaking down the opposition of the reactionaries.

• • •

THE Congress also passed a motion severely criticizing the New Leader, official organ of the Independent Labor Party, which is the British prototype of the socialist party of America. The New Leader nevertheless commented on the flow of language at the congress and suggested that nothing constructive was transacted there. No doubt Mr. Philip Snowden's official organ was peeved by the appearance on the platform as a fraternal delegate of M. Tomsky, the Russian Communist. After Mrs. Snowden and her husband, Phil., earned so much capitalist dough denouncing the Soviet government it was bad taste for the delegates of the British workers to give them a front seat.

ANOTHER resolution that went over with a vim was one endorsing the treaty between Britain and Russia. This treaty has been attacked by the capitalist press and all the capitalist parties. In speaking to the resolution, Mr. Bramley stated that the Russian workers deserve the praise of the British workers for doing what the British workers favor in theory at least, that is the overthrow of the "curse of capitalism." A trace of sarcasm may be detected in this statement of Bramley's in view of MacDonald's recent interviews on what socialism is not. All in all the congress reports are interesting and the DAILY WORKER will soon publish a series of articles giving the proceedings more in detail.

IT might be well to note here, that while the British Trade Union Congress was showing signs of being

Off the Track.

LAKE VILLA, Ill., Sept. 23.—Eight cars of a freight train bound for Chicago, on the main Soo Line tracks left the rails at Loon Lake near here today when an axle of the front car broke. Cattle and hogs in several of the cars were injured, and one of the crew was hurt. Traffic in both directions was delayed two hours while the tracks were cleared.

DUNNE, CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR, WILL SPEAK TONIGHT AT MEETING OF T. U. E. L. ON R. I. L. U. CONGRESS

"I welcome this opportunity of placing before the trade union militants of Chicago the results of the third congress of the Red International of Labor Unions," said William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, when asked regarding his speech at the regular monthly meeting of the Trade Union Educational League to be held at the Northwest Hall, North and Western Avenues, tonight.

Dunne, known thruout the country for his militant activity in the labor and Communist movement here, attended the congresses of the R. I. L. U. and the Communist International, and is a member of the executive committee of the labor union international.

Besides Dunne's talk, Earl R. Browder will give his regular monthly Review of the Labor Movement which has aroused much favorable comment. All militants are invited to attend. The meeting will be held tonight (Wednesday) and opens at 8 p. m. sharp.

Oppose Intervention in China

To the Workers of Europe and America and to the Laboring Masses of the Oppressed Nationalities of the Orient.

THE British government, a government put into power by a Labor Party, and led by one of the outstanding figures of the Second International, is preparing armed intervention in Southern China, for the purpose of overthrowing the government of the nationalist revolutionary party of China. The council of the British Labor government has addressed a note to the people's government of China, giving expression to the imperialist designs of the British government. This note threatens the people of China with severe military measures in case the nationalist revolutionary government of China attempts to suppress the rebellion of the Chinese merchants, which is being supported by the British government by supplying munitions to the counter-revolutionary rebels. The leader of this rebellion, is a rich Chinese merchant and an agent of the British banks at Shanghai and Hong Kong.

Before the eyes of the whole world and in opposition to the desires of the international revolutionary labor movement, the MacDonald government is now attempting to destroy the very basis upon which rests the liberation movement of the oppressed masses of China, a movement which is being led by Sun Yat Sen, the famous leader of the revolutionary party of China, which has succeeded in 1911, in overthrowing the despotic dynasty of the Manchus and in establishing as its basis the government of Southern China. The imperialism of the pacifist democratic government of MacDonald is serving not the interests of China, but the interests of English finance capital and the Chinese fuedal counter-revolution, which has been oppressing the masses of Chinese for decades.

Comrades, American imperialism has begun an offensive in Northern China, while English imperialism is doing the same thing in Southern China. Furthermore, the Herriot government of France has dispatched warships from Indo-China and Saigan into the waters of Tienzsin and Shanghai. The smaller imperialist nations are joining the bigger ones. Thus has world imperialism concocted a new conspiracy against the liberation movement of the Chinese people, against the toiling masses of China, and against the nationalist revolutionary government of Southern China.

It was only the other day that a declaration of the London conference has been written, a declaration championed by MacDonald and Herriot which was to herald in a new era of peace and already this same champion of pacifism and democracy is dispatching warships to maintain in oppression the toiling masses of China.

Workers of England! You cannot permit British imperialism to shoot down hundreds of Chinese revolutionaries in your name, as has been done this summer in Hankow and Yantseking where the English have taken the lives of many leaders of the railroad union of China. You cannot allow your government which is bearing the name of a labor government to support feudal reaction and capitalist counter-revolution in order that the British banks and the British colonizers of China may derive larger profits.

Comrades! Workers of England! You must demand of the trades union conference which is holding its sessions at Hull to intervene in this affair and demand that the blood bath in China be stopped. You must raise in protest your powerful voice against armed intervention in South China. You must compel your imperialists to keep their hands off the basis and center of the nationalist revolutionary movement in China.

Long live the Chinese nationalist revolutionary movement!

Down with the imperialism of MacDonald and Herriot!

The Executive Committee of the Communist International.

CONFERENCE OF LEFT WINGERS SHOWS PROMISE

Whirlwind Campaign For Petition Signers

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—In preparation for the important left wing conference Sunday, Sept. 28, at the Labor Temple, 243 E. 84th St., many active members of trade unions, Workmen's Circles, fraternal organizations, Workers Party branches, Young Workers League and other left wing organizations are engaged in a whirlwind campaign to put Foster and Gitlow on the ballot in New York State—to make the Empire State the tenth in the list of those who have placed the Workers Party ticket on the ballot.

Up to date this list includes Illinois, Iowa, North Dakota, Washington, Oregon, Colorado, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and New Jersey. In New York City considerable progress is being made, especially in the Brownsville, Williamsburg and Harlem sections.

Interesting Campaign Incident.

One of the signature solicitors, of the hundreds who are going out today, relates an amusing anecdote in connection with his canvass of the workers in his district.

Coming into the proletarian home of a garment worker in the Bronx, he was met with the question: "What party do you represent?"

Upon receiving the reply, "The Workers Party," the worker said, "Why, you're the fellows I've been looking for. I'm sick and disgusted with this LaFollette-Hillquit-Gompers goulash. Let me have an application blank, will you?"

Workmen's Circle Indorses Foster.

The Publicity Department of the Workers Party has just received word that Workmen's Circle, Branch 417, has given its unqualified indorsement to William Z. Foster and Ben Gitlow.

All delegates to the left wing conference Sept. 28, should send in credentials from their organizations, to the Workers Party Campaign Committee, 208 E. 12th St.

Communist Ticket Goes on Ballot in Michigan

COMMUNIST presidential electors pledged to William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow will appear on the ballot in Michigan in the November elections.

This was assured thru a state convention held in Detroit, Saturday, Sept. 20, at which candidates for state offices were nominated as well as presidential electors. Under the Michigan law these candidates are certified to the Secretary of State and their names automatically appear on the ballot.

The addition of Michigan to the states in which the Workers Party will be represented on the ballot brings the number in which the legal requirements have been compiled with up to six. These states are: Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Iowa and North Dakota.

It has been previously reported that the requirements had been met in Washington and Oregon, but this is not the case as the Oregon law requires some 19,000 signatures, it is hardly possible for the party organization to secure these signatures in that state. In Washington it is likely that the Workers Party ticket will go on the ballot altho this is not yet definitely assured.

In other states, most of which will undoubtedly have a Communist ticket on the ballot are Rhode Island, New York, Maryland, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri and California.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 23.—The convention of the International Association of Machinists today witnessed a real battle on the suspension of seven militants from local 105 of the international in Toledo, Oh.

Johnston, president of the union, attempted to block a hearing on the Toledo case by using a technicality in the law as an excuse, and then ruled out of order a resolution presented by Peter Jensen of Chicago calling for the raising of the technical bar.

Emme Appeals.

Julius Emme, of St. Paul, then moved to suspend the fines of $50 that had been laid on each of the seven, and hear the cases before the grievance committee, and the chairman again ruled against it on the ground that it was out of order. Emme then appealed from the decision of the chairman, and the latter was just barely sustained by the delegates.

The progressives in the convention, determined that the cases of heresy-hunting shall come before the meeting, have taken up a collection of $350, covering the seven fines, to deposit with secretary Davison.

Resentment against the arbitrary rulings of the chair is growing among the delegates.

Progressives Win Victory.

The progressives today won a spirited fight by having the convention adopt their resolution for a two-year term for officers, all elected officers to stand for re-election on January 1, 1925. The secretary announced the defeat of the resolution by two votes. The roll call was immediately called for and the result was found to be 288 for the proposition and 199 against it. Provision for an election board to supervise counting of the ballots was carried by an overwhelming majority.

CAMP PERRY, Ohio, Sept. 23.—A special session of the Brookhart-Wheeler committee investigating the department of justice will be summoned immediately, Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, announced here this afternoon following receipt of a telegram from Senator Wheeler. Brookhart did not make public the text of the message he received.

TOLEDO TAKE NOTICE!

All comrades and readers of the DAILY WORKER should report Thursday afternoon any time after 4 o'clock at headquarters, 131 Michigan Street, Toledo. Very important.

GASTON B. MEANS AGAIN ON WRONG SIDE OF FENCE

Mellon Nails Man Who Spilled the Beans

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Gaston B. Means, the elusive and contradictory star witness in the Daughtery investigation, again ran afoul of Daugherty's machine today.

Galen L. Tait, collector of internal revenue for the district of Baltimore, filed a lien in district court against Means' residence at 903 Sixteenth St. here.

Means, who jumped into the limelight on Sunday with a quasi-repudiation of the sensational testimony he gave in the Daughtery hearing, was absent from Washington today. He was reported to have left the capital last midnight for an unannounced destination. Previously he had voiced a demand for a re-assembling of the Wheeler-Brookhart committee in order, he said, that he could lay further "startling and sensational" facts of corruption in high places before the investigators.

METHODISTS NOT INTERESTED IN HIGHT MURDER

Killer Not a Highly Paid Preacher

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 23.—Rev. Lawrence High, held a small and unimportant place in the Methodist ministry according to Bishop Frederick D. Leete, to whose conference the Southern Illinois district, was added recently.

"I do not know the man," Bishop Leete said, "and his case calls for no particular attention of the church.

"In a case like this, I have no doubt that he has already surrendered his parchment to Dr. C. C. Hall, the local district superintendent, altho I have not been notified."

The charge held by Rev. Hight was one of the smallest and paid in the neighborhood of $1,000 a year, Bishop Leete said.

Bishop Leete went to Carbondale, Illinois, today to attend a district meeting at which Hight's case might be considered, he said.

STEEL TRUST TO STAGE HUGE EXPOSITION IN GARY WHILE WORKERS' JOBS DISAPPEAR

By KARL REEVE.
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

GARY, Ind., Sept. 23.—While the 20,000 workers in the Gary mills of the United States Steel Corporation are working only one, two and three days a week, with from three to six thousand men laid off, the Chamber of Commerce has chosen this time to stage an "Exposition," to demonstrate the "prosperity" enjoyed by the steel trust town. The "Greater Gary Exposition," being held all this week, whose largest exhibitor is the United States Steel Corporation, is an advertising and money making proposi-

FOSTER OUTRUNS COOLIDGE, DAVIS, IN CARSHOP VOTE

Reactionaries Ditched by Railway Workers

William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president, polled more votes in the DAILY WORKER'S straw ballot at the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Shops, Crawford Ave. and W. Lake St., than Coolidge and Davis put together. LaFollette was again the high man.

The vote results showed the following: Foster, 42; Coolidge, 23, LaFollette, 225, and Davis, 12.

Compared to Clothing Workers.

It is interesting to note that both Coolidge and Davis ran poorer in the big railroad shops than they did among the clothing workers, who are considered more radical.

At the plants of Hart, Schaffner and Marx, Kuppenheimer and the Royal Tailors, Coolidge and Davis all managed to run better than they did among the railroad workers. The Communist strength in both the clothing factories and the railroad shops was about the same.

One of the DAILY WORKER'S straw vote getters, who got up early in the morning and arrived at the Northwestern Shop doors at six in the morning, to get there in time to meet the men on their way in told the DAILY WORKER, "It is an education in the labor movement of this country to go down to the plants and talk to the workers as they go to and from work.

"I am going again and I think the party should keep the work up and all the industries should be visited. The carshop workers begin arriving as early as twenty-five minutes after six in the morning. Dressed in overalls they seem to drag themselves to work still half asleep. When they were approached by one of us they acted as tho shaken out of a stupor.

One Vote for Foster.

"I watched one man handling his ballot. I said: 'Who are you for?' He looked at me. He looked at the ballot. Never a word from him, not even a twinkle in his eye. Quietly he put his cross beside Foster's name and handed me the ballot. It gave a queer sensation."

Most of them said they didn't care who got in. "Why not?" brought the response, "What's the diff?"

"Read the DAILY WORKER and you'll learn the difference," we told them.

"We could have done much better had we more people handing out the ballots. There are eight entrances in all. We covered only four of them.

"We explained that we would return in the evening to collect the ballots. When we arrived in the evening there was one rush out of the buildings and we had to run after the men to get the ballots.

Feels Vote Is Encouraging.

"Like so many automatic human machines they moved toward and away from the huge shops. They recalled to my mind the drama by the Kopek Brothers. I wanted to shout at them: 'Robots Awake!' We must keep right on shaking them until we

NEW ATTEMPT BEING MADE TO ORGANIZE GARY STEEL SLAVES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GARY, Ind., Sept. 23.—A drive to organize the steel workers employed in the mills of the United States Steel Corporation will be opened here tomorrow night, September 25, by a mass meeting under the auspices of the American Federation of Labor in Turner Hall, 14th and Washington.

George Carbine, of the coal and coke workers, who has been working among the miners of Southern Illinois, will address the meeting, as will William Hannon, secretary-treasurer of the steel workers' organization, and other American Federation of Labor representatives. The American Federation of Labor organization organizers are permanently following Thursday night's meeting, it was announced at the Labor Temple yesterday.

ROYAL BR CORRUPTS LONG ISLAND MORALS

Judge Drinks Booze and Ogles Damsel

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—A justice of the peace dancing the highland fling, with a bobbed-haired girl and holding a glass in his free hand does not constitute a "wild party," according to the verdict of a Rosslyn, Long Island jury.

Miss Isabelle Briggs, Philadelphia debutante, was, therefore, found not guilty of disorderly conduct at a birthday party given in her honor by Miss Vera Leightmer at Great Neck, Long Island.

Charlie O'Hearne, former Yale football star, and Thomas Orth, of the Harvard Club, two of the dozen men at the party, had already pleaded guilty and had been fined $10 each. Justice of the peace Egbert L'Ecluse, of Great Neck, another guest, and Miss Leightmer, Bryn Mawr girl, still are to be tried on similar charges.

ANTI-ADMINISTRATION MAN IS BEATEN UP AT CARPENTERS' CONFAB

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 23.—C. J. Mulcahy, of Providence, R. I., leader of an anti-administration faction of the carpenters' and joiners' convention here, was severely beaten on a downtown street early today by two unidentified men who escaped after kicking him in the stomach and jaw while he lay prostrate. The attack was credited to his enemies within the union, police said.

"RED BAITING" MARKS SESSION OF CARPENTERS

Hutcheson Covering Up Chicago Agreement

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 23.—Fight the Fosterites, fight those who encroach on the jurisdiction of the brotherhood, expell those who advocate amalgamation, was the keynote of International President Hutcheson's speech to the convention of carpenters now in session here.

Those, according to Hutcheson, were the greatest tasks before the carpenters. Or, as he put it, the three great enemies of the brotherhood, were the Fosterites who advocated industrial unionism, those unions who tried to encroach on the jurisdiction of the brotherhood, and those who advocated the American plan.

Murray Lends His Aid.

He was supported in this by Phil Murray, vice-president of the United Mine Workers of America, who gave his usual red baiting speech against the militants in the miners' union, levelling his attack against Tom Myerscough, the Communists and Foster. He tried to excuse his failure to organise the miners in West Virginia by blaming Warren E. Stone and suggested that Foster try his hand at it. He forgot to tell the delegates that whenever the miners attempted to advocate progressive measures, be it Myerscough, Alexander Howat or an ordinary rank and filer they were expelled from the union, and that the Lewis-Murray machine had not answered the charge of Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois miners that Lewis deliberately kept certain fields unorganized for a definite price.

Hutcheson Not Opposed.

Hutcheson's opposition to the American plan is a lip opposition. What is the Chicago agreement entered into by him without the knowledge of the rank and file? The American plan is an "open shop" condition, but the Chicago agreement is worse than that. It has a union "open shop" agreement thru which Hutcheson pledged the support of the Chicago carpenters' union to the "open shop" forces, to be used to destroy the other building trade unions.

In other words, Hutchenson signed an agreement that places the carpenters will remain at work while the American plan is being forced upon the other trades.

The Chicago agreement was signed in secret, one day before the Chicago district election. Jensen, whom Hutcheson supported against Stahl, was elected on the strength of the report that the agreement was a real union agreement. Without this fake propaganda he would have been defeated. The agreement was entered into last June. Not a single copy was printed for months, and the agreement is so rotten that the rank and file has not received a copy at that. It is worse than the American plan, because the American plan is the frank "open shop," while the Chicago carpenters' agreement entered into in a period of prosperity, when every carpenter was working, many of them for $1.50 per hour, is the Landis award which offers an agreement to those union men who will be good and help to defeat and destroy their brother tradesmen.

Fought Landis Award.

The carpenters of Chicago put up a great and victorious fight against the Landis award, their membership increased during the fight, they had the contractors licked, and they were betrayed by Hutchenson and Jensen for personal political gains. If they are proud of the agreement why don't they publish it, read it to the convention or let the rank and file know what it is? But they have something to hide, so they attack Foster, and the progressives, and no doubt Russia will come in for its share of the blame.

The progressive issues now confronting the carpenters' convention, cannot be met on their merits by such men as Hutchenson, the appeal to prejudice is all that can be expected from machine politicians. If the keynote struck by Hutchenson in his speech, is followed out by the convention, then it means that the agreement foisted upon the Chicago carpenters will be forced down the throats of other cities.

OLIVER CARLSON IN TOUR OVER U. S. FOR YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE TO SPEAK ON PROBLEMS OF YOUTH

Oliver Carlson, for two years a member of the executive committee of the Young Communist International, just returned to the United States after the congresses of the Communist and Young Communist Internationals, both of which he attended as delegate from America, has just begun his tour of the country under the auspices of the Young Workers League.

Most of his meetings will be for the league, while some of them will be held under the auspices of the Workers Party, where he will speak for the Communist candidates.

Has Much Experience.

Comrade Carlson is an excellent speaker and has had vast experience in work all over the world. He will bring these experiences in England, Germany, Russia, Sweden and other European countries, to bear on the problems of the young Communists in America. His membership meeting in Chicago brought the best turnout of Y. W. L. members yet seen here. He has had equal success in Cleveland and Youngstown. All league members as well as party comrades are urged to attend the Carlson meetings in great numbers.

Carlson's route is as follows:

Carlson's itinerary.

Pittsburgh, Wednesday, Sept. 24th to Saturday, Sept. 27th.

Bethidhem, Pa., Sunday, Sept. 28th and Monday, Sept. 29.

Baltimore, Tuesday, Sept. 30.

Philadelphia, Wednesday, Oct. 1st to Saturday, Oct. 4th.

New York, Sunday, Oct. 5th to Saturday, Oct. 11th.

New Haven, Sunday, Oct. 12th.

Boston (Providence, R. I.), Monday, Oct. 13th to Saturday, Oct. 18th.

Rochester, Sunday, Oct. 19th.

Buffalo, Monday, Oct. 20th and Tuesday, Oct. 21st.

Toledo, Wednesday, Oct. 22nd.

Detroit, Thursday, Oct. 23rd to Saturday, Oct. 25th.

Grand Rapids, Sunday, Oct. 26th.

Muskegon, Monday, Oct. 27th.

STEEL CITY PLANS TO CELEBRATE

tion. The Chamber of Commerce is to receive twenty per cent of all receipts on admission charges, and the carnival company staging the "show," headed by Henry Marks, is to get the rest.

Two Bits to Get In.

The Gary steel workers are to pay twenty-five cents to get in and after they get in they are expected to buy something from the business men's booths.

In conjunction with this campaign to sell the goods produced in Gary, the Chamber of Commerce is issuing special literature to entice the eyes of business men and induce them to settle in Gary. The prospective manufacturer and business man is told in this literature that Gary is an open shop town, with plenty of labor and no unions except in the printing trades.

"There is available at all times a large surplus of high-grade female workers," says the Chamber of Commerce bulletin entitled, "Gary Forges Prosperity."

The Chamber of Commerce, dominated by the United States Steel Corporation, feels satisfied that there are no unions and that there is a surplus of labor, because under those conditions they can pay the workers much less wages and make more profits for themselves. "The average normal number of workers employed in Gary industries is 28,675," says the Chamber of Commerce. "Over 90 per cent of the workers are male and are employed in the several units of the United States Steel Corporation."

But the most important inducement held out to manufacturers, the most important proof offered by the United States Steel Corporation that the Gary banks that Gary is an ideal town—for the large employer of labor—is the low wages paid to the workers, 90 per cent of whom are admitted to be steel trust slaves.

44 Cents An Hour.

"The average minimum wage for industrial male workers is 44 cents per hour; for female workers, 25 cents per hour. With the exception of the building and printing trades, practically every establishment in Gary operates under the American plan," says the Chamber of Commerce.

The United States Steel Corporation controls the lives of over 90 per cent of the citizens of Gary. Under the leadership of Elbert H. Gary, the Steel Trust has gained control of every institution in the town which molds public opinion and influences the thoughts of the workers.

The paternalistic Steel Trust takes the children when they enter school, and makes them into efficient slaves to be fed into the Gary steel imills. The steel mills quickly wear out the physical machinery of the workers, a season in the hot foundries and open hearth work marking permanent lines of suffering in the steel slaves' faces. Therefore, the Steel Trust does as much as it can to build up the bodies of the steel workers while they are still school children, with the hope that they will last a little longer in Gary's mill.

The fact that the public schools are designed to train the children of Gary's workers for only one purpose in life is put into fancy language by the Chamber of Commerce. "In addition to excellent academic instruction, features of the 'Gary Plan' are the opportunities offered for healthful physical development and for natural selection by the individual student of vocational courses," says the Chamber of Commerce.

The Gary Plan.

The "Gary Plan," of which the Gary employers boast so much, teaches the children largely the narrow, confining factory work which restricts their immature minds rather than broadening them, as would scientific or cultural courses.

"In the high schools," boasts the Steel Trust controlled Chamber of Commerce, "vocational training is offered in the following courses: animal husbandry, automobile mechanics, commerce, forge, foundry, machine shop, printing, shoe repairing, cooking, millinery and sewing."

It is noticable that most of these courses enable the Steel Corporation to transplant the children from high school to the semi-skilled steel mill trades. The town thus uses its high schools to take the place of a private trade school which Elbert Gary would have to maintain if he did not have the high schools to do that work for him.

There is only one local paper in Gary, The Post-Tribune, which is obviously, as all the Gary workers know, a tool of the United States Steel Corporation. The Post-Tribune has been engaged for the last few months in trying to make the steel workers who can't even buy a job anywhere, believe that there is no unemployment in the steel mills. The Chamber of Commerce realizes the value of the paper to the town's non-union employers. "The educational value of the Gary Post-Tribune is worthy of special note," the Chamber of Commerce announces. "The Gary Post-Tribune is a potent force in the life of the community." The service of the Post-Tribune consists of doing any dirty work for the Steel Trust which comes to hand.

The "Greater Gary Exposition" is proof that Gary is a splendid town for the employers and for the United States Steel Corporation, and a good town for the workers to keep away from.

GRANT PARDON PLEA NOW UP FOR ACTION TO GOVERNOR SMALL

Bernard Grant, under sentence of death for the murder of policeman Ralph Souders, may escape the gallows, if the plea of his attorney to Governor Len Small, for a pardon is granted.

Much discussion has been aroused over the case of Grant, who, like the murderers of Robert Franks, is only a youth of 19 years. It is pointed out that Grant is a poor man's son, and on his way to the gallows for a crime similar to the one of Loeb and Leopold, who, the sons of rich parents, got away with a life term sentence, escaping the noose.

It is now reported that the confession of Walter Krauser, which cleared Grant of the murder charge, has now been repudiated. Clarence Darrow, attorney for Loeb and Leopold, who is now working for a pardon to Grant, refused to comment on this repudiation. Grant's attorney, Thomas E. Swanson, is attempting to bring about a speedy hearing on Grant's petition for a pardon.

Ella Reeve Bloor Talks to Big Crowds in Milwaukee, Wis.

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 23.—"Mother" Ella Reeve Bloor spoke here at two large street open air meetings yesterday, taking up good collections from audiences of several hundred people. "Mother" Bloor told the crowd last night about the heroic struggles of the Soviet government on behalf of the workers of the world, and pleaded for international solidarity.

She denounced LaFollette as an upholder of the capitalist system, which is against not only the Russian workers and farmers' government, but the working class of the world.

Comrade Bloor will speak in Milwaukee at open air meetings until Sept. 25, when she speaks in Racine and Kenosha and returns to Milwaukee next Saturday. Oct. 1, "Mother" Bloor begins a tour of the Southern Illinois coal fields.

LAST HOUR DRIVE FOR SIGNATURES IN 6TH DISTRICT

Must Work Hard to Put Pellegrino on Ballot

Are you a member of any one of the following Workers Party branches?

Cicero Young Workers League, Lettish Branch, Czecho-Slovak, No. 3, Czecho-Slovak North Berwyn, Czecho-Slovak Cicero, Cicero English, Cicero Italian, Douglas Park English, Douglas Park Jewish, Scandinavian West Side, West Side Young Workers League, John Reed Young Workers League, Lithuanian No. 74.

If you are, you belong to the Sixth Congressional district, and your candidate is Frank Pellegrino. What have you done to help put him on the ballot?

If you have not done your share, and Pellegrino does not go on the ballot, it will be your personal fault, and I trust that the City Central committee will find ways of making you feel your responsibility in this failure. Communists are workers, not shirkers.

Sunday, Sept. 27.

You have one more chance to do your share of this work. On Sunday, Sept. 27, a special drive for the needed signatures will be conducted by District 6. Every member of the above mentioned branches is urged to come to 3322 Douglas Park Blvd. and get his assignment.

A true Communist is not he who simply pays dues regularly and attends meetings where he sits by nicely and quietly listening or taking part in abstract discussions. A true Communist is he who does this plus work, more work and still more work when the call to action comes from the proper body. A true Communist is a good soldier. One who knows how to take orders and carry them out effectively.

A true Communist is he who recognizes that when his Central Executive Committee has pondered over a question and finally come to a definite decision, all lower units must carry out the policy of the C. E. C., regardless of personal opinions. The getting of signatures for Pellegrino is not the whim of the City Secretary, or the decision of the C. C. C., or the order of the District Organizer. It is the giving of life to a policy decided upon by the highest body of our party—the Central Executive Committee.

Must Carry Out Work.

After careful and deliberate consideration our C. E. C. decided that our party shall enter into the election campaign. Every lower unit immediately proceeded to pass the decision on and lay plans for carrying it out.

Your part as a soldier in the ranks is to help carry out this decision. To give it life by securing the signatures which will make it possible to put the candidate in the field and so conduct a real aggressive campaign from now until November. You will not be called upon to make speeches. You will not be trusted upon to write articles. But you can make it possible for the party to have an opportunity to send speakers in the field who will make Communist talks to the workers. You can provide this opportunity to the party by putting the candidates on the ballot. And there is only one way of doing that—by getting the required number of signatures.

It is no easy job to conduct a national campaign. To get the right speakers for the right places. To run street meetings. To publish pamphlets on timely subjects written from the Communist point of view. To get a daily campaign message to the workers. And to do it all on a shoe string. All this the party will have to do—but it must first get the candidates on the ballot.

Give This One Sunday.

Is it asking too much of us to give up ONE Sunday morning to the getting of a few signatures, as compared to the gigantic task ahead for the party? District 6 will not get its candidate on the ballot unless more signatures are turned in. We have not enough so far, because only a handful of the members have taken their responsibility seriously.

But we can still do it. There is no reason to fail. We have 12 branches in our district and all we need is another 3000 signatures. If each branch sends only ten members next Sunday morning, we can get more than the required 1,000 signatures. With one hundred comrades, divided into groups of twos it will only be necessary of each group to get 20 signatures. That is easy! Those of us who have been out know how easy it is.

NOON OF MONDAY, SEPT. 28th IS THE CLOSING HOUR FOR REGISTERING PETITIONS! Comrades of District 6! We can still put our candidate on the ballot! But it all depends upon those who have not done their share as yet. Especially upon the comrades of the language branches who make the excuse that they cannot speak English.

The Lettish Branch, for instance, has about 100 members. To date, all they have turned in is 75 signatures and these were procured by ONE member, Comrade Mrs. Dozenberg. Surely there are at least ten more in that branch who can turn out on Sunday morning and go out with English speaking comrades, if they are shy about going out by themselves.

The Final Test Day.

Sunday morning will be the final test day. All branches in District 6 are urged to send their members to 3222 Douglas Park Blvd., where they will get their assignments.

If you have not yet done anything toward putting Pellegrino on the ballot, take advantage of this opportunity to do your share. If you have done your share already, come again and show the rest how to work. Show them what it means to be a real Communist. Show them that you feel that your party can never ask too much of you, and that you can never give too much. Show them that your one thought is to make the party—our party—grow. And that to do all, no matter how unpleasant and distasteful and difficult, is too small for you to do.

COME ONE, COME ALL! SUNDAY, 9 A. M., AT 3322 DOUGLAS PARK BOULEVARD.

SHOW THAT YOU ARE A COMMUNIST IN PRACTICE.

PROVE THAT YOU ARE A SOLDIER IN THE RANKS.

DON'T BE A SHIRKER! BE A WORKER! CARRY YOUR SHARE OF COMMUNIST RESPONSIBILITY!

Rose Karsner, Campaign Manager, Sixth Congressional District.

Politics Links Steel Trust to Officialdom of Labor in Illinois

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, more than ever, "politics makes strange bedfellows."

This is particularly true of Illinois.

* * * *

News comes from downstate that "Charley" Deneen, ex-governor, now candidate for United States senator on the republican ticket, is opening his campaign in Eastern Illinois.

At Danville, in the heart of a coal mining center, Deneen is the guest of honor at a luncheon given by Thomas Moses, general superintendent of the United States Fuel Company.

Mr. Moses is also the representative of the United States Steel Corporation, of which the fuel company is a subsidiary in the Danville district.

That Mr. Deneen, the political spokesman of the greatest corporations, should associate with the officials of the Steel Trust, is to be expected. That is his role in politics and he makes no effort to hide it.

* * * *

But Mr. Deneen is the bedfellow in politics of Governor Len Small, who has been endorsed for re-election by the officialdom of Illinois labor, including Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois Miners' Union, and John H. Walker, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor. This is the Walker who acted as chairman of the LaFollette-Wheeler mass meeting in Chicago last Saturday night. Len Small is the LaFollette candidate for governor in Illinois.

* * * *

Farrington endorses the republican candidate, Len Small, the political pal of Deneen, the guest of honor of the Steel Trust.

It is charged that it was the steel trust that stood back of the Herrin open shop mine owners in their war on the Miners' Union in Williamson County. It is charged that the war on the Miners' Union at Herrin was merely a part of the steel trust's open shop war against organized labor thruout the entire country. The miners' officials themselves made these charges.

Yet Farrington, the president of the Miners' Union, shakes hands, thru his political alliances, with all these anti-labor elements. Farrington is the political bedfellow of the politicians of the Steel Trust. He is in the same nest with the open shoppers.

* * * *

Walker comes from Danville, center of reaction, that sent "Uncle Joe" Cannon to Washington as congressman, to do the bidding of the biggest business interests, until he became too old to make the trip to the national capital. Walker as a socialist, often campaigned for congress, in the Danville district, as the socialist candidate, against the Cannon republican machine.

But Walker turned renegade, even to the socialist party, and is now in the republican camp. Walker now denounces the radicals, especially the Communists, at the same time building his alliance with Len Small, the political ally of Deneen.

It is not difficult to see how Walker, like Farrington, dabbling in Wall Street politics, becomes another hangman of the workers, just as much as the worst reactionaries, even as much as Deneen, the professional politician-lawyer of the moneyed interests.

* * * *

Farrington and Walker may sleep in the left side of Len Small, but in the same political bed, on the right side, sleep very comfortably indeed, the Deneens and the Brundages with their steel trust friends.

A strong chain, that loops about the neck of the whole working class, runs from the Steel Trust's banquet to Deneen, at Danville, to the LaFollette meeting addressed by Wheeler, in Chicago.

It is a strong chain, powerful in every link, that labor can only break when it decides to go into class politics for itself, working class politics.

* * * *

Capitalist politics, the struggle for the maintenance of the present capitalist social order, unites all capitalist politicians—Coolidge, Davis and LaFollette; Deneen, Small, Farrington and Walker.

Working class politics, the struggle for Soviet Rule, must unite the workers and farmers under the Communist standards, carried aloft in this campaign by the candidates of the Workers Party, William Z. Foster, for president, and Benjamin Gitlow, for vice president.

All workers and farmers must oppose revolutionary working class political action to the traitor alliances of their reactionary officials with capitalist politics.

SILLINSKY IS HOLDING LEAD IN ELECTION

Predict Militant Will Win Out in Tailors

Max J. Sillinsky, Cleveland progressive, retained his lead yesterday over the reactionary Sweeney, in the election race for secretary-treasurer of the Journeymen Tailors' Union.

With Boston, Indianapolis, Burlington, and Grand Rapids returns in, Sillinsky leads Sweeney by 1028 votes to 944. Progressive centers in Canada, Detroit, and other local unions which are expected to give Sillinsky a majority of their votes have not yet been heard from.

Protest Fake Votes.

At the election for secretary-treasurer in Kansas City, the reactionary business agent of the local brought in 21 votes for Sweeney which he had canvassed and which he declared Sweeney told him to get. In spite of the protests of progressives, the tellers counted these 21 votes, making 79 for Sillinsky and 91 for Sweeney.

The total vote to date follows:

Harding's Doctor Dies.

MARION, Ohio, Sept. 23.—Brig.-Gen. Charles E. Sawyer dropped dead while talking to his wife and son, Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, this afternoon. He had not been feeling well for a long time. Heart disease was the cause of death. He was 64 years old.

Brigadier General Sawyer was President Harding's personal physician and was given his army rank by President Harding at the time of his inauguration as president.

CARPENTER DELEGATE HITS INDIANAPOLIS AS OPEN SHOP CITY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 23.—The credentials committee reported to the convention of the Carpenters' Brotherhood, and the report was accepted. President Hutcheson appointed the following committee on rules which is to report tomorrow: Kresten, Walker, Bates, Dubin, and Bennett.

John Manning, secretary of the Union Label League, spoke at length on the necessity of using union-made goods. When he was thru, delegate John J. Reardon, of the Cabinet Makers' Local 1596, St. Louis, said that when he had asked in Indianapolis for union-made cigars he was looked upon as crazy. He believed that unionism should begin at home where most of the unions had their headquarters and should organize the workers instead of permitting the city to be open shop. If that were done, the officers of the unions might have some reason for asking the delegates to use only union-made goods.

The delegates loudly applauded this speech. Hutchenson then took the floor and said that he agreed with most of what Reardon had said, but that it should not be looked upon as an attack on the officers of the union, since they were doing their best to unionize the town. Hutchenson didn't believe in running away because it was a non-union city.

Numerous delegates here expressed their appreciation of the DAILY WORKER as a good working class newspaper.

U. S. DICTATORSHIP BRINGS STARVATION TO 20,000 FILIPINOS

MANILA, Sept. 23.—That "20,000 persons are in a state of starvation in one province" and misery threatens other provinces on account of crop failures, was revealed in a report made public today by the Red Cross.

BRITISH PLOT AGAINST RUSS, SAYS KAMENEV

Soviet Leader Assails English Government

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, Sept. 23.—L. B. Kamenev, Governor of Moscow, and one of the leading figures in the Communist government, delivered a scathing indictment of the British government in a speech before a gathering of the Young Communist League of Russia.

Kamenev charged the British diplomats and the permanent officials in the London foreign office with having organized rebellious movements against the Soviet government with a view to discrediting the Anglo-Russian treaty signed by Ramsay MacDonald in behalf of the British government.

Kamenev does not accuse MacDonald of participating in the anti-Soviet conspiracy, tho MacDonald's alleged lover for "Georgian independence" before he became premier leads one to the conclusion that the recent disturbances were not entirely a surprise to him.

Kamenev declared that the experts' reparation plan was a cruel American business device to reduce Germany to the status of a colony.

The following is an excerpt from Kamenev's speech: "The day after the signing of the Russo-British agreement," said Kamenev, "British diplomacy, which is not in the hands of prime minister MacDonald, began to move on all fronts. All the conservative diplomats who have remained in office since the days of Carson began to work hard to sow rebellions seed in the Soviet Republic in order to create delay in the ratification of the agreement. Everywhere we noticed the work of the British diplomats. In Afghanistan there is a movement against our friend, the amir. In Persia small national groups, bought by the gold of British agents, are begining to rebel. In Turkey the Kurds are beginning to agitate.

British Support Soviet Foes.

"Everywhere the British support wandering peoples against the liberal governments of the east that are working for the freedom of the east. Intervention in China has been prepared for a long time ago and is beginning now because the adoption of the experts' reparations plan by Europe will set the hands of Great Britain's diplomats free to work on other fronts and because the recognition of Chinese rights by our representative in Peking aroused the Chinese people against old-world imperialism.

"We notice the activity of British diplomats not only outside but inside of Russia. We are quite sure that all the adventures of the Georgian mansheviki have only one object, and that is to make enough noise and scandal to demonstrate that Soviet Russia is unquiet.

"We ought to have no delusion that this agitation will end here. We have other frontiers. Petlura and Balatorich may start again."

Tchitcherin Flays League.

Moscow, Sept. 23.—George Tchitcherin, foreign minister of Soviet Russia, in a public statement today flatly charges the league of nations with complicity in the recent disturbances in Georgia. He dubbed the league "the beloved child of the entente powers," and with being a weapon of the capitalistic powers for their war on Soviet Russia.

"It is a bogus league," declared comrade Tchitcherin," and lacks real power but is able to make real noise. That is the reason for its existence. The revolt in Georgia is bogus. It was pre-arranged by the bourgeois governments.

"Why does not the league of nations deal with the revolts in India, Syria, the Sudan and China, where heroic oppressed peoples have started revolts which are not bogus?"

New War Activity On Spain.

TANGIER.—More active participation in the revolt by Riff tribes in the western section of the Spanish zone of trouble was feared as a result of meeting of all tribes to decide on a future policy.

The Campaign Fund Campaign

ARE WE A CHINESE ARMY?

By ALFRED WAGENKNECHT.

THERE is war in China. General Che-kiang and his army is fighting General Kiang-su and his army in the vicinity of Shanghai. Che-kiang is in sympathy with the Manchurian general, Cheng Tso-lin, and Kiang-su is supporting the central government at Peking. The forces of Sun Yat-sen are being mobilized in northern Kwangtung to assist the Manchurian forces. General Chen Chiung-min, who has long been menacing Sun Yat-sen in Kwangtung is occupying the positions formerly held by the Sun Yat-sen forces.

Now that you understand this, let's go on with the story!

Chinese armies, from the smallest handful of provincial rebels to the large army of the Manchurian war-lord, all have one PECULIAR habit.

WHEN IT RAINS THEY DON'T FIGHT!!

Let's admit that it's a bit murky overhead for the Workers Party. Instead of having a "to the masses" united front labor party campaign we were compelled by circumstances to shift positions and enter an out and out Communist campaign.

But has any one commanded—REST ARMS!

Have you heard a single bugle make a noise like drops of water pattering on empty skulls? A noise which might be interpreted by you to mean—IT'S RAINING, ALL TURN IN?

Every party member is supposed to have his head full of Communism and his body full of fight. The more difficult the struggle the harder we battle. Trotsky kept the international imperialists busy on seven fronts at one and the same time.

ARE WE A CHINESE ARMY? Shall little drops of rain cool our ardor and one storm defeat us?

ON WITH THE ELECTION CAMPAIGN!

IN WITH THE DOLLARS!!

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

abreast of the times Mr. Brownlie, a British fraternal delegate to the Canadian Trades Union Congress, was knuckling with the reactionary elements here in America and Canada against the radicals. The British labor leaders are not deserving of any special praise for their march to the left. They are not leading. They are being driven by the masses, whose morale has been somewhat raised by the fact that they have a so-called labor government in office, which gives them the feeling that the only thing that stands between them and complete victory is the will to power.

THE Rev. Lawrence M. Hight, who confessed to the murder of his wife and also a man with whose wife the reverend gentleman had relations other than platonic, was an active member of the Ku Klux Klan. He made the admission while making his confession. Only a few weeks after Loeb-Leopold boys were committed to Joliet prison two clergymen have broken into the spotlight with results not to the liking of the churches of all denominations. When Leopold confessed to the murder of the Franks boy, clergymen of all the creeds rushed into print, with the theory that murder was a direct result of disbelief in God. This theory, already shattered by the conduct of leading members of the religious profession, is given another wallop by the confession of the Rev. Hight and the escapade of the St. Joseph, Mich. clergyman who attempted suicide in order to escape from the consequences of his relations with sundry lady members of his parish.

THE Ku Klux Klan deserves credit for one thing. It is the most efficient social garbage can in America. There is not a rapist, unemployed bootlegger, potential or professional murderer, briber, pimp or all round pervert in the United States that is not attracted to it. And why not?

THE morons who pay ten dollars to a Kleagle for the privilege of sticking their heads into a pillow case sold to them by the Klan at an exhorbitant price, make the Indians who sold out their patrimony for a set of rosary beads look like a lot of canny Calvins. The criminal element join this organization, buy a cheap prayer book and take as their favorite bibli cal heroes the most bloodthirsty specimens in Hebrew mythology. With this set of "principles" the criminals of the Hight type are welcome into the Klan and it is not suprising that they give their criminal tendencies free reign.

WHILE state's attorney Crowe called for the death penalty in the cases of Loeb and Leopold, state's attorney Thompson, who got the preacher's confession, will not demand the extreme punishment, out of regard for the Methodist church. We do not know whether he is a Methodist or not. No doubt the prosecutor will be hauled over the coals for his lack of diplomacy. The capitalist papers will deny with flourishes that the law makes exception in favor of rich or poor or any religious denomination. But one we will bet on and that is that no clergyman will break into print suggesting that the bible be removed as an immoral publication and an aid to crime.

THE chaotic condition of China is causing our contemporary, the Chicago Tribune, considerable disquietude. Is the Tribune concerned over the welfare of the Chinese workers? Not on your red neckie. What worries the World's Greatest Liar is that Japan is very likely backing up the Manchurian war lord in his march on Pekin. The Tribune comes out for the government ownership of one industry—the war business. It believes this innovation should be introduced in China. The United States having more money than any other nation would be in a stronger position with a government in need of ready cash, than its competitors. Now that Japan is backing Chang, the war lord of provincial Mukun, and the United States is backing Wu Pei Fu, commander of the armies supporting the central government, the Tribune finds it easy to support a "centralized government" in China. But it must be a government after the heart of the American plunderbund.

THERE is a new crisis in the Irish cabinet. Joseph McGrath, former minister of industry, may be taken into the Cosgrove cabinet as minister of defense, the position formerly occupied by Richard Mulcahy, who left the cabinet after his quarrel with the "mutineers." The "mutineers," whose behalf McGrath took up the cudgels, were army officers who felt that those who fought during the Black and Tan reign of terror were being relieved of their commissions in the army and being replaced by British army officers or soldiers whose loyalty to Ireland was not shown during the civil war.

THE socalled mutineers, organized a secret society for the purpose of controlling the army. Defense minister Mulcahy had another secret society, organized for the same purpose. There was a clash with the result that Mulcahy ordered the arrest of the mutineers. The flare-up ended by Mulcahy losing his job and McGrath leaving the cabinet and forming an anti-national army party. This party however did not appear to have any function other than serve McGrath as a weapon to force his way back into the Cosgrove cabinet with added power. This appears is what has happened now.

IRISH American politicians have considerable influence in Irish politics and perhaps the most influential in the councils of the Free State government is Daniel F. Cohalan, of New York, former supreme court judge. He visited Ireland recently. Another man with much influence in Free State government circles is John Devoy, editor of the Gaelic American. Devoy is a bitter personal enemy of Eamon DeValera and one of Devoy's objects in visiting his native land was to bring about unity between the leaders of the Free State government so they could put up a united front against the DeValera republicans in the next election. There is considerable anxiety in Ireland over the boundary dispute

POWERS JOCKEY FOR POSITION IN CHINA WAR

France Supports Chang; Britain Backs Wu

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SHANGHAI, Sept. 23.—Peking has issued "subjugation orders" directing Marshal Wu Pei Fu to suppress Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian war lord.

The forces of the Mukden war lord are attacking heavily and aviators in the employ of Chang are making airplane raids.

French Support Chang.

Recent dispatches from Peking stated that Chang Tso Lin possesses many Breguet planes manned by French pilots. The French military attache of the Peking legation visited Mukden a week ago, according to the Peking advices, to confer the French decoration of commander of the legion of honor on Chang Hsueh Liang, son of Chang Tso Lin, for distinguished services in aviation.

At this time the Peking government made protest to the French government, claiming that the sale of French planes infringes on the arms embargo. This latter view, it was stated in Peking, is held by the United States government.

Sun Attacks Britain.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

MOSCOW. — (By Mail.)— I have been able to obtain one of the first copies that has left China of the vehement manifesto issued by Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the enlightened President of the South China Republic, against what he calls the "British gunboat diplomacy" in Canton. Dr. Sun says:—

"From the moment when Chen Lim Pak, in complicity with the Hong-Kong and Shanghai Bank, began a rebellion against my government, I had reason to suspect that the movement was supported by British Imperialism.

"I was reluctant to believe this in view of the British Labor Party's professions of sympathy for exploited peoples. I was hopeful that the Labor government would replace the old gunboat policy, which had hitherto heaped disaster and humiliation on China, by an era of international honesty.

The Consul's Letter.

"We now know the truth. On August 29 the British Consul-General addressed a dispatch to my government stating that the consular body 'protested against the barbarity of firing upon a defenseless city,' concluding with a menacing note declaring, 'I have now received a message from the senior British naval officer stating that he has received orders from the Commodore in Hong-Kong that, should the Chinese authorities fire up on the city, immediate action should be taken against them by all British naval forces available.'

"My government repudiates the suggestion that it could be guilty of the barbarity of firing upon a defenseless city, since the only section of Canton against which the government could be compelled to take action is the suburb of Shakwan, which is the armed stronghold of the Chen Lim Pak rebels.

"But this infamous suggestion, emanating from a body which includes the authors of Singapore, of the massacre of Amritsar, of the atrocities in Egypt and Ireland, is typical of imperial hypocrisy. In my country it is only necessary to refer to the latest British outrage at Wangsien, where the bombardment of a defenseless city by British naval forces was avoidable only by the sacrifice of two of my countrymen, who were summarily decapitated without any trial in order to satisfy imperial frightfulness.

More Sinister Meaning.

"But I see a more sinister meaning in the challenge of Imperialist England. In the light of the diplomatic and moral support of the millions of reorganization and other loans from Imperialist Powers for more than 12 years long granted to the counter-revolution, this act of imperialism is not comprehensive but as an attempt to destroy the Kuomingtang government whereof I am head.

"The Kuomingtang is the only ruling body in China striving to preserve from extinction the spirit of revolution. It is the sole centre of resistance against counter - revolution Therefore British guns trained on it.

"Once the order of the day was to overthrow the Manchu dynasty. The time has arrived when the order of the day shall be to overthrow imperialist intervention in China, which is the main obstacle to the completion of the historic work of the revolution."

(Chen Lim Pak, at the head of the Canton Merchants' Volunteer Corps, has been directing an insurrectionary movement against Dr. Sun, whose government is favorable to labor.)

Earthquake Shock in Italy.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—Seven severe earthquake shocks were felt at Genoa, Italy, today, according to a Central news dispatch from that city. Considerable damage was reported, altho there were no casualties.

Many residents fled from their homes in panic.

FEW MILLION BUCKS WILL BE SPENT IN ATTEMPT TO ELECT SOME CAPITALIST PRESIDENT

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

At least $9,000,000 will be officially spent this year by the two old parties in an attempt to put over a candidate who finds favor in Wall street. The greater part will go to supply President Coolidge with the popularity he lacks.

These figures are from the conservative estimate of Donald MacGregor in The New York-Times. MacGregor's estimate takes no account of the hundreds of thousands which will be poured out by organized business thru such camouflaged political organizations as the American bureau of economics and the National Tax Payers' union.

Preparing Budgets.

According to MacGregor, "budgets now being prepared by the different campaign committees indicate an expenditure of approximatly $10,000,000 in the current presidential contest. The sum is large but the ramifications of a national campaign are great. The cost of campaigning is as high today as at any time in history.

"In 1916 the republicans spent approximately $2,500,000, and the democrats not quite $10,000,000, but money went further then than it does today. In 1920, the actual outlay of the republican national committee, as reported to the senate, was $5,319,729.32 while the democratic committee spent $1,818,274.02. The 1920 campaign with state expenditures figured in cost $10,338,509."

MacGregor says the republicans this year will probably be far better financed than either the democrats or the progressives and he suggests $3,000,000 as the probable total of the republican national committee fund with the democrats lucky if they get $2,000,000 and the LaFollette fund unlikely to exceed $1,000,000.

Any large state expenditures, which are expected to reach $4,000,000, will be found in the Coolidge column. Concerning these state funds MacGregor says, "The close scrutiny by the senate of national committee expenditures makes it extremely probable that state campaign funds will be larger than before. Many states do not require reports. Some contributors prefer to make their donations thru these channels so that they may avoid publicity. Similarly county campaign funds may be found greatly increased since there is no report on these. In this way it is probable that the general expenditures will be sent to the $10,000,000 mark between now and election day."

Since at least $6,000,000 and probably more of this huge fund is scheduled to put Coolidge over as against any natural choice of the farmers wage earners and low salaried persons who form the bulk of the electorate, his staunch business clientele is evidently avoiding unpleasant publicity by continuing thru state and county funds. Another, taking account of the drop in prices since 1920, it is apparent that the real Coolidge campaign fund will be larger in purchasing power than that required to put Harding over in 1920.

Carpet Company in Attempt to Secure Strike Injunction

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—The Roxbury Carpet Co. is seeking an injunction in the superior court against the United Textile Workers which has called an effective strike in the company's Saxonville factory. The application for the injunction asks protection against interference with a cut in wages and with the Bedeaux system of shop management, a speed-up system akin to the Taylor system which the union is opposing.

Hartford Weavers in Strike Against Adding New Shift

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 23.—One hundred silk weavers employed by Edward Bloom Co. struck when extra business caused the foremen to put on a night shift. The weavers object to the night shift workers using their warps. They claim this excessive use of the machinery deteriorates it so that the regular force can not make the same wages as formerly on fixed piece-work rates.

190,000 BALES OF AMERICAN COTTON SENT TO RUSSIA

Soviet Syndicate Buying Textile Products Here

(By Federated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Attention of the textile world is being directed to the extensive purchases of American cotton which are being made by the All-Russian Textile Syndicate, Inc., the American branch of a Russian state trust. Purchasing is directed from the New York office of this Soviet enterprise and ships are leaving Southern ports regularly. Two ships with cargoes totaling 23,500 bales will leave Houston early in October. The steamship Erato, with 6,000 bales, is about to embark from Galveston and the Degali has just left the same port with a cargo of the same size.

190,000 Bales Shipped.

In all 190,000 bales of American cotton have been shipped for Soviet Russian ports since last February. This, in addition to more than 100,000 bales purchased in Egypt and Europe. The textile syndicate is now planning to buy large quantities of dyes and other accessory textile products.

American cotton shipments, for the most part, go direct to Murmask, the Russian arctic port thru a shipping agency owned jointly by the Soviet government and the Hamburg-American line and W. A. Harriman & Co. Purchases of cotton have in some cases been facilitated by credits from New York banks who welcome such steady dealings as those coming thru Soviet Russia in these dull business times.

Prince of Wales to Condescend to Study Worker in Next Trip

SOYSSET, L. I., Sept. 23.—The Prince of Wales explains that his next visit to the United States will not be a whirl of polo and parties with a tour of factories and farms. He wants to get acquainted with America's workers, he says. To date the only workers who have gotten a good once over on the prince are the servants in millionaire homes in Long Island; horsemen attending at the polo meet and the Wall Street stenographers who glimpsed the prince in the celebrated noon hour rush.

Town Wiped Out By Fire.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 23.—St. Constant, a small town on the south shore of the St. Lawrence river, ten miles from Montreal, is being wiped out by fire, according to a call for help telephoned here today by Aileen Langlin, operator of the St. Constant exchange. She said the flames were then 100 yards from the exchange. The girl, dressed in the night gown and slippers she donned before dawn to give the alarm, stood by her post.

Couldn't Stand Excitement.

NAPERVILLE, Ill., Sept. 23.—Two men are dead today as a result of a drowning at Naperville quarry, the excitement of seeing James Coffman drown proved too much for August Osterling, 13, and he dropped dead.

Cal Needs It Badly.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—President Coolidge will soon issue a proclamation setting aside the week of November 12-23 as "Education Week," thruout the nation, it was announced here today.

UNITED TEXTILE WORKERS NOT TO RECOGNIZE WAGE CUT ACCEPTED BY AMOSKEAG COMPANY UNIONISTS

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The United Textile Workers will not recognize the action taken by the company union in the Amoskeag mills at Manchester, N. H., in voting for a ten per cent wage cut, Thomas F. McMahon, president of the union, declares that the company union representatives are defying the will of the rank and file.

Mr. McMahon said he did not wish to give away the union's plan of action at the present time but he declared that the U. T. W. stood flatly against the proposed wage cut for the 14,000 Amoskeag workers and would have their backing in any move it made. The union's local office is keeping close watch on the situation.

Company union representatives rejected the Amoskeag's proposal for a 20 per cent cut. Later, under company pressure, the vote for a 10 per cent cut went thru with the proviso that it was to be only temporary. The Amoskeag superintendents have been devoting considerable attention to the company union since the 1922 strike.

WILBUR PULLED BONER IN WEST WITH WAR TALK

Cal Finds No Hope in California Vote

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Coolidge's secretary of the navy, his own selection, Wilbur, has lined up with Fall and Denoy, demanding that the oil be pumped from the naval reserves.

Whether he has been recalled to Washington and muzzled solely because of his Japanese war speeches, or whether this disclosure of a plot to repudiate the work of the Senate and House in restoring the oil reserves, safe in the ground, to the navy department, is one of the things that has alarmed his cautious chief, is a question which the White House does not choose to answer.

The fact is that the head of the navy department, after visiting the Elk Hills naval lands in company with oil company spokesmen and Admiral Rousseau, government receiver for the contested property, on Sept. 10, made a speech to the Petroleum Club of the town of Taft, California. In that speech he praised the patriotism of the oil company men, ridiculed the attacks made upon them, and declared that it was as essential that the oil fuel for the navy be above ground ready for immediate use in war, as that the ore for the making of guns be not lying in the ground when the crisis arrived. High-salaried representatives of Standard Oil, the Honolulu Oil Co., the Doheny interests and other oil concerns cheered loudly. Wilbur then repeated the hints he had given in his San Francisco speech on Sept. 5th, that war with Japan was always a possibility, and that the navy must be ready to defend the Pacific coast.

The Bakersfield Echo, which circulates thruout the Doheny kingdom of Kern county, hailed this pledge of oil-pumping, on the part of Coolidge's naval secretary, as a most reassuring utterance. It spoke of the "threatened" leases of Doheny and Standard Oil in the California fields, as though Wilbur had brushed aside the action of congress and the suits brought in the federal courts by the federal government to cancel these leases and punish the crime which led to them, about their signing. The administration had lined up with Doheny and Sinclair and Denby and Fall; the reserves would be pumped out, and all this nonsense about naval oil reserves would be a vaudeville joke. The policy of the navy for all time to come, in conservation began would be scrapped. Hurrah for Doheny and Rockefeller and Wilbur!!

Coolidge Canned in California.

But alas, in the same mail with the newspaper clipping bearing this song of jubilation from the oil fields, came a report from Gus J. Karger, veteran standpat correspondent in Washington for the Cincinnati Times-Star, which is owned by Charles P. Taft, brother of Bill Taft. Gus has been touring the west, seeking to find encouragement for the Coolidge management. He had reached San Francisco, and with a smaller audience than Wilbur's had sadly conveyed to news that the Coolidge managers in California concede that LaFollette would carry the state if the election were held at this time.

Pushing Towards War.

In his San Francisco speech, Wilbur remarked that "The navy is of particular importance to the Pacific coast not only because of the belief that the last act of the drama of civilization will not occur in and around the Pacific ocean, but because of the economic significance of the basing of the fleet upon the Pacific coast." He did not say when the "last acts" were due, but his hearers could almost hear the guns roar—and see the supply contracts signed!

Then, after a defense of the anti-Japanese immigration law, this delicately diplomatic statesman closed with the words: "It has been a great personal satisfaction for me to come down the coast with 14,000 sailors wearing the American uniform in ships adequate for their own protection and for the protection of our coasts, both east and west, from the aggression of any people influenced, as all people may be, by some extension of the mob spirit, some outburst of passion, or some real or fancied insult. There is nothing so cooling to a hot temper as a piece of cold steel. There is nothing so conducive to calm and cool deliberation as the contemplation of adequate means of defense of our opponent."

California is rather strong for world peace. It does not think there is immediate necessity for handling the oil reserves to Doheny. Wilbur has proved a political calamity of the first rank.

RUSSIA SUCCESSFUL IN POWER PROGRAM, SAYS U. S. EDITOR

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. Soviet Russia is successfully working out its hydro-electric power program, testified Harold V. Bozell, editor of the Electric World, who has just returned from an extensive European tour. Of the 30 big power stations called for in the program five are already being operated, said Mr. Bozell. Seven others are under construction.

The electrical editor says that firms selling power equipment to the Russian government are sure of their money. Most of the Soviet electrical purchases are made on a basis of 50 per cent down and the balance in five years.

KILL QUIZ ON CORRUPTION IN TREASURY DEPT.

Couzens, Fake Liberal, Backs Water

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Unless the program set for the investigation of the treasury department by Senator Couzens' committee, is upset, that inquiry will be a farce, and the biggest disclosures of fraud, graft and corruption known in the history of the country will be either prevented or delayed until after election day is safely past.

Ditch Heney.

That is the substance of the victory won by Secretary Mellon and President Coolidge thru the treachery of Senator King of Utah, corporation democrat, when King joined with Senators Ernst of Kentucky and Watson of Indiana in defeating the motion that the committee employ Francis J. Heney of California to direct the investigation.

Chairman Couzens and Sen. Jones of New Mexico, voted to employ the famous prosecutor of grafters and beef barons, and with King's help they would have been successful. Heney would have ripped the lid off the odoriferous treasury department in the midst of this presidential campaign. But King went over to the administration. He may get a job on the federal bench some day.

Soft Soap Mellon.

In place of Heney, the committee has employed Earl J. Davis, who was one of Harry Daugherty's assistants, to direct its search into the methods of Andy Mellon. Davis has two assistants, neither of whom has any apparent ability to handle the work. Mellon has been received by the committee in star chamber session, and he has been given a promise that none of the information as to personal income tax returns, which he will make available to its staff, will be made public unless fraud or gross irregularity is indicated.

It will be recalled that Couzens began, last winter, a dispute with Mellon over the Mellon tax scheme, and that finally he secured adoption in the senate of a resolution empowering his committee to investigate the methods of the income tax bureau. When he started to employ Heney to act as counsel for the committee, Jim Watson, then chairman, raised a row, and President Coolidge sent a message to congress declaring that illegal procedure in investigation of federal departments must stop. The senate stood pat, and finally Watson resigned as chairman of the committee, after blocking for many weeks a resolution which empowered the committee to employ counsel of its own choosing. Passage of this resolution was generally understood as meaning that the senate approved the employment of Heney to do the work. Then it was that Sen. King went over to Mellon, and, by securing a Harry Daugherty appointee as counsel, was able to make the inquiry a joke.

Clever Couzens.

Couzens delayed any action by his committee until the Michigan primary was over. Now he has held his executive session with Mellon, and is taking program in docile fashion. His questionaire addressed to Mellon, dealing with the personal income tax returns of the wealthier individuals who made returns in 1916 and since, will not be answered until after election day.

Meanwhile, Jim Watson's chief objective in his stubborn fight against the employment of Heney has been gained—the facts as to Mellon's connection with non-enforcement of the prohibition law and the payment of hundreds of millions of dollars in hush money by the bootleggers will not be revealed before the ballots are counted. Fifteen million women voters will not learn, before November 4, how much money was paid to Mellon's subordinates, and to his political henchmen and cronies, to turn loose the hundreds of thousands of barrels of whisky which have been illegally retailed during the past three years.

No, No One Does.

As Jim Watson said, in his last stand speech to the senate on this issue, the point that Heney was expected to bring out was that the prohibition law had not been enforced by Mellon. Watson admitted that the law had not been enforced, but pleaded that nobody expected it to be!

Pressure from either the progressives or from the democrats would even now embarrass the fake inquiry which has taken the place of the real one for which the senate twice voted almost unanimously.

Holy Smoke!.. Another!

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 23.—Parke Longworth, of Chicago, has filed petition as independent candidate for U. S. senator, it was announced at the office of Louis L. Emerson, secretary of state today.

ACTIVE SOCIALIST PARTY WORKER SCORES YELLOWS; NOW SUPPORTS TICKET OF FOSTER AND GITLOW

By CHARLOTTE F. JONES.

Editor of the DAILY WORKER.

Dear Comrade: Chester County, Pa., where I live is propably the most conservative, and perhaps the most reactionary county in the U. S. It is what Steffens said of Philadelphia, "corrupt and contented." I have undertaken the task of making it "red."

Way Back in 1910.

I joined the socialist party of Seattle, Wash., in 1910, and was a member until I went to California in 1917. I didn't join in California because the party was too "yellow." So I remained out of the movement, tho working as an individual, until I came back to Pennsylvania a year ago. I joined the socialist party of Pennsylvania and organized a branch in my town, feeling that I wanted to do some election work in this campaign. But when I attended the state convention last March, I was utterly astounded to hear men calling themselves socialists getting up and denouncing Lenin and the Russian government. A socialist making such remarks at a convention of the socialist party I belonged to in Seattle would have been mobbed. Such behaviour simply wouldn't have been tolerated. I could scarcely believe I was attending a socialist convention.

S. P. Conclave Final Blow.

I have been in a confused state to know what to do ever since. But the climax came when the socialist national convention endorsed LaFollette. As the only socialists in my county were working men, who would not run as a candidate on the ticket for fear of losing their jobs, I decided to be a candidate for the state legislature, as I wanted to put a ticket in the field and this would give me an opportunity to do public speaking, and persuaded another comrade, who is a shoemaker, to be another candidate for the legislature. By great difficulty I succeeded in getting a candidate for all but one vacancy.

To Support Communists.

But I am now in the most awkward position I was ever in; this is the first time since 1910 that I cannot appeal for votes for the whole socialist ticket. I simply cannot conscienciously acquiesce in the betrayal of the workers by supporting the presidential ticket, and I am not feeling very enthusiastic towards the candidates on the state and county tickets, because they are all supporting LaFollette and Wheeler and I intend to vote for Foster and Gitlow myself.

Echoes of Georgia "Revolt."

PARIS, Sept. 23.—The Czarist emigres who make their homes in unoccupied cellars and reasonably habitable sewers have grown tired sending out reports of a great successful rebellion in Georgia, and already reported in the DAILY WORKER, the so-called revolt was the work of professional bandits and a few crazy mensheviks who were deluded into believing that the League of Nations would be able to save them from the Red Army. Even the paid liars no longer have confidence in their propaganda.

It is now generally known that the British foreign office, which is all there is to the League of Nations hired the Czarist emigres to create all the trouble they could in Georgia.

Turkish officials deny that the Turkish government has given aid to the Georgian revolt.

Red Port on the Pacific Makes Best Record Since War

(By Rosta News Agency)

VLADIVOSTOK, Aug. 18. (By Mail.)—An official statement puts at over 34 million poods the cargo turnover of the Vladivostok port, of which over 30 millions were exported, during the first half of the current year. 2,320 foreign ships have visited the port during this period.

Such a turnover Vladivostok has not experienced since the world war. As for the small figures of foreign imports this is accounted for by the fact that goods have been brought to Vladivostok from Russia proper in an increased quantity and have partly ousted foreign competition.

Japanese Militarists Busy.

TOKIO, Sept. 22.—Plans were announced today by the Imperial Aviation Association for a Tokio-London flight soon. If army aviators and plans sought are not available, civilian flyers will be sent by public subscription.

THIRTEEN PICKETS IN UPHOLSTERERS' STRIKE ARRESTED

(By The Federated Press)

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Thirteen members of the upholsterers' union were arrested while picketing shops in the North End district where the union is striking to enforce sanitary union rules.

U. S. BUREAU OF EDUCATION TELLS AMERICAN FARMER HE IS RICH AND EDUCATED GENTLEMAN! HOORAY!

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—American farmers should all be rich, if the figures published by "School Life," official organ of the U. S. bureau of education, are correct.

"After 60 years of agricultural education, fostered by the national government and state agricultural colleges and experiment stations," says an article in its current issue, "great changes have been wrought.

"The American farmer today expends less than 20 per cent of the labor in producing the nine principal crops of the country that his predecessor expended in producing the same quantity of the same crops 50 years ago. He produces 2.3 times what the farmer of the United Kingdom produces, 2.5 times what the French farmer produces, and 6.5 times what the Italian farmer produces."

The statement sets forth the view that the American farmer has been transformed "from the toil calloused, broken laborer, of Carlyle's time, to the man of culture, not to be distinguished from the brain worker in bearing or in breadth of scholarship."

In short, the American farmer is an educated gentleman, slightly bankrupt but consoled by the reflection that he is efficiently piling up wealth for someone else.

SIX STRIKERS ARRESTED IN SILK WALKOUT

Eastern Textile Field Threatens Strike

(By The Federated Press)

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 23.—With strike clouds looming thruout the entire eastern textile field Paterson is the focus of attention as the scene of the first conflict.

The latest developments here include the arrest of six strikers for patrolling the sidewalks in front of the Expert Silk company in spite of an injunction against picketing issued the same day by Vice-Chancellor Lewis.

Hands Out the Bull.

The vice-chancellor insists to newspapermen that he is not opposed to peaceful picketing but the wording of his restraining order is aimed at that very practice. Members of the Associated Silk Workers' union are forbidden to walk in front of the factory and to ask strikebreakers to leave the employment of the firm. The injunction forbids strikers to appeal to strikebreakers either on the streets or at their homes.

Legal opposition is being offered thru the co-operation of the American Civil Liberties Union. The union is also conducting a vigorous local agitation for constitutional rights here. Robert Dunn, director of the union, and Charles Ervin, having aided in the fight. The injunction battle is not limited to the Expert Silk company. Five other manufacturers had already obtained temporary restraining orders and more are seeking the same assistance from the vice-chancellor. Hearings for permanent injunctions are coming up in a few days.

Five Dollars Each.

While the injunctions were being issued by Lewis eleven pickets were being fined five dollars each by Recorder Force. These pickets are the first to be tried out of 107 seized in mass arrests earlier in the strike and out on bail since then.

The Associated Silk Workers, however, seem confident of completing the victory begun by the winning over of many of the smaller shops. Market conditions are in the union's favor, its officers declare. There is a strong demand for low priced dress silks. Premiums of 25 cents a yard are being offered for spot deliveries of black satins and crepe satins. The New York Journal of Commerce, commenting on the demand for silk, admits that some of the larger manufacturers are considering a settlement with the workers and will be satisfied to concede a 15 per cent increase. The hitch comes over the union's demand for the two-loom system. The union insists on this demand to safeguard the workers from overspeeding and to take up the slack of unemployment.

Views of Our Readers

A Correction and . . . .

To the DAILY WORKER: In your issue of Sept. 6, 1924, under caption "The Views of Our Readers on Life, Labor, Industry, Politics," you publish a leiter signed Sam. G. Wallace, Derham, Minn. Let me correct the DAILY WORKER. Sam G. Wallace's P. O. address is Perham, Minn., and not Derham, Minn.

I lived at Dent, Minn., about nine miles from Perham and I used to read articles in the Perham Bulletin signed Sam G. Wallace in 1903 to 7. Last July I mailed sample copies of the DAILY WORKER to every one I could think of and I happened to send Sam. G. Wallace one. This paper is the best in the U. S. A. for the workers. I was glad to see his name come under my eye. It cost me two cents to send him the DAILY WORKER but look what it has done. It snatched him out of the old parties and put him into the Farmer-Labor Party.

The people of Ottertail County, Minn., can do no better than elect Sam. G. Wallace to the legislature.

This proves what Comrades can do by propaganda. Mail out your DAILY WORKERS occasionally to your acquaintances.

I am I am the guilty one who sent you that DAILY WORKER. I think propaganda is highly important, that is why I gave my last dollar to help start the DAILY WORKER. May its message cover America as it stoops down to whisper in labor's ears "Workers of the World unite! you have nothing to lose but your chains you have a wold to gain."

QUARTER OF MILLION DOLLARS PROFIT FOR 71 CORPORATIONS IN FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1924

By LELAND OLDS.

(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Jobs may come and jobs may go but profits pile up forever. This is the song the profiteers are humming after seeing the financial statements covering the first six months of 1924. Clear profits of $231,248,000 stand to the benefit of the common stockholders in 71 corporations as a result of the half year's operations, according to figures compiled by Dow, Jones & Co., publishers of the Wall Street Journal.

Over Eleven Percent.

These figures show that in spite of the severe depression which began in April, these 71 corporations presented their common stockholders with a return averaging 5.79 per cent on the par value of their holdings. At this rate the year's return would be in excess of 11 per cent.

The corporations chosen for comparison are in no sense the especially profitable ones. In fact the 19 railroads in the list include such carriers as the Boston & Maine which has operated at a loss since it was wrecked by J. P. Morgan and the Haven directors. The profits of these roads average far below those of the railroads of the country as a whole. The 71 companies, according to Dow, Jones & Co. were chosen indiscriminately and comprise all the important companies for which they have comparative records.

Reduction Slight.

The reduction in profits as compared with the first six months of 1923 is very slight considering that the first half of 1923 was a period of prosperity. In that period the 71 corporations reported profits totalling $250,929,000, or an average return of 6.39 per cent on their common stock. The comparative figures for the two years are:

	6 Months profit for Common Stock		Per Cent on Common
Industries	1924	1923	1924	1923
Steels	$55,197,000	$50,781,000	7.58	7.07
Oils	49,269,000	47,599,000	7.23	7.14
Railroads	2,525,000	2,241,000	0.23	0.21
Utilities	64,598,000	64,383,000	5.48	5.65
Automobiles	6,220,000	75,335,000	12.91	22.81
Copper	2,005,000	4,583,000	2.84	13.72
Motor accs	3,195,000	5,702,000	11.91	20.24
Stores	4,571,000	4,561,000	13.64	14.36
Totals	$231,248,000	$250,929,000	5.79	6.39

The 11 automobile companies in the list were almost wholly responsible for the fact that aggregate profits for 1924 were under those of 1923. Yet in spite of the drop of nearly $30,000,000 in their profits they showed nearly 14 per cent on their common stock in 6 months or at a rate approaching of 28 per cent for the year.

Higher Than 1923.

The seven steel companies and 12 oil companies show higher profits than in 1923. Both groups are showing their stockholders a return in excess of 14 per cent a year. In the case of the oil companies at least the true magnitude of the stockholder's return has been concealed by stock dividends.

Take for example the Standard Oil companies. The owner of a $100 share of Standard Oil of Indiana in 1912 now owns $9,000 worth of stock with out having invested an additional cent. Therefore a 7 per cent return for the half year really means a profit of 630 per cent on his investment. Similarly in the case of Standard Oil of New Jersey a half year's return of 7 per cent means 35 per cent on the original investment or an annual rate of 70 per cent.

With thousands of workers can't find a chance to earn a bare living for their families, the owners worry about nothing more than the size of next year's supertax.

Pittsburgh to Hold Carlson Meeting on Friday, Sept. 26th

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 23.—Oliver Carlson, member of the national executive committee of the Young Workers League, recently returned from the fourth congress of the Young Communist International, and the fifth congress of the Communist International, will speak under the auspices of the local Workers Party on Friday, Sept. 26, 8 p. m. sharp.

The meeting will be held in the Labor Lyceum, 35 Miller St., and Carlson, who is an excellent speaker, will adress the workers of Pittsburgh on the issues in the present election campaign.

All workers are urged to be present.

GENERAL CHANG'S TROOPS ARREST U. S. MISSIONARY

Suspected of Being a Wu Pei Fu Spy

PEKING, Sept. 23.—The Shanghai defenders are still holding their own while the Manchurian forces under General Chang are engaging the forces of Wu Pei Fu, in heavy fighting. Reports would show that so far the advantage is on the side of Chang.

The few ships, called a navy, that aided in the defense of Shanghai, have gone on a excursion, some say to join the enemy fleet. It is probable that a little money succeeded in convincing the commander that right was on the other side. However, the defaction of the fleet does not mean much.

Japan Backing Chang?

Reports that Japan is backing General Chang are persisting. In view of the fact that the United States government, Japan's keenest rival in the Pacific, is on the side of Wu Pei Fu, it would be reasonable to assume that Japan would see what use it could make of Chang.

According to a report from Mukden, Chang's troops arrested an American missionary bearing a passport signed by Wu Pei Fu. Chang is of the opinion that the missionary is a spy.

"What Price Glory."—A Review.

By SYLVAN A. POLLACK.

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

NEW YORK.—Of the new shows now playing in New York the biggest success is "What Price Glory," at the Plymouth Theatre, by Maxwell Anderson and Lawrence Stallings, the latter who was a member of the U. S. Marines during the late war in which he lost a leg fighting for democracy.

For a truthful portrayal of the A. E. F., "What Price Glory" is undoubtedly the best that the American theatre has ever given us on that subject. The mask is torn off and we see how the hunk of making the world safe for democracy actually works. We live with a company of U. S. marines during one of their engagements with the Germans, and war in all its reality is brought home to us, with the patriotic veneer missing. We see how the soldiers actually felt about the generals who were directing them from Paris, also what they think of war, before going into battle and also during the fighting.

Plain words are used thruout the play and the marines around whom the story is written talk like regular people, not like stage and story book heroes of the past, but just like the ordinary man would under the circumstances.

Around the war activities there has been written a very realistic love story which adds much to its flavor. All in all, it is a play that all class conscious workers will enjoy. Even the middle class audience seemed to enjoy it, altho according to the newspapers the gold star mothers are shocked by the stark realism of it.

175 TEXTILE WORKERS OUT IN FIGHT AGAINST CHANGE TO TWO LOOMS

MYSTIC, Conn., Sept. 23.—One hundred and seventy-five woolen mill workers are on strike against the Mystic Manufacturing Company, which seeks to increase each woolen weaver's task from one loom to two. The strike is under the direction of the Amalgamated Textile Workers' Union.

WALLACE, OLD GUARD SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE, JOINS MELLON AND HUGHES IN WAR ON RUSSIA

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has never forgiven Senator Brookhart of his own state, for making the farm co-operatives a national influence affecting the department. Moreover, Wallace is a tool of Mellon and Hughes in the anti-Russian conspiracy. Hence this official statement from Wallace:

"A study of the European demand for American cotton is to be made by Dr. A. B. Cox, agricultural economist of the U. S. department of agriculture. Dr. Cox will spend a year abroad, studying cotton marketing methods, supply, demand, and prices in England, Germany, France and Italy."

Soviet Russia has bought and paid for $20,000,000 worth of American cotton this year, and is the biggest customer for the American crop. Her demand for American cotton is increasing. Yet because of the Mellon-Hughes blockade of Russian enterprises, and because Senator Brookhart, who visited Russia last year, has told the lowa farmers that Russia should be brot into friendly relations with the United States, this official statement ignores the biggest European factor in our cotton export trade.

SOCIALISTS FEAR TO SPEAK ALONG WITH COMMUNISTS

S. P. Candidate Out for Foster and Gitlow

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 22.—A farmer-labor picnic was held at Bonnie Brae Park near Spring City, Pa., on Aug. 31, 1924. Leo M. Harkins of New Jersey, executive secretary of local Philadelphia of the socialist party, was invited to speak on the subject "Why LaFollette Should Be Elected," but when informed that one of the speakers would speak in favor of the Workers Party ticket, Harkins refused to speak. Darlington Hoopes, executive secretary of the socialist party of Pa., was also asked to speak and given an opportunity to sell literature, take subscriptions for the state paper, and make announcements, but did not attend the meeting; Hoopes did not even reply to the invitations sent him.

The meeting was held with the idea of preventing both the socialist and the Communist ticket to the voters, so that the workers and farmers could decide for themselves which ticket to support.

Wicks Speaks.

Comrade H. M. Wicks, of New York City, and a candidate for congress on the Workers Party ticket spoke in favor of the Workers Party ticket and made a wonderful speech on the historic origin, principles, management and control of all the parties. He held the audience spell-bound while addressing them, and he probably never had a more appreciative audience since there was not more than six people present who had ever heard a socialist or any kind of a radical speech.

Comrade Charlotte F. Jones, who is a candidate for the state legislature on the socialist party ticket, but who declared her intention of voting for Foster and Gitlow, spoke on conditions existing in Pennsylvania and Chester County.

There were about 200 people present, which was a good showing in view of the fact that there has never been any socialist or radical meetings held in Chester County, except a few socialist street meetings held in West Chester.

UPHOLSTERERS' BOSTON STRIKE BRINGS ARREST

Men Call On Communists for Speakers

By JAMES J. LACEY
(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—The general strike called by Local 37, Upholsterers' International Union has resulted in doubling the membership of the Local the second day of the strike. Out of 30, 27 are "struck" shops, only 12 of which were organized prior to the strike.

Over 500, that is, 80 per cent of those working at the trade have answered the strike call and the pickets are confident they will bring out the remainder before another day goes by. The largest shops are closed up tight leaving only the 3 and 4-man establishments to be reached by the pickets.

Ten Pickets Pinched.

Ten pickets under the leadership of J. Forman were arrested at the Peerless shop this morning at the instigation of one of the bosses. The pickets, to use their ownwords, "made a dance hall of the station house" and were almost immediately released. The bosses' efforts to intimidate the strikers proved unavailing—tonight saw pickets again at their post at this same factory.

The local papers have carefully kept out of sight the object of the strike—the 40-hour week and union recognition—the possibility of a break in the strikers' ranks thru separate agreements was played up to the limit. This is the rankest kind of treachery. The men out have determined to keep their ranks fast until a hundred per cent. Settlement has been secured on the basis of the demands presented.

Youth Are Majority.

The majority of the strikers are youths—lads in their early twenties—forced to work under indescribable conditions. Work shops in the highest degree unsanitary, the material used often the contents of matresses picked up on the dumps or secured when discarded by hospitals. Germ-laden and disease ridden material handled without any attempt at cleaning in dark, shops, exposed to fire hazards at high speed (efficiency production) for an nine-hour day and a fifty-hour week has brought the young workers to the point where they are ready to make a determined fight to end for all time these intolerable working conditions.

Their fighting spirit is excellent. Their indomitable courage and splendid solidarity is winning them aims all along the line and they have demonstrated that they will not let down till complete victory victory has been achieved. The attempt of some outsiders to foist "socialist" speakers on the strikers at one of their meetings was frustrated by the strikers themselves and they have requested the Workers Party to furnish them with speakers. John J. Ballam, the Communist candidate for governor here, and Robert Zelms will address the speakers tomorrow at their mass meeting.

No Overtime During Unemployment Period, Say N. Y. Clothiers

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The Joint Board of the Cloak, Skirt, Dress and Reefer Makers' Union, the largest New York unit of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, takes a strong stand against overtime while unemployment exists. The order declares that "All cloakmakers, dressmakers, skirtmakers and reefermakers are called upon not to work overtime and nights work is until all places are occupied in the shops. The union adopted this decision because there are still some unemployed in the industry. Control committees authorized by the union will visit all shops and such workers as will be found working at night will forfeit their jobs and others will be sent up to take their places."

LEGION HEAD OF U. S. EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT ATTACKS COMMUNISM

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—John J. Tigert, the American Legion promoter who was rewarded with the job of U. S. commissioner of education, publishes a boost for the national essay writing contests which the Legion is running. This year's contest was for the most effective statement on "Why Communism Is a Menace to Americanism." Tigert is delighted at the fact that school children can be led, by federal and Legion activity, to devote their young minds to "questions of practical national policy," during the formative years of their lives.

When President Harding followed his selection of the banker James J. Davis to be secretary of labor with the selection of a Kentucky legionnaire to direct the educational activities of the federal government, he was swamped with protests from the National Educational Association, the universities and the various associations of educators in the scientific and literary fields. All protests were brushed aside.

DANVILLE LABOR COMES TO AID OF UNION MUSICIANS

Theater Owners Locked Them Out

DANVILLE, Ill., Sept. 23.—Combined pressure of a strongly unionized movie public in Danville and of the allied theater unions is expected to bring the owners of the theaters and motion picture houses into a reasonable frame of mind toward the musicians' local which wants to talk contract with them.

All the theaters are playing without music due to a lockout by the managers when the union contract expired Aug. 31. The union musicians were willing to play pending negotiations if the contract were made retroactive. The managers refused and union rules of the American Federation of Musicians prohibit playing without a contract.

Issue Is Hours.

The chief issue is hours. The workers want a 5½ hour day instead of the present 6½ hour day. All rehearsals are donated by the musicians. No wage issues are involved, the scale for the past three seasons being satisfactory.

The audiences at the theaters are getting slim. Perhaps this is due to the fact that president Al Stuebe of the musicians is also president of the Danville Trades & Labor council. The movie operators union and the stage hands' locals are talking a solidarity strike if the employers refuse to talk shop with the musicians.

NEW YORK T.U.E.L. ORGANIZES SHOP MONEY CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The New York division of the T. U. E. L. at its conference held in the Workers' Hall, decided to set aside the two weeks from September 21 to October 6 as the period for the shop collections give for the campaign fund of the Workers Party.

The leagues are to hold individual conferences to strengthen the campaign committees, which have already been temporarily organized. Militants should watch the press carefully for the meeting date set by their league. The league conferences will also take up the elections of delegates to the full Workers Party Ratification Conference, to be held in the Yorkville Labor Temple, 243 E. 84th Street, Sunday, Sept. 28th at 2 p. m.

The problem of carrying the Workers Party campaign into the local unions will be an important issue for discussion. Special campaign committees will be organized in all the larger local unions. Resolutions favoring the Workers Party candidates must be introduced into the unions, and if possible the unions must be induced to make contributions to the Campaign fund.

All organizations and units should elect delegates to the Sept. 28th Conference at the Labor Temple.

Thought Himself a Hog Butcher.

Suit for divorce, charging "cruel and inhuman treatment" and citing occasions when her husband knocked her to the floor with his clenched fist, was filed here today against Edward F. Swift, Jr., son of the packer, by his young wife who, before her marriage, was Marion Atchison, belle of Atlanta, Ga.

The bill asks a property settlement and a suitable sum for Mrs. Swift's support.

The couple was married February 11, at Atlanta.

Bodies Recovered.

SCOTTSBURG, Ind., Sept. 23.—The bodies of Albert Davis, member of the Indiana national guard, and Jesse Shaefland were brought here today following their death by drowning when a rowboat upset in the Ohio river near Bethlehem.

REACTION RULES CANADIAN TRADE UNION CONGRESS

Communist Minority in Vigorous Fight

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

TORONTO, Sept. 23.—The fortieth convention of the Canadian Trade Union Congress was disappointing in the number of delegates that attended as well as the reactionary tone that dominated its proceeding under the dictatorship of the labor lieutenants that comprise the officialdom of the labor movement in Canada.

Despite the fact that the congress was held in Ontario, the industrial center of the Dominion, and the home of one-half of the locals in the international unions affiliated with the Trade Union Congress, only about 200 delegates attended. This was so disappointing that even the fossilized Tom Moore, president of the congress devoted some time to bewailing the lack of interest shown by Canadian unions in the work of the congress. One very good reason for this lack of interest is Mr. Tom Moore, a cheap Canadian edition of Sammy Gompers, Moscow vs. Amsterdam.

Practically every question that came up for discussion was settled not on its merits, but on the basis of Moscow versus Amsterdam. The only motions introduced that spelled progress were brought forward by the Communists, and the reactionaries used the tried and trusty methods of the American labor fakers in attacking them.

The method is to smear the supporters of the progressive resolutions with red, rave about the Union Jack and law and order and create a hysteria with the aid of vivid pictures of terror and destruction which would follow if the trade unionists listened to the policy of amalgamation and industrial unionism instead of craft unionism.

It is the same method employed by an American prosecuting attorney in appealing to a jury to send a Communist defendant to the penitentiary.

Squirting Red Fire.

The resolutions which caused the reactionary officialdom to bring on their containers of imaginary red fire, were those for amalgamation, a world trade union unity conference and autonomy for the Canadian trade union movement. In the work of poisoning the delegates, the fakers were aided by ex-radicals and officials of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, who denounced the "reds" after the fashion of Charles Evans Hughes and William J. Burns.

The executive attempted to conceal a telegram of greeting received from M. Tomski, chairman of the All-Russian Trade Union Congress, an organization with a membership of six million workers. Moore stoutly denied receipt of such a telegram, but when shoved into a corner finally produced the cable which read: "Greetings fortieth convention Trades and Labor Congress of Canada. For relentless struggle against reaction and exploitation and the emancipation of the workers of the world. Hail the unity of International Trade Unionism.—Tomski."

Even Mr. Brownlie, imported British faker, secretary of the British machinists and fraternal delegate to the congress used his position to attack the Communists. While Mr. Brownlie was thus performing for the Canadian capitalists and their labor faker allies, the British Trade Union Congress meeting in Hull, England, went on record for amalgamation.

Buck Was Right.

Brownlie, took occasion to state that Delegate Tim Buck, Communist, misrepresented the views of Purcell, chairman of the British Trade Union Congress on amalgamation. Comrade Buck declared that Purcell was for amalgamation, and correctly so, as Purcell's speeches at the British Trade Union Congress, reported in the London Daily Herald, prove. But what does a lie more or less mean to a labor faker?

This was the first Canadian convention at which a resolution came from the floor to exclude the Communists and isolate them from the trade union movement. The resolution was defeated despite a strong fight on the part of the reactionaries.

The motion for amalgamation and Canadian autonomy were debated for three hours and lost on a viva voce vote.

Fake progressives were used to good advantage by the officialdom in splitting the Communist following. One of these is Jimmy Simpson, secretary of the Canadian Labor Party. In order to draw Simpson's fangs, who only showed them in order to force the reactionaries to raise the ante, the officialdom placed Simpson on the administration slate for one of the vice-presidencies. This trick lined Simpson up with the administration and against the progressive forces led by the Communists.

Lewis' Agents Scab.

A resolution from Nova Scotia, denouncing officials of the Nova Scotia miners, appointed by John L. Lewis in place of the duly elected officers of the district because of their radical views was passed toward the close of the congress. The charge was made in the resolution that those Lewis tools, were getting union printing done in scab shops. In proof of their charges they showed copies of the last contract and also of the ballots sent out for the vote on the contract, the work being done in scab printing plants. It was also proved that the union officials are still getting their printing done in scab shops.

The best defense superters of John L. Lewis could make was that while Lewis could expel radical officials and appoint reactionaries in their place, he could not be held responsible for the acts of his appointees

The Communist Vote

Despite the clarity of the struggle between the Communists and the opposition and the fact that toward the end of the congress all issues were fought on the question of Moscow or Amsterdam, the election for officers of the Trade Union Congress showed gratifying results, in that Tim Buck, candidate for president against the bureaucrat, Tom Moore, received 44 votes against 156 for his opponent, and that Jack MacDonald, candidate for vice-president, was not eliminated until after the third ballot.

The reaction won at the congress, the victory fooled none, not even the victors. The lines were more clearly drawn than ever before and the international solidarity of labor, represented by the Red Internatonal of Labor Unions and the Communist International, forced its way to the congress floor despite the frenzied efforts of the labor lieutenants of capitalism to keep it out as they would like to keep out the Communists. The struggle between progress led by the Communists and reaction led by the present officialdom of the Canadian labor movement will go on until the Communists win. There can be no doubt about that.

LITERARY DIGEST'S STRAW BALLOT IS ONLY TEST OF PARASITE VOTE

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—When the reactionary Literary Digest was enlisted to conduct a straw vote, in order to influence the presidential election, the progressives investigated its methods, to learn what trick it would attempt. They find, first of all, that its list of voters to whom straw ballots are being sent, is made up of the "better" class. The names are taken from the lists of telephone subscribers and the lists of owners of automobiles.

The editors of the most conspicuous anti-labor weekly in the United States are aware that the bulk of the exploited wage workers in the industrial towns cannot afford to have telephones in their homes, nor do they have automobiles. By excluding this lower half in the economic scale, the poll will represent the views of such part of the more fortunate citizens as care to risk their own jobs or business by disclosing to a big business publication, weeks in advance, the way they intend to vote. The result is a Coolidge propaganda enterprise.

MILITANTS FIGHT LABOR FAKERS IN NEW SOUTH WALES

Demand Something More Than Lip-Service

By W. FRANCIS AHERN.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

SYDNEY, New South Wales, Sept 23.—In New South Wales the political and industrial wings of the Labor party are drifting toward a break. The issue is whether the Labor party is to function as a reform party or swing to the left on definite socialist lines.

Two years ago the Australian Labor party adopted as its objective the socialization of production and exchange. Up-to-date, nothing has been done save to re-affirm this at annual conferences.

Militants Expelled.

The militants in the Labor party, who desired to vitalize the objective have been gradually hedged out of responsible positions in the Labor executive, and in a number of cases expelled.

Many Labor politicians give scant publicity to the party's objective, and when campaigning at election time explain that it really doesn't mean anything. This is done to catch middle-class votes.

A healthy section of the Labor movement demands something more than lip service to advance socialization. This section is getting stronger. Some idea of the strength of this militant section can be gathered from the fact that during July at a trade union congress, held at Sydney, a motion was carried demanding the removal from office of the present Labor parliamentary leader and the appointments of a leader with enough backbone to keep the Labor objective in the forefront of the movement's activities.

Spreading Everywhere.

While the trouble is confined to the New South Wales branch of the Labor party, there are signs that it is beginning to spread to the other states. The militant section comprises the industrial wing of the party, which provides the bulk of the finance for the party and the leading speakers and campaigners. The next few months should mark important developments in the situation.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. Coolidge on Communism

In his address before the Holy Name Society, the Sphinx of the Potomac lived up to his reputation. Everyone expected Mr. Coolidge to utilize the occasion of addressing a great number of Catholics by denouncing the Klan in name.

But "Cautious Cal" continued his policy of assuming that silence is wisdom. In the case of the president, however, silence has been the badge of cowardice. Instead of rising to the occasion and taking a position on so pressing a problem, Mr. Coolidge hid himself behind a vicious poison gas screen. The president, posing as a man endowed with the courage of conviction, dared not assail the Klan for fear of losing votes. At the same time the Boston strikebreaker would not sacrifice the opportunity to coin prejudice and ignorance into political capital. Mr. Coolidge made a determined but unfounded attack on Communism. The effort was directed at LaFollette.

Of course, Mr. LaFollette is as much opposed to the abolition of the private ownership of the means of production and exchange as is Mr. Coolidge. The president shot his bolt when he declared: "To attempt to deal with persons or with property in a Communistic or socialistic way is to deny what seems to me to be a plain fact." Were it not for the fact that Mr. Coolidge had had years of experience in denying plain facts, we would be prone to swear volleys at him.

When Coolidge speaks of the plain facts, he has in mind the plainest fact that the Communists aim to end the rights and privileges of economic exploitation and political subjugation now in the hands of the employing class whose champion he is. When the president declares that "We live in an impatient age," he is again an astronomical distance from the truth. No one knows better than Coolidge that the working and farming masses of the United States have been entirely too patient with the machinations and crimes of the exploiting class.

The Coolidge attack on Communism is to be welcomed. It indicates, for a change and in a clear manner, the plain fact that the dynamic forces in the ranks of our ruling class are fully aware that the most dangerous force to their tyranny is the growing power of the Communist movement the world over.

"The Great Silent Vote"

Returning from his first western trip, the democratic standard bearer, John W. Davis, tells the world that he is surely going to get the "great silent vote" and the presidency.

It is customary for all capitalist presidential candidates to declare themselves elected before the balloting day has arrived. Mr. Davis will certainly have to make many declarations in order to keep up his near-fighting spirit. This boast of Davis reminds one of the school boy whistling to keep up courage.

Everyone knows that if it were not for the solid tier of southern states, the democratic party would be off the political map. Many cautious observers who have had the opportunity to look into the prevailing political situation contend that Mr. B. Parker in the days of Roosevelt. No super-Davis will make an even poorer run than did Alton abundance of loose talk about graft and corruption, no obviously artificial attempt to talk of common honesty, can help Mr. Davis. The difference between Mr. Davis and Mr. Coolidge insofar as the fundamental principles involved in the present campaign are concerned is the difference between pitch black and very black.

The only possible chance of victory for Mr. Davis lies in a union of the darkest forces of the democratic and republican camps in the event of the election being thrown into congress. Even under these conditions, the hope of Davis lies in a possible conjecture. At any rate, it is only an overworked imagination that can lead one to believe that the democratic party stands a chance in the present election campaign.

We do admit, however, that a large portion, an altogether too large portion, of the Davis vote will be a silent vote. Under conditions in which the jobs of the workers are owned to a large extent, by the supporters of Mr. Davis, at a time when the press and the schools and the countless organs of misinformation are controlled by the backers of Mr. Davis, it is inevitable that many popular votes will be cast for the same Davis without really indicating genuine support or intelligent acceptance of his policies.

Communist Mobilization

A leading oracle of big business is now circularizing the biggest employers of the country with a statement that the election outlook sums itself up in: "Coolidge or an election by the House." This agency of big business has a reputation for accuracy and near-accuracy in its financial and political estimates.

Under these circumstances, it becomes increasing important that the working men and poor farmers should mobilize their maximum forces for concerted action of defense and offense against the plans of aggression now being laid by the employing class. Today there is only one way in which working class mobilization can be achieved most effectively. In this campaign effective working class mobilization can translate itself only into Communist mobilization.

In a survey made by the Magazine of Wall Street, regarding the opinions of "leading citizens" as to the business policies, in other words as to the attitudes of the three candidates of capitalism towards the present system, we learn that "the leaders of each of the three parties are alive to the needs of business, however much their methods may differ." In this symposium it is especially interesting to note that William H. Johnstone, who boasts of being a director in one of the largest commercial banks and supervising extensive real estate and other investments, proudly declares that "LaFollette's election would make for better business."

Better business means higher profits. Higher profits under the present domestic and international economic conditions, can come only with lower wages. Lower wages with the present temper and mood of the working masses in the United States, can come only thru the employing class waging a fierce offensive against the workers thruout the country. This means a declaration of war upon the workers' organizations and the slight gains won by the workingmen in the last short-lived prosperity spurt. This means that the workingmen must mobilize themselves as a class in self-defense.

No doubt the election of Coolidge would be a signal for a renewed and redoubled vigorous offensive against the organizations of the workers and poor farmers. There is every likelihood that if the election should prove a stalemate or a deadlock at the ballot box, that the reactionary forces dominating all the capitalist organizations would unite for a "safe and sane" ticket. Such a union would equally be a signal for an attack on the working class. In these circumstances, it would be the advanced guard of the workers, the Communists, who would be chosen for the first assault, which would be only a prelude to a general attack on the working class. What better reason could the workers and farmers want for rallying to the support of the Workers Party and its Communist program and candidates in the campaign?

Shop Collections

That the rank and file of the labor unions are taking a growing interest in the candidacy of William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow, despite the flood of bourgeois propaganda that flows from the headquarters of LaFollette and his labor henchmen, is demonstrated by the very interesting meeting that took place in New York last week under the auspices of the eastern division of the Trade Union Educational League.

It was a meeting of unofficial representatives of several unions located in New York. The officials of most of the unions represented had already pledged their organizations to the LaFollette personal campaign for the presidency, but evidently they spoke very much for themselves, no doubt being of the opinion that the rank and file had no thoughts worthy of consideration.

The New York meeting, however, proves that rank and file members, despite the heavy pressure brought to bear on them by the traitorous leaders who deserted the standard of independent working class political action for the banner of the bourgeois LaFollette, have not only decided to remain true to their principles but have also decided to back up those principles with action. And as money makes the mare go, money also supplies political campaigns with the sinews of war. Money talks. So the meeting of New York trade union militants pledged $2,700 to the Foster-Gitlow campaign fund.

Each industrial group pledged a certain amount of this total. Funds will be collected in the shops and those who are disgusted with the action of their leaders in deserting the class struggle on the political field will have the opportunity of supporting the only ticket that stands for the abolition of capitalism and the establishment of a Workers' and Farmers' government—the Workers Party.

The action of the New York comrades deserves the honor of emulation by left wing trade unionists in other cities.

Now that Calvin Coolidge has made his bid for the Catholic vote by denouncing socialism before the Holy Name Society, his next speech should be delivered before the national convention of the Ku Klux Klan, stressing the necessity for more little red school houses.

Workers Party Issues Statement Against Capitalist Dictatorship

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party has issued a statement declaring that the present government of the United States is a dictatorship of the capitalists and that this dictatorship will continue whether Coolidge, Davis or LaFollette is elected president. The statement calls upon the workers to rally behind the Communist candidates, Foster and Gitlow, to carry on the fight against this dictatorship and to establish a rule of the Workers and Farmers of the United States.

The statement which will be issued in pamphlet form and distributed in millions of copies follows.

Workers Rule Or Capitalist Dictatorship.

Shall We have a Government of, for, and by the Capitalists, or a Government of, for, and by the Workers and Farmers?

THE CAPITALIST DICTATORSHIP.

The present government of the United States is a dictatorship of the capitalists. The capitalists who own the industries and run them for their profit also own the government and use it to maintain their special privileges and to secure greater profits for themselves.

Crushing the Workers.

Every worker who things must recognize that this capitalist dictatorship rules the country. On whose side of the struggle does the government appear when the workers go on strike to secure better wages and working conditions for themselves?

The courts, the police, the soldiers are always on the side of the employers and against the striking workers. These institutions of the government are part of the machinery for protecting the capitalists' profits and to keep the workers from securing a higher standard of living.

One of the things which endears President Coolidge to the capitalists is because he is credited with breaking the policemen's strike in Boston. President Harding tried to break the miners' strike in 1922, when he filled the mines with militia sent at his call by the state governors. President Wilson used the courts, injunctions and soldiers against the miners and steel workers in the great strikes of 1919. President Roosevelt threatened the anthracite miners with the iron fist of the government. President Cleveland sent federal soldiers to break the Pullman strike.

What has been true of the national government is equally true of the state and local government. All are part of the capitalist dictatorship which keeps the workers under the heel of the capitalist bosses.

In every great struggle between the workers and the capitalists, whether the republican or democratic party has been in power, the government has been on the side of the capitalists and against the workers.

Grabbing Profits for the Capitalists.

The capitalists do not only use the government to put down the workers when they fight for a higher standard of living. They also use it directly to secure greater profits for themselves.

The whole history of the government of the United States is one story of graft and corruption. Land steals, railroad land grant steals, forest and timber steals, oil steals, these are written upon almost every page of the history of this country. The graft and corruption exposed in the Teapot Dome investigation is only the most recent example of the way the capitalists use the government to enrich themselves by looting the nation.

This direct looting of the natural resources of the country is not the only way in which the capitalists use the government to secure the billions upon which the workers pay them tribute. Tariff laws, banking laws, shipping laws, tax laws are all so framed by the capitalist dictatorship as to help the capitalists add to their enormous fortunes at the expense of the workers.

Coolidge, Davis, LaFollette and the Capitalist Dictatorship.

The capitalist dictatorship will rule and use its power to crush the workers as long as the capitalist system of private ownership of industry exists. So long as the capitalists have in their grip the tremendous economic power which their ownership and control of the machinery of production gives them, they will control the government and maintain their dictatorship, whether a Coolidge, Davis or LaFollette is in power.

Coolidge and Davis are the candidates of the parties which have maintained the capitalist dictatorship in the past. LaFollette, while he denounces the control of the government by the privileged class, is a supporter of the capitalist system of private ownership of industry and operation of profit. He supports the the system which gives the capitalists the power to enforce their dictatorship and in supporting and upholding the economic system which makes the capitalist dictatorship possible he is supporting and upholding that dictatorship.

Fighting the Capitalist Dictatorship.

There is only one way in which the capitalist dictatorship which is crushing down the workers and robbing them of the right to enjoy the product of their work can be fought. The workers must organize as a class to fight against capitalist ownership of industry and for workers' ownership and control.

The capitalist dictatorship expresses the class interests of the capitalists. The capitalists are able to beat the workers into submission because the workers do not fight as a class, do not unite their power on the basis of their economic interests and unitedly fight the capitalist rule.

The capitalists have common interests. They want to maintain their ownership of industry and to compel the workers to accept the lowest wages and worst working conditions, so that the capitalist profits will grow and they can live in luxury and splendor and increase their swollen fortunes.

The workers have common interests, too. They want more wages, shorter hours, better working conditions, a higher standard of life. They can secure these only at the expense of the capitalists. They can make certain that they will have these only if they unite their power and abolish the capitalist ownership of industry and operation for capitalist profits.

Coolidge won't fight in the interest of the workers. Davis won't fight in the interest of the workers. LaFollette is for the capitalist system and won't and can't fight in the interest of the workers.

The only party with a program for the workers' rule and abolition of the capitalist system is the Workers (Communist) Party. The only candidates who represent the workers' interest in this election are Foster and Gitlow, the Communist candidates.

The Workers' and Farmers' Government.

The Workers Party is fighting for a workers and farmers government thru which the workers will rule and use the government in their interest. It calls upon those workers who wish to fight the capitalist dictatorship to vote for its candidates as a demonstration of their support.

The workers' and farmers' government will use its power in the interest of the workers. The courts, injunctions, police and soldiers will be on the side of the workers and against the capitalists. The workers and farmers government will end the basis of the capitalist dictatorship, the private ownership of industry, by taking the industries for the workers and establishing workers' control.

Let us fight as a class.

Workers, farmers stop supporting the candidates of your class enemies.

Coolidge, Davis, LaFollette are all the representatives of the capitalist system which robs you and oppresses you.

Take your stand in support of your interests. Support Foster and Gitlow, the Communist candidates.

Down with the capitalist dictatorship.

Forward to the workers and farmers government.

"NO MORE IMPERIALIST WARS," SAY TELEGRAMS FROM WORKERS TO THE COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL

Demonstrations and gatherings of workers were held thruout Russia on the Tenth Anniversary of War. The demonstrations were very different in tone and character from those of capitalist countries.

The United States of Soviet Russia information sub-section of the Agitprop of the Comintern sent to the DAILY WORKER the following copies of the telegrams and greetings received by the Third (Communist) International from the comrades at these gatherings. We print them in full for the inspiring message they contain to the workers of America, and everywhere that workers are still subject to capitalist wars.

Send Greeting on Opening of Newly Constructed Bridge.

The workers engaged in the erection of the bridge across the Moskva river on verst 15-16 of the Moscow-Kursk Railway, in celebrating their victory by opening the new bridge across the Moskva river erected by proletarian efforts, send their warm greetings to the headquarters of the proletarian world revolution, the Third Communist International. We, the workers who built the bridge, thinking that this structure constitutes a stage towards the socialist order, are naming it "The Comintern Bridge." We believe in the inevitability of the proletarian world revolution, we know that only in a Soviet Republic, created by proletarian efforts, such bridges represent real assets to the proletariat. Let the capitalists of other countries jeer at our Union of Soviet Republics, let them vociferate that we are engaged in wrecking and pulling down everything that comes into our hands. Yes! we do pull down everything that is obsolete and rotten, everything that comes from the bourgeoisie, while engaged in our own proletarian constructive work. We are strong. Let the slave-drivers know how great our force is. We shall indicate the path for a new system where labor will be the master of the world.

Long live the international proletarian republic.

Long live the leaders of the Third Communist International.

Long live revolutionary trade unionism.

GURNOV, Chariman.
FEDOROV, Secretary.

Will Fight Until Capitalist Domination Is Abolished.

Greetings to the Militant Headquarters of World Revolution, the Third Communist International.

A crowded mass meeting of trade union members, red army delegates, Young Communist Leagues, the toiling peasantry and the cossacks of the district of Kizliar, on the tenth anniversary of the imperialist world war:

1. Sends greetings to the world headquarters of Communist revolution, the Third Communist International.

2. Expresses its profound hatred to the originators of the world war and their spporters, the social-democrats, the leaders of the yellow Second International and the betrayers of the working class.

Only Communism Will End Warfare.

3. Expresses its profound conviction that the only organization capable of averting the inevitable new war is the Third Communist International, the leader of the world proletariat.

4. On being called upon by the militant headquarters of the world Communist revolution, we shall all, like one man, throw ourselves into the fight against world capitalism, never laying aside our rifles until bourgeois domination shall have been abolished thruout the globe.

Long live the Communist International and its leaders!

FIRSOV, Chairman of the meeting,
Khavrenko, Responsible Secretary of the Local Committee of R. C. P.

The October Military Camp of the Moscow Garrison.

To the Executive Committee of the Communist International:

The Third Conference of Party Members of the Moscow Military District, meeting at a moment when the proletarian masses thruout the world are demonstrating their readiness to take up the fight against the menace of new imperialist wars, declares that the only reliable means of putting an end to all war it the victory of the proletarian revolution thruout the world. The whole energy of all the Party organizations of our District is directed towards strengthening the might of the Red Army, the reliable bulwark of the Communist International.

At the first call of the Comintern, the Red Army is ready to take up the fight against militant world imperialism, for the abolition of all wars, and to bring about socialism and real brotherhood among nations.

For Presidium of the Third Conference of Party Members of the Moscow Military District.

Unite the Toilers of the World.

A meeting of workers and peasants of the hamlet of Khartsiz in the district of Stalin, sends fraternal greetings to the World Headquarters of Revolution. We hail the work of the Comintern in uniting the toiling and oppressed of the world, we believe that the union of the toilers with the Comintern affords the only guarantee of the liquidation of world wars and of the restoration of the brotherhood of nations thruout the world. Long live the Third Communist International, long live the world union of the toilers and everlasting peace among the nations.

SOKOLINSKY, Secretary of the Communist Nucleus.

An extensive non-party conference of the parish of Kamishin in the district of Kamishin in the province of Saratov, expresses its profound gratitude for the timely protest against fratricidal wars which was expressed by the Comintern in the manifesto adopted at its last congress. We declare ourselves ready to take up the defence of the toilers thruout the world. Down with imperialist war. Long live our vanguard, the Third Communist International. Long live the international solidarity of workers and peasants.

TERENTYEV, Chairman of the Conference.

Agricultural Workers Send Curses to Betrayers of Workers.

The agricultural laborers of the Soviet estate "The Red Dawn Commune," and the peasants of the parish of Stanovo in the district of Vassilyevsk, on the tenth anniversary of the imperialist war, in protesting against all capitalist wars, send their curses to the betrayers of the working class and ask you to inform their brothers in foreign lands that at any moment they should be ready to resist the evil designs of the enemies of free Russia, and to take up the fight for the emancipation of the toilers thruout the world.

Long live the Third International.

BAKULIN, Chairman of the meeting.

wake them from their stupor. They must read the DAIL YWORKER."

The vote is encouraging. It shows that there is a good field for consistent propaganda. It proves to us how much can be done thru a consistent propaganda directed to the workshops.

More Workers Are Needed.

Any comrade or sympathizer who has one or two hours to spare during the morning or afternoon, should get in touch with Martin Abern, local secretary, Workers Party, at the district office, 166 W. Washington St., phone State 7985, or come to the DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., and sign up.

The few comrades who have been going out since the straw ballot vote was first started find the work interesting and instructive. They have kept right on the job every day. But we need many more and the more we get the better the results. There are only a few days left in this campaign and we must work hard if we want to get worthwhile results. We should get at least 50 comrades to visit each shop. We now only have ten. Get busy!

COMMUNISTS ON ILLINOIS BALLOT

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

DON Chafin, leading West Va. democrat, backer of John W. Davis, at the Madison Square convention, and gunman extraordinary for the scab coal operators of that state, is under indictment on a bribery and bootlegging charge. How Mr. Chafin raved when the organizers of the United Mine Workers went into Logan county to organize the miners! Not alone did he rave, but his guns barked and killed. In the Don's opinion, it was a violation of the law to organize miners. It might breed lawlessness. That was Chafin's monopoly. Like most propagandists for law observance, Chafin himself is the worst offender, when it pays to violate the law.

JOHN Spargo evidently thot he had not plumbed the depths of human infamy when he deserted the socialist movement during the war and rallied to the side of the capitalists, helping them with voice and pen to send the young manhood of America to the battlefields of Europe. The renegade Spargo has a fertile mind when it comes to devising new methods to expose himself as a first class Judas. His latest contribution to the history of his treason to the working-class movement is his endorsement of Calvin Coolidge for the presidency. Spargo until now, lived on the offal thrown by the capitalists to their yellow socialist servants during the war. Perhaps the stomach is sending messages to the brain demanding succor. There is no other political party in the field filthy enough to take this cur unto itself, but the G. O. P. It is welcome to him.

CALVIN Coolidge, the Presbyterian president, felt quite at home addressing the Holy Name Society in Washington. He denounced socialism and Communism to his heart's content and no doubt, to the satisfaction of his audience. How little difference religion makes to the ruling class and their servants? The Presbyterian Coolidge recognizes the Catholic church as a powerful supporter of the capitalist system and in order to maintain friendly relations with it, he is willing to run the risk of losing some Ku Klux Klan votes. But candy kid knows that the Klan votes anybody else to vote for, all the other candidates having already said nasty things to them.

PARSON Hight of Mt. Vernon, Illinois, who contracted the habit of dosing people with arsenic, was once a race track tout and horse jockey. He was then living a life of sin and when he attended a revival meeting it was to scoff and not to pray. But one evening while alone in a field he was seized with a strange exultation and he knew from that moment that all his sins were washed away and he belonged to the Lord. We have an idea that his dead wife and Wilford Sweetin, the dead husband of his sweetheart, lived to wish that they the Lord had sent him an apoplectic strike instead of a pail of white wash for his black soul. But "God works in strange ways His wonders to perform."

SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS ADDED FOR FOSTER-GITLOW MASS RALLY HERE

The Freiheit Singing Society, the Mandolin Orchestra and the Young Workers League Orchestra are going to be special features at the William Z. Foster-Benjamin Gitlow election mass meeting on Sunday, October the 12th, at 2:30 p. m. at Ashland Auditorium.

These added attractions ought to bring additional hundreds to the Ashland Auditorium, adding as they will much revolutionary spirit and ardor to the intellectual treat to be given them by the candidate for president.

The Freiheit Singing Society and its Mandolin Orchestra are known thruout the city and everyone most certainly greets with pleasure the announcement that they will be on hand at the October 12th gathering.

The Young Workers League orchestra is coming along finely and is one of the prides of the Chicago League.

HUTCHENSON IN AUTOCRAT RULE AT CONVENTION

Carpenters Object to One Man Sway

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 24.—Open dissatisfaction is developing among rank and file delegates to the convention of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners over the autocratic ruling of the convention chairman who is also president of the organization, William L. Hutchenson.

Many of the delegates are openly calling him a czar, and are talking of nominating an opposition slate to that of the administration, while disgust with bureaucratic ruling rises everywhere.

Shuts Off Discussion.

An example of Hutchenson's rulings was seen today when the committee on rules reported. It was impossible to hear the report since the chairman spoke in an indistinct voice. One of the points he read was that there should not be any discussion of political questions on the floor of the convention. Hutcheson asked of there were any objections, and then, in spite of the fact that delegates rose to get the floor for discussion, he announced that the report was accepted.

Another autocratic move was made when Hutcheson appointed from the chair the committees to take up the reports made by the various officers, instead of having them elected from the floor.

Much comment has been aroused by the report of the general president for the four years ending June 30, 1924. There is not a single word said about the necessity of amalgamating building trades unions, yet, the right out of nineteen printed pages of the report are consumed with the history of the jurisdictional dispute as to the right of the Brotherhood to have jurisdictional over "metal trim."

The only possible note of progress in the report is the announcement that most of the membrs of the Amalgamated Society of Woodworkers, an English union with branches in all Anglo-Saxon countries, had finally joined the Brotherhood. This was accomplished not because of any particular desire on the part of the Brotherhood officials to consolidate the strength of the workers in the trade, but merely because it meant more dues coming into the general headquarters.

Amalgamation Coming Up.

A spirited discussion is expected when the proposal of amalgamation of the building trades unions, one of the most important resolutions to be presented by the militants at the convention, comes on the floor.

News boys selling the DAILY WORKER in front of the convention hall have been threatened with a beating for selling the paper. One of them, who wore long pants, was thrown off the sidewalks and forced to discontinue selling the DAILY; the other newsie was saved by his youth. When Hutcheson was approached by the youngster, and asked to buy the paper, the newsie was shoved off the sidewalk and threatened by the president of the union.

The DAILY WORKER will, however, not only continue to print reports of the convention, but will go on with the sale of the paper to the delegates.

WORKERS PARTY OF MONTANA WILL HAVE FOSTER ON BALLOT

BUTTE, Montana, Sept. 24.—The Workers Party of Montana will hold a mass convention tomorrow in order to comply with the legal requirements for putting the Communist ticket for president and vice-president on the ballot in this state in the coming elections. The following call has been issued by Ben Greenberg in behalf of the Workers Party of Montana:

"To all members of the Workers Party in Montana:

"Upon the authority of William Z. Foster, national chairman of the Workers Party of America, I am instructed to call a mass convention of all members of the Workers Party in the State of Montana. This convention will have as its purpose:

"1. The organization of a state branch of the Workers Party.

"2. The election of a state secretary and executive committee.

"3. The nomination of presidential electors.

"The convention will be held on September 25, at 8. p. m., at Butte, Montana."

GITLOW AT THE ARENA GARDENS DETROIT, MICH.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 24.—Benjamin Gitlow, here on his coast-to-coast campaign tour for the Workers' Party Foster-Gitlow ticket, will speak in a packed Arena Gardens at 2 p. m. Sunday, clarifying the issues on which the Workers Party will enter the elections in many states in November.

He comes here eight days after a Workers Party state convention, in Detroit, qualified William Z. Foster and Gitlow for a place on the ballots in Michigan.

Expect Thousands At Rally.

Gitlow has spread the appeal for a workers' and farmers' government far and wide thru Coolidge's New England, where William M. Butler, millionaire chairman of the republican national committee, as the director of textile companies, hires thugs and spies to war against the workers' organizations, according to exposures published in the DAILY WORKER. In Detroit, Gitlow will speak to thousands of men, women and children in the hall where the Lenin memorial meeting was held and where in the past the workers have gathered to cheer William B. Haywood, Max Eastman, Foster, Arturo Giovanitti and others. The Arena Gardens has been the scene of Detroit's great May Day celebrations. It will be full to the last row for Gitlow.

The Workers Party of Detroit and the Young Workers League have appealed especially to trade unionists to attend the Gitlow meetings. The size of the hall will permit thousands to hear directly from the party's vice-presidential candidate the reasons why the workers should vote for Foster, Gitlow and the party candidates for state officers. The party herewith extends a special invitation to all delegates who are still in Detroit after attending the convention of the International Association of Machinists.

Just Here From East.

Gitlow in the East addressed striking textile workers in New England and New Jersey and spoke to thousands of members of the United Mine Workers and their wives in Pennsylvania. He will find Detroit, the automobile center, the open shop stronghold of the United States. But it is apparent in advance that the response that will be given to his menace will prove the labor movement is not dead here and the class struggle not forgotten.

He is expected to attack the republican and democratic parties and nominees and attack especially the tactics of the conference for progressive political action, for the reason that the two old parties made no promises to labor, whereas the LaFollette movement, being founded on promises to labor, amounts to a gigantic betrayal. He is expected in this connection to

PETITIONS ARE SUBMITTED FOR FOSTER-GITLOW

Miners Disappointed with "Bob's" Hokum

The class conscious workers of Illinois will be able to cast their ballots in the coming elections for William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow, Communist candidates for president and vice-president of the United States on the Workers Party ticket.

This announcement was made today at the district office of the Workers Party. Arne Swabeck, district organizer, is in Springfield today filing petitions with L. M. Emerson, secretary of state for Illinois.

File 3,629 Names.

The only 1,000 signatures are required in this state to place presidential electors on the ballot, the party members gathered 3,629 for good measure.

The success of the party in putting the Communist candidates on the ballot in this state makes Illinois the seventh state to qualify.

Arne Swabeck stated to the DAILY WORKER reporter that his recent tour thru the mining region in Illinois convinced him that the miners were disgusted with the two old parties and keenly disappointed with the failure of the LaFollette movement to tackle the unemployment problem, which is the most burning issue confronting the miners today.

"I have addressed scores of meetings," said Swabeck, "and talked personally to hundreds of miners. They feel that the capitalist parties have no interest in their fate except to use them as voting cattle on election day. The LaFollette movement is little different from the two old parties of Wall Street in their opinion.

For Workers Alone.

"The Workers Party alone takes up the problems of the workers and makes those problems its only consideration. The Workers Party is not concerned with the welfare of the capitalists. Its object is to organize the workers for the crushing of the capitalist class politically and the overthrow of their system. The Workers Party is not a vote-catching machine. It frankly tells the workers that the social revolution will not be accomplished inside the halls of congress, but must be the act of the working masses.

"The Workers Party goes before the toiling masses in Illinois and all over the country, with the slogan of a workers' and farmers' government, telling the exploited proletariat that there can be no solution of their problems until they overthrow the capitalist system and establish the rule of the workers and farmers on the ruins of the capitalist state.

"Our candidates, William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow are both union men who have devoted their lives to the struggles for the building up of the power of the workers and for the betterment of their working conditions. Foster and Gitlow have seen the inside of prisons for their loyalty to the cause of labor.

Care Not For Labor.

"None of the other candidates are union men or have anything but contempt for union labor except when they can use it in order to get into office. This is as true of the LaFollette movement as of the democratic and republic parties. Foster and Gitlow are the only two candidates appealing to the masses for support in this election who are not lawyers and lackeys of the ruling class."

Comrade Swabeck, declared that the machinery for waging an effective campaign was being built up in the district.

GARY STEEL WORKERS IN MEETING TONIGHT AT THE TURNER HALL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GARY, Ind., Sept. 24.—The mass meeting of the steel workers here Thursday night at Turner Hall, 14th and Washington, under the auspices of the American Federation of Labor, assumes special significance in view of the recent announcement of the Steel Trust eliminating the "Pittsburgh plus" system.

The steel workers, laboring under a ten-hour day at low, non-union wages, have attempted several times recently, under the handicap of the

VOLUNTEERS! HELP TAKE STRAW VOTE AT CHICAGO'S FACTORIES

Today the DAILY WORKER squad will cover two large industrial plants and volunteers are urgently needed, for the noon-hour and the afternoon squad.

In the early morning a group of straw ballot volunteers will visit the Crane Company, a machine manufacturing plant, at Kedzie and 39th St., employing from 5,000 to 6,000 men and stretching fully across three sqare blocks. They will get there at 7 a. m. when the men begin to work and hand the ballots out. At 3 in the afternoon another group will return to collect the ballots. Come and help in the afternoon shift!

At noon the Cunneo-Henneberry printing plant, employing over 1,500 workers, will be covered by a group of 20. Can you help at noon?

Get in touch with the DAILY WORKER office, at 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Monroe 4712, immediately upon reading this appeal.

The plants to be visited today are the most promising yet, and we must endeavor to get all the votes.

MICHIGAN GETS COMMUNISTS ON STATE BALLOT

By CYRIL LAMBKIN.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 24.—The Workers Party goes on the ballot in the state of Michigan, Saturday, Sept. 20th, the state convention of the Party was held in the House of the Masses in Detroit, at which 15 electors, and also candidates for secretary of state, attorney general, auditor general and state treasurer were nominated.

The convention also ratified the national platform, adopted a state platform and indorsed the candidates for president and vice-president, comrades Foster and Gitlow.

No Candidate for Governor.

Because the Michigan law provides that candidates for governor, lieutenant governor, and U. S. Senator must file their petitions bearing three thousand signatures thirty days before the primary elections, or about the 10th of August, the party will not have candidates for those offices on the ballot. The time between the decision of the party to go into the campaign under its own banner and the 10th of August was too short to mobilize the membership for the task.

The nominees for the state offices are as follows: Secretary of State, Herman Richter; Attorney General, Cyril Lambkin; Auditor General, Aaron M. Katz; State Treasurer, Pauline Pinnila. The state central committe was also elected. Its officers are: Chairman, Cyril Lambkin; Secretary, William Reynolds; Treasurer, Pauline Elces.

The state platform follows:

THE STATE PLATFORM.

The Workers Party of Michigan declares its adherence to the principles and platform of the Workers Party of America. It recognizes that thruout the ages a struggle has gone on between the owning class and the propertyless class, and that the owning class has always been organized politically and used its political power to keep the working class in subjection. The so-called democratic forms of government have been used to ensnare and to

COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN TO HAVE WHIRLWIND CLOSE AS BATTERY OF SPEAKERS TOUR THRU LAND

By JOSEPH MANLEY, Campaign Manager.

A whirlwind finish to the first Communist election campaign—this is the objective set by the National Office of the Workers Party in arranging to tour in October, the closing months of the campaign, leading party speakers thruout the various districts.

The success of the Foster-Gitlow campaign meetings, especially in the large industrial centers, has enthused and enlivened our party; that, perhaps more than any other one factor, will contribute to the success of the present election campaign.

Campaign Reaching Masses.

This campaign is remarkable for the fact that great masses of workers, as seldom before, are interested in political issues. Not since 1912, when Roosevelt bolted the republican party, and the socialists made a widespread campaign which netted them a million votes, have the masses of the workers been so deeply stirred or so politically responsive.

At this auspicious moment our party makes its debut as a real political champion of the oppressed masses in the present election struggle, against the combined forces of capitalism, represented by Coolidge, Davis, and LaFollette. With the masses in a politically receptive mood, the many and various speakers of the old parties and the LaFollette movement, are appealing to the outraged workers to continue and maintain the capitalist system of exploitation, the system that is responsible for Teapot Dome, and Wall Street, which are being inconsistently denounced by Davis and LaFollette.

Bring Message of Communism.

To expose this system in its true light, and the two republican, and one democratic lawyer candidates who uphold it, is our prime object. To hasten the end of capitalism, and to bring the message of Communism to the workers, this series of tours has been arranged for our prominent party speakers. These speakers are fully capable of dealing in a revolutionary manner with the issues of the present election campaign. They will convince many, as no other medium of expression can, that the only answer to the dictatorship of Wall Street is a dictatorship of the workers.

The effect of the campaign on the party, of this large number of additional speakers and meetings, will be to arouse the spirit of our membership to the highest possible pitch of revolutionary enthusiasm. That will have the effect of putting much additional life into the campaign, also to enlarge the scope and extent of our influence with ever larger sections of of workers. Some districts that have not, in the past, been able to maintain a number of party speakers, will now have this opportunity.

Following is a complete list of speakers' dates in the variops party districts:

B. & O. PLAN UP TODAY AT I. A. M. MEET

Militants Rallying All Their Strength

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 24.—What will undoubtedly occasion the biggest fight between the reactionaries and militants at the convention of the International Association of Machinists here, will be the Baltimore & Ohio plan which is coming up for action at Thursday's session.

Delegates everywhere are discussing the arguments of the progressives against the class collaboration idea of the B. & O. proposition and it is expected that Johnston will sweat blood in his attempt to ram his infamous scheme down the throats of the rank and file.

B. & O. Plan A Failure.

All indications point to the correctness of the progressives' assertion that the B. & O. plan would destroy the machinists' union. It is pointed out that there are absolutely no delegates from the local of the Glenwood shops where the plan is already in effect. It is also evident that all the locals on the B. & O. railroad are extremely small and that most of the workers there are in a disorganized condition.

The militants have termed the plan the "B. & O. shop under union protection," since it obliges the union to work its members up to a high speed in order to insure an efficient and sufficient profit for the employer. It destroys completely the working class character of the union and transforms it into an adjunct for profit manufacturing of the bosses' efficiency machine.

The plan is generally credited for its authorship to Otto Beyers, Jr., a captain in the ordnance department of the army, and is regarded as one of the most pernicious instruments in favor of the capitalist that has yet been manufactured. One of the points claimed in its favor is the fact that it brings steadier employment. But the militants show that no such thing is true. The B. & O. railroad is now manufacturing its own brakeshoes, building locomotives and rolling steel. This is an attempt to stabilize employment on the railroad and secure cheaper equipment. But the worker in the contract shop is cheated out of just the amount that is added to the B. & O. worker, thus robbing Peter to pay Paul, and leaving the workers in general without any advantage in the matter. Or else the contract worker, not having any employment in his shop, leaves it and goes to the railroad shop, thus making no change in jobs. Instead of organizing the many non-union contract shops, as is urged by the progressives in their program for organizing the unorganized, the officials of the union have succumbed to the bait of the co-operation scheme.

Joint Meetings a Fraud.

The joint meetings of workers and bosses is also a fraud. An investigation of a number of items taken up at a typical meeting proves this contention. The question of opening an apprentice school was referred to the district master mechanic but no advice was received. The condition of the toilets was referred to the division engineer for handling and "is be-

LEWIS ORDERS RETURN OF NOVA SCOTIA CHARTER

International Bully Has Enough of Fight

By JOHN A. McRURY.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

GLACE BAY, Nova Scotia, Sept. 24.—A month ago, Houston, provisional president of District 26, United Mine Workers of America, held a conference with vice-president McLurg of the British Empire Steel Corporation.

At this meeting it is known that Houston was informed, the company was preparing to hand the miners another wage slash next January, and Houston was instructed to go out and get the miners ready for a cut, as the company "wanted no damned nonsense this year."

Instead of informing the miners of the situation, Houston sped away to Indianapolis and was closeted with John L. Lewis and the administration officials for days.

Lewis Tool Acts Quickly.

Four hours after his return to Nova Scotia, a circular was issued to all local unions informing them that the old charters and complete autonomy would be restored in a week's time, and also announcing that a convention would be called for Sept 29.

The Maritime Labor Herald reporter secured the private letter of instructions sent by John L. Lewis to Houston. It reads in part as follows:

"International Executive Board, instruct officers to restore charter and autonomy of District 26 at earliest possible date. That said officers issue call for a district convention at earliest possible date, wherein district officers pro tempore may be selected. The said district convention may then make arrangements for later election of permanent officers.

"The International Executive Board declares ineligible for office, temporary or permanent, all individuals whose offices were vacated by the executive order of July, 1923. That international president be empowered to execute details of policy. In conformity with foregoing you are instructed to issue call for delegate convention to all locals in good standing with provisional district and international, said convention to be held at point designated by you at earliest date.

"Call for convention shall specify precise subjects to be considered which shall be restricted to subject covered in foregoing action of the executive board.

John is Careful.

"You are directed to personally preside over sessions of convention and your rulings on constitutional questions and parliamentary proceedure shall not be subject to repeal by convention within period of five days following such convention. You will, together with your associates, turn over affairs of district to newly elected officers pro tem. All monies and property now in possession of provisional officers will be turned over to successors, and receipts taken. Financial records and correspondence files made during administration of provisional officers shall be retained as property of the International and shipped by you to office of the International officers. Employes of district will be paid up to date when successors take office. Make necessary arrangements for final audit by international representative of John L. Lewis."

Miners Jubilant.

The turn of events surprises miners who have only one week to get themselves into shape for the convention. Lewis is whipped to a standstill and is simply fleeing from the impending fight over the wage question. He is now getting out from under so the fall weight of the fight will fall on others.

In spite of the impending struggle, the miners are jubilant. While a few reactionaries favored Lewis in July action, today he has no following.

Pope Perturbed.

ROME, Sept. 24.—The Vatican is perturbed over the report that France intends to abolish the position of ambassador to the Vatican and declare that the country no longer regards the presence of a papal nuncio at Paris with pleasure.

ENGINEER KILLED AND SEVERAL HURT IN BIG MICHIGAN TRAIN CRASH

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 24.—One man is known to be dead and a score of others are reported injured, several seriously, following a crash between the west-bound Detroit-Chicago flyer and an automobile, on Hawthorne Paper Mill crossing, east of here, early today. The locomotive turned over twice, dragging nine Pullmans off the rails, into the ditch.

The one known dead is Arthur Adams, the engineer. He was killed instantly. The fireman, whose name has not been ascertained, was taken to a Kalamazoo hospital with injuries which physicians feared would prove fatal.

A score of passengers, thrown from their berths, suffered minor injuries. So far as can be learned the automobile which caused the wreck was unoccupied, the passengers having apparently foreseen the wreck in time to leap out.

CHANCES ARE 106 TO 2 FOR JOBS IN GARY

"Boom" Talk is Bitter Pill to Workers

By KARL REEVE.
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

GARY, Ind., Sept. 24.—If you want a job in the Gary mills of the United States Steel Corporation, it is best to check your self-respect outside and lose your identity in a mob of hungry unemployed. Even then the chances are 106 to 2 that you won't get work, judging from my own experience.

"Where's the employment office?" I asked a blue uniformed guard, who at first glance appeared to be a Chicago city policeman, but who on closer inspection WORE a badge revealing him as a private watchdog for the "Illinois Steel Company, No. 16."

Guard Is Mum.

He showed me the employment office of the Steel Mills, about a mile down the private cement road belonging to the steel corporation. This guard was well trained in his job, for he would dispense no information. "Is it hard to get a job in here now?" I asked, but he put me off with the reply, "I don't know anything about it. You'll have to see the employment man."

In front of the employment office were four more policemen, and a crowd of steel workers and laborers looking for a job. I went inside and was told to "Get outside and wait. Mr. Hoffman will come out in half an hour if he wants to hire anybody."

Along with 106 other members of the army of the unemployed, I lounged

Communist Takes Up Challenge of Socialist Lawyer

Over four hundred workers gathered to listen to Nat Kaplan and Al Schaap at one of the numerous open air street meetings held on the corner of W. Division St. and N. Washtenaw, and cheered the Communists when they gave a verbal blow to an obstreperous socialist lawyer who continued to assert his ignorance.

To socialist stated that he was now for LaFollette and against the dictatorship of the proletariat and when he asked Comrade Schaap about this, the answer given to him caused the crowd to demonstrate their approval of the Communist position.

Socialist Backs Down.

When this lawyer, who, it is said, never permits Communists to ask questions when he is speaking, challenged Kaplan to debate, he withdrew immediately when Kaplan accepted the challenge from the platform.

Twenty DAILY WORKERS were sold, as were also 35 Young Workers, 10 "Russia in 1924," 55 Freiheits and other literature. A collection of $7 was taken.

The Thursday street meetings of the Workers Party in Chicago are as follows:

OPEN AIR MEETINGS IN CHICAGO.

Thursday, Sept. 25.

North Ave. and Orchard—Auspices of German Branch. Speakers: W. Carmon, Pete Herd.

62nd and Halsted—Auspices of English Branches W. P. and Y. W. L. Speakers: M. Shachtman and H. George.

47th and Ashland—Auspices of Polish Branch. Speakers: Maurer and Polish comrade.

14th and 51st Ave.—Cicero Italian Branch. Speakers in Italian and English.

Treason Charge Doesn't Hold.

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Sept. 24.—Senors De La Rosa and Sanchez, who were arrested last March and charged with treason in the circulation of handbills among crews of the American fleet, inciting intervention, were acqitted at the concision of their second trial in the Panama superior court.

Earthquake in Constantinople.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 24.—Another earthquake shock has been reported in the Sivas region with large property damage. It is feared many lives were lost.

NEVA OVERFLOWS ITS BANKS; LENINGRAD IS FLOODED A FOOT DEEP

MOSCOW, Sept. 24.—A violent earthquake swept Leningrad, with heavy property damage, according to advices today from that city. The river Neva overflowed its banks from the heavy rains which accompanied the storm and flooded the city's streets to a depth of nearly a foot.

HANGING HAS ECONOMIC INTERPRETATION, TEXAN SHERIFF'S MEET SHOWS

FT. WORTH, Tex., Sept. 24.—The Sheriff's Association of Texas, in convention at Ft. Worth, is on record against electrocution. It is pictured as a horrible affair. Lest the reader jump to the conclusion that Texas sheriffs have gone soft let it be said that they favor skidding themselves as county officials to hang their victims. The sheriff of a county gets $50 for each man he hangs. He gets nothing when the penitentiary warden throws on the juice.

PARTNER FOUND FOR C. G. DAWES IN CLEVELAND

Is Bird of Same Stripe and Also Out of Jail

By HARVEY O'CONNOR.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

CLEVELAND, Sept. 24.—Here's a partner for General Hell 'n Maria Dawes. His name is M. A. Vinson and he was secretary for the Municipal Savings and Loan Co., which went to the wall in an $18,000,000 crash this year. Vinson is charged with a species of financial juggiery, with which Dawes is familiar, known as check kiting. Here's how it works.

At the end of 1923 the Muny company fell far short of having the needed cash balance to show government authorities. Enter a check for $139,500 from the Representative Realty Co., which gave the Muny's books a healthy appearance.

Is On Trial.

Then, on January 2 there is another entry, the Muny company having written a check for $140,000 and given it the Representative Realty Co. Now secretary Vinson is on trial here for perjury in connection with the check kiting.

Will he go to the penitentiary? Well, Gen. Dawes is still at large, isn't he? And the Illinois supreme court held him liable for the phony Lorimer deposit which fooled the bank examiner.

Trade Union Class Tonight to Discuss Practical Problems

Practical methods to be pursued by militants in trade union activities are the chief topics discussed in the class on Trade Union Conduct, given for party members every Thursday night at 722 Blue Island Ave., with Comrade Arne Swabeck as instructor.

The first lesson covered a brief theoretical survey of the aims and objects of the Communists in the trade unions, showing the need of applying tactics with a view to the ultimate object. The second lesson dealt with character and methods of trade unionism with special notes on differences between American and European trade unionism.

Four more lessons will cover the following main points: Structure and functional methods of American trade unions; strategy and tactics of Communists in trade unions with particular reference to the under issues; organization of Communists for effective trade union work and attitude towards every-day issues; conduct and methods, parliamentary and constitutional rules and proceedings.

The last points particularly deal with the practical every-day problems which develop during union activities and a better understanding of how to properly propose the measures required, will undoubtedly facilitate the work which militants propose to carry out.

The class in Trade Union Conduct is of real value to the party members.

McAndrews Still Flouts the Rights of Chicago Teachers

At a meeting of the Board of Education yesterday afternoon the board went on record as upholding Superintendent McAndrews in his position on the teachers' councils, and completely ignoring the teachers' wishes in the matter.

The school board accepted the minority report of the Committee of Administration, which recommends that all the rules pertaining to the teachers' councils be entirely left under the superintendent's jurisdiction. The vote was six in favor, and three against this decision. It is claimed by the teachers that of the six who voted in favor of the administration's report, three of them have no right to vote.

Today the Chicago Teachers' Federation will hold a big mass meeting at the Studebaker Theater at 4:15, at which time a tremendous turnout of teachers is expected since this matter has been very closely watched by all the members of the federation. Alderman Willey Mills will be the principal speaker. There will also be a speaker from the Illinois Federation of Labor.

Imperialist Policies of British Empire Are not Changed by MacDonald

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the imperialist policies of Great Britain are the same as always, in spite of the fact that the MacDonald "labor" government holds the reins of power. MacDonald may hold the reins but British finance capital tells him where and how to drive. And always the drive is against the interests of the oppressed.

* * * * * *

It is the British government, the power in the hands of the "labor" premier, J. Ramsay MacDonald, one of the leading figures in the Second (Socialist) International, that is plotting to overthrow the nationalist revolutionary government of Sun Yat Sen, in Southern China.

It is the "socialist," MacDonald, who has put his "O. K." on this drive, on behalf of the British money lords, to crush the liberation movement of China's oppressed masses, struggling to shake off the rule of their native bankers and rich merchants in league with the international money kings.

* * * * * *

The rich oil fields in the Near East call for the greatest effort of British imperialism to maintain its position as against French and American competition. There the MacDonald "labor" government stands back of the British controlled Anglo-Persian Oil Company, just as solidly, and with the same anxious and solicitous co-operation that Secretary of State Hughes gives the Standard Oil Trust in the same corner of the world.

* * * * * *

It is the British government, in the hands of the "socialist" MacDonald, that plots the overthrow of the present ruler of Afghanistan, friend of Soviet Rule in Russia, who proclaimed his independence of the British throne in 1919. It is not the policy of a Workers' Government, that MacDonald is carrying out in the Near East, but the old imperialist policies of Curzon. These are the policies that have prevailed during liberal and tory ministries alike in Great Britain, and that now continue under the "labor" premier, MacDonald, who is opposed to Soviet Rule, and makes war on Communism.

* * * * * *

It is significant that this week, when workers the world over are celebrating the 60th Anniversary of the First International, under Communist inspiration, that MacDonald, the "socialist" premier of England should be agreeing to the terms of the German government of the "socialist" president, Ebert, for admission to the Black International of World Capitalism, the League of Nations.

* * * * * *

In the hour that the Communist International is celebrating the first effort, 60 years ago, under the leadership of Karl Marx, to organize the workers of the world into a disciplined body, to fight for the interests of labor everywhere, the "socialist" premier of the British empire, and the "socialist" president of Germany, give their support to the international of the biggest bandits of the robber business interests.

These "socialists," who have been raised to power in capitalist governments, give their aid to the latest efforts to organize another attempt at the overthrow of Russian Soviet Rule and the crushing of the spirit of awakened labor everywhere.

* * * * * *

Even before he became premier, MacDonald did his utmost to overthrow Soviet Rule in Georgia, and now, as "labor" premier he seeks the aid of capitalism's international to sever Soviet Georgia from the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, and restore the rule of the bankers and the landlords in this Near East country, even as British imperialism maintains its sway over other oppressed nations, whether in Egypt, India or China.

* * * * * *

It is into this same morass that the LaFollette-Wheeler campaign would lead the workers and farmers of the United States. Under the appeal of "Get something now," under capitalism, LaFollette lures the workers and farmers away from their main objective, which is to overthrow capitalism and establish their own rule.

LaFollette, in power, would be no different than MacDonald in power in England, Ebert in power in Germany; mere agents of the bourgeoisie to uphold capitalist rule on the one hand and to crush every effort to establish Workers' Rule on the other.

International problems do not interest Mr. LaFollette. Wall Street may subjugate Mexico, Central and South America. It may send its warships to crush the revolutionary spirit of the Chinese, as it is doing. It may pillage the islands of the seas, the Philippines, Cuba, Porto Rico and Haiti, as it is doing. LaFollette only turns his attention to domestic matters:—how best to keep the workers and farmers contented at home under capitalism.

* * * * * *

The celebration of the 60th anniversary of the birth of the First International, the first effort of world labor to build an international organization, is a fitting time to rouse the workers and farmers against those most despicable slaves of capitalist imperialism—Ebert, in Germany; MacDonald, in Great Britain; LaFollette in the United States.

In the name of the revolutionary struggles of the workers of China, of the peoples of the Near East, of aspiring humanity everywhere; let the workers and farmers of the United States, enlist, in larger numbers than ever, under the standards of the Communist International, thru joining the Workers Party, and giving their untiring support to the Foster-Gitlow ticket in this year's presidential campaign. Only along the road to Communism lies the way that leads to the victory of the workers and farmers.

"Mother" Bloor in Racine, Wis., Today; Then into Illinois

Comrade Ella Reeve Bloor covers four more speaking dates in Wisconsin, beginning today in Racine, before starting on her tour of Illinois. Comrade Bloor will speak thruout the southern Illinois coal fields as well as in the larger towns of northern Illinois. She is scheduled to speak at Gary, Ind., on October 26.

"B. & O." Plan is Coming Up Today at Machinists' Meet ing taken up with the general superintendent." The locker situation is "in progress." A pipe vice for the pipe shop is also "in progress." The installation of a furnace in the blacksmith shop for use of the boiler force was referred for attention to the general committee in Baltimore, as was also the relocation of the spring plant.

Not one suggestion for "co-operation" has come from the company, so far as the local Glenwood committee can recall.

Before the plan was established, the material shop expense per man was $15.08. Now it is $7.42. Repair work on locomotives that used to take 60 days is now done in 21. Engines that were formerly overhauled in contract shops are now repaired at home at a saving of $4000.00 per engine—a saving to the company. The worker gets nothing out of it. He is an auxiliary production machine to the railroad company.

Good Scheme For R. R.

The company has certainly profited from the B. & O. plan. The railroad has announced its financial reorganization involving the issuance of bonds totalling $155,000,000, which has increased the fixed charges for interest against the road's revenue by something more than $2,000,000 per year. This extra $2,000,000 per year surplus value will be diverged to the holders of B. & O. bonds. It represents the expectations regarding the co-operation scheme of "William L. Johnston and his gang. The extra profits accruing to the employers from the enslavement of the workers is already adjudged, therefore, at two million dollars a year.

The feelings of the workers is well summed up when one of them said: "A hell of a fine scheme, isn't it?"

Chances Are Even.

It is expected that whatever point of view carries the convention, the side that wins will do so with only a slim majority. The progressives are working hard to maintain their stand and keep the union a working class organization.

Today's session of the convention authorized President Johnston and Secretary Davison to make a trip to England for the convention of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers. Many delegates jokingly agreed that it would help the union to send all of its old officers on specially chartered boats that might obligingly sink!

Gary Steel Workers in Meeting Tonight at the Turner Hall

craft system of the Federation of Labor, to unionize the twenty thousand workers in the Gary mills. The steel corporation, powerfully organized in all its branches, with the school system, the Gary newspaper and the Chamber of Commerce co-operating to enforce "open shop" conditions, has found it easy to keep the steel workers, separated into various crafts as they are, from organizing a union.

The sentiment of the militant union men working in the plant is, "It will be hard to organize even with the crafts amalgamated into one steel workers' union, but it can be done. As long as the workers are separated into various crafts, with the sanction of the officials of the American Federation of Labor, it will be well night impossible to form a strong union."

The steel corporation officials declared recently that "the abolition of 'Pittsburgh plus' means the establishment of 'Gary plus,' with many of the steel factories of Pittsburgh migrating to newly built factories in and around Gary."

Thousands of steel workers will thus be brought into Gary within the next few years, and it becomes increasingly important, by means of a strenuous organization drive, and an amalgamation of the craft unions among the steel workers, to establish union conditions.

George Cashine, of the coal and coke workers, and William Hannon, secretary-treasurer of the steel organization and other representatives of the American Federation of Labor will speak at tonight's meeting.

Use Franks Case in Plea to Save Life of Negro Girl Slayer

(By The Federated Press)

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Governor Clifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania is being reqested to follow Judge Caverley's decision in the Franks case in Chicago and show mercy to Louise Thompson, a 19-year-old Negro girl convicted of murdering a Negro in Philadelphia.

Gov. Pinchot signed the death warrant for the young alleged slayer and has been addressed by Congressman Emanuel Celler of Brooklyn, to reconsider the case.

The Negro girl is poor and a minor, the congressman points out. It is said that no woman has been executed in Pennsylvania since the eighties.

Too Bad.

O'NEILL'S PLAY SURVIVES IN NEW YORK IN SPITE OF MANY ATTACKS

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—"All God's Chillun Got Wings," Eugene O'Neill's brilliant drama of the Negro district in Harlem, is a marked success at the Greenwich Village theatre in spite of the attacks of anti-Negro fanatics and Mayor Hylan's interference in compelling the prologue, which shows Negro and White children playing together, to be read not acted. Replying to critics O'Neill defends his course in giving the leading part in the play to a Negro, Paul Robeson, saying: "I think Paul Robeson can play Jim Harris better than any actor, colored or white, that I know. He his played opposite white actresses before this, in New York with argaret Wycherly in "Taboo"; in London with Mrs. Patrick Campbell."

STREET CARMEN EAGER TO TALK ABOUT POLITICS

Many Declare Foster Is Only Labor Candidate

Street carmen are serious students of the present national political struggle in the United States.

These workers were found to be the most alert when visited, at their various car barns, by the squads of DAILY WORKER straw ballot takers.

Out of the 566 votes cast at three Chicago car barns, William Z. Foster received 43 votes, the Elston and Addison barn giving him 19, and Devon barn 15 and the Kedzie and Van Buren barn 9 votes. The rest of the candidates made the following showing at the three barns: Coolidge, 82, Davis, 45, and LaFollette 396.

Foster Is Workers' Candidate.

Among the numerous bits of interesting conversation heard among the workers who cast their ballots for their favorite candidates was the following:

"I'm thru with the old parties. I'm going to vote for a working man this time. I'm voting for LaFollette," said a motorman.

"Who ever told you LaFollette was a working man, ye bonehead?" asked his conductor. "The only working man on that ballot is William Z. Foster, and I'm for him," and the first ballot cast was cast for the Communist candidate.

The DAILY WORKER straw ballot squad hardly expected to receive such a warm welcome from the conductors and motormen at the car barns on the west side, at Elston and Addison Aves., where they met with their cardboard ballot boxes and their pockets stuffed with ballots.

In a few minutes the car barn at Elston and Addison, where the men gathered for their pay envelopes, was divided into little groups all discussing the campaign.

Arguments were heard for LaFollette from one group while another was expostulating for light wines and beers. But off in a corner a big giant of a worker had another by the lapel of his coat with one hand while he used the other to better make his point why every workingman should vote for Foster.

One man refused to take a ballot. The girl vote getter urged him to vote. One of the conductors came up to help her out. "Why don't you vote, Mike?"

"Aw, what's the use. Straw votes don't mean nothing to me."

"Say, this isn't the Herald and Examiner taking a straw vote. This is the DAILY WORKER, a working man's paper. The Herald and Examiner is taking a straw vote down in the loop among the bosses. The DAILY WORKER comes to workers, they don't go anywhere else, because they want to see what the workers are thinking about."

"Well, I'd like to see who could get me to go to war again," replied the reluctant one, as he took the ballot and voted.

Interested in DAILY WORKER.

Qite unlike the stupid indifference of the white collar slaves at the Sears-Roebuck plant, and the driven aspect of the railroad car shop laborers, the conductors and motormen visited were refreshingly alive to what is going on about them. They greeted the girls, who handed them ballots, with real pep. They discussed politics eagerly. They were interested when the girls talked about the DAILY WORKER.

Those who voted for Foster made no secret of it. They were for William Z. Foster and they wanted the world to know about it!

The voters for LaFollette were clearly under the illusion that they were voting for a labor party.

Martin Abern, city organizer of the Workers Party, in discussing the straw balloting said:

Show Changing Attitude.

"The straw ballot being conducted by the DAILY WORKER serves, in a measure, to guage the rapidity with which the workers are changing their political attitude, especially toward the republican and democratic parties.

"In this straw ballot we have taken a cross section of basic industries in Chicago. Enough workers have ballotted to disclose some very interesting facts and possibilities.

"The drift away from the two old capitalist parties is apparent; further, at least in Chicago industries, that the workers will not accept Wall Street Davis and are clearing their clothes swiftly of Coolidge oil and silence.

"Our straw ballot, of course, gives the viewpoint not only of those called citizens, but of all workers, citizen and non-citizen, young and old, and therefore probably is more representative of the views of the workers than a ballot taken only among citizens. The latter is very likely a greater element of radical workers among the non-voters than the voters.

"The workers are obviously under the illusion that the LaFollette movement is representative of the workers' interests, instead of the contrary being the case. Yet the fact that LaFollette, in nearly all of the straw votes taken in the factories to date, has beaten Coolidge and Davis, that in virtually every instance the combined vote of LaFollette and William Z. Foster, the Workers (Communist) Party candidate for president, has exceeded the votes of the two old capitalist republican and democratic party candidates.

"Most certainly the Communists cannot link Foster, representing the Communists, and LaFollette, representing petit-bourgeois capitalism, together. It is only pointed out since the workers as yet regard LaFollette as one concerned for the interests of the exploited workers. Our problem is to convince the workers that LaFollette is in fact the workers' illusion, another swamp which the workers must beware of.

Sees Old Party Weaknesses.

"Virtually every type of worker has been polled in the DAILY WORKER Local Chicago, Workers Party straw ballot. The weakness of the republican and democratic parties among the workers has been apparent. This by no means shows anything else but a very healthy tendency and comparatively rapid development politically of the workers. Even in the white-collared establishments, such as Sears-Roebuck mail order house, the sentiment is surprisingly against the Old Guard outfits.

"But most important and noteworthy is the sometimes startlingly high vote that William Z. Foster, the Communist, is receiving. That vote is more than a protest vote; it is a class conscious vote which refuses to be fooled whether by the soothing simmerings of the Teapot republicans; the crude brayings of the democratic jackass or by the false flirtations with the workers of the middle class, working class hater, LaFollette. This vote says: We want a change in revolutionary change, one which is basic and counts; one which eliminates exploitation of the workers and gives them the ownership and control of government and industries and land. Plainly enough, the very large Foster vote will not be repeated in the actual vote next November, for the present Foster vote comes, in part, from those not eligible to vote under capitalist restrictions. Nevertheless irrespective of the vote cast for the Communist candidate, William Z. Foster, the straw ballot indicates a very marked tendency of the workers to assert themselves independently politically, and as class conscious workers aiming for the overthrow of capitalist society and its replacement by a workers, a Soviet government.

"It is well to note how greatly this straw vote differs from those taken by the Chicago Tribune and Herald Examiner, which takes them mainly at county fairs and conservative sections, out of touch with working class thought and development."

ENGLEWOOD BRANCH OF YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE AFTER MODESTY LAURELS?

Who said political connections don't pay? Not Gordon Owen—Owens is the Workers Party candidate for congress in the first Illinois district. Incidentally he was the first man to go on the ballot—mainly thru the efforts of the Englewood branch of the Young Workers League, which broke all records in getting petitions filled.

You see its quite simple. Owens happens to be young enough and fortunate enough to be a member of this same Englewood branch.

THANK YOU FOR THE BOOST, NIMMO

By BARNEY MASS.

MR. HARRY NIMMO, editor of the "Detroit Saturday Night," a magazine circulating in bourgeois circles, and owner of a large open shop printing establishment, devoted four columns in this magazine to the activity of the Young Workers' League for its participation in a conference with other organizations to oppose Defense Day.

On Agust 31, a conference was called by the Fellowship of Youth for Peace, Quakers, and other pacfist organizations to oppose the Defense Day inaugurated by the government of this country. To this conference the Young Workers' League was invited. The delegate of the League succeeded in clarifying the atmosphere to carry on a fight against capitalist militarism instead of remaining passive or merely gesticulating with phrases against this outrage on the part of predatory interests in this country.

This Mr. Nimmo endeavored to discredit this conference by issuing the familiar indictment of "Communist participation." The article was written by J. L. Smith, Jr., and was one of the feature stories in this particular issue of the Saturday Night. In spite of these accusations, this open shopper will not succeed in antagonizing and creating dissension in the ranks of the organizations which are sincerely engaging themselves to conduct a large intensive drive against any efforts on the part of our capitalist government to involve the youth of this nation in another bloody catastrophe.

Ella Reeve Bloor spoke at the public demonstration, representing the Young Workers' League, and succeeded in creating a favorable impression on the audience. The position of the Communist element was put forward by her, also stressing the fact that the Young Workers' League is very much interested in participating with all organizations in opposing militarism of the capitalist society.

We are indeed very grateful to the "Saturday Night" for publishing the demands advocated by the Young Workers League in requesting all young workers to join us in the fight against capitalism. Contrary to the expectations of the Saturday Night, the elements which formed a part of the campaign against the defense day are completely satisfied with the aid rendered to them by the Young Workers' League. All of the delegates at this conference cannot be so easily confused or fooled against the Communists because Mr. Nimmo is interested in rallying support to the imperialist designs of the controlling powers. It should convince everyone sincerely dedicated to the struggle against capitalist bloodshed that only thru closer co-operation with the Young Workers' League will any success be attained.

This conference comprising many organizations is going to maintain permanent organization to carry out the work mentioned. The Young Workers League is going to contribute its share in accelerating the development of such movement. In spite of all open shoppers and political fakers, the ultimate goal for which the working class is struggling, that of the liquidation of all classes thru the dictatorship of the proletariat, will be attained and the cause of capitalist wars, the capitalist system will be wiped from the face of the earth.

SILENT CALVIN CLAPS MUZZLE ON NAVY CHIEF

Wilbur's Negro Speech Angers President

Declarations that the Negroes of the South are deprived of their constitutional rights, disfranchised, and persecuted by white domination, in speeches to be delivered on the Pacific Coast are thot to be the real reason President Coolidge recalled Secretary Wilbur from his western speaking tour.

President Coolidge, who has been attempting to follow out the policy of driving the Negroes out of the republican party of the south which was established by the late President Harding, was embarrassed by Wilbur's attitude championing the Negroes' rights.

Wilbur, according to press dispatches, was to have said in a speech to be delivered in Denver, which was abondoned because of Coolidge's recall, "The South has not forgotten the issues of the civil war as they relate to the colored man, and by a consistent system of political action they have defeated and annulled those provisions of the federal constitution written as the result of the war which guaranteed to every man, regardless of race, color or previous condition of servitude, full rights of citizenship.

"The fact is there is only one issue in American politics, and has been only one great issue since the division of the republican and democratic parties, and that is the issue of the Negroes."

President Coolidge, however, is playing a different political game—the game started by President Harding in a speech delivered at Birmingham, Ala., on October 26, 1921, when Harding definitely spoke against social equality between the races, and cast the Negroes adrift from the republican party of the South.

"Men of both races," Harding said in his Birmingham speech, which has been Coolidge's guide in his political policy toward the Negroes, "may well stand uncompromisingly against every suggestion of social equality. Indeed, it will be helpful to have the word 'equality' eliminated from this consideration, to have it accepted on both sides that this is not a question of social equality, but a question of recognizing a fundamental, eternal and inescapable difference. We then have made real progress when we develop an attitude in the public and community thought of both races which recognizes this difference."

Followed Warren's Lead.

President Coolidge has followed this policy inaugurated by Harding of discarding the Negroes of the South and making the republican party in the South "lily white," and as strenuous an advocate of white donation as is the democratic party in the South.

The "solid" democratic South has become a nuisance to the large financiers who control the two old parties because the solid South keeps the democratic party always within striking distance of a majority in national elections. To have a more equal division of the two parties would make it easier for the capitalists to manipulate the South to suit their needs of the moment. Hence the new policy of making the republican party rabidly anti-Negro in the South, inaugurated by Harding, and followed by Coolidge as the only means of breaking the "solid" South.

That Harding's declaration for white domination in the South had the desired reaction upon the southern, Negro-hating aristocracy, is seen in the press comments of the southern newspapers. "Taken broadly, there is nothing in the speech to which the South can object since Mr. Harding placed strong emphasis upon his opposition to race equality or anything approaching it," said the Jacksonville, Fla., Metropolis. The Atlanta, Ga., Constitution also revealed the trend of the republican party by comment ing, "There is no reason why the whole so-called Negro problem should not be solved along the very lines laid down by the President, REMOVING THE RACIAL QUESTION AS A POLITICAL ISSUE."

Wilbur Pulls Boner.

Secretary Wilbur, more honest but less of a politician than Silent Cal, in his western speeches threatened to counteract Coolidge's knifing of the Negroes, and embarrassed the president's plans of strengthening the republican party among the whites of the South by making it as Bourbon and Negro-hating a political party as is the democratic. Wilbur raised the very issue which Coolidge and his capitalist backers were anxious to avoid and completely discard as political ammunition the demand for the constitutional rights of the southern Negroes.

"Only last June I heard a southerner, a fine type of man, at the head of a great business, spending millions of dollars in the South, say in public that the southerners were determined to have white domination if they had to fight for it," Secretary Wilbur was to have said in his Denver speech. But Wilbur did not realize that the republican party, to suit its political convenience and the capitalists backing the republican party, have given in to the southern white prejudice against the Negroes, and now subscribe under Coolidge, as fully as the democrats to the policy of "down with Negro equality" and "up with white domination of the South." So Wilbur's Denver speech never came off, and he was recalled by Coolidge "to aid in making out the naval budget."

The Meaning of Slemp.

The appointment of Bascom Slemp of Virginia by Coolidge as the president's private secretary was proof that Coolidge was following out the capitalists' program of falling in line with the white capitalists of the south to keep the Negroes in subjection. Slemp, called in Virginia "lily white Slemp," had been one of the chief advocates of the capitalists' policy of breaking the solid south.

Slemp, Coolidge and Harding, and the capitalist class behind them wanted to establish the two old parties for just such emergencies as the present presidential year, when there are three large political parties in the north and only one in the south. Harding succeeded in withdrawing some of the border states, notably Oklahoma, away from the democratic column, and Coolidge by appointing Slemp demonstrated it as his intention of attempting to realize Harding's ambition of breaking the solid south.

The reaction of the south to Harding's policy announced at Birmingham was: "Well, the republican party from now on will be just as much an upholder of the white capitalist class as the democratic party, represented heretofore solely by the democratic party, as the democratic party has been." No longer can the southern whites inter-change the terms "Negro" and "republican." Henceforth the republican party will throw off the pretense of champion ing Negroes' rights, and for as many years has been nothing but hollow tradition, and come out openly, equally with the democrats, for white capitalist domination of the south.

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 24.—Left a widow with a two-weeks-old baby, and without funds, an unknown woman hired a taxi driver to take her baby to the East Oakland Salvation Army home then disappeared. Search is being made for her, but it is believed, from a note she sent with the child, that she committed suicide. The note read in part: "I am leaving my baby alone in the world. Won't you good people take care of her? You are my only friends. Her father is dead. I am without funds and will soon join him. I am going. Do as you see best. A heart-broken mother."

ONE MORE WEEK!

Rush in the Signatures on the Petitions!

By Wednesday, October 1st, at noon, every signature obtained to place Workers Party candidates on the ballot in the congressional districts of Chicago, Ill., must be in the local office, Room 303, 166 W. Washington St. Comrades shall therefore send in their petitions as fast as they fill them, either thru their District Campaign Manager or else direct to the local office. There must be no delays, if we are to have the signatures in time to file them.

There is time yet for a FINAL SUNDAY DRIVE to get sufficient signatures for the congressional candidates. The members must make this big effort on Sunday, Sept. 28, not neglecting meanwhile to go out daily. We still expect to get every candidate on the ballot.

We are trying by all means to make certain of districts 1 (already over), 4, 7, 8 and 9. District 5 formerly in charge of Comrade W. S. Milson has failed miserably and has not shown a proper Communist spirit nor interest in the campaign. As a contrast we see the good work of District 1, 7, 8 and 9. All districts indeed except 5 have at least made a real effort and with conscientious efforts during the coming days they will yet go over. District 6 is also working hard these days to put Pellegrino on the ballot.

District 4, Joseph Podkulski candidate, Victor Zokaitis campaign manager, is very close to going over, requiring only a couple hundred more signatures to make certain.

District 8, George Maurer candidate, Margaret Browder, campaign manager, also climbing, requires 150 more signatures. Comrades must make every effort to get this small number in the next couple of days.

District 9, Jack W. Johnstone candidate, D. E. Earley, manager, also requires but a couple hundred more signatures. We feel certain that comrades will try to get this number quickly.

District 7, Sam Hammersmark candidate, N. Juel Christensen, manager, is working hard and will spare no efforts to get the required signatures.

District 6 branches have enough comrades who, if they will get out on Sunday, can put Comrade Pellegrino on the ballot. Branches here have not responded as well as they might with the exception of Douglas Park English and West Side Y. W. L. and John Reed Y. W. L. and some Czecho-Slovak comrades. Douglas Park Jewish should be able to get 1,000 signatures.

We cannot afford to miss any possibility of placing our candidates on the ballot. That will add greatly to the activity in the campaign.

PUSH THE WORK! GET OUT EVERY DAY FOR SIGNATURES!

EVERY WORKERS PARTY CANDIDATE ON THE BALLOT! IT CAN BE DONE!

The figures to date are as follows:

District	Candidate	Signatures obtained	Signatures required
No. 1	—Gordon Owens	1200	1200
No. 4	—Joseph Podkulski	1120	1300
No. 5	—H. Epstein	501	1000
No. 6	—Frank Pellegrino	1690	3500
No. 7	—S. T. Hammersmark	2400	4000
No. 8	—George Maurer	650	800
No. 9	—J. W. Johnstone	1000	1200

Claim Reports of Bulgarian King's Death Are Untrue

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Sept. 24.— Reports that King Boris of Bulgaria, was assassinated are untrue, arising from a hoax put over on the Servian press, according to a Central News dispatch circulated here this afternoon. Boris is safe at his summer home in Varna, it is said.

Even the Bulgarian newspapers were taken in, said the despatch. They printed full accounts of the alleged crime, claiming that a servant stabbed the king to the heart and shot three ministers who were conferring with him.

Expect Postal Rate Increase.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 24.— Speaking before the annual convention of the National Association of Postmasters here today, Postmaster General Harry S. New predicted an increase in postal rates.

"New obligations of major importance are placed upon the service, considerations of just ordinary prudence suggest an upward readjustment of certain rates to at least approximately meet them," the postmaster general said.

Rebels Get Obstreperous.

TANGIER, Sept. 24.—A new note of excitement entered discussion of the Riff tribes' rebellion with the entry of armed rebels in a village in the Tangier zone with the intention of preventing reprisals against the village, which recently joined the rebels.

that its imaginary Cheka will have slaughtered more men, women and children—emphasis on the children—than have existed in Georgia for the past three hundred years. The Trib learned its lesson from the Allies during the war. In the first three months of the war the British had disposed of the population of Germany several times over, but in order to make news and continue the war, they had to kill them all over again.

THERE is another big guessing contest on in Washington. All agree that Gaston B. Means is in a class by himself as a suave and artistic liar. But what about the other celebrities who figured in the several investigations that rocked the nation a few months ago? Means has repudiated his testimony on the witness stand. But it would appear that he only did that to keep from getting rusty and only as a rehearsal for another engagement at the capitol. It is rumored that he will now smoke out Silent Cal and it would be rather interesting to see Calvin grit his teeth and say nothing while the millions clamor for a word. We have patience. Perhaps we might definitely know this time who the "principal" is!

THE capitalist powers are hiding their aims in the present Chinese civil war. One thing is certain, they are all united to get rid of Sun Yat Sen, radical leader of Southern China, if possible. But fortunately for Sun, the robber powers cannot agree among themselves with the result that they are backing rival Chinese generals. At this moment it appears that the United States and England are behind Wu Pei Fu, who commands the armies supporting the Peking government while Japan supports Chang Tso-Lin, war lord of Manchuria. These alignments are subject to change without notice, as the Chinese reactionary generals are "on the make" and will always fight on the side with the heaviest array of bullion.

* * *

THE situation in China is very menacing and may prove the hopping-off ground for another world war. But the capitalist powers are not yet ready for another test of strength. They fear it but yet are driven toward it by fate which decrees that they cannot have peace, but must wreck the system in a mad scramble for the spoils. Behind the scenes and not very much in the news is the mighty power of Soviet Russia, the only power in the world that stretches out the hand of friendship to the exploited people of China. The Oriental people see in Russia their savior and it is the reawakening of the millions of the Orient, under the leadership of the Workers' Republic that the capitalists fear most.

RYKOV TELLS OF RUSSIAN GRAIN YIELD

Big Surplus Available for Export

(By Rosta News Agency.)

MOSCOW, Aug. 23 (By Mail.)—The grain resources of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics amount to 2,800 millions poods, according to a statement made in a report on this year's harvest to the plenary session of the Central Committee of the Russian Communist Party by President Rykov of the Council of People's Commissaries.

This quantity not only fully satisfies the requirements of the Soviet Republics, but leaves a surplus of about one hundred million poods.

Plan Grain Reserves.

However, after some stocks are stored to create a reserve fund with a view of keeping down bread prices in districts they might otherwise go up, there will be seventy-five million poods available for export abroad, which is to be proceeded with after special decision by the government.

Further, the reporter states that the purchasing power of the peasants thruout the Union having considerably increased, as the cereal prices have also gone up as compared with last year's abnormally low ones—the capacity of the market has grown accordingly, and industrial production is to be augmented.

Minimizes Crop Failure.

Referring to this year's partial crop failure, Rykoff explains that it is in no way comparable with the famine of 1921. In fact—declares the president of the Council of People's Commissaries—there is no need of charity relief.

The Soviet government is directing its chief attention to extending economic support to the affected areas and to the work of preventing the danger of drought in the future.

The stocks of seed material supplied by the government to the stricken district are sufficient to ensure even a larger sown area as compared with last year's.

Fight Future Droughts.

While the government has also approved a plan, extending over five years, of agro-technical melioration works in drought-menaced areas, it has apportioned 260 million roubles for the execution of this program.

PROFESSOR, KICKED OUT BY CZAR, COMES BACK UNDER SOVIETS

(ROSTA.)

MOSCOW.—It is reported from Leningrad that Prof. Ehrenfoest, a prominent Dutch scientist of physics of European fame, has arrived there. Prof. Ehrenfoest had had to leave Russia before the revolution as the Tzarist government could not suffer the presence of a learned man whose progressive and anti-religious opinions were common knowledge.

Then during the notorious blockade of the Soviet Republic, Prof. Ehrenfoest had done his best to finish Soviet professors with scientific literature, which he purchased with his own modest means.

BRITISH AGENTS MAKE TROUBLE IN AFGHANISTAN

MacDonald's Imperialists Battle for Reaction

(By Rosta News Agency.)

PEKING, Aug. 26. (By Mail.)—In view of the interest shown in the local press for the Afghan developments, the Rosta News Service is in a position to communicate the following:

The present ruler of Afghanistan, Emir Ammanulah Khan, proclaimed his independence from Britain in 1919, when he overthrew his predecessor, who had been a faithful slave of the British.

Up to the year of 1919, Afghanistan was not nationally free, as Britain did not allow that country to have relations with the outer world, and the Afghanistan government had to carry on all its foreign affairs thru the British authorities.

Friendly Toward Soviet Rule.

After proclaiming the independence of his country in 1919, Ammanulah Khan entered upon negotiations with Soviet Russia, and the latter appointed an ambassador to Kabul, concluded a treaty with and recognized the independence of Afghanistan.

Then Britain had to follow suit after Soviet Russia, namely, she recognized the independence of Afghanistan, concluded a treaty embodying this recognition of independence and providing for an exchange of diplomatic representatives between Kabul and London.

The result was that today the diplomatic corps at Kabul consists of the representatives of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Great Britain, France, Italy, Persia and Turkey.

Quite naturally, however, such a strengthening of Afghanistan was not to the liking of certain quarters in England, which in spite of the existence of MacDonald's "labor" cabinet, were still courting the old Curzon policy of strangling the countries of the East and, in particular, Afghanistan.

British Agents Busy.

The insurrection which has now been stirred against the ruling Emir is directed by British agents, who have put forth an agent of their own as "pretendant" to the Emir's throne.

The task imposed upon this pretendant is, of course, to nullify all the attempts of the present Emir to establish intercourse with other countries, to render null and void all his internal reforms, and, generally, to bring down Afghanistan to the rank of other vassal states of British India. That would mean then that Afghanistan would, as before 1919, be a part of India again.

It is quite curious, under such conditions, that Reuter's Service, in its desire to conceal the truth, is making no attempt to find the reasons of the actual insurrectional movement against the Emir in the alleged work of would-be Soviet agents.

Silly Charge Exploded.

Now, as mentioned above, Soviet Russia was the first to support Emir Ammanulah Khan and by her support she ensured the independence of Afghanistan, and, truly, there could scarcely be anyone so naive as to believe that Soviet agents should today be working for the enthronement at Kabul of a British hireling.

HOW LARGE IS YOUR SHOVEL?

By ALFRED WAGENKNECHT.

WEST WASHINGTON BOULEVARD, CHICAGO. Two building laborers. Each carrying a shovel.

* * * *

And so I looked at the two shovels again. And I looked at the two building laborers again. The laborers were big and strong. Any "full day's work for a fair day's pay" employer would hire them without a second thought.

* * * *

But the shovels did not look that good. They looked extremely odd when compared with usual shovel standards. They were very small. They were distinctly fifty per cet below the size that would receive any Chamber of Commerce O. K. The little upward curve at each side, which lends itself so aptly to extra large shovesful, was gone. And the emery wheel had conquered at least three inches of their length.

* * * *

I was reminded of my shovel gang days. Reminded of the rush we used to make for the tool chest when the boss appeared upon the scene with the keys, five minutes before the beginning of the day's slavery. Those who got there first were rewarded by getting the best shovels. The best shovels were those that had been worn down and had lost weight by long usage.

* * * *

FOR SHORT SHOVELS! No worker with brains will object to that as a slogan on the job. And "System," that versatile magazine of business, might as well give up trying to rally the workers around the slogan of "Use Big Shovels and Develop Your Backs." Develop their profits is, of course, what they mean—if you don't know.

* * * *

Christopher Columbus was one of history's early realists. First he saw land. Then he saw the Indians. Then he said: "What is our meat will be their poison." Bringing this down to this date and this occasion means this: A short shovel on the job is the worker's meat and the bosses' poison.

* * * *

BUT HOLD! It's the vice versa we are interested in. And this reads thusly: A LARGE SHOVEL IN THE PARTY WORK IS THE WORKER'S MEAT AND THE BOSSES' POISON! For, altho we stand as one man against shoveling profits into the bosses' pockets, we also FIRMLY stand for the use of the LARGEST shovels in undermining the capitalist system.

* * * *

A LARGE shovel for EVERY party worker in this task! Go to your job with only a shovel handle, if you dare. But come to the party work with a LARGE shovel if you care.

* * * *

AND CARE FOR THIS ELECTION CAMPAIGN WE MUST. There is a wonderful amount of digging possible in this offensive. Every member must be conscripted. The end of the campaign must see us much more favorably entrenched than today finds us.

GITLOW IN DETROIT ON SUNDAY

criticize the collaboration of the workers with a middle class politician like the Wisconsin senator and to urge instead a class conscious party of industrial workers and working farmers.

Opens Michigan Drive.

The Gitlow meeting will formally open the Communist campaign in Michigan, the eighth state in which Communist candidates have been qualified to bid for power at the polls.

Admission to the meeting will be 25 cents. The Arena Gardens are on Woodward avenue at Hendrie avenue.

Gitlow, who is from New York, was one of the first Communists to be arrested in 1919, and was the first in the United States to be placed on trial for Communism. In 1910, he joined the socialist party. In 1917, on an anti-war platform and in opposition to conscription, he was elected as a socialist to the New York state legislature for one year. In 1918, he was the only parliamentary representative of the left wing of the socialist party.

Leading Communist.

Gitlow, with other leading left wingers, including John Reed, led the fight for affiliation to the Communist International. In 1919, he was sentenced to serve 10 years because of his connection with the left wing manifesto appearing in the Revolutionary Age, with which he and the late John Reed, who died in Moscow, were associated. Gitlow served three years of this sentence and is now out on bond pending an appeal. He is under indictment in New York state on another charge and is under indictment in Michigan.

He served as a member of the Central Executive Committee of the Communist Labor Party. Later he served as a member of the Central Executive Committee of the Communist Party and Workers Party when the Communist Party combined with it.

He is expected to deal harshly with the facts of "Teapot Dome" government, labor injunctions, the open shop strikebreaker policies, present unemployment and coming war. Gitlow is recognized as one of the most powerful speakers of the movement.

Gaston On the Run.

CONCORD, N. C., Sept. 24.—Gaston B. Means, who was represented in a court action in Washington today as owing the government $267,000 for income taxes, has turned up here. He visited friends and relatives. His wife and son have been in Concord several days. He arived last night.

"Ma" Fights For Job.

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 24.—With a formal reiteration of her campaign pledge that if elected her husband, impeacher governor James E. Ferguson, would be nothing more than a spectator, Mrs. Miriam "Ma" Ferguson was in the court room of District Judge George Calhoun today for the second day's proceedings in the injunction suit to prevent her candidacy for governor in the November elections.

Detroit Carpenters Are Holding Series of Propaganda Meets

By WILLIAM REYNOLDS.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 24.—A radical departure from usual trade union procedure has been initiated by the Carpenters' District Council of Detroit by the holding of the first of a series of propaganda meetings last Sunday at the Labor Temple.

The experience gained during the organization campaign during the spring and summer of this year has taught those active in the organization that more trade union spirit and class consciousness is necessary among carpenters if the outsider is to be organized and if the rank and file within the Brotherhood is to function in a way to strengthen the union as a weapon against the employer.

It is the intention of the committee in charge to get trade union speakers of recognized ability to deal with the various phases of organizational work, the elements of working class strength, and the immediate and future aims of the trade union movement. The meetings are held at the Labor Temple, 274 East High St., at 2.30 on the third Sunday of each month. Union and non-union carpenters are urged to attend. Others are welcome. Admission is free. Next meeting—Sunday, October 19, 1924.

CARNEY FLOORS SOCIALIST-LABOR PARTY NOMINEE IN DEBATE WITH WELL-DIRECTED SHOTS OF LOGIC

By J. S. WILSON
(Special to The Daily Worker)

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15 (By Mail.)—The Workers Party Hall at 225 Valencia Street was filled to capacity tonight to listen to a debate between V. L. Reynolds, Socialist Labor Party candidate for vice-president of the United States, and Jack Carney, editor of Labor Unity, on the question: "Resolved, that the workers should support F. T. Johns, Socialist Labor candidate for president, as against William Z. Foster, Workers Party candidate for president." William Ross Knudsen was in the chair and introduced the speakers. The proceeds were equally divided between the Workers Party and the socialist labor party.

Reynolds' Argument.

Reynolds said that every revolution came because the methods of production changed. Changes in industry came gradually, and changes in political institutions (government included) remained stationary until the evils arising from the friction between the new methods of production and the old methods of control were insupportable. Then there was a crisis—a revolution. That was the first basic principle of revolution. The second was, that the new society was always constructed out of the material available. That was why Russia used the Soviets. All the Russians understood the Soviets—but, unfortunately there were no Soviets in America! When ever saw an American peasant? But America had her own material for revolution in every industry in the United States—material prepared by the very processes of industry—the material of the industrial unions in each industry in the United States. It was the business of the American workers to get into the unions—even the company unions—and organize their strength in such a way that they could stay inside each industry even when the employers told them to get out—or, if the employers put them out, to have the organized strength to go back in and run the industries for their own benefit. When the workers really wanted a change of system—then they would bring that change about. Radicals did not amount to anything—they were merely flies that had crawled out of the dung heap of the old socialist party. Wm. Z. Foster was merely a pie artist who had been first an I. W. W. fighting the A. F. of L., then an organizer for the A. F. of L., and then again in the economic ranks of the Workers Party. Foster was either a crook or a fool—and, for his part, Reynolds prefered a crook to an honest fool. You could tell a crook by his eyes now and then—but an honest fool led the millions to the slaughter—like Eugene Debs had done with the workers of this country.

Carney Replies.

Jack Carney, who was received with great applause, regretted the introduction of personalities, and defended Wm. Z. Foster against the charges made. There was no man in the labor movement in America whose record was better or more inspiring than that of Foster. His work in organizing the steel workers at Gary, Ind., and in the Trade Union Educational League was known too well to need any explanation. Reynolds' speech reminded Carney of the Irishman who hit himself on the head every morning with a sledge hammer—it was very pleasant when he quit. When the Dawes' report is put into operation in Germany and the factories of this country are closed while the German workers are making the things the American are now producing—and the Americans are out of work, the S. L. P. will probably read a pamphlet, and J. Pierpont Morgan will invite all the American workers to go back into the factories! If anybody believed that the workers could go back into a factory after they were locked out—well, let them try to get a meal in a cheap hotel under such conditions! Whoever tells the workers of America that the capitalist class will give up the wealth of the world without a struggle is either a crook or a fool! (Cheers!) The Workers Party says that it is necessary to organize along industrial and political lines, and then when the collapse comes the working class will be able to take control by its industrial power, protected by their organized power. All those who know how the capitalist class will shoot down and murder members of the working class when they task for crumbs from the rich table of life, will know that the workers will have to use force to overthrow the present order of society. The Workers Party is organizing that force, industrially and politically, and when the climax comes, the members of the Workers Party will be standing on their feet fighting for the new order while the members of the S. L. P. will be sitting on the dung hill referred to, with pamphlets in their hands and dunce caps on their heads!

MICHIGAN COMMUNISTS ON BALLOT

delude the workers into the belief that they had a voice in the affairs of the government. However, their experience in recent years has begun to disillusion millions of workers who now recognize the government as the form of the dictatorship of the rufing class.

In the state of Michigan, of course the same struggle goes on.

Michigan Rich State.

Among these United States which compose the wealthiest nation in the world, Michigan is one of the best endowed with the resources which form the basis of modern life. The copper and iron ranges of the Upper Peninsula, the vast water power thruout the state, with highly developed industry and agriculture, form the material basis for a full and happy life for every useful worker.

This wealth,—ore, water power, forests, mills and mines,—have passed raptidly into the hands of a few wealthy overlords. The owners agree that the workers shall produce only when a profit can be realized.

Not long ago the Michigan national guard was used against the copper miners in the Upper Peninsula. Not only striking miners but wives and children were shot to death. Recently the state and county authorities of Berrien County joined with the federal department of justice and the Wm. J. Burns private detective agency in raiding a peaceful meeting of Communistic working men and women in Bridgeman, Michigan, and trying to bury them alive in jail for ten years under the criminal syndicalism law, passed at the demand of the employers' associations. The state used the so-called state constabulary, the most militarized police force in the state. State constabularies are created in industrial States for use in strikes, because the local police, recruited from among the friends and relatives of the workers, often refuse to act against strikers. The Workers Party of Michigan urges all workers to keep these facts in mind.

Child Labor Evil.

The Workers Party also calls attention to child labor in Michigan, especially in the sugar beet fields. When they should be in school little children are out from dawn until night in the beet fields, toiling to help their parents earn money for food and shelter. The connection of the old parties with child labor is illustrated in the case of Charles B. Warren, author of the republican party platform. He is the millionaire proprietor of extensive beet fields where children toil. While he was ambassador in Mexico the importation of Mexican beet field workers was continued for the purpose of lowering living conditions and therefore wages in Michigan.

Michigan is an open shop, or American plan, state. The unions are relatively weak, factory unions being practically non-existent. This condition is reflected in the high rate of profits, especially in the automobile industry, which is alternately at boom and panic;—witness the complete stoppage of 1921 and the present crigis. Unemployment is bound to be particularly frequent and acute in this state where the automobile industry is concentrated, because the speed up system which makes for such conditions has reached the highest degree in the automotive industry.

To wipe out these conditions the system that is responsible for them must be abolished. That is the mission of the working class.

Warns Against LaFolletteism.

The Workers Party particularly warns the workers against relying on the delusion of LaFolletteism. Unfortunately, the old leadership of the organized labor movement is leading the workers to LaFollette. He favors the present capitalist system.

The Workers Party is organising politically for victory over capitalism. It calls upon all workers to join its ranks. It calls on all workers to support its candidates.

The Workers Party of Michigan in addition to the national demands has adopted the following state planks:

1. Revision of the Workmen's Compensation Law to provide for compensation to the injured amounting to their regular wage. Occupational diseases to be treated the same as accidents.

2. A graduated state income tax to apply on all incomes over $5,000 a year.

3. Enactment of legislation prohibiting the eviction of unemployed for non-payment of rent.

4. Employment of union labor on all public buildings and public works.

5. Abolition of the state constabulary.

6. Repeal of the criminal syndicalism act.

7. Prohibition by law of the sale of any prison-made goods in Michigan.

POLICE SAVE LAFOLLITTES FROM "DAILY"

Steel Trust Cops Chase Communist Newsies

By MORRIS SCHINDLER
(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 23.—If there is anyone who is so naive as to claim that we would have freedom of expression if LaFollette were elected; perish the thot.

DAILY WORKER newsies stationed in front of a theatre in which a LaFollette meeting was being held, soon found a captain of police, a uniformed policeman, a detective and later a patrol wagon confronting them.

"Lady" Doesn't Like "Daily."

No sooner that the newsies began selling papers when an aristocratic society lady came rushing out shouting: "I'll not have you selling these papers in front of our meeting. I wouldn't have it. If you don't immediately leave I'll have you arrested."

One of the newsies then informed her that the street was a public highway and that she could proceed to have them arrested as they did not intend to leave. After this incident a number of men that had listened to the conversation bought copies of the paper. This "lady," it was later learned, was chairman of the meeting.

Send for Police.

After the boys had been selling newspapers for a few minutes, a uniformed policeman and a detective seized a paper and held one of the newsies. After reading the paper for a while he released the boy.

A few minutes later a captain arrived, and as the newsies began selling again as soon as the policeman released them, ordered the police to again stop the sale of the DAILY WORKER and went into the theatre to talk to those in charge of the meeting.

Leaders Fear Publicity.

Several members of the committee urged arrest while one of the prominent leaders realizing that an arrest would give the LaFollette movement a black eye, as both newsies were well known union members, he told the captain to drive the newsies away but not to arrest them.

Be-Jewelled Society for LaFollette.

At the Wheeler meeting a few days previously the same incident occurred. These meetings are largely attended by be-furred and be-jewelled society ladies and diamond studded men, and as one of the newsies said after the meeting, "It is a crime to sell the DAILY WORKER to this crowd."

...H NOT ...LE ON ...GH PLUS

...ing New Plant in Gary

(Special to The Daily Worker)

...KY, Ind., Sept. 24.—Work is be...ushed on the new plant of the ...nal Tube Company, a subsidiary ... United States Steel Corpora... in order to take advantage of ...uls of the federal trade commis... abolishing "Pittsburgh Plus" steel rates. The Gary plant of the United States Steel corporation will be by far the largest tube plant in the west, and will enable the U. S. Steel Corporation to supply most of the western demand for pipe and thus freeze out the independent steel companies.

The effect of the abolishment of the Pittsburgh plus system of charging for steel at the Pittsburgh price plus the freight rates, is expected to be a stiffening of competition, with the U. S. Steel Corporation soon forcing the independent concerns to the wall by manufacturing the pipe near the western market.

Plan Readjustment.

Jones and Laughlin, the large Pittsburgh independent steel concern, is already planning a readjustment, forced by the manufacture planned in the new Gary mill of the steel trust, and the abandonment of "Pittsburgh plus."

Following the announcement of the U. S. Steel Corporation that Pittsburgh plus will be abolished, Eugene Grace, announced in New York that the Bethlehem steel corporation, of which he is president, will also abolish the practice of quoting steel prices with Pittsburgh as a basing point.

However, the United States Steel Corporation, in announcing its intention of complying with the federal trade commission order, declared it will conform "in so far as it is practicable to do so," thus making a reservation of change in policy when it is more convenient for such change to be made by the steel trust.

AL SMITH DECIDES TO SAVE NEW YORK FOR DONKEY TICKET

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Governor Smith will accept the democratic nomination for re-election. The first definite assurance of this from the governor himself was given to newspapermen in the capitol today, just before he left Albany for Syracuse to attend the state convention.

CHANCES FOR GARY JOBS—106 to 2

around a small gravelled yard. They spent their time speculating on their chances of a job, and discussing the unemployment crisis.

I went inside again and asked a man with a blue shirt and a bald head if there were any jobs open. "I don't know," he replied. "Go outside and wait. I doubt it. We've laid off about 3,000 men and its hard now to get a job even as a laborer. Our men who are laid off are trying to get re-hired and we have nothing for them. We very seldom hire an outsider these days."

An Army of Jobless.

The army of the unemployed was well represented here. Some of them told me they had not eaten yet that day. One fellow about 18-years-old asked me for two bits. After the "lucky" ones get a job, they work in the blistering heat of the steel mills, or work around the plant as laborers in the open weather for a small non-union wage. Laborers, I was told, receive $4.40 for a full day's pay, or $24.00 per week for a full week. But many of them are working on part time. A ten-hour day prevails.

"I don't care much whether I get a job or not," one Italian laborer told me. "When I work, I am going into debt all the time because I can't support a family of five on the wages they pay. When I am out of a job it isn't much worse. I fall behind whether I work or not."

"I don't know what the workers will do this winter," a colored Negro laborer said. "It takes pull, now to get any sort of a job. If you want a job as laborer now you have to know some foreman or superintendent. These fellows don't care much for the workers. They like to keep a large surplus of unemployed so there is no chance of forming a union."

"Nothing Doing Today."

Finally a beady-eyed individual stalked out of the employment office and the job-hunters flocked around him. He sauntered slowly around the yard, chewing tobacco, and spitting it out in a stream that did not interrupt his grin. He walked in again with the laconic remark that there was "Nothing doing today," and the crowd stood around discussing the situation bitterly for a few minutes and then dispersed. Later I learned that two men were hired.

Just as the employment man emerged from the yard a newsboy came around selling the Gary Post-Tribune. "Look at that damn paper," a worker next to me said. "It prints stories every day trying to show that employment in the steel mills is always improving, but as a matter of fact, all the workers know its getting worse all the time. They hired about four hundred men to work on the new tube mill, but at the same time they fired about 1500 from the steel mills."

"John Gross, foreman of the tin-plate shop gets $17,000 a year salary and Gilssen, head of the steel mills, gets over twice as much as another worker, a good union man, told me. "No wonder the heads of the company are against the formation of a union in the mills."

This process of being told "Nothing doing," and going home to a hungry family is indulged in twice a day by the Gary unemployed. The afternoon I went out for a job there were 106, and I was told that many more than that generally apply in the morning. At the new tube works the same story was told. "Nothing doing today, you might stop around tomorrow, but we can't promise you anything."

Medieval Fortress.

The Gary plants of the United States Steel Corporation, covering an immense area, are as inaccessible as a medieval fortress. Surrounded by a high wire fence, spiked on top, they are further guarded from public gaze by a squad of several dozen special uniformed police. Every approach to the plant, every door and gate, is well guarded by these special police. The roads leading into the tube works and the other plants are privately owned by the steel corporation, and even the street cars to the plant go along these private roads.

While I was standing there a Michigan automobile drove up and asked one of the "cops" for permission to drive over the private roads to see the plant. This was refused. The guards are used to psychologize the workers. Every worker who enters the plant is gazed on suspiciously by the guards. It is more like a prison than an industrial plant.

"You fellows browbeat the workers," I remarked to one special policeman. "The company uses you to break up unionism talk, to spy on the workers, and keep them in the proper cowed frame of mind. I'll bet a hat there is another layer of spies who are used to keep their eyes on you and see that you properly behave yourself."

The guard refused to discuss the subject, but he grinned sheepishly.

KUZBAS COLONY INDICATES BIG ECONOMIC GAIN

Proves Possibilities of Trade with Russia

(By Rosta News Agency)

MOSCOW, (by mail)—The annual report of the Kuzbas (Autonomous Industrial Corporation), which has been largely reprinted in the Moscow press, would speedily convince foreign business men, whether they hold bonds of the former Tsarist government or not, of the growing economic strength and ability of the Soviet Union to set its house in order. This report is also a good illustration of the possibility of working and carrying on business under the Soviet regime, providing those who undertake such work or business are honestly prepared, while working for their own benefit, to act also for the good of, or at least not to the detriment of, the Soviet Union.

Begun by Americans.

This concern, organized from beginning to end by a number of American working men in, sympathy with Soviet Russia, was granted a number of important mines, metal works chemical factories, potteries, etc., at Kemerovo in the Kuznetz basin in Western Siberia at the beginning of 1923. The colony, which numbers 300 American and about 2,500 Russian workers, is entirely autonomous, being governed like a region, by its elected council, and by the Board of Engineers responsible directly to the Council of Labor and Defense. They have just succeeded in dispatching their first million tons of coke to the Ural metallurgical districts, after a long period of reorganization, re-equipment and rebuilding. The monthly output of coke in 1922-23, when the district was administered by the former State Trust, was 424,000 poods; in fourteen months the Kuzbas has succeeded in raising it to 702,000 poods. At the same time the output per man has increased from 2,053 poods to 3,325 poods. They anticipate that next year they will be able to raise their rate of output to 12,000,000 poods of coke per annum, thanks to the new machinery that is constantly being installed, and the new shafts that are being sunk. In addition, they are beginning to produce and dispose of large quantities of by-products (10,000 tons of benzol, napthaline, etc.) They have built new houses, accommodating over 1,000 workers, communal dining rooms, and lecture halls, and are beginning to erect schools, hospitals, and creches. All this was carried out without any large influx of capital, each man only bringing with him his implements and sufficient money ($100) to maintain him for one year. Apart from the intrinsic merit of the enterprise, it is an object lesson of what a little good will from outside can create when applied to the boundless natural resources of the Soviet Union.

Views of Our Readers

Communism in Heaven.

To the DAILY WORKER—So this is heaven! Gray flannels and a country home! At any rate, that is what the late Lord Northcliffe is quoted as having said in an interview with his secretary, so the Tribune states—in a front page article—taken from a London paper.

But . . . he . . . Lord North cliffe—has to work for his clothes. No crowded cities for him now, but birds and flowers around him instead. With Tolstoy and Conrad as companions, such is the ideal existence of this man in the "Great Beyond."

Work! for what you get, but when you do work, you get what you want. That's the way things are run in Heaven. But, need we wait for heaven to have such a state, furthermore, we might not all go to the same place as Lord Northcliffe—Lillian Saffern, Chicago.

SIXTY DAYS' GRACE ALLOWED TO FOUR I. W. W. IN DEPORTATION; CASE IS CONSTITUTION BREACH

(By Defense News Service.)

Sixty days' grace have been allowed to the four I. W. W. ex-political prisoners who were to have been deported on Sept. 18 because they had served prison terms for opinions. Federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe granted the delay of two months so that the defendants might arrange their affairs. The four who are to be exiled on Nov. 18 are: Joseph Oates, Englishman; Herbert Mahler, Canadian; William Moran, Australian, and Pietro Nigra, native of Italy.

Opposition to any postponement was voiced by local agents of the department of labor, one of whom explained that his superiors in Washington had been "riding him hard" to get these cases disposed of. But when attorney William Cunnea argued before Judge Cliffe that immediate deportation would work severe hardship on all four defendants, the court ordered that the date of surrender be set back 60 days.

Hope For Cancellation.

Hope for cancellation of these deportation warrants has not yet been abandoned by the four industrial unionists facing exile. They know that many protests have been sent lately to President Coolidge and Secretary of Labor Davis, by labor bodies and individuals of prominence in various cities, appealing against the obvious injustice of banishment granted on a law passed long after their conviction. In all the great number of protests which have gone to Washington about these cases, the point most frequently stressed is that the four warrants of deportation, being based on an amendment to the immigration law enacted in 1920, and thus are a clear violation of Article 1 of the United States Constitution which specifies that "No ex post facto (after the fact) law shall be passed."

Five years in prison was the price paid by these four unionists for exercising their constitutional right of holding independent opinions concerning the war in Europe. Secretary Davis ordered their deportation on the ground that they were "undesirable" residents; repeated efforts have been made to obtain for them an opportunity to prove that since their release on bail two years ago they have been law-abiding and have done legal and legitimate work, but such an opportunity has been denied them.

Exile Means Death.

If the federal government carries out its plan to deport these four workers it may be the means of sending one of them to death. Pietro Nigra has been ordered deported to Italy. And inasmuch as that country is dominated by the Fascisti regime and as all the ships now plying between the United States and Italy are manned by Fascisti crews, Nigra's return to the land of Mussolini would be fraught with great danger.

Dependable reports from Italy say that many outspoken critics of social conditions there have been put to death, or imprisoned and tortured. Jacob Tori, another Italian ex-political who was deported a few months ago, has come to the front since his exile. Nigra is seeking permission to sail to some other country where his life would be safe. Commenting on this phase of the situation, the General Defense Committee of Chicago points out that: "In his sentence by the trial court, there was no provision that Nigra should be sent to death as well as to serve five years in prison."

Eight Others Endangered.

Eight other I. W. W. members who served five years in prison for expressing independent war-opinions also are facing deportation. Their cases are to be argued before the appeals court in October.

BUTLER, PHILA. VICE SCAVENGER HAS HEAD COLD

Mayor's Letter May Give Him Cold in Feet

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—A letter, drafted carefully by Mayor Freeland W. Kendrick and then withheld by him, holds the key to the future of General Smedley D. Butler. The letter was addressed to the General himself and its contents were expected to end immediately all speculation as to the length of the fighting marine's stay here as director of public safety.

The severe cold contracted by the General on Sunday, however, confined him to his home and the delivery of the letter was withheld. It may possibly be sent to his home today.

Meanwhile all Philadelphia is wondering just what the letter contains.

All agree that the least the General can expect is to be "called on the carpet" by his superior officer for the frequent attacks the mayor says he has made on him thru the newspapers during the last two months.

Dr. Bubley R. Bowen, police surgeon attending Butler, said it may be three days before his condition will permit him to return to the city hall.

Willy (Oily) MacAdoo to Do His Stuff for Morgan's Man Davis

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—William G. McAdoo, defeated democratic national convention candidate for the presidential nomination, gave the victor, John W. Davis, his promise this afternoon of his loyal support.

McAdoo and the democratic nominee had luncheon together. There McAdee repeated face to face what he had announced before—that he would support Davis.

The Californian promised to put himself at the call of the campaign speakers' bureau and, on his way west ward, take the stump for Davis wherever bidden.

CICERO WORKER CONTRIBUTES TO MINERS' RELIEF

Opens Fund for Jobless Illinois Coal Diggers

By KARL REEVE.

Readers of the DAILY WORKER who have been following the stories of the sufferings of the miners of Southern Illinois because of the widespread unemployment and the reduction drive of the coal operators, have sent letters asking the DAILY WORKER how then can best send relief to these suffering miners.

The following letter, contains the first actual donation toward a relief fund to help the starving miners of Southern Illinois, sent by A. Lavac, from Cicero, Ill.

The letter says:— "Enclosed you will find a check for the amount of five dollars, which money I want you to distribute among the needy coal miners and their widows like Mrs. Louis Gomer, etc. This is only the beginning of the coming struggle. I hope you will receive more donations like mine."

At this time the miners of Sesser, Illinois, seem to be more destitute than in any other town, and for that reason I have indorsed the check and handed it to the business office of the DAILY WORKER, asking that it be sent to Ross White, Sesser, Illinois, who is chairman of a committee of miners to distribute relief in Sesser.

Sesser is the town where the Southern Gem Coal company last December closed up their mine, and went bankrupt, failing to pay the miners their December wages. Most of the miners in this town have been unable to secure work since that time.

The DAILY WORKER will be glad to handle all such funds which come in relative to needy miners, and will endeavor to place such unemployment funds where they will do the most good. It is gratifying that, if the reactionary mine officials headed by Frank Farrington, do not life a finger to aid the miners they are supposed to represent, at all events the rank and file workers in other trades, are having the class consciousness to aid their fellow workers.

Other letters from the miners describing the conditions in their mining camps, and letters offering relief to the miners will be printed in early issues of the DAILY WORKER.

Crew Saved.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 24.—The captain and crew of the oil tanker "Iroy" which burned at sea, were landed here this afternoon by the ship which rescued them, the "Lithuania." There were 27 men in the crew. Two stokers, badly burned, were sent to hospitals.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. The Prince and the Premier

It is not often that a rich man's hired servant breaks into the news unless he runs away with his master's daughter or connects himself with the family jewelry. But there are exceptions. Colonel House, tho selected for his mouselike qualities, cut quite a figure during the reign of President Wilson, and Calvin Coolidge's good man, Bascom Slemp, is almost as important from the newspaperman's view as Silent Cal himself. Likewise Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. Ramsay has been getting very much of the limelight because he has performed the imperial chores very faithfully, and in these days of waning royalty even a King's servant makes good newspaper copy.

The British premier also received considerable publicity thru his acceptance of a gift from a wealthy Tory. It was a fat gift—a handsome automobile with $135,000 to keep it in repairs. The prince should feel ashamed of himself. He should not have been forced his best servant to take a leaf out of Mr. Albert B. Fall's ledger. It is said that Sir Grant, the premier's generous friend, who was dubbed a knight shortly after he turned over the car and the money to Mr. MacDonald, had no more ulterior motive in his generosity than the kindly Mr. Doheny had in "loaning" his old friend Fall $100,000 without security. The New York Nation holds this opinion thru regretting that the premier did not avoid the appearance of evil, which provides chewing material for evil tongues. The Nation which can always see some good mixed with every evil, hopes that one good result of MacDonald's political blunder will be recognition of the fact by the British government, that its prime ministers are not sufficiently compensated for their services to the Empire.

If the Prince of Wales, who is the active head of the House of Windsor, and MacDonald's boss, went a little easier on the Scotch(whiskey) and spent less money propagandizing his American cousins, he could afford to insure MacDonald's bronchial tubes against the dust of the London subways, without driving the premier to the extremity of accepting a gift from a millionaire cracker manufacturer. The prince is now on his way to Canada, and after reading a description of the style in which he traveled, we can only say that if the prince is entitled to the most sumptuously equipped private car ever fashioned, the hard working servant of the British Empire, Ramsay MacDonald, should have a fleet of jeweled Zeppelins to carry him around on his duties.

For his journey from Syosset, Long Island, to his ranch in Alberta, His Royal Highness had a special train, furnished by the Canadian National Railways, and described as the "most sumptuous equipage ever fashioned." The prince has a regular bedroom, with private shower, rocking chair, dresser and all. There is a radio compartment with a loud speaker and dancing compartment with piano and drums and phonograph. There is a formal dining room and a cosy breakfast nook. The prince is also liberally supplied with dancing partners.

It is not fair to hold MacDonald up to public scorn for accepting a gift from a millionaire because an ungrateful empire compelled him to travel in the subways. It is positively childish if not insulting to place him in the same category as Albert B. Fall. Nobody but a vicious unreasonable Communist would do that. If the Prince of Wales can travel in luxury hitherto unparalleled, is there any good reason why his loyal and hard working servant should not have an auto, even an "endowed" one?

LaFollette's Patriotism

Amid the din of the "Star Spangled Banner" and the hurrahs of several thousand German-Americans, LaFollette made his plea for more votes in an obviously inspired political address.

The Wisconsin senator lauded the patriotic virtues and the loyalty of the German-Americans by telling the Steuben Society that it is "an American society of unimpeachable attachments to the fundamental principles of the constitution." Many huge flags and a rendition of numerous patriotic airs were constantly called into play in order to assure the superficial observer that this was a patriotic gathering.

Stripped of all its verbiage, the LaFollette address was an unvarnished appeal to the members and followers of the Steuben Society to cast their votes for the third party ticket because its standardbearer showed, for a brief period, it is true, some hesitancy as to the best methods of America's waging war against the former German empire.

The Wisconsin political boss was really making an appeal to the Steubenites to vote for him because, on the eve of the declaration of war, he did not whistle patriotic airs to the same tune that Coolidge and Davis did.

It is the very nadir of hypocrisy for the Wisconsin senator to paint himself as an enemy of the last or any other imperialist war in the annals of American capitalist aggression. LaFollette was an ardent proponent of the McKinley plan to crush the Philippines. LaFollette was on the same band wagon with the embalmed beef vendors in the Spanish-American war. The self-styled progressive Messiah voted for fifty-five out of sixty war measures before congress. Now that the war is over and that the fraudulent propaganda spread in its behalf is obvious to all, Mr. LaFollette is attempting to reap a harvest by adopting the hypocritical method of "I told you so."

It is precisely this sort of cant peddled by LaFollette and "the honest men" in his camp that constitutes a most dangerous phase of the misleading "progressive" propaganda being so energetically spread in the ranks of the workers and the dispossessed farmers.

Another Peace Conference

Since the Versailles treaty was signed, there have been held no less than seventeen international peace gatherings. The League of Nations is now planning to convoke the eighteenth in June, 1925. Germany and Soviet Russia will be asked to participate in order to make effective the decisions regarding the various naval and military disarmament plans that may be proposed at the conference.

One need not be a political prophet to state, almost a year in advance, that this conference is doomed to failure. The League of Nations has been organized and has served as an instrument of war. Since its birth, the decisions of the League of Nations have been mere paper decisions. Insofar as the powers that dominate the League have been directing the politics of Europe, they have been turning them into channels leading towards another world carnage.

Calling in Soviet Russia and Germany only indicates the total bankruptcy of the League of Nations as an effective force in international politics. It is a monument to the collapse of the insidious campaign waged by this same League of imperialist plunderers against the Soviet Republic. The call to Soviet Russia is positive proof that the French, British and Italian capitalists frankly recognize the failure of their policy of setting up puppet, fraudulent republics and militarist cliques in the so-called new nationalities.

Of course, Germany is asked to enter the League and lend legal sanction to its decisions. Now that the allied financial overlords are to have a first mortgage on the industries and resources of what was once Germany, it becomes doubly imperative to secure the fiction of Germany's voluntary as sent to its being devoured economically by the employing class interests of the victorious countries.

We have seen too many peace conferences of the war makers to hesitate venturing an estimate of their real worthlessness in international relations.

A Political Pawnbroker

Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana has admitted to the DAILY WORKER that he is in a deal with his senior colleague, Thomas J. Walsh. Mr. Wheeler, who would have the world believe that he is an apostle of pure-plus politics, is the primary agent in one of the most sordid precinct politician's deals that has even been put over.

Wheeler is asking the workers and farmers to vote for him as a progressive. At the same time he is doing everything in his power to stifle the genuine progressive voice in his own state and to maintain in power the rock-ribbed reactionary forces. Mr. Wheeler is in an alliance with Senator Walsh, whom the last convention of the Montana State Federation of Labor flayed mercilessly as an enemy of organized labor and the poor farmers. This is the same Mr. Walsh who did not dare tell the country the truth about the Washington horticulturists in the Teapot Dome scandal. Senator Walsh deliberately kept silence about the real meaning of the apricots, peaches and the principal in the oil inquiry which he headed.

The progressive Wheeler is backing to the utmost Senator Walsh who was the author of the notorious criminal syndicalist law of Montana. The senior senator from Wheeler's state has too long been in the camp of the copper barons and the Standard Oil magnates to arouse even the slightest suspicion of his ever being able to mouth progressive phrases with a straight face. Yet Mr. Wheeler is engaged in a feverish attempt to smash the Farmer-Labor Party of Montana in order to assure the return of Walsh to Washington.

The whole transaction is irritating to the nostrils. The deal is a most unsavory one. Mr. Wheeler is proving his worth as a rank political pawnbroker. Every Montana workingman and expropriated farmer should point the finger of scorn at Mr. Wheeler and drive him out of politics. No worker or farmer who is interested in genuine progressivism should aid or abet, overtly or covertly, the political fortunes of Wheeler and his associates.

The G. O. P. campaign managers are in a sorry predicament. Their presidential candidate is so cautious that he says nothing and their vice-presidential candidate says too much. Both forms of campaigning are eminently unsatisfactory.

The newspapers have not yet charged the criminal tendency among clergymen to Bolshevik propaganda. Unless God succeeds in holding down his amorous servants, the cry of "God help us" will go out of favor.

Unemployment and the Im

By WILLIAM F. KRUSE.

THE passage of the two per cent quota law further restricting immigration was hailed by certain old-line labor leaders as a great boon to the American working class. Here at last they saw a cure for unemployment. "There is just so much work to be done," they argued according to their "labor pool theory," "and now that we control this reservoir of common labor we can assure a fair day's wage for a fair day's work to every honest man who wants a job. America for the Americans. Hooray!"

They have their immigration law. Only a very thin stream trickles in thru Ellis Island and this contains but few "common labor" types. Yet the United States is today in one of the worst unemployment crises in its history. Among factory workers alone 1,300,000 more are out of work this year than a year ago, according to department of labor figures, while in 48 out of 52 industries the workers had to take wage cuts. Thousands of farmers have deserted their land in desperation. At least 200,000 workers are idle in the cotton field alone. And this time it cannot be blamed on the "furriner."

That immigration law was not passed or amended in repsonse to the demands of labor. Laws are not made that way in the United States—just yet. With the exception of the steel and textile barons almost our whole employing class wanted that law, so of course they got it. And organized labor wanted it too? Strange! Whenever labor and capital want the same thing from the same government somebody has hornswoggled labor.

Plenty of Native Slaves.

Our capitalists realize that even if not a single laborer came from abroad the development of our economic system is such that our native army of unemployed "common labor" must constantly increase. Every new invention or new application of mechanical power in industry or agriculture increases the productivity of labor and throws additional workers into the "slave markets" of the unemployed. For the owner of the industry every labor-displacing device means additional profit, for the workers additional competition on the already glutted labor market. Assured of plentiful supply of "common labor" in most of our important industries why should our bosses risk swelling our unemployed army by the importation of large "explosive" contingents, fresh from the battlefields of Europe, and possibly already tainted, despite the surveillance of our consuls, with all manner of "red ideas"?

Machines Displace Workers.

The real substitute for the stream of labor power that heretofore poured thru Ellis Island is the application of modern power machinery. Since 1850 the amount of steam horsepower used in factories has increased four times faster than the number of human hands employed, and engineers figure roughly that each horsepower displaces the muscular effort of two men. Electricity has made even faster progress and the newest arrival, compressed air, has already nine million horsepower at work and an estimated increase of two million per year.

A single example of the effect of power application on the unemployment problem will suffice for present purposes. Twenty-five years ago the air drill was applied to the metal mining industry. It displaced four to five men. At that time its effect was expressed in terms of increased production and not solely in the decrease of the working force. But today? With the entire industry shut down months at a time due to the dislocated world market?

Yet at this very time, with the industry at lowest ebb, a new drill is introduced that takes the place of five or six old drills—twenty to thirty men according to the old standards. There is no demand for increased production. The men are thrown into the street. The jobless army is that much bigger.

Electro-Chemistry Does Its Bit.

There is not a single branch of a single industry that is free from this development. Bricklayers once proudly boasted, "You can never get machines to lay brick." There are such machines, altho they are said to be uneconomical. Yet the development of concrete building has crimped the bricklayers' field, and only the power of building trades union organization has for the time resisted some of the efforts to introduce power machinery and method.

An even better example of the accessibility of craft skill to the ruthless sweep of invention is the case of the gold-leaf beaters. A single grain of gold can be beaten out to cover seventy-five square inches, a thinness that would require nearly 400,000 sheets to make a book an inch thick. Since gold is known to mankind there has been just one way to make gold leaf, and that was to beat it out by hand between layers of fine skin. Attempts to introduce mechanical power by means of rollers were laughed at by the beaters, the heat created by the rollers' friction always spoiled the job. Along comes an electro-plating expert, borrows principles from half a dozen other industries, and displaces hundreds of highly skilled artisans with one semi-skilled attendant, plus electricity and chemistry. So the skilled gold-beaters and metal-miners of yesterday become the unemployed "common labor" of today.

"Superfluous" Coal Miners.

The plute apologists will not have it thus. An official of the "National Industrial Conference," in discussing the coal miners who are held in enforced idleness a large part of the year under the wondrously efficient capitalist system, puts into most beautifully preposterous language the claim that workers displaced by this "labor-aiding" machinery get better paid work elsewhere.

"When the shoe pinches enough to compel the relocation of labor markets," says this authority, "the superfluous coal miners will be drawn into other occupations, like building, and instead of working six months in the year and loafing another six months, increasing the price of coal to the consumer, they will be continuously employed at better wages and live under better conditions."

The euphonious term, "relocation of the labor market," will probably rile Brother Gompers, who insists that labor is not a commodity. A storekeeper who moves his shop from one corner to another "relocates" his merchant market, and "Liberty cabbage," by whatever name known, is undeniably a commodity.

Call in the Magicians.

The "superfluous" coal diggers are just to walk off and get steady work the year round as plasterers and steamfitters! And the "superfluous" plasterers, who would think the world a rosy place at the prospect of six months work in two years, what are they to do when the "superfluous" coal miners come up for their jobs? Go down and become "superfluous" miners?

We know that jobless miners cannot compete with jobless carpenters for building trades work. They do meet, however, in open competition in the field of "common labor" in the 85c per hour building of roads and other work formerly parcelled out to the convict and to the newest immigrant. And even here the compressed-air machine displaces hundreds at each application. The pneumatic trench-diggers of the Italian army have been put to work ripping up American pavement—and in so doing they have displaced an army of Italians who used to do this work.

Slave Markets Glutted.

There is no need to look to Europe for "common labor." The "superfluous" miners and carpenters and ditchdiggers and gold beaters and farmers —all clamor for it. The slave markets are glutted and each train that arrives from the West brings in bankrupt farmers who have had to abandon their all to the clutches of the loan sharks. In the course of a recent trip I saw hundreds of abandoned farm houses, in some cases the rag curtains were left on the windows and the kettle on the stove.

And from the South come thousands of Negroes and poor white workers. Georgia bankers estimate that 50,000 Negroes and 30,000 white workers left during eight months of last year. The old man-and-mule cotton farming system has been wiped out by the boll weevil and the scientific plantation so the good Americans of the South come North to seek "common labor." These are just a few of the sources, to say nothing of the entire younger generation which faces life at an age when the old handicraft skill, once the artisan's "capital," has been made almost meaningless by power machine production. Common labor! Labor in America will be "common" enough until the day it shakes off its shackles and makes all exploiters "superfluous". Then "common labor" will be a badge of honor; labor will be common to all useful members of society and only th[illegible] will be despised.

Communists Against Law.

The Communists opposed the present immigration law. We knew that its promises of economic benefits to the workers were false; this country is rich enough in industrial and economic resources to shelter the working population of the whole world. Our prediction of hard times with or without immigration has come true.

We opposed particularly those sections which the masters were most anxious to enact, providing governmental spy machinery for the weeding out of "undesirables" abroad and the hounding and possible deportation of such as manage to slip thru. We know that the very elements branded as "undesirable" by our capitalist enemy would be of greatest value to the labor movement. We know that there will be upheavals in Europe's present unstable condition, we are realists enough to acknowledge, that the workers may be defeated in some of them. And we know our own government well enough to realize that when revolutionary fugitives cross the ocean with a white terror price upon their heads, there will be no quota law exceptions on their behalf.

The workers of no country can prosper permanently upon the exploitation and degradation of their fellow workers of other lands. It is the essence of capitalist economy that the worker must produce more than he consumes plus more than the master class can waste, so that this surplus can be marketed in other countries. But our principal European markets are today bankrupt, busted. The rich Russian market is diplomatically blockaded. While things stay that way our factories are idle, when European capitalism revives, on the other hand, it will produce a surplus of its own to compete with ours in the few remaining undeveloped markets. So Dawes plans offer no more solution for our unemployment problems than do immigration laws.

Immediate Remedy.

The only temporary remedy under capitalism is the shortening of the workday and the distribution of work among all available man-power. Things would be much worse today if the labor movement, thru generations of organized struggle, had not clubbed down the work-day from fourteen to twelve hours, from twelve to ten, from ten to nine, and from nine to eight in many industries. Some progress has been made. It is said that this they must achieve the physical power of the state which guarantees ownership.

Unemployment is here today and it will grow worse. Exploded is the lie that the immigrant is to blame. So the workers are that much closer to an understanding of the real fault. Ultimately unemployment must grow beyond all power of the present system to cope with when that time comes the American working class, notoriously virile and violent in action when once aroused, will see the correctness of the Communist analysis and will quickly apply the Communist remedy.

Russians Postpone Play.

On account of the affair to be given Saturday, Sept. 27, for the benefit of the DAILY WORKER, the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia has postponed its performance to Saturday, Oct. 4. A Russian play, "The Devil's Kitchen," in four acts, will be given by the Society at 1902 W. Division St.

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

IT is not surprising that Gaston B. Means should keep his lying machinery well oiled in order to be ready at any moment's notice to work at his favorite trade, that of stool pigeon. Means seems to have thrived in the business. Perhaps the public would not be aware that Means was one of its most respectably wealthy citizens but for his tilt with Harry M. Daugherty and the Coolidge cabinet, an important cog in which is Andrew Mellon. Means had things to say about the way Andrew makes his living. One of the things he said was that the distinguished secretary of the treasury was one of the country's most successful bootleggers.

* * *

AFTER Means repudiated his testimony on the 9 witness stand against Harry M. Daugherty and then suggested that he would like to go to work again telling all he knew about Coolidge, Mellon's men in the Internal Revenue department filed a lien on Means' Washington home for income taxes. Mellon claims that the stool pigeon, boon companion of the late president Harding and Daugherty, owes the government $367,614 in taxes. Means may not be a respectable citizen, but he has made money at his trade.

CONTRACTORS DO NOT FANCY LEN AS TREASURER

Crooks Lack Confidence in Each Other

Concerns that sell supplies for the Illinois roads, including the Portland cement sellers, have been asked to contribute to a $175,000 slush fund which Governor Small is attempting to raise to put over the $100,000,000 road bond issue in the coming election. The road builders and supply men have refused to turn this money over to Len Small as they do not trust him and are of the opinion that Small is attempting to raise the money to use in his personal campaign.

Large Profits in Roads.

However, the cement sellers have their own publicity organization, the Portland cement association, which they admit will be used in a vigorous campaign to put over the bond issue.

The road building game is productive of a high percentage of profits, and the cement sellers will put thousands of dollars into getting the people to vote for it. A large percentage of the $100,000,000 bond issue will find its way into the pockets of the contractors and supply men, for the Illinois roads are largely built by unemployed miners, who are forced to work at non-union wages of 30 to 40 cents an hour.

Large Propaganda Fund.

Now that the democratic nominee for governor, Norman L. Jones, has exposed Small's plan to augment his private campaign fund, the governor's aides are promising that the original scheme to turn the money over to the office will be abandoned. This does not mean, however, that hundreds of thousands of dollars will not be expended in propaganda to influence the voters. The contractors are ready to handle the huge fund themselves. Soon a flood of propaganda is to be issued urging the people to turn loose the $100,000,000 so that the contractors can make millions of dollars profit from the shoddy material that goes into the roads and the cheap non-union labor. All admitted that this fund is being raised. The controversy came about over which group of crooked politicians would be allowed to handle it.

The sand, gravel and equipment concerns that sell supplies for the Illinois roads have agreed, it is reported, to contribute $75,000 and the remaining $100,000 is to be donated by the men who get the road building contract. They know it will come back to them from the people of the state many times over.

MC ANDREW GETS FAKE VOTES TO DOWN TEACHERS

Mass Meeting Called to Launch New Fight

With the help of the votes of three trustees of the Chicago school board whose terms have already expired, Superintendent of Schools William McAndrew has secured the adoption of an amendment to the rules of the board which abridges the right of the teachers to meet and to organize councils as they see fit.

After the refusal of both the committee on rules and the committee on administration to concur in the opinion of the superintendent that under the rules as they stood he was not obliged to call the councils together, McAndrew suddenly changed his tactics and asked for complete revision of the rules.

The revision was granted at the last meeting of the board.

Pack Board Votes.

Three of the trustees voted to support the teachers against the high-handed actions of the superintendent. Of the six who upheld him, one is Hard Hanson, whose term on the school board expired a year and five months ago. The terms of both Julius F. Smietenka and William K. Fellows, who also upheld McAndrew, expired five months ago.

By apopintment of new members for the members whose terms have expired, Mayor Dever would have been able to give his aid to the teachers, most of whom followed the lead of the officialdom of the Teachers' Federation in supporting the democratic party in the last local elections. The mayor's office yesterday indicated that no changes will be made for a time.

McAndrew's Despotic Rule.

The prediction of the rank and file teachers that a victory of the superintendent in this matter would be followed by more aggressive action on his part is borne out by the submission by McAndrew to the committee on administration of a resolution empowering the superintendent to force teachers "to attend, without dismissal of any regular classes, meetings called for any school day other than Friday."

If this resolution passes the board, McAndrew's assertion that the time of the teachers is at the disposal of the superintendent during all of the twenty-four hours of the day would have a basis in school law.

The resolution further refers to the "untenable proposition that the Board of Education authorizes the payment of teachers for only the times when they are in the presence of their classes." Implication is made that teachers should be forced to "prepare" for their work without extra compensation.

Teachers' Protest.

Members of the Chicago Teachers' Federation will take up the fight for the rank and file teachers, beginning with the holding of mass meetings this week. Officials of labor bodies of the state are expected to be present.

DAWES!

BEGINNING Wednesday, Oct. 1, the DAILY WORKER will run a series of articles on "America and the Dawes Plan."

The Dawes diagnosis will be published in six installments. Jay Lovestone, director of the research department and member of the Central Executive Committee of the WORKERS PARTY, will analyze the plan and all its implications for the DAILY WORKER readers.

The Dawes Plan is the most complete and dangerous one yet put forward by a national or international group of capitalists for a new imperialist conflict. The scheme as fostered by the American and the leading European financiers involves the fate of the workers of every country.

Don't fail to follow this series regularly. Get your friends in the shops and on the farms to do the same. We promise to make the series interesting and informing.

FILIBUSTER IN DELAY ATTEMPT ON B. & O. PLAN

Machine Waiting for Delegates to Quit

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 25.—Last minute desperate attempts are being made by the official machine at the convention of the International Association of Machinists, to delay consideration of the B. & O plan while the rank and file delegates are here in full force.

The obvious purpose of the delay, which is being accomplished by machine filibustering with all sorts of minor issues, is to cause the rank and file delegates, whose money is giving out, to return home and give the fakers a clear, safe majority.

Rank and Filers Leave.

Already more than twenty delegates have been obliged to leave and the issue is still kept off the floor.

Despite this, frenzied attempts are being made by the Johnston bureaucracy to line up every possible delegate in favor of the class co-operation scheme which is playing havoc with the organization.

A fossilized sergeant-at-arms, acting on the instictions of Johnston and Davidson, threatened visitors who were making notes of the convention with ejection from the hall unless they ceased. The fear of an accurate report of what actually happened at this convention is certainly weighing on the minds of the fakers.

The militant delegates are making plans for the consideration of the B. & O. plan at the first moment.

VENICE, Sept. 24.—The Italian-Jugo Slav conference which will consider the ceding of Fiume to Italy will meet here Oct. 1.

COMMUNIST TICKET WILL BE ON BALLOT IN STATE OF WISCONSIN

By G. S. SKLAAR.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 25.—Today, we are filing with the secretary of state for Wisconsin petitions for presidential electors, thus qualifying our candidates for president and vice-president of the United States, William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow for a place on the ballot in Wisconsin in the coming elections.

In addition to presidential electors we have also secured signatures for candidates for governor and lieutenant governor. The Workers (Communist) Party is going on the ballot in this stronghold of reformism and LaFolletteism and Bergerism will be challenged in its own lair.

Petitions are being filed with approximately 1,500 signatures for Severi Allano as Workers Party candidate for governor and Charles Kusdas, candidate of the party for lieutenant governor.

Rebels Capture Town.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—General Ferrera, the Honduran revolutionary leader is reported to have captured the town of Comayagua, forty miles west of Tegucigalpa, on Sept. 22, after 36 hours of fighting. Forces of the provisional government were reported falling back toward Siguatapeque.

CZARIST RULE IS CONTINUED BY HUTCHENSON

Militant Delegate Is Refused Floor

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 25.—Autocratic and arbitrary rulings by William L. Hutchenson, president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, and presiding officer at its convention here, continued to mark the sessions today.

Following a speech by James Duncan, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, in which he urged that the brotherhood rejoin the building trades department of the federation, one of the progressives, delegate Morris Rosen, New York local 376, made a motion that a committee be elected by the delegates to work out a plan whereby this unity project might be achieved.

Unity Project Squelched.

The motion provided for joint representation, consisting of representatives of the carpenters, the sheet metal workers with whom the former have been in jurisdictional controversy, and a committee from the American Federation of Labor.

Hutchenson ruled Rosen out of order and stated that the entire matter would be taken up later thru the regular committee reports.

It also developed that the beating up of delegate C. J. Mulcahy, Rhode Island local 632, which brought him a badly injured eye, and alleged to have been accomplished by followers of Hutchenson because Mulcahy was active in organizing an opposition to the old axe home, altho he stood for a pension.

Hutcheson is Autocrat.

The morning session was devoted to the report of the general executive board and again a motion by Delegate Rosen that a committee be elected from the floor to consider the report was ruled out of order by Hutchenson. Rosen attempted to appeal from the decision of the chair, but Hutchenson summarily ordered him to "sit down." The carpenters' czar then proceeded to name the committee himself. Many delegates are beginning to wonder why their locals spent good money to send them to the convention if Hutchenson is going to run the show as he sees fit, without considering the wishes of representatives of the workers who make up the union.

The afternoon session of the convention which has so many pressing problems whose solution will affect the union for the next four years was devoted to having pictures taken of the delegates and officers.

"Bob" May Have to Run on S. P. Ticket in California State

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—Leaders of the LaFollette independent campaign in California for the presidency today held a conference to decide whether to place the Wisconsin senator on the November ballot as a socialist or let the California electorate "write in" his name following the action of the California supreme court in ruling that the 13 LaFollette electors have no place on the ballot.

Want More Bull.

TOLEDO, Spain, Sept. 25.—Popularists have resulted from the edict against bull fighting. Five were arrested when police were called to halt one such demonstration.

TEXTILE WORKERS GIVE OFFICIALS AUTHORITY TO ISSUE STRIKE CALL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 25.—The Manchester textile council, the local branch of the United Textile Workers of America, today authorized Thomas F. McMahon, president of the latter organization, to call a strike if he sees fit.

Similar action was taken by Pawtucket, R. I., operators Sunday.

PLANT OF MILITANT ORGAN OF GLACE BAY MINERS BURNED DOWN

By JOHN A. McRURY.

(By Telegram to DAILY WORKER.)

GLACE BAY, Nova Scotia, Canada, Sept. 25.—On the verge of its fourth anniversary of existence and struggle on behalf of the militant labor movement of Glace Bay, the Maritime Labor Herald plant was burned to the ground here, involving a total loss of twenty thousand dollars.

The paper is being printed by an outside concern and an immediate investigation has been called for.

All evidence points to the fact that the crime was committed with malicious intent by local reactionary hirelings as the final shot of the deserting rats who attempted to retaliate for the publicity accorded to them in the last issue of the Herald.

The paper had a brilliant history in the defense of the miners and steel workers against the huge British Empire Steel Corporation, and was the center of inspiration in the brave fight of the members of the United Mine Workers of America against the reactionary leadership of John L. Lewis, and his imported "provisional officers." It also carried on a bitter struggle against the will-o-the-wisp policies of the splitters like Ben Legere of the One Big Union. The tragedy occurs immediately following the announcement by Lewis that he was going to withdraw the provisional officers appointed by him and permit new elections.

The paper had been under the brilliant editorship of Tom Bell, and, later, it was taken over by Jim McLachlan, deposed leader of the miners.

DISMISS HERRIN CITY COURT AS NEW JURY MEETS

MARION, Ill., Sept. 25.—Announcement was made here today that the Herrion city court, where additional riot cases were scheduled to be tried this week, would be adjourned during the session of the grand jury here. Judge Bowen presides over the Herrin city court.

The proceedings of the grand jury were kept secret on instructions of circuit judge D. T. Hartwell.

Lieut. Zon Sines, with sixteen men of Company I of Salem, arrived today. They will do guard duty during the grand jury session.

BERLIN, Sept. 25.— The strictest censorship apparently has thrown over all news emanating from Bulgaria. All advices are agreed that the civil war situation is becoming more tense daily.

French Bread Goes to Dogs.

PARIS, Sept. 25.—The Matin is vigorously opposing the feeding of white bread to dogs, urging the need of economy because of the poor wheat crop. Bread, because it is cheapest, has been the favorite food for dogs.

GARY PLAN IS TO KEEP HIS SLAVES TAME

Paternalism Is Paying Proposition

By KARL REEVE
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker.)

GARY, Ind., Sept. 25.—The United States Steel corporation, under the management of Elbert H. Gary, president, carries out a paternalistic policy of making the workers believe they are well treated, while at the same time it pays the lowest of wages and extracts the most profits possible out of the workers.

The plan followed for some years by the United Steel Corporation has been to select some phase of the workers' liv-

CHANG DELIVERS SMASHING BLOW TO WU FORCES

Chihli Armies Are in Disorderly Flight

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Sept. 25.—Chang Tso Lin's forces have defeated the Wu Pei Fu troops defending Peking from an attack by his Manchurian forces in several engagements during the last two days, according to a communique issued today from his headquarters here.

The Chihli troops, Gen. Chang asserts are fleeing in retreat before his forces along the Great Wall. He is marching south with Peking as his objective.

General Chang admits having agreed to recognize the Russian-Chinese railways agreement between the Soviet and Peking governments. It is reported that General Chang hesitated to march southward until he was relieved of fear that his march on Peking would be taken advantage of by sympathizers with Soviet Russia.

The Japanese are backing Chang while the British and American capitalists are giving their support to Wu Pei Fu the dictator of Chihli province.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—Barred from placing an independent ticket of electors on the ballot favoring the LaFollette-Wheeler presidential ticket, supporters of the Wisconsin candidate today announced they would avail themselves of the offer of the socialist ticket to place LaFollette before the voters of California.

CAPITALIST POLITICIANS FEAR REVIVAL OF DAUGHERTY QUIZ WOULD BE TURNING SKUNK LOOSE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Any chance of the Wheeler-Brookhart senate committee reassembling at this time to resume its probe into the department of justice apparently went a-glimmering today.

Senator Henry F. Ashurst, democrat of Arizona, and Senator George H. Moses, republican of New Hampshire, the only members of the committee in the capital, both announced they had no intention of reconvening the committee.

If the committe is called to hear about Gaston B. Means' quasi-repudation of his sensational testimony concerning the Daugherty administration of the department, it will be at the direction of Senator Brookhart, Ashurst said.

CONTINUE MASS PICKETING IN SILK WALKOUT

Cops Seek to Exclude Communist Speakers

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 25.—Fifteen hundred striking silk workers engaged in one of the best organized picketing demonstrations of the walkout in front of the Gilt Edge Mill, following out the policy of the militants in the labor movement to ignore injunctions in masses.

The police did not dare to arrest any of the pickets at this demonstration, but chief of police Tracey issued an order prohibiting any "outside agitators" to speak, on pain of having the strike hall closed up.

Cop Aims at Communists.

The order is directed solely against the Communist workers who have been of yeoman service to the strikers. More particularly the order is aimed at Harry M. Wicks, who has been very active in the strike and has earned the thanks and approval of the silk workers.

This czarist edict will be fought by the strikers and their committee, and Wicks will continue to speak in spite of the order.

The latest maneuver of the manufacturers is their attempt to obtain warrants for contempt of court against the strike leaders, but the picketing is continuing in spite of it.

Pickets Beaten By Cops.

Pickets have been sent to several "injunction" shops. Near the American Silk company, the police read the riot act to the pickets and broke up their line of about one thousand strikers, beating up several of them. Near the Salzberg shop, another "injunction" mill, nineteen strikers were arrested.

Mass picketing will be continued, it is announced. The relief committee is functioning well and a commissary has been established. Assistance is urgently needed from workers everywhere if the militant silk workers are to achieve their aim of bettering the condtions in the textile industry of Paterson. It is suggested that workers everywhere take up shop collections for the succor of the strikers.

SMUT HOUNDS IN APPEAL TO 'CAL' TO SAVE BUTLER

Phila. Fascist Chief Feels Mayor's Boot

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—President Coolidge may be asked to intervene in the political feud that is raging between Mayor Freeland C. Kendrick, and Gen. Smedly D. Butler, his director of public safety, by those interested in the general's retention.

Last night a telegram was dispatched to the White House by officials of the law enforcement league, the Klan element, stating that the removal of the generalissimo would be a "calamity," and asking the president whether he will "act to avert this calamity" when he comes here tonight to speak at the Carpenter's Hall celebration.

Meanwhile plans are being made by the generals friends to hold a big "love meeting" Monday night at the Academy of Music here as a protest against his dismissal.

DUNNE SPEAKS ON PROFINTERN AT T. U. E. L. MEET

Tells of Progress in Union Movement

The Red International of Labor Unions with headquarters in Moscow is no longer a mere propaganda organization, but a powerful factor in the labor union movement of Europe and the leader of great masses in the revolutionary struggle of the workers against capitalism, declared William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER and Communist candidate for governor of Illinois, speaking before a meeting of the Trade Union Educational League here on Wednesday evening.

Comrade Dunne has recently returned from Moscow, where he attended the 3rd Congress of the Profintern as a representative of the Trade Union Educational League. He was elected members of the Executive Committee of the R. I. L. U. Dunne was also a delegate to the Fifth Congress of the Communist International, from the Workers Party.

In British Trade Unions.

There is a powerful minority movement growing up thruout Europe said Comrade Dunne, and even in the British trade union movement, the liar of conservatism, since the Labor government came into office, a sweeping great shift to the left has taken place. The old leaders who secured comfortable berths in the MacDonald government have been replaced by men who are more susceptible to the heavy pressure which the slowly distilluisioned masses are bringing to bear on them.

The speaker told of the election of A. J. Cook, left wing trade unionist, to the secretaryship of the miners' union of Britain, one of the most formidable armies of labor in the world. Cook ran for office on an R. I. L. U. program.

Germany and France.

In Germany millions of workers follow the leadership of the Profintern, and in France the division of forces in the trade union movement is about even between Amsterdam and Moscow. There is no country in Europe where the Red International of Labor Unions is not a powerful minority as in actual leadership of the organized massas.

Dunne pictured the bankruptcy of the Amsterdam leaders and the strong left wing growing up inside. So vigorous has this become that at the Vienna congress a resolution was put thru instructing the Amsterdam officials to begin negotiations with a view to bringing about a united front of the world trade union movement in one international. Comrade Dunne expressed doubt that this would be accomplished in the near future owing to the sabotage of the reactionary leaders who are hand and glove with the capitalist class and supporters of the capitalist system. But the desire for unity among the masses is so keen that the splitting conspiracy of the yellow socialists will prove their own undoing and will revert to the advantage of the Red International which has already given ample proof that it places the unity of the workers for the struggle against the capitalist as the first item on its agenda.

Storm Gathering.

That the temper of the left wing inside the Amsterdam, while yet somewhat vague, is growing in intensity, was demonstrated, said the speaker, when at the Vienna congress, the English delegates threw consternation into the ranks of the social traitors of Germany by asking, "What about Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg?" This question exploded with the force of a giant bomb and had a shattering effect on the nerves of the reactionaries.

Dunne in reporting on the Third Congress of the Red International of Labor Unions said that taken as a whole, the R. I. L. U. has acquired the leadership of the workers of the world since the second congress. "This," he said, "has not come because of agitation, but because of leadership gained by the International.

The three most important issues taken up by the Third Congress of the R. I. L. U. were: (1.) the question of unity in the world trade union movement; (2.) the fight against Fascism, and (3.) the shop committee idea.

Trade Union Unity.

"The proposal of the R. I. L. U. in regard to the Amsterdam International was for unity, unity not from above but from below. The leaders of the Amsterdam International are in a difficult position, most of its members being members of the capitalist governments as in France and Germany. Carry on propaganda inside the Amsterdam International for unity of the Trade union Movement," was the instruction to delegates.

"Under the heading of fighting Fascism the biggest issue was unemployment. The unorganized workers, the poorly paid workers and the army of unemployed are the recruiting grounds of the Fascisti elements because there they reach the discouraged and hungry worker who will easily fall prey to anything that offers immediate relief. Real concentrated work should be done among the unemployed and unorganized workers in every country.

Building Shop Committees.

"The third big task of the R. I. L. U. was the immediate inauguration of the shop committee plan. The shop committee it was agreed at the congress, offers the most efficient opportunity for propaganda in the trade unions. Here in the United States there is a splendid field for the shop committee idea and it will, if properly conducted, solve the many serious problems confronting the trade unions. The R. I. L. U. expects us to throw ourselves into the work of shop committees."

Dunne declared that we in America have no reason to be ashamed of the American section of the R. I. L. U. as represented by the Trade Union Educational League.

Foster's Leadership.

"The leadership of the American section of the Red International of Labor Unions—and I am now speaking of Comrade William Z. Foster—compares favorably with that of any other affiliated section, and I have no doubt that if the members of the Trade Union Educational League give the same hearty support to the movement in the future that they have done in the past, the results will be gratifying." Several questions were asked the speaker at the conclusion of his address.

Arne Swabeck, district organizer, addressed the meeting on the importance of securing signatures to place the state ticket on the ballot.

GARY PLANS TO KEEP SLAVES TAME

ing or working conditions, start a campaign which yields the company millions of dollars worth of advertising at a small outlay, and at the same time strengthens the grip of the corporation on the lives of the workers and increases the usefulness of the employes to the company.

The Gary School Plan.

Such a plan was followed in the ballyhooing given the Gary school idea, whereby the workers' children were taught semi-skilled trades which would increase their value to the company, when they should have been studying scientific and cultural courses to broaden their intellect. The Gary plan was based on the false capitalist psychology of such psychologists as Professor William McDougall, whose theory of rigid grades of intellect out of which it is hopeless for the average workers to climb, has been discredited. But that did not matter. Gary needed a system which would give him some advertisement and at the same time give him docile slaves, well-trained at an early age to be his vassals in the steel mills. So the campaign for the caste system in the schools was inaugurated.

A Safety First Drive.

The latest campaign the United Steel corporation has been a "Safety First" drive, which makes the pretense of having the interests of the workers at heart. Following the spreading of red lettered signs thruout the plant pleading with the men not to get hurt, and the printing of numerous elaborate pamphlets praising themselves for printing these pamphlets, the capitalist newspapers thruout the country began to commend Gary for his beneficience to his employes.

But again in the safety campaign Gary was doing something which gave his corporation a larger margin of profit, and which cost him little, and which was of no value to his employes.

Gary admits that his paternalism toward his employes and his safety campaign is a business proposition, designed to keep down the class conscious and revolting spirit of the working class. "I want to tell you gentlemen that in my opinion one of the greatest questions for consideration by the capitalists of America today is the question of the treatment of their employes," Gary said in a speech to the iron and steel manufacturers of the country as far back as 1911. "SO AS TO MAKE IT CERTAIN IN THIS COUNTRY THERE WILL NEVER BE ANY EXCUSE FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF THE IDEAS OF THE ANARCHIST OR SOCIALIST. IF THOSE WHO REPRESENT CAPITAL, THOSE WHO REPRESENT POWER, WILL MAKE IT ABSOLUTELY CERTAIN THAT NO EXCUSE IS OFFERED FOR ATTACK ON THE PART OF THE MEN WHO ARE EMPLOYED THEY WILL BE DOING SOMETHING FOR THEIR COUNTRY WORTH WHILE."

Later, when Gary's paternalism was in full swing and when he was reaping millions of dollars out of his slaves in war time profits, Gary said, at a meeting of the presidents of the subsidiary companies of the United States Steel corporation in 1919: "Above everything else satisfy your men if you can that your treatment of them is fair and reasonable and generous. Make the steel corporation a good place for them to work and live. Give them playgrounds and parks and schools and churches, pure water to drink, opportunity to keep clean, places of recreation for enjoyment, TREATING THE WHOLE THING AS A BUSINESS PROPOSITION, DRAWING THE LINE SO THAT YOU ARE JUST AND GENEROUS AND AT THE SAME TIME KEEPING YOUR POSITION AND PERMITTING OTHERS TO KEEP THEIRS, RETAINING CONTROL AND MANAGEMENT OF YOUR OWN AFFAIRS, keeping the whole thing in your own hands."

Purely Business.

Gary thus reveals that the paternalism of the United States Steel corporation is purely business proposition, designed to give the employes just enough consideration to prevent them from demanding a living wage, but giving them consideration only in those things which increase the profits of the company and at the same time buy the steel trust some cheap and valuable advertising. Gary issued orders that money wanted for added safety devices would gladly be advanced by the company to its various branches.

But the large number of accidents in the Gary plant continue in spite of the much-heralded safety campaign. The steel corporation is forced to admit these accidents in its own pamphlets. It is worthy of note that statistics on accidents and violent deaths within the Gary mills are not revealed in the safety pamphlets of the company.

They do, however, declare that "Hand labor causes nearly one half of all accidents." In this way they try to place the blame for their accident and death rate upon "hand labor," and attempt to shift the responsibility from their shoulders, where it actually belongs. They further admit that they have not decreased accidents to any appreciable extent in spite of all their "safety" blustering, and try to excuse themselves for the accidents by declaring in Saftey Bulletin No. 10: "A majority of these accidents cannot be controlled by safety devices and appliances."

MILITANTS' CONFAB FOR FOSTER, GITLOW TO BE BIG SUCCESS

Reports Received today at the Foster campaign headquarters indicate that there will be an enthusiastic attendance and response at the conference of militants called for Sunday, Sept. 28, at 2 p. m., at the Labor Lyceum, 243 E. 84th St. This conference is a part of Foster's local campaign in New York. Inquiries and credentials are pouring in daily from trade unions, fraternal organizations of every kind, Workers Party and Young Workers League branches, and other left wing organizations. Sunday conference is taking on more and more of a proletarian character. It is marked by the utter absence of any middle class or non-worker elements. This is typical of the kind of support Foster and Gitlow are getting thruout the country.

That the Workers Party candidates are making an appreciable dent in the LaFollette campaign is indicated clearly by the repeated and urgent calls for funds which the LaFollette forces have been forced to issue recently. These appeals have been issued by Sam Gompers, Herman Ekern, Abe Tuvin, the Central Trades and Labor Council and a host of others who have their fingers in the LaFollette pie. It is rumored however, that the response to these many appeals is both sluggish and weak. The slogan everywhere seems to be, "Not a cent, not a vote for LaFollette. Forward with the Workers Party. Forward with Foster and Gitlow."

GOOSE-STEPPER WANTS SYSTEM OF TITLES HERE; DEMOCRATS OUGHT TO GET VERY ANGRY ABOUT THIS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERKELEY, Calif., Sept. 25.—Col. Dr. David P. Barrows, once president University of California, and before that active in the anti-Russian war of the United States in Siberia, has discovered something wrong with America at last. What we need, he says, is a system of titles to be conferred "as a reward for faithful service to the country." Undoubtedly one of the first to be so rewarded would be Barrows, who in addition to services against the workers' government of Russia, opposed every liberal move in the university during his incumbency, and secured the dismissal of several members of the faculty who had signed a petition for release of political prisoners.

CHICAGO JEWISH WORKERS RALLY TO COMMUNISTS

Pledge Aid to Foster-Gitlow Campaign

Five hundred Jewish working men and women answered the call of the Foster-Gitlow Jewish conference of Chicago for a mass meeting of Jewish workers at Workers Lyceum to perfect plans for the Communist campaign.

A ringing call to action by Comrades M. Schuchter, William F. Dunne and Alexander Bittelman brought a campaign contribution of $100.25, with promises of further financial aid as soon as the campaign organization is perfected.

Militants Attend.

Campaign work will be carried on thru the Workmen's Circle, and thru the left wings of trade unions. Union members who attended the meeting were divided into groups for work among their fellow-militants in the shops. The unions represented were:

Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, unions in the building trades, unions in the metal trades, Cap and Millinery Workers, Butcher Workmen, Barbers.

Comrade M. Schuchter, who acted as chairman of the meting, told his audience that any hopes for economic improvemtnt, placed in men like Robert LaFollette, are utterly groundless.

LaFollette Like Ramsay.

"The LaFollette movement in this country may be compared to the movement in England of which MacDonald is the head. Both are based on the support of the petty bourgeoisie. Neither believes in changing the present order. Neither believes in class war.

"It is a serious mistake to imagine that the big capitalists do not believe in class war. On the contrary, they are always waging the class war."

Comrade William Dunne, who has just returned from Moscow, was greeted with boisterous applause.

"The workers of the whole world are watching the workers of America in their first Communist campaign. We have a wonderful opportunity this fall to disseminate Communist propaganda. Our best efforts will be required to put our candidates across. For in America there are more restrictions on the voting privilege than in any other 'democratic' country.

"The straw vote, taken in the shops last week, shows an encouraging growth of militant sentiment among the workingmen and women."

S. P. Betrayer.

Comrade Bittelman, speaking in Yiddish, went into further detail on the subject of the LaFollette illusion, explaining the part which the socialist party is playing in the betrayal of the working class.

Hundreds of copies of the DAILY WORKER, the Young Worker and the Freiheit were sold at the door of the hall.

"Cal" Dodges Again.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—President Coolidge is not disposed to take any action in the case of General Smedley Butler in Philadelphia, it was stated officially at the White House today.

Primarily, it was said at the White House, the Butler case is one of local Philadelphia politics in which Coolidge does not care to become involved.

PHILADELPHIA Party Activities

Philadelphia party activities show great headway during September.

Our Foster meeting, at which over 2,000 workers were present, was a demonstration of what our party can do when it puts its mind to it.

The campaign for new members has reached the mark of 60 for this month including a new Italian branch. Two other inactive branches have reorganized and are functioning satisfactorily.

10,000 party platforms have been distributed to date and 10,000 more are on the way. The campaign committee has sent 100,000 for Philadelphia and is making detailed arrangements for a 20,000 issue of the Philadelphia Edition of the DAILY WORKER for the Gitlow meeting for October 24.

Our open air meetings are growing in size and number and the literature sales have been climbing upwards. The following open air meetings are arranged for this week:

Friday, Sept. 26.

Marshall and Girard Ave.
30th St. and Huntington Ave.

Saturday, Sept. 27.

Front and Lehigh Ave.
Orleans St. and Kensington Ave.
Hope St. and Allegheny Ave.
40th and Poplar Sts.
7th and Bitner Sts.

The educational committee is making plans to conduct a school and an Open Forum.

A general membership meeting is called for Wednesday, October 1, for the purpose of discussing the report and the decisions of the 5th Congress of the Communist International. The meeting will take place at 521 York Ave. Distribution of party platforms will follow the meeting.

British Coal Miners to Give MacDonald Their Views on Dawes Plan

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the rank and file of British labor is discussing the problems to come before the annual conference of the Labor Party, to be held in London, Oct. 7. This is the first national Labor Party gathering since J. Ramsay MacDonald became premier. It will give a large number of rank and file delegates, from the trade unions and from the branches of the Labor Party and the Independent Labor Party, an opportunity to say what they think of MacDonald's government. What many of them will say, according to reports, will not be very complimentary to MacDonald.

* * * *

In the United States the big political parties gather once every four years, to frame a platform and nominate a candidate for president. The platform is made so that the party can ride successfully into office. It is not even intended that the platform promises should be carried out. The candidate is usually a compromise to secure party harmony and keep capitalism's political forces intact.

After the convention is over the delegates are sent home to wait for another four years to roll by. Coolidge did not report to the Cleveland republican convention any more than did LaFollette to his own gathering in the same city: They dictated their desires to the assembled delegates and expected to be obeyed without question.

* * * *

MacDonald would like to do the same in England. But the British Labor Party affords a little expression of opinion. It is at least the semblance of a forum for the discussion of British labor's problems.

MacDonald, like a lot of other "labor" representatives, when they get power, adopt the Coolidge attitude. Instead of carrying out working class policies, in the interests of the workers who had put him in power, he held to the capitalist democratic fraud that he "represents all the people."

This attiude gets a "labor" politician into many tight places, especially when he is responsible to an organization like the British Labor Party.

* * * *

Thus we find the "labor" premier, MacDonald, refusing to meet with a deputation of coal miners, to discuss the situation caused by the Morgan-Dawes plan. MacDonald turned down the coal miners in the best style of Lloyd George and Asquith, the capitalist premiers before him With the Labor Party Conference looming big, however, MacDonald changed his mind, and decided on a hearing with the miners Oct. 1.

* * * *

These British coal miners feel that the slave owner's whip that is laid across the backs of the German working class is going to hit them, too. The 10 and the 12-hour day in Germany, at low wages, under the Dawes plan, turning out cheap coal, that can be bought and sold in the British market by British profiteers, at great profit to themselves, means increasing unemployment among the British miners.

These miners want to tell Premier MacDonald that there are 26,000 unemployed coal diggers in the Northumberland and Durham fields alone. MacDonald helped Morgan, Mellon, Hughes and Lamont put over the Dawes plan. The British workers are opposed to it. M. Tomsky, head of the Russian Trade Unions, told the British Trade Union Congress recently, what the Russian workers thought about it. There doesn't seem to be so very much difference of opinion between the Russian and the British workers about this Wall Street plot against all European labor.

That should be an interesting conference between the delegation of the coal miners and Premier MacDonald, Oct. 1, less than a week before the opening of the Labor Party Conference.

* * * *

The coal diggers demand the nationalization of the mines. That is the first big issue on the agenda of the Oct. 7th gathering. The miners will want to know why MacDonald, the "labor" premier has not moved in this direction. It is also demanded that the government take over the electric power supply.

Then there is the resolution that the British Labor Party affiliate with the Communist International.

* * * *

There are "labor" politicians in the British Labor Party, just as there are hordes of political careerists attached to the LaFollette movement, in this country, that make war upon the Communists. These politicians have so far prevented the British Communist Party from winning affiliation with the Labor Party.

But the war upon the Communists within the British labor movement, has not solved the problems of the British workers, any more than the attack of Gompers and LaFollette on Communists in the United States has presented the workers and farmers of this country with a solution of their problems. The struggle under capitalism against the employers' dictatorship continues just the same. It will continue just as long as that dictatorship continues; until it is displaced with the rule of the workers.

* * * *

MacDonald may think that the Dawes plan is a big step towards world peace. But that only shows that his mind as well as his services has been captured by the British ruling class. Perhaps it never needed capturing. But MacDonald has paraded as a socialist for years, as a believer in the class struggle of the workers against capitalism, as an enemy of capitalist wars. And it was for this reason that he, rather than Arthur Henderson, open collaborator with capitalism, exminister in the King's war government, became the premier.

* * * *

Millions of British workers still harbor the illusion that the MacDonald "labor" government will get them something; just as some American workers indulge in the nightmare that LaFollette is going to find an oasis for them in the capitalist desert.

Every act of the MacDonald government is opening the eyes of British workers, wider and wider.

When MacDonald at first refused to receive the delegation of coal miners, he added thousands of workers to the Communist ranks. His defense of his "labor" government at the forth-coming Labor Party Conference will still further disgust new thousands in Great Britain, just as the regime of the "socialist," Ebert, in Germany, has added millions to the German Communist army.

The British Communist Party need not worry so much about affiliation with the British Labor Party, if it can win the masses of the British workers to affiliate with it. That is the drift at the present time within the ranks of British labor.

EXPOSE UNITED FRONT AGAINST STEEL WORKERS

Gary Organizes to Halt Unionization

The organization of the Chamber of Commerce, the newspapers, and city officials of Gary, Indiana, in the interests of the United States Steel corporation to keep the steel workers from organizing, was told at an open air meeting Wednesday night, at the corner of 32nd and Halsted Street by Karl Reeve, reporter for the DAILY WORKER.

Reeve told of the latest effort of the steel workers in Gary to organize at their mass meeting last night in Turner Hall, and declared that the workers must unite with their class political body under the banner of Communism, and become active workers for amalgamation in their union as the only effective means of fighting the organized forces of capitalism.

Gary Bait.

"The workers of Gary do not know that the Chamber of Commerce of that town has issued a pamphlet to attract manufacturers to settle in Gary, offering as an inducement that 'there is a plentiful supply of high grade female labor available, whose average wage is 25 cents an hour,'" Reeve told the crowd.

He told how the mayor had refused to investigate the recent explosion of a blast furnace in Gary which killed several men, and how the Gary Post-Tribune, formed a united front with the United States Steel corporation, is daily coming out with lies about prosperity and plenty of employment when hundreds of workers are looking for jobs every day in the steel mills.

Reeve denounced the Gary school plan, renamed the platoon school system, because it trains the children to be good steel trust slaves when they should be getting a scientific and cultural education. He declared that the profits of the United States Steel corporation in 1923 were $108,707,064 and the average wage of the employes at that time was only $5.83, proving that the workers produce all wealth and the employers of labor reap all the profits.

Hits Defense Day.

Victor Zokaitis took up a good collection at this meeting, and many DAILY WORKERS and books were sold, including "Russia in 1924," by William Z. Foster and "The LaFollette Illusion," by Jay Lovestone. Comrade Zokaitis told the crowd the real meaning of the recent national defense day, which was not, he declared, to honor General Pershing, but a stunt of the capitalists to prepare the workers for the next war. He pleaded for the establishment in this country of a workers' and farmers' government such as has been established in Soviet Russia.

A large and successful street meeting was also held at the corner of Roosevelt and Marshfield, with George Maurer as the principal speaker. Comrade Maurer took up a collection of several dollars, sold many books and over 30 DAILY WORKERS.

The following street meetings will be held by the Workers Party:

Friday, Sept. 26, 1924.

Lawrence and Sawyer—Auspices of Irving Park branches, Workers Party and C. W. L. Speakers: Pete Herd and Geo. Maurer.

Wilton and Belmont—Auspices of North Side, W. L. D. Speakers: D. E. Earley and Karl Reeve.

North Ave. and Fairfield—Auspices of North West Side Branch, W. P. Speakers: J. Manley and Ida Dalles.

Roosevelt and Homan—Auspices of Jewish Branch, Douglas Park, W. P. Speakers: Al Schaad and Bill Kruse.

Saturday, Sept. 27.

24th and Halsted—Auspices of Lithuanian W. Branch. Speakers: John Harvey and Pete Herd.

North Ave. and Orchard—Hungarian Branch W. P. and Lithuanian W. P. W. L. Branch. Speakers: L. Engdahl and others.

114th Place and Michigan—Fullman Section, Workers Party. Speakers: Frank Buckley and others.

30th and State Sts.—South Side Branch, W. P. Speakers: Dalton Owens and D. E. Earley.

Division and Washtenaw—Auspices of North West Jewish Branch, W. P. Speakers: A. Wagenknecht, Geo. Maurer, Manuel Franco, and others.

Milwaukee and Paulina—Auspices of Polish Branch, W. P. Speakers in English and Polish.

Chicago Police Swap Bullets As Moonshine Fans Martial Ardor

Two city detectives are wounded, one probably fatally, as a resiut of a pistol duel with two patrolmen here last night. The victims are Frank Sperry and Patrick Lee. While off duty, they are said to have driven their automobile into another machine, the driver of which started to protest with them. In some manner they are said to have leaped out with drawn revolvers just as patrolman Leo Treon and Edward Tyrell appeared on the scene. The detectives started to drive away and opened fire when the patrolmen ordered them to halt. A revolver battle followed. Both detectives, police say, were intoxicated.

BRITISH LABOR GOVERNMENT IN WAR ON CHINA

British Warships Force Chinese Executions

The great capitalist powers of the world are engaged in a struggle with each other over the exploitation of China, at the expense of the Chinese people.

Since the civil war started the DAILY WORKER has explained the true inwardness of the struggle, pointing out, that behind the warring tuchuns and generals were the capitalist powers, deluging China in blood in order to be in a better position to grab off the spoils.

Urge Aid to Sun Yat Sen.

The Communist International issued a proclamation calling on the workers of the world to come to the assistance of the bleeding Chinese workers and peasants under the leadership of Sun Yat Sen, radical leader of Southern China, the only province in China where the workers have the right to organize.

The British Communist Party took steps to rally the workers of Britain behind the Communist International which is leading the proletarian fight in defense of the people of China. The following manifesto issued by the British Communists will aid our readers to better understand the momentous conflict raging in China, the parties involved and the alignment of the great capitalist powers:

British Communist Manifesto.

"There is civil war in China. The papers tell us that the governor of the province of Che-Kiang is fighting the governor of Kiang-Su. The latter is supported by the Pekin government and by Wu-Pei-Fu, one of China's biggest would-be Napoleons. The former is supported by Wu-Pei-Fu's mortal enemy, Marshal Chang-Tso-Lin, the governor of Mongolia. And the allies are sending their warships and landing their marines to restore order.

"What is the meaning of the civil war? Why do generals fight one another in China? A quarrel between rival generals—what does it matter to the British workers? It matters this—that the Chinese civil war is only a reflection of the struggle between the allied imperialists for world domination. For behind Wu-Pei-Fu, the dictator of Pekin, stands Anglo-American imperialism: it finances him, it supplies him with munitions, it booms him in the British and American press. Behind Chang-Tso-Lin, the dictator of Mongolia, stands Japanese imperialism, which supplies him with money and munitions.

"The rival 'armies' of forcibly-recruited Chinese peasantry are only pawns in the game—the game for the prize of China's markets and China's cheap labor. It is a game that began a long time ago, while China was still ruled by emperors. Just as they did in Egypt and Turkey, British, French, and American capitalists lend money to incompetent despots in order first too corrupt them and then to maintain their rotten power. When the Chinese revolution took place in 1911, British and American capital bribed one set of generals, Japanese another set; they overthrew the first revolutionary government, and have kept China for thirteen years in a state of chaos and disruption.

"The time is now ripe for the allies to 'restore order'—by dividing the country up amongst themselves. In parts of China, where the allies have established their own rule already, the Chinese workers and peasants have tasted the sweets of British government. Several incidents during the last three months have opened their eyes.

"A Chinese soldier, Li-Yu-An, was given hundreds of strokes with a bamboo for walking in a district reserved for foreigners. Enraged, he struck three foreigners in the street. A British court tried him, and gave him four years and ten days' imprisonment. But when a British subject, Whitbury, violently assaulted a Chinese customs official in the execution of his duty, the same court inflicted a penalty of twenty-five dollars fine, twenty-five dollars damages, and costs.

"Again, an American merchant, Hailey, interfered with some dockers on strike at a port on the river Yang-Tse-Kiang, and was knocked (or fell) into the water and drowned. A British gunboat, the "Cockchafer," hastened to the scene, and the captain, under pain of immediate bombardment of the city, forced the civil and military authorities to give Hailey a public funeral, and to execute without trial or delay of any kind two leading members of the strike committee. And when the Chinese government protested, the minister in Pekin of MacDonald's "labor government" refused to give satisfaction, and instead demanded further punishment of the strikers!

"The time is ripe, we have said. More than that—the time for the allies is now or never. For a new power is rising to challenge them—the power of the revolutionary workers, peasants, and middle classes, organized in the Kuo-Ming-Tang, or National Revolutionary Party, under the leadership of the veteran socialist, Sun-Yat-Sen. At his capital in Canton, the great port in South China, he has for many years carried on a hitherto invincible fight against counter-revolutionary foreign imperialism, and in this fight he has had to rely more and more on the workers and peasants. Canton is the only part of China where the trade unions and the socialists can work legally.

"The allies have long tried to get rid of him by sending first one general then another; but always their attempt has been foiled by their mutual jealousies and rivalries. Even today their rival puppets, Wu-Pei-Fu and Chang-Tso-Lin, are locked in struggle; but whoever wins, wether the outcome is a despotism financed by Japanese or Anglo-American capitalism, the survivor will have to fight Sun-Yat-Sen, the representative of the Chinese people, the ally of Soviet Russia, the spokesman of the workers' and peasants' will to be free of all capitalist rule, Chinese or foreign.

"True, Sun-Yat-Sen has weighed up his chances. He sees that Japanese imperialism is the weaker. If it wins, its own domestic troubles are too great to enable it to eat up China. Therefore he may support Chang-Tso-Lin. And therefore the British "labor" government, under the dictation of the British, French, and American bankers, is organizing a Fascist movement in Canton, just as they did in Soviet Russia.

"The story has already appeared in the Herald. Let us recall its main facts. Last May the Chinese merchants, bankers, and capitalist elements held a congress, at which they decided to organize volunteers—of course, only "to defend property." To-day there are 27,000 of them, all armed with rifles imported from the British colonies at Hong Kong and Shanghai. Their leader is Chen-Lin-Pak, for fifteen years representative of the British-owned Shanghai and Hongkong bank, director of the ten largest native banks, with a capital of 200 million dollars.

"When Sun-Yat-Sen seized their last consignment of rifles, they revolted. When the workers of Canton formed workers' guards, and began to move against the merchants' quarter, the British consul threatened that British warships would bombard the city. British Sepoys have been told off to protect Chen-Lin-Pak's property!

"The result so far has been to prevent Sun from marching against Wu-Pei-Fu. His position, and with him that of Chinese labor and Chinese democracy, is critical. They are faced with the prospect of seeing Chang-Tso-Lin defeated. Anglo-American capital victorious in the north, and then joining hands with the Canton Fascisti to stamp out the labor movement in blood, reestablish autocracy, and make China safe for the British bankers. And the "labor" government is playing its part—relying on the alleged indifference of the British workers to foreign affairs.

"What can be done? The Chinese workers have formed a "Society for fighting imperialism"; the Russian Trade Union Congress has formed a "Hands Off China" committee, in which tens of thousands of workers are enrolling. This is the path we must take. The workers' organizations, the labor leaders, all who are "honest" in their claim to defend labor and democracy, must defeat the capitalists—and their puppet MacDonald. Hands Off China! Down with the Chinese Fascisti! Defend the Chinese Revolution! With these watchwords let us force the "labor government" to remember its duty to fulfil its pledges of peace by withdrawing all support from the counter-revolution in China.

"Hands off the Chinese revolution."

THE CAMPAIGN FUND CAMPAIGN! Collecting campaign funds means agitating for communism.

THE POWER COLUMN

Twice every week—this column uncovers to your view the motive power behind the DAILY WORKER. Here for the interest and inspiration of every reader—and especially the DAILY WORKER agents and committees—are tried and proven suggestions and accomplishments to drive the DAILY WORKER to further conquests.

Here is POWER—the power of brain and effort of men and women of the working class who not only believe—but ACT!

DURING the past month there has been an increase in subscriptions received. Bundle orders have grown in response to the demand at campaign meetings. Both tho far from satisfactory have proven an increase to the POWER driving "The National Labor Daily." And both have been overshadowed by the Special Local Campaign Editions on which the presses are being kept busy with increasing demand.

This week Special Local Editions are going to Toledo, Ohio) (two thousand), Detroit, Mich. (five thousand), and New York (ten thousand). Local New York received the first edition of 14,000 for the Gitlow meeting. It proved such a success financially and in good work both for the DAILY WORKER and the local that this week sees an additional issue of 10,000 going out to precede the Cannon meeting of October 2. Beside this the largest single order yet made—50,000—will go to New York for the Foster meeting in October.

A lively campaign drive aided by these Special Editions is one reason for the fact that Local New York has led all cities in subscriptions secured during the past month. That the Special Editions printed for different cities with their own front page has proven a success can be seen by this list of orders made:

New York	74,000	(3 Editions—24,000 already shipped)
Philadelphia	30,000	(possibly 50,000)
Milwaukee	20,000	(State Edition)
Lake Co., Ind.	15,000	(Steel District—Gary, South Bend etc.)
Chicago	10,000
Detroit	5,000	(Shipped—3 more editions to follow)
Pittsburgh	3,000
Los Angeles	2,000
Toledo	2,000	(Shipped).
Erie	2,000	(Shipped)
Denver	3,000

Besides these orders definitely made, arrangements are being completed with other live locals who are availing themselves of this splendid opportunity for building up their organization and putting a real kick into their campaign. Lack of funds can prove no deterrent to any local not as yet having ordered. Advertising, leaflets etc. that are a poor substitute for the Special Local Edition to advertise a meeting cost more to print. Rates have been purposely kept low. The returns to the DAILY WORKER from these issues must repay for the efforts made to make them a success.

Comrade Shklar of Milwaukee who has helped put that city on the map with a State Edition of 20,000 (half going to Milwaukee and the balance to Racine, Kenosha, Superior and other towns in the backyard of LaFollette and Vic Berger) was not satisfied with this accomplishment. Going on a trip thru the Steel District of Lake County, Ind., including Gary, South Bend and other towns his report to the local comrades on the possibilities of the Special Edition brought an order for 15,000 which is now in preparation.

At no place where consideration has been given to this edition have the comrades failed to grasp the opportunity presented. Here is POWER—effective dynamic power not only to build up the DAILY WORKER but to make your campaign meetings a success, to give added drive to your local campaign—to BUILD your local as well.

DEATH SENTENCE OF TERRORIST IS COMMUTED

Savinkoff Was Agent of Allied Powers

(By Rosta News Agency.)

MOSCOW (By Mail).—Boris Savinkoff, a leading member of the Social Revolutionary party, who was sentenced to death for his crimes against the Soviet Republic, crimes which included attempts at the assassination of Lenin, Trotsky and other Soviet chiefs, had the sentence commuted to ten years imprisonment and finally to a complete pardon.

Savinkoff, Russian terrorist and leading agent of the Allied governments in their war against Soviet Russia, recently visited his native country in disguise and under an assumed name but was captured by the Soviet police and brought before a military tribunal.

On the 23rd of August, Savinkoff was served with the act of accusation, and within seventy-two hours, his trial was opened in the Military Collegium of the Supreme Court.

The announcement of Savinkoff's arrest created a sensation not alone in Russia, but thruout Europe as he was perhaps the most prominent agent of the British and other governments in their conspiracies to stir up civil war in Russia, since 1917.

Public Interested.

Public opinion in the capital and thruout the Soviet Republics is following with unabated attention the case of Boris Savinkoff, which has revealed a striking picture of the close connections between the white counter-revolutionary movement and foreign intervention and support against the Soviet, a connection which was known, of course, but as to the actual proportions of which was difficult to have an exact idea.

Boris Savinkoff had been a leading member of the Socialist Revolutionary Party, a believer in terror and an active participant of a number of daring attempts against the lives of high officials and dignitaries of the Tzarist regime, and among them against Home Minister Plehve in Petersburg and Grand Duke Sergius in Moscow.

Pleaded Guilty.

Savinkoff's trial opened on the 27th inst. To the question whether he is pleading guilty the accused answered in the affirmative without any hesitation. He then went on to give frank evidence dwelling on all the details and stating that he was now utterly disappointed in and disgusted with all the counter-revolutionary groups, that he despised them now and had lost faith in the sincerity of the interventionists and, finally, that he recognized that all his own anti-Soviet activities had been mistaken, while right was on the side of revolution.

Savinkoff told the court in detail about his many negotiations with Messrs. Millerand, Poincare, Noulens, Lloyd George, Churchill, Maszarik, Pilsudski and others, having met some of them in Paris and London, where he represented Kolchak and Denikin. Thru personal contact he had come to the conviction that the "Allies" aimed but at weakenihg Russia and benefitting by the counter-revolutionary movements in their own selfish interests. As for Russian emigrants abroad, Savinkoff gave vivid pictures of the moral decomposition and decay prevailing among them.

Intervention a Failure.

It was in the spring, 1923, that the accused, according to his statement, saw finally that intervention was no longer possible that all counter-revolutionary attempts were doomed to failure and that international recognition of the Soviet power was bound to come.

The last words of the accused were that having spent many years in Tsarist prisons and in exile, he had lost touch with the popular masses, whose mood and feelings he no longer understood. This, he says, explains why "an old revolutionary, who took part in tens of attempts against Tsarist ministers, later committed the most abominable crimes against his people and motherland, being one of those most responsible for the latter's bloody ordeal."

Issues Statement

The accused concluded his evidence by the following statement: "In the face of the people's representatives, I Savinkoff, declare that I erred, that I recognize the Soviet power, and I tell to all the emigrants who love the Russian people that they must recognize the Soviet power. It is harder for me to make such a statement than to listen to your verdict.

"This conviction that the people is with you I acquired not here, in the court, but a year ago—in Paris. And I returned to Russia, for I did not believe in what other people told about you. I am ready to hear the sentence of death and ask for no leniency. Your revolutionary conscience will remind you that I have been a revolutionary."

The sentence was declared after three hours' conference of the judges. Boris Savinkoff has been sentenced to capital punishment. However, taking into consideration the statements of the accused, the tribunal has decided to ask the supreme organs for retrieve.

Death Sentence Commuted!

The Central Executive Committee of the U. S. S. R. has satisfied the request of the Military Court and has commuted the death verdict to a sentence of ten years' prison.

In the motives put forth for this decision, it is explained that since the court, which tried aSvinkoff, was able to establish that the accused has given up struggle against the Soviet power and since he himself has stated that he is ready to serve loyally and honestly the toiling people under the leadership of the power established by the October Revolution, the application of the death sentence is not called for by the interests of preserving the revolutionary order. The proletarian masses cannot be actuated by motives of vengeance.

WORKERS LYCEUM TO BE SCENE OF A MOST UNUSUAL EVENING

There is really no reason why you shouldn't attend it, you know. And don't pretend that you don't know to what we refer. You know durn well that we mean the Communist cabaret that is being given by the North Side branch of the Young Workers League tomorrow night, Sept. 27, at the Workers Lyceum, which, as is well known, is situated at 2733 Hirsch Blvd.

We'll admit that you don't know the surprises that are going to be pulled off there, and by cricky, we don't propose to tell them to you now. Suffice it to say to the wise seekers for revolutionary amusement that the entertainment that will be got up by the Communist lads and lassies is unprecedened in the history of the socials of the radical movement. Heaven and hell have been moved in order to secure adept talent and after much effort it was done. The stage is set. Cough up your dough and spend a night as you never spent it before.

A word to the wise should be sufficient. The length of this word is for those who are not wise and have to be told. Come in huge masses!

PRINCE GETS CARD IN PRESSMEN'S UNION BY GRACE OF BERRY'S GANG

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—By starting the press of the Herald-Tribune, the Prince of Wales served a speedy apprenticeship and was qualified for election to the Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' union, Local No. 25, as an honorary member. H. R. H. The Prince of Wales, reads engraved union card No. 01, is qualified as journeyman, honorary member at large, of the union of which Major George L. Berry is international president. David Doyle and Joseph C. Orr are the local secretaries who issued the prince's working card.

I see the Legionnaries has met and give their appetite a whet for frequent portions, more and more, of wars and battles, blood and gore.

They took a awful vicious fling at folks who try to do a thing to make old Woodrow's promise good that wars should cease, as all wars should.

In language that was quite uncouth they hit at movement of the Youth, as if youth's only aim should be to die for the security of fat old bankers' oil concessions and Pierpont Morgan's world possessions. That youth should like to live a life that's free from fraticidal strife, makes Legion men to rave and groan and spit out epileptic foam.

The Legion having had its fill of Woodrow's democratic pill, would like to stuff the same dose down the throats of all the boys in town.

It's strange that those who failed to die back up Woodrow Wilson's lie, that conscripts must be shipped to France to break forever old Mar's lance, should shake a very warlike fist like any Wall Street jingoist. It seems as if the Legion lacks gasmasks to ward off the attacks of our financial pirate crew who mix imperialistic stew. Perhaps the boys who really fell would have a different tale to tell. But khaki lads who got as far as training camps give me a jar. What they can't tell of war themself would fill a Harvard five-foot shelf. Give 'em a little running start and they will beat N. Bonepart, and put up a most awful bluff that Caesar didn't know his stuff.

If Legion men wanta fight, I move we take 'em some dark night, and turn 'em loose in some bull-pen where they can "win the war" again. Then let each battered sunuvagun just figure out how much he won.

Special New York Communist Campaign Page of THE DAILY WORKER

WORKERS PARTY TO BE ON NEW YORK BALLOT

Organization Mobilized for Final Drive

By JOSEPH MANLEY.

Due to extraordinary efforts being put forth by the Dist. 2 organization in all probability the Workers Party and its candidates will be on the ballot in New York state.

To successfully accomplish this great aim, 20,000 signatures, 100 in each county, all of them sworn to before a notary public, must be collected and filed by the date of Oct. 5.

Party Mobilized.

The district organization has mobilized the entire party thruout the state for the accomplishment of this task. The district and local organization in New York has risen to this election struggle, as never before. A complete program of action covering the entire period of the election campaign has been mapped out. Every phase of the campaign is being considered and will be dealt with.

To conduct this political struggle and spread thru it a maximum amount of Communist propaganda and influence, various committees have been organized. The Facts and Publicity Committee was organized. Its purposes are:

1. To furnish publicity to the Party Press covering all activities during the election campaign.
2. Publicity for the capitalist press, locally.
3. To furnish material for special campaign issues of party papers.
4. To furnish material and draw up leaflets for general distribution among unions and at mass meetings.
5. Circular letters to trade unions appealing for support in the campaign.
6. Arranging meetings for speakers.
7. Meeting with committees and party speakers to explain methods and tactics, and to discuss policy.
8. Research—clipping, filing of important campaign information.

Finance Committee Formed.

A Finance Committee has also been formed, whose duties are:

1. The circularisation of party branches.
2. The circularisation of unions.
3. The circularization of fraternal organizations.
4. The circularisation of individuals for larger donations.
5. Shop collections campaign.
6. Tag Day in October.
7. Campaign meetings and street collections.
8. Publicity work, with financial ends in view.

Work to be done on above plan:

1. a. Follow up letter to branches.
   b. Subscription lists to branches.
2. a. Unions to be visited.
   b. Auxiliary campaign committees to be formed in local unions.
3. a. Conferences of our party members connected with fraternal organizations, to be held by language groupings.

A speakers' committee has been organized, which has full charge of all campaign meetings—meetings in halls, and meetings on the street. Special attention is being paid to the street meetings. As many as twenty speakers have been mobilized. Platforms, and even trucks, have been drawn into this service and on special "red" nights, as many as sixteen of these meetings will be held.

A principle object of the street meetings is to make them serve as feelers to the special meetings scheduled for halls.

W. P. Only Revolutionary Party.

With the complete bankruptcy of the socialist party in New York, the above program will go far towards getting the revolutionary message of Communism to the workers of this state. The Workers Party participate in the New York election campaign as the only revolutionary party.

If New York succeeds in collecting this great number of signatures in order to get on the ballot, it will be indeed, a victory for Communism.

Gitlow Backs Shop Drive

BENJAMIN GITLOW, candidate for vice-president on the Workers Party ticket has given his hearty endorsement to the shop drive conducted by the Workers Party Campaign Committee of New York to secure the support of the rank and file workers in the shops for the Workers Party in the election campaign. Ben Gitlow, who is a clothing worker by trade and has a first hand acquaintance with conditions in the New York shops, expressed the opinion that the exploited workers will give solid support to the Workers Party and will refuse to go along with the yellow trade union bureaucrats headed by Gompers in support of the false Messiah, LaFollette. The workers, in Gitlow's opinion, will not allow themselves to be deceived by the high sounding appeals of the labor bureaucrats and will give little or no support to the candidacy of LaFollette.

Gitlow's statement follows:

"The workers will not let themselves be deceived again by so-called progressives with their high-sounding phrases and empty promises. They have had their lessons with progressives like Bryan, Roosevelt and Wilson. LaFollette is no different. He stands for the same fake trust-busting program.

"LaFollette in office will not fight the trusts. He will fight the workers. The only party which deserves the support of every class-conscious militant worker is the Workers Party, the party of Communism, the party of uncompromising class struggle, the party of revolution, working towards the workers' and farmers' government. The Workers Party which leads the fight against the bosses—which is foremost in the Farmer-Labor Party movement, will surely receive the financial support of the rank and file workers in the shops. The Workers Party has no bankers to finance its campaign. It depends on the workers for the money needed to spread the message of Communism in this country."

The shop drive is progressing favorably. So far $3,000 have been pledged by the various leagues in the Trade Union Educational League. The T. U. E. L. leagues of every trade in this city are holding meetings and conferences for the purpose of raising finances for the Workers Party campaign. Among the leagues already in action are the cap-makers, dressmakers, the amalgamated Clothing Workers, cloak makers, metal workers, building trades, furriers. Indications are that the shop drive, which lasts from Sept. 21st to Oct. 6th, will draw tens of thousands of workers into the political campaign on the side of the Communists.

THOUSANDS OF CRANE COMPANY EMPLOYES MEET AND TALK WITH DAILY WORKER STRAW VOTE SQUAD

At six o'clock in the morning the DAILY WORKER Straw Vote Squad arrived in front of the Crane Company manufacturing plant yesterday at Kedzie and 39th Street and handed out the ballots to the men as they arrived and entered the buildings. Altho the ballots were handed out rapidly and there were a large number of people handing them out the rush at the last minute was so great it was impossible to talk to the men to explain the purpose of the vote.

A large number of vote getters including new volunteers returned to the Crane plant in the afternoon when the men left their work and at that time it was possible to talk with some of the workers and get their votes.

Men Look Tired.

The Crane company, a large machine manufacturing plant employing over 5000 men, occupies several red stone buildings that look out onto vast lawns of neatly kept grass. One wonders why the buildings were set in so far from the sidewalks. Perhaps so that no one walking on the street and even standing on the other side of the sidewalk could see the men at their work.

There are three entrances thru which the men pour into the factory at 7 o'clock every morning and from which they emerge at 4:15 every afternoon. The mad rush to punch the clock on time in the morning is later followed by a listless stream pouring out of the building and heading for cars and elevators. Fatigue is visibly written all over the faces and bearing of the men as they listlessly drag themselves home. There must be a terrific grind under up-to-date efficiency schemes in that dungeon that looks so dressed up from the exterior to pour out in the late afternoon such a mass of lifeless, expressionless humanity.

Many for Foster.

The count on this vote will be given in the next issue of the DAILY WORKER. The men came out late and the little groups that formed around the vote getters stood around in groups and discussed the votes, the DAILY WORKER and the presidential campaign.

The inspiring thing about the afternoon's visit was the group of workers who adhered to the Communist understanding of the campaign and who expressed themselves all the way with William Z. Foster.

Of course, there were the usual large number under the LaFollette illusion who believe that they are going to vote for a workers' government, just as in the other plants visited. These workers entered into discussion with the vote getters and they will be reached again when comrades will follow up the straw vote with distribution of the copies of the DAILY WORKER.

Dunne Praises Straw Vote Activity.

William F. Dunne, just returned from Russia, where he attended the Third Congress of the Red International of Labor Unions in commenting on the straw vote campaign conducted in Chicago, said:

"William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president is polling about 25 per cent of the straw vote taken in the shops and factories of Chicago by the DAILY WORKER. The taking of the straw vote is more than campaign propaganda; it is Communist work of a high order especially when accompanied by the sale of the DAILY WORKER as the plan calls for.

"When it is remembered that the overwhelming majority of the politically backward American working class find their resentment against the tyranny of American capitalism satisfied at this time by the middle class program of the LaFollette movement, the fact that 25 per cent of the industrial workers of Chicago express their preference for the Communist candidate and program is a sure indication of the support for and the necessity of such a revolutionary political campaign as the Workers' Communist Party of America is conducting in this period when the wave of social pacifiosm predicted by the Communist International two years ago finds its American expression in the LaFollette movement."

No better results have been obtained from any form of special propaganda used by the Workers Communist Party than the straw ballot now being circulated in Chicago. It is living proof that Communist election campaigns properly conducted are much more than an appeal for the votes of the workers on election day, proof that election campaigns can be utilized to bring the Communist program directly into the lives of the masses in the shops and factories.

There were not enough volunteers yesterday to make the Cypneo-Henneberry printing plant as was planned. It is hoped that the call for volunteers will be answered by many comrades today so that the DAILY WORKER STRAW BALLOT SQUAD at the Henneberry plant, the last one to be visited, will make a good showing.

BUFFALO W. C. OUT IN FAVOR OF WM. FOSTER

Gives Its Endorsement to Communist Nominee

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 25.—A general membership meeting of the Workmen's Circle, which was called by the city committee in the Labor Lyceum, Sunday, passed a resolution by an overwhelming vote to endorse Foster and Gitlow.

This general membership meeting was called for the purpose of discussing the presidential candidates in the coming elections. A. M. Green, the secretary of the city committee, pointed out that the Workmen's Circle in its declaration of principles calls upon the members to support those candidates that stand on the class struggle.

S. P. and W. P. There.

After a few members had spoken the chairman announced that there were representatives of the Socialist Party who wish the floor on the subject. It was agreed that both representatives of the Workers Party and the Socialist Party be given an opportunity to present their programs.

Mrs. Esther Friedman of New York City, representing the Socialist Party, asked that the members of the Workmen's Circle support LaFollette because that movement represented a revolt on the part of the workers and farmers in this country against the capitalist class. She also pointed out that the Socialist Patry when it has entered the LaFollette movement, did not give up its revolutionary principles but is working for the formation of a Farmer-Labor Party." She also said that while her sentiments are for Foster and Gitlow, she has entered the LaFollette movement because it has the support of the A. F. of L.

Speaks For Foster.

Joseph Siminoff representing the Workers Party, analyzed the economic and political situation in this country since the close of the world war. He pointed out that due to the centralization of wealth and the war burden upon the shoulders of the petit-bourgeoisie and also the wages for the industrial workers result in a revolt against the two old capitalist parties.

While the Workers Party was attempting to crystalize the revolt of the industrial workers and the exploited farmers into a Farmer-Labor Party, LaFollette and the so-called progressives and the co-operation of the Socialist Party betrayed the Farmer-Labor Party movement by sabotaging the St. Paul convention which was called for the expressed purpose of forming a Farmer-Labor Party.

In answer to the "revolutionary principles" of the Socialist Party, Siminoff pointed to the Social Democrats of Russia, who are today the leaders of the counter-revolutionary movement against the Soviet government of Russia. Also to the Social Democrats of Germany, England and France who are today serving the interests of the capitalist class in official capacity. Also to the Socialist Party of America, who are today part and parcel of the LaFollette petit-bourgois movement and yet maintain the "revolutionary principles" that Hillquit and Berger & Co. have long thrown to the wayside.

The meeting by an overwhelming vote denounced the "revolutionary principles" of LaFollette, Hillquit, Gompers & Co. and has enthusiastically endorsed Foster and Gitlow and the program for which they stand.

Powers Threaten Chang.

PEKING, Sept. 25.—The foreign powers were reported this afternoon to have notified Chang Tso-Lin, commander of the Manchurian army, that he will be held responsible for damage to foreign property bombed outside fortified areas.

TED ROOSEVELT WILL TOTE G. O. P. BANNER IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy was nominated today on the first ballot as the G. O. P. gubernatorial candidate on the republican party ticket.

A spectacular fight is expected between Roosevelt and Al Smith who is willing to accept the leadership of the democratic forces. While Roosevelt cannot hold a candle to Al as a campaigner, he has the so-called Roosevelt tradition behind him, and the support of the Ku Klux Klan.

Stuck to His Job.

Roosevelt was given a job in the navy department in order to win the favor of the Roosevelt admirers for the present administration. The oil scandal hit young Teddy a hard wallop, but he stuck to his job like glue, tho his boss, Denby, hit the long, long trail to Detroit.

It appears that Teddy, Jr's., principal occupation while holding down his job was landing well-paying sinecures for his relatives. His brother Archie was given a vice-presidency of an oil company by Harry Sinclair, the oil king, about the time that magnate succeeded in getting Teapot Dome from the navy department.

Acted as Chaperon.

None of the Roosevelt family have any outstanding ability. Sinclair's vice-president was only an errand boy tho he got $15,000 a year for purchasing tickets whenever his boss took an ocean voyage. Another Roosevelt was vice-president of a steamship company. The Roosevelt name was good for advertising purposes.

Al's Grin Widens.

It is rumored that Al Smith is smiling more sweetly than usual over the prospect of spilling oil on the Roosevelt scion.

The fortunes of the socialist candidate, the Reverend Norman Thomas, are not expected to be improved by the Smith candidacy. Al will have the support of the Tammany labor leaders who control the C. P. P. A. in New York. It is noted that on the day before Smith decided to accept the nomination for governor he dined with Sammy Gompers. The socialists are grinding their teeth with disappointment over the prospect of losing thousands of juicy votes.

COMMUNIST STREET MEETING IS BROKEN UP BY POLICEMAN IN "SOCIALIST" CITY OF MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 25.—The street meeting addressed by Comrade Ella Reeve Bloor here last Wednesday night was broken up by seven policemen, and Comrade Bloor was arrested and taken to the station house, despite the protests of her large audience.

The police sergeant, a former member of the socialist party, claimed to Comrade Bloor that discrimination against the Communists was not intended, but Comrade Bloor pointed out to him that all the newspapers reported large republican soap box meetings, and the former socialist had not molested the Coolidgeites who were holding meetings close by.

Comrade Bloor was kept at the station house until 9:30, when the former socialist, unable to trump up a charge against her, reluctantly let Comrade Bloor go. She will speak again in Milwaukee Saturday evening, at the corner of Third and Prairie Streets.

DEM. BOSS UNDER OBSERVATION; SHOULD HAVE BEEN DONE BEFORE

BOSTON, Sept. 25.—Tom Taggart, democratic national committeeman and Indiana political leader, is threatened with appendicitis and was today "under observation" at the Philips House, an exclusive branch of the Massachusetts general hospital here.

Taggart was stricken while at his summer home at Hyannis Port, on the cape. His wife and daughter are here, awaiting the verdict of the physicians.

Big Meetings Speed Communist Fight in Harlem Section, N. Y.

NEW YORK City, Sept. 25.—The Harlem Section of the Workers Party Local New York is actively engaged in the election campaign. Ten to fourteen open air meetings a week are being held. The meetings at 116th St. and Fifth Avenue are among the best attended meetings of the whole city. One meeting held at that corner on Saturday evening, Sept. 20, was a typical one.

The candidate for the 17th assembly District, William W. Weinstone, treated the crowd to a speech lasting more than an hour, a speech that swayed the crowd to outbursts of applause, a thing which is not usual in street meetings, where the people are skeptical and want to be shown.

The crowd was wholeheartedly with the speaker, and the hecklers did not receive much sympathy from the audience. Laughter greeted the quick sallies of wit, as William Weinstone gave his telling answers to the one or two persistent hecklers who thought they could rattle the speaker. One heckler said that he belonged to no independent union and that he supported LaFollette.

"But upon inquiry it turned out that he was a member of the Architectural Iron Workers, who had indorsed Foster and Gitlow and had condemned LaFollette. The heckler did not come back for more.

Julia Stuart Poynts, who is running for congress in the 20th Congressional district in Harlem, also addressed a large and enthusiastic crowd the evening of Sept. 12, which was Defense Day.

She showed that the Communists were the only ones who would lead the workers to a real fight against imperialism and war. The Harlem Section is doing its level best to spread the message of Communism in Harlem and to elect the candidates, Julia Stuart Poynts to congress and William Weinstone to the New York state assembly.

Meetings are held on many corners, such as 103rd St. and Lex., 106 St. and Mad., 115 St. and Mad., 110 St. and Fifth, 116 St. and Lenox, 125 St. and Fifth. Workers Party literature and the DAILY WORKER are being distributed in great quantities. Big campaign signs have been hung up at advantageous points where the attention of thousands of passersby is attracted. The section has ordered 75,000 campaign leaflets for distribution from house to house on Sept. 28th. New members are coming into the Workers Party as a result of the open air meetings.

Still At Large.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Sept. 25.—Two men, who escaped from the custody of a guard after they had been discovered in a mail car attached to the eastbound continental limited of the Northwestern railroad at Boone, were still at large today altho posses combed this district for them thruout the night.

New York Workers Party Campaign Speeding Up

By HARRY WINITZKY,
Campaign Manager, Workers Party, District No. 2.

THE Workers Party election campaign is well on its way here. Thirty or more street meetings are held every week where our speakers bring the message of the Workers Party to thousands of workers who come to listen and feel peeved if the meetings are adjourned before midnight. The response of the audiences and the questions put to our speakers, all indicate the growing realization that the socialist party has deserted the workers, and that the Workers Party is their champion.

In a few days the final dates for a series of RED NIGHTS will be announced. The RED NIGHTS will be held in the Congressional Districts where we have candidates. They will include the 12th, 13th, 14th, 20th and 23rd New York as well as the 7th and 16th Brooklyn. On these nights all the speakers of the entire city will invade the particular Congressional District where the RED NIGHT is being held. It is estimated that on these nights there will be from twenty to twenty-five meetings in the district.

Plans are also ready for a series of house-to-house canvasses and the distribution of literature from house to house. These will be started as soon as we are thru with the filing of petitions.

Many special issues dealing with the campaign in this district have already been published. These included issues of the Freiheit and the DAILY WORKER. On October 19 there will be a special Foster issue of the DAILY WORKER, which will be distributed, 100,000 in number, for the Foster meeting which will be held here at the New Star Casino on this date. There will also be another meeting with Foster at another large hall in Brooklyn, Arcadia Hall, on the same date.

To carry on all these activities and to further intensify our activities as the campaign develops, will require a great deal of finances. Subscription lists have been sent out to the members of the party, the Young Workers League and the Trade Union Educational League. Requests for support have also been sent to many labor organizations. Comrades must get busy with the lists and send money in immediately to the Campaign Committee, 210 E. 12th St. Our comrades in the unions must also see that our request is taken up and fight for the support of the Communist campaign.

HEARST'S SCABBY SEATTLE RAG TO BE PUT ON TRIAL

Girl Was Worked Eleven Hours in Day

SEATTLE, Sept. 25.—Six jurymen will decide Oct. 9 whether William Randolph Hearst's non-union Seattle daily is within the law in working women linotype operators 11 hours a day. The Post-Intelligencer, which has been operating non-union for over three months because of its refusal to sign the typo contract agreed to by all other Seattle dailies, is charged with violating the women's 8-hour law of Washington in the case of Lillian Wilson who was worked 11 hours one day last June.

Oh, Piffle.

The Hearst daily admits the long shift but pleads that a newspaper is not a "mechanical establishment" and therefore not within the scope of the 8-hour law. Its lawyer gravely pleaded in preliminary hearing that the Hearst sheet is not a mechanical but an educational and informative institution.

Justice Dalton will let a jury pass on this cultural plea. The Washington attorney general is making it a test case.

French Society Urges Recognition of Soviet Russia

(By Rosta.)

MOSCOW, Aug. 29. (by mail.)—The society of New Franco-Russian Friendship has elected Mr. Herriot as honorary president of the society. In his congratulatory message, the society lays before the French premier the society's resolution on the necessity of settling without delay the question of the restoration of relations between France and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. This resolution further urges that this step be done in the only form which is possible at the present time, namely de jure recognition, as was done by England and Italy.

In another statement, issued by the society, the latter sharply criticizes the anti-Soviet policy of Rumania in Bessarabia, pointing out that the terror practised by the local Rumanian authorities has provoked hatred against that country among the Bessarabian population yearning to join the Union of Soivet Republics. "The peace of Europe," the society declares, "depends on the pacification of eastern Europe, and that is impossible without agreement with the U.S.S.R."

WANTED—Comrades, men and women, earn extra money, spare time, send stamp for particulars. S. Cruden, Box 66, Xenia, Ohio.

THE WISE MR. WISE

FEATURED on the first page of the Federation News of Sept. 13, the successor to the New Majority since the return to the Gompers' camp of the once irreconcilliable Fitzpatrick and Nockels of the Chicago Federation of Labor—is an attack on William Z. Foster and the Workers (Communist) Party of America, to which the name of Joseph A. Wise is attached.

The article can be divided into two parts—one accusing William Z. Foster and the Workers (Communist) Party of aiding and abetting the election campaign of Charles G. Dawes and his fellowers and in general, disrupting the labor movement, the other referring that the printing plant and headquarters of the Workers (Communist) Party are the property of William Z. Foster and that the money to pay for the same came from some source other than the supporters of the Communists in the United States.

To dispose of the first criticism, it is enough to say that the Communists know there is no difference between capitalist politicians, so far as the working class is concerned, on the plate of one or the other of the two capitalist parties. The Communists stand for a class party of the workers and farmers; their efforts for the last two years have been devoted to building such a party and they consider support of capitalist politicians, no matter what their promises, as outright betrayal of the interests of the working class. This was their position in the election which resulted in the return of the injunction judge, Dennis Sullivan, to office.

Regarding the second question raised by Joseph A. Wise—the DAILY WORKER printing plant and the ownership thereof—it is only necessary to cite the fact that $71,000 was raised by the Workers (Communist) Party of America for the purpose of establishing a daily paper in a campaign that lasted for months, the itemized receipts of which were published weekly in the Weekly Worker, the forerunner of the daily.

Inasmuch as Joseph A. Wise is an employe—a linotype operator of the DAILY WORKER Publishing Company, and has been such since the plant began operations, he is, doubtless, familiar with these facts which he chose, for purposes obvious in his article, to ignore.

The charges made by Joseph A. Wise are serious ones. He speaks of the "illogical, jesuitical reasoning of a Communist"; he characterizes as "futile webs of sophistry" the statements of William Z. Foster published on page one of the Aug. 30th issue of the DAILY WORKER; he calls Foster the "greatest mountebank, charlatan and faker that ever raised his voice in the halls of the American labor movement"; he brands as "intellectual renegade Americans" certain other members of the Workers (Communist) Party whom he does not name; he is certain, he says, that Foster's name will be placed side by side with that of Benedict Arnold.

If Joseph A. Wise, the "lowly rank and file trade unionist" who boasts of his enlistment in the army that made the world safe for the House of Morgan with the aid of Brigadier-General Charles G. Dawes, his brother-in-arms, is so concerned about the iniquitious role played by the Communists in the question arises concerning the assistance rendered by him in spreading what he refers to in such bitter terms, i. e. the propaganda of the Communists contained in each issue of the DAILY WORKER.

Joseph A. Wise draws $58.05 per week as a linotype operator in the DAILY WORKER composing room and up-to-date he has never, upon receiving his check, manifested any curiosity as to the source of the funds with which he is paid.

It might be well to say here that Joseph A. Wise, previous to his employment by the DAILY WORKER, has spent most of his life in the composing rooms of capitalist sheets and that nowhere in the archives of the labor movement is there any record of his indulging in specific criticism of the capitalist papers in whose service he was. Two reasons for this lifetime of silence concerning the misdeeds of the capitalists can be gleaned from his recent attack on William Z. Foster and the Communists. First, Joseph A. Wise is a believer in capitalism; in such so, that he is proud of his record of defending it as a member of its armed forces. In the second place, he knows that anything approaching in venom his attack on the Communists, made on a capitalist newspaper, would be met with instant discharge. The Communists, bois ever, are the target of attack on the part of every hanger-on of American capitalism from Samuel Gompers and his henchmen down to the organs of the industrial and finance capitalists, so that Joseph A. Wise, one of those deluded workers who cause the hearts of the big bosses to rejoice and whom they love to refer to as a "typical American workingman," feels it quite safe to join in the chorus.

We, Communists, would take Joseph A. Wise a little more seriously, at least, we would give him credit for sincerity, if it were not for the $58.05 check which he receives every week from the organization he claims to believe is a menace to everything he professes to hold dear.

The crowning proof of the Gompers-inspired and hypocritical character of the document to which Joseph A. Wise has signed his name, is contained in the facts above set forth—that Joseph A. Wise gets his living from the money raised by the Communist movement of America; that he aids in disseminating propaganda in which he does not believe and that he does it for pay and that for $58.05 per week he is willing to swallow any opinions he may hold.

Joseph A. Wise is still employed by the DAILY WORKER and will continue to be so employed just as long as he does his work—the direct contrary of what his fate would be on even the most liberal capitalist sheet. Communist propaganda, dealing as it does with the vital problems of the working class, offering the only solution of these problems, does not deteriorate simply because the medium thru which it reaches the workers is handled by an enemy.

This seems to us to be the one aspect of the problem which Joseph A. Wise, workingman and staunch defender of capitalism against the assaults of the class to which he belongs, has failed to consider.

for their organizations. It should be remembered however, that George L. Berry, president of the International Pressmen's Union is the real boss of that union. The local members should not be blamed too harshly. Berry has broken more than one strike called by the New York pressmen and with the aid of stool-pigeons, forced the men back to work after bringing in scabs to man the presses. Giving a card to a Prince is not the worst thing that notorious faker has done.

GENEHAL Foch, the French butcher, is also honorary member of an American trade union, the bricklayers, I believe, and His Honorable Fatness "Bill Taft" was given a card in the Hodcarriers' Union. Perhaps Coolidge might yet organize a Strike-breakers' Union and make a fortune selling membership cards at Secretary of Labor Davis did organizing the Loyal Order of the Moose. It would not be surprising if Samuel Gompers gave Coolidge a charter if he ever organizes such a union. He helped break the strike that made Calvin famous.

THE Chinese situation is getting clearer every day. The names are not showing any improvement but we venture to predict that before the capitalists get thru with China you will be able to read the signs on your laundry checks. The linguistic difficulties do not bother our master class. In a manifesto which appears today in this paper, the British Communist Party shows who's who in the scrimmage. Our bewhiskered friend Charles Evans Hughes is backing up Wu Pei Fu as we have already stated, and so is the Ramsay MacDonald government, while Japan is behind the Manchurian war lord, General Chang. Sun Yat Sen, the leader of Southern China, stands for progress and the rights of the workers. We are rooting for Sun Yat Sen.

THE spies and agents provocateur of the British government were never busier than at this moment. We find them causing trouble in Persia, financing revolts against the Emir of Afghanistan, plotting rebellions in Georgia and trying to embroil Turkey against Soviet Russia. British agents are also busy in China. The British imperialists realize that Soviet Russia is the only great power that stands between them the exploited peoples of the Orient and the capitalists robbers of own the British Empire, hence the plottings. But Soviet Russia has a good information system and most of the plots get nipped in the bud and likewise the plotters.

THE NEW LEADER, official organ of the Independent Labor Party of Britain, makes a vicious attack on A. J. Cook, new secretary of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, because of his fight on the Dawes plan and because of the miners' demand for an increase in wages without considering its effect on other industries. The New Leader is a mouthpiece of the Labor government as the London Daily Herald is the organ of the Trade Union Congress. The I. L. P. organ regrets that the miners under Cook did not take the same broad view of things as they did in the early days of the war under other leadership, when their leaders declared that they would not seek an increase in wages if the workers in other industries could be restrained from making demands, while the "country was in danger."

PERHAPS some of our readers think that we are too hard on the leaders of the British Labor Party. In fact, one reader who considers himself more or less of a Communist objected to putting Ramsay MacDonald, the beneficiary of Sir Alexander Grant, in the same category as Albert B. Fall, one of the leading grafters in the Harding cabinet and receiver of the Doheny satchel. But when the official organ of the British socialists openly take up the cudgels for the Dawes plan and denounce the miners' leaders for opposing it, it appears to us that anybody who could defend such action, belongs with Coolidge and Dawes. That worthy pair could not be more concerned about the interests of the capitalists than the socialists.

FRANCE is having trouble with her subjects in Guadeloupe, an island in the Carribean Sea. Two bombs were recently set off near the prison where a Negro deputy and "agitator" was imprisoned. Note that every man or woman who stands up for freedom is given the title of "agitator" by the capitalist press. But it is a title that every rebel should be proud of. Liberals sometimes pay tribute to the benevolence of French colonial rule. Bosh! French rule is no different to the rule of any other exploiting nation, neither is its purpose any different.

COOLIDGE is staying on the job in Washington these days, his press agent tells us. He prefers to clean his desk of correspondence that will keep until he thinks. We have no doubt but the president finds doing chores around the mahogany easier than chasing an elusive idea around his brain. His thots are slow, yet hard to grasp.

COOLIDGE FARM LOAN PLAN GOOD FOR FINANCIERS

Works Havoc with North Western Farmers

FULLERTON, N. Dak., Sept. 25.—Ten per cent, compounded semiannually, is the seat of the pain in the northwestern states, according to a Dickey county farmer whose forehead is plowed into deep furrows by mortgage worries. Nearly all farmers in this region, both tenants and owners, are paying 10 per cent interest compounded semi-annually to some moneylender or other. If they don't pay, it is because a sheriff's sale of their land or goods writes the last chapter on their farming. A local lawyer estimates that 50 per cent of the owners in this section will give up their holdings to banks this year.

Bankers Feel Fine.

Bankers are declared the principal beneficiaries of President Coolidge's farm loan scheme. In some cases it is manipulated so that the bank gets government money at 6 per cent and immediately reloans to the farmer at 10 per cent.

Crops are not bad but proceeds gravitate to the moneylender.

Prison Labor Foe Will Go to Senate From S. Carolina

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 25.—Cole L. Blease, former governor of South Carolina, who was nominated for the U. S. senate by more than 2,000 majority in the second or runoff primary, stands elected since he will have no competition in the purely formal November elections.

Blease came under fire during his administration as governor for turning out a large number of prisoners from the state prison, when he refused to let a prison contract firm exploit them. He claimed that the majority of them did not belong in prison anyhow and that many of the grafters ought to be in.

During several strikes Blease refused to furnish state troops for protecting strikebreakers. When asked to protect a carload of strikebreakers he ran the car into the penitentiary, saying that they would get completely adequate protection there.

Ottawa's Fashion Plate Show Will Greet the Prince

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 25.—The fashionable stratum of the Canadian capitol was buzzing today with speculation upon the American girls and women would be who will be invited to the ball to be given in the government house here on the night of October 17 for the Prince of Wales.

Governor-General and Lady Byng are to be the hosts.

It is known that his royal highness would not be at all displeased to see among the guests some of the persons of the fashionable set he met during his recent holiday at Syosset, Long Island.

Wales will spend October 16, and 18 in Ottawa on his return trip from his ranch at High River.

Will Test Solon's Cider.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Investigation of the cider party of representative John P. Hill, republican, of Maryland, was placed in the hands of United States Attorney Woodcock of Baltimore, by the department of justice today.

Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, in charge of prohibition activities, said that the United States attorney at Baltimore was authorized to take what action he sees fit.

Too Much Gas.

SPENCER, Mass., Sept. 25.—Frederick E. Partington, founder of the National Park seminary for girls in Washington, and several other schools, was found dead in the bath room at the E. Jones residence here where he and his wife were visiting.

Death was due to accidental gas poisoning, according to a report of medical examiner Deland of Warren.

AUTOCRAT DECREE MUZZLES POSTAL WORKER'S FAMILY

Washington Says They Can't Enter Politics

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Alarmed by the indignation which has swept the ranks of the nation's postal workers following Calvin Coolidge's veto of their pay raise national Republican leaders are broadcasting an order to all postmasters not only forbidding government employes from mixing in politics, but including their wives, fathers, mothers and all members of the family.

The postal men's wage increase, which passed both houses of congress by big majorities, had received the support of chambers of commerce and employers thruout the country.

WHITE MEN JUMP REDSKIN CLAIMS UP IN VICTORIA

The Old, Old Story is Retold Again

(By Federated Press)

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 25.—The Kitwancool Indians have been compelled to give way to the steady encroachments of the white man. In a formal notice issued by the government of British Columbia the chiefs of the tribe are warned that they must not molest white people, or prevent them from entering their tribal reserve in northern British Columbia.

The Kitwancool Indians had certain of their reserve lands "jumped" during the land boom some years ago and later the government issued titles to the white interlopers without consulting the Indians. This rankled the tribe so much that the provincial government was forced to take possession of some of the alienated lands to hold "in trust." The Indians were always suspicious of the stewardship of the government and these fears have been confirmed by the order issued to the tribe which gives the white "land-jumpers" the tracts formerly owned by the tribe.

That's What They Tell 'em.

Following the warning to the Kitwancool chiefs the Indian commissioner stated that were there any further molestation of whites police action would follow.

Thus marks another step in the vanishing of the red man before Christian civilization.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. The Textile Crisis

A serious crisis is brewing in the textile industry. It appears that the cotton mill barons have decided that the time is appropriate for a general wage cut ranging from ten to twenty per cent. The Amoskeag has already reduced wages by ten per cent. Thruout the South similar cuts have gone into effect. There are loud rumblings of sharp and bitter discontent among the workers whose strike talk is becoming more widespread.

Present indications tend to lead one to believe that the textile overlords will attempt to repeat their move of 1921. Then, the manufacturers tried to set the pace in wage reductions. They were the ones to take the first step, to strike the first blow in the grand offensive launched against the workers on the eve of the great depression. Of course, today as then; the capitalists will talk of the necessary readjustments and will hide their real purposes behind vagaries.

The textile workers should lose little time in preparing for a fight to the finish. The workers in the other industries must be prepared to take every step to assure the textile workers unstinted support in their struggle against wage reductions. Once the wages of the textile operatives are cut, a wholesale reduction of wages thruout the country will be next in order and only a matter of weeks.

There is no possible, tangible excuse for the proposed big cut in the already too low wages of the cotton milll workers. Thru the use of increased machinery per worker, to the extent of nearly twenty-five per cent, the manufacturers have increased their profits in recent years. Then, there has been a reduction in the cost of cotton prices totaling more than thirty per cent in the last few months. Besides, the robber tariff, the Fordney-McCumber Act, has been putting into the pockets of every textile baron at least forty-two cents on every dollar's worth of cotton goods sold. Finally, thru stock dividends and other shady financial manipulations, the New England capitalists have been hiding the real volume of their profits.

In the last strike the textile workers put up a magnificent battle. Their resistance took the bosses by surprise. We feel sure that with the aid of the workingmen of other industries, the New England mill hands will decisively trounce the vicious alignment of dollar and bayonet.

British Unemployment Rising

The latest official British employment figures indicate a further decline in the number engaged in industry for the month of August as compared with July.

It is true, the increase in unemployment was small, but the significance is far more portentous than the figures would show. The MacDonald government has taken no positive effective steps to alleviate the condition of the disemployed workers. It may appear paradoxical, but it is true, nevertheless, that the only "step" taken by the Labor government for the relief of the jobless was the order for six new dreadnoughts.

The MacDonald government did not dare even irritate the surface of the tough hide of British capital. The MacDonald government would not even consider disturbing the profits and property of the British employers. Perhaps it was not within the power of the MacDonald government to deflect the economic trend in Great Britain. No doubt the tendency towards industrial derangement is, in a large measure, international and beyond the effective control of any national government machine. Yet no one can blink the fact that local and national governmental steps can be taken to alleviate and to modify sharp tendencies.

The mounting unemployment figures in Great Britain are also barometric in another sense. Unemployment is rising in Poland, Sweden, and Italy. The situation in France, despite countless artificial factors, is far from satisfactory. Even in the United States, whose industrial machinery, alone of all the leading capitalist nations was strengthened rather than weakened by the war, we have an increasingly serious unemployment crisis.

Of all the original, active belligrent countries, Great Britain has shown the most marked industrial improvement since the armistice. The critical unemployment situation in this country is a painful index to the blighting effect of the imperialist war on the working and living conditions of the European masses. It is a source of indisputable evidence that the derangements in international capitalism are organic rather than temporary.

There must be something terribly wrong in the editorial or news department of the Chicago Tribune. Its Sunday edition carried no news of the big rebellion against the Soviets in Georgia. Don't the liars work on Saturday?

Government Fairness

The Pennsylvania Railroad has long been an avowed enemy of organized labor. Without doubt this road is the most "hard boiled" of all the systems which resisted the continuation of a union among the railway workers after the end of the war.

Time and again this railroad has defied every government order which masks under the pretense of fairness in labor disputes. The Pennsylvania even went so far as to turn a cold shoulder to the late President Harding who, in turn, was forced to manifest publicly his disapproval of its too blunt and patently rough-shod labor tactics.

It seems as if we are about to be treated to another dose of government fairness in a controversy between the workers and the Pennsylvania System. The Order of Railway Telegraphers has been in a struggle with the powerful Pennsylvania for union recognition. In this contest the Railroad Labor Board has tacitly lent aid and comfort to the manipulations of the magnates, but the railway workers held their lines fast. It was evident to all that the employers could not put over their fake union schemes. Consequently, the Railroad Labor Board was compelled to pretend disinterestedness in the bitter struggle.

It is on this basis that the picked strikebreakers, under the thumb of chairman Ben Hooper, have ordered a secret ballot to determine whether the bona-fide union or the fake union has the majority support on the Pennsylvania System. No one will be deceived by the sudden fit of impartiality the Railroad Labor Board is now showing. No one knows better than Mr. Hooper that the company union is an outright fraud. No one knows better than Mr. Hooper that the Order of Railway Telegrahpers is an established railway organization that has won its spurs in the trade union field.

The attempt of the Railroad Board to secure a so-called fair vote is only a skillfully camouflaged maneuver to prevent the workers from hitting back at the Pennsylvania System. The telegraphers are talking strike. They are preparing to lock horns with the Pennsylvania magnates. The Railroad Labor Board is simply stepping in to secure an excuse for denouncing the workers if they strike for the right to organize. This is the only fairness that the United States government knows in fights between workers and exploiters.

The New York Campaign

New York is now the scene of a lively campaign. The Tammany forces, having been deserted by many of their labor followers, are pinning their hopes on the re-nomination of Al Smith. The reactionary republicans are bending every effort to have that second-rater, Theodore Roosevelt, enter the lists against the democratic white hope on the basis of the prestige his family name carries. The socialists have been swallowed by the LaFollette outfit to such a damaging political extent that it seems almost inconceivable for the independents ever to disgorge enough of this following for the Hillquit crowd to re-establish itself as an independent organization.

The Communists are also waging an energetic campaign. The first Communist task is to get on the ballot. In the Empire State the workers are hindered in the exercise of their political rights by technical barriers of a most complex and complicated sort limiting the suffrage rights thru a high requirement of endorsing signatures. Despite these obstacles in their path, the Communists are showing extraordinary energy in their surmounting the difficulties. There is every likelihood of the Workers Party winning its legal right to be on the New York ballot.

But this victory can come only if the Communists, the class conscious workers, and all the supporters of and sympathizers with the political and economic aspirations of the working class will get together to secure the necessary number of signatures. Once the Workers Party succeeds in winning its place on the ballot, the Communists will be in a position to engage in a real political campaign against that motley army of enemies of the workers, against the exploiters, the LaFollette-Tammany alliance, and the latter's socialist fig leaf.

The mass meeting to be addressed by the Communist candidate for governor, James P. Cannon, Oct. 2, should be turned into a victory meeting to celebrate the success of placing the Communists on the ballot in the Empire State of the Union.

The national office of the socialist party is worrying lest the organization may not be able to take advantage of the fact that after the election the LaFollette clubs will dissolve "Since victory is already achieved." We venture to predict that after the election there won't even be enough of the socialist party for the national office to send its press service piffle to.

The Central Labor Union of Indianapolis gave a vote of commendation to the Prince of Wales for accepting a life membership card in the Web Pressmen's Union of New York. While this sentiment dominates the American labor movement, Calvin Coolidge is justified in believing that the capitalist system is safe.

It is reported that Calvin Coolidge may go to the country as soon as his campaign managers succeed in perfecting a mechanical device that will make up for his lack of personality, his mental bankruptcy and his deficiency in oratorial gifts. An invisible mask is also suggested. Perhaps the K. K. K. might help him out with a hood.

Japs War on the Corean Revolutionists

(The following appeal to us for assistance, material and moral, coming from Corean Comrades should receive our utmost consideration. It reveals the almost incredible cruelty inflicted upon the revolutionists of Corea by the Japanese government. This appeal was sent to the DAILY WORKER from Moscow, Russia, thru the Fifth Congress of Communist International.)

To the Workers of North and South America and Australia:

COMRADE WORKERS: You very probably have very little conception of the terrible conditions in which your brother workers of Corea are living at the present time under the heel of the brutal Japanese imperialists.

Thirteen years have elapsed since Japan annexed Corea, and during this period everything has been done to convert the millions of this country into slaves, and erase all traces of their own independence and squeeze the last drop of blood from the Corean workers. Corea became the colony of the most rapacious capitalists who began to enslave the country, and subject the people to intense trials and poverty. By means of the banks and capitalist companies all the means of existence were captured and hundreds of thousands of peasants were driven from the land which the conquerors monopolized. Millions of other peasants became completely dependent upon them, being forced to leave their own land, that had been seized by the predatory Japanese. Thousands of Corean poor were driven into the mines and pits, where these slaves of labor toil regardless of time under inhuman conditions and with superhuman intensity to enrich their oppressors.

This state of affairs was bound to call forth attempts of resistance from the workers of Corea. The war for national liberation took the acute form of armed uprisings, revolts and partisan struggles under these conditions of the colonial hegemony of the bourgeoisie. A network of revolutionary and terrorist groups was spread thruout the country.

Japanese oppression called forth a revolutionary movement and created revolutionaries, for by extracting the natural riches of the country and creating the elements of industry, the Japanese created their grave-diggers: the proletariat, and at the same time its vanguard: Communist organizations. At the present time, the Japanese imperialists with a handful of Japanophile Corean bourgeoisie are confronted with the fierce hatred of fifteen million slaves who are anxiously awaiting the signal for the struggle for liberation.

Revolution stands like a spectre before the eyes of the Japanese imperialists. The Japanese bourgeoisie feels the ground under its feet is shaking just as in the recent earthquake. But the fear of this spectre of revolution is greater than the fear of any possible earthquake, and hence the Japanese are trying every measure of the vilest oppression and repression to ward off the coming revolution. In September of last year when the earth was still heaving from the earthquake, they organized wholesale exterminations, progroms, whipping and shooting of the Corean workers and the Japanese Communists. The prisons are being packed to overflowing with the workers and Communists. In these black holes the fighters for the cause of the proletariat are tortured and murdered under the most incredible conditions.

Immediate moral and material help is necessary to help the fight of the Corean workers and peasants. They must know that they are working in the cause of the world proletariat when they are fighting against their own capitalists in Corea. They must be assured that they are not alone in their struggle, that innumerable millions of workers, fighters and brothers are behind them and do not forget them even tho they are no longer in their ranks.

Workers: Organize aid for the Corean revolutionaries!

Send your contributions for the Corean political prisoners thru the J. R. A. the organization of International Red Aid and solidarity.

Show the capitalist world the strength and unity of the international proletarian ranks.

With revolutionary greetings.

The Delegation of the Corean Communist Party to the Fifth Congress of the Communist International.

SAVE PIETRO NIGRA FROM MUSSOLINI!

For a United Front Against Fascist Assassins

Statement by the Red International Affiliation Committee

WHEN Jacob Tori, an Italian boy who was gathered up with other members of the I. W. W. during the war and imprisoned at Leavenworth, was released, he was straight-away deported to the land of Mussolini and his Fascist murder gangs. Tori has never since been heard from. The capitalist government of Coolidge and his "Labor" Secretary for Deportation, Mr. Davis, stands as an accomplice to the murderous regime of Mussolini and Rossoni.

Today, Pietro Nigra, another Italian revolutionary member of the I. W. W., also a Leavenworth victim, is scheduled on Nov. 18 to be taken in custody by the decree of capitalist courts in violent disregard of the "sacred" constitution and of rights of Italian citizens under the existing Italian-American treaties—to follow Tori into the bloody jaws of Fascism. This monster never fails to do murder when its victim is as helpless as Tori was and as Pietro Nigra will be, handcuffed and shipped at the mercy of Fascist crews on Italian ships. The prisoner is reported, sometimes, to have "jumped overboard." Or, he "disappears," while manacled, between the gangplank and his Italian village birthplace.

It is the duty of every worker and workers' organization, individually and collectively, to raise a voice of indignant protest at the complicity of the capitalist government of Coolidge and Davis in the murder of deported Italian workers. The bones of nine thousand workers, murdered by Mussolini's Fascists, strew the class war battlefields of Italy. These workers, revolutionists, for the most part adherents of the Communist International and Red International of Labor Unions, are dead because they upheld the interests of the workers. Mussolini is generous to the grave-diggers. He will gladly add Pietro Nigra to the lot with which he hopes to outdo Thiers of the Paris Commune. Especially if he can hide the deed from public exposure.

But—in the shops and factories, in the camps and mills—and in their union halls—workers of America must raise their voices in protest, and by letter and formal resolution addressed to the "Secretary of Labor" Davis, Washington, D. C., demand that Pietro Nigra be not sent to his death in Fascist Italy.

The Red International Affiliation Committee points out that this illustrates how necessary to the I. W. W. is close relationship with the other revolutionary unions of the world in the Red International of Labor Unions. The Red International Affiliation Committee not only urges American workers to do all in their power to stop this threatening deportation, but it pledges its best efforts thru its international connections to cause the Italian proletariat to warn the Mussolini government that it will be held accountable for the safety of Pietro Nigra should the capitalist government of America deport him to Italy.

DEMOCRATS AND REPUBLICANS HIT BY NEGRO LEADER

Charges Plan to Keep Negro Voteless

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—A scathing attack on the republican and democratic parties as enemies of the Negro race is made in the October Crisis by James Weldon Johnson, secretary National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He charges that the two old parties have formed a gentlemen's agreement to keep the 12,000,000 Negroes in American as a political nonenity.

Johnson accuses the republican machines in the southern states of assenting to the disfranchisement of 4,500,000 Negroes to maintain their monopoly of federal patronage. The Republican party in the south, he says, is nothing but an office holding oligarchy.

A Gentlemen's Agreement.

The white democrats in the south control the state offices; the white republicans the federal offices. It is a gentlemen's agreement against the Negro masses.

Smash this gentlemen's agreement, urges Johnson to the Negroes who can vote.

Hush Oil Scandal Until Election Passes

Coolidge Administration Has Sinclair Suit Put Off Until January 6th

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Sept. 26.—Hearing of the government's suit against Harry F. Sinclair's Mammoth Oil company, lessee of Teapot Dome, in connection with fraud charges, set for October 7 has been postponed until January 6, it was announced here today by Judge John Lacey of counsel for Sinclair.

Judge Lacey said postponement was granted by Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy on application of government counsel.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE Ludendorf-Hitler-Graefe factions of the German Fascisti movement had a unity convention recently. Large demonstrations were held by all the anti-republican organizations on German Day, August 17. Violent speeches against the government were delivered by the Ludendorf followers and the the Ebert government has been urged to take action against the monarchists for inciting to murder nothing of the kind has been done.

HERE is a sample of the kind of language used by one of the anti-republican speakers: "Standing here by the side of the greatest German general, (Ludendorf) I accuse the present government of the Reich of treason to the people and the state. It belongs on the gallows . . . We We swear to follow our leader, Ludendorf, to death if need be, when he calls us and not to rest until the November criminals are brot before the Supreme Court of justice." The thousands that heard this exhortation shouted "Hang them" and "To the lamp post."

* * *

WITH a social-democratic president in Germany and thousands of Communists in jail for participating in strikes, no doubt you will expect to read a little further down that steps were taken to punish those people for advocating violent measures. But Dr. Karl Jarres, the Minister of the Interior, does not move a finger, and the national authorities instead of punishing the reactionaries for inciting to murder, give the Junker officers in the army leave of absence in order to attend those anti-republican demonstrations.

IN sharp contrast to the leniency displayed by the German court that acquitted Ludendorf and Hitler of their beer-hall revolution last April, are the penalties inflicted by the same body on seven Communists and three regular army soldiers for having taken some ammunition from a military barracks last Fall. The sentences ranged from three to eight years at hard labor. Early during the trial the presiding judge remarked that if the soldiers were guilty of the charge, they should be taken out and shot. The defense lawyers refused to proceed with the trial while the judge presided, but the judge remained at his post despite protests to the socialist president. Ebert, who afterwards promoted the offending judge to the place of Permanent President of the Supreme Court for the Defense of the Republic. That is how "justice" works under a socialist president in Germany.

During the sermon he explained that he never wanted to come to Ina, Illinois, but that the Lord kept pushing him on. POSTPONEMENT OF I. W. W. CASE AGAIN ORDERED

"Injunctionites" Feel Anger of Members

The injunction suit brought by the Griffith-Rowan-Bowerman faction in the Industrial Workers of the World against Secretary-Treasurer Thomas Doyle and his following, which was scheduled to be heard by Master in Chancery Fred Bernstein, 160 N. LaSalle Street, has again been postponed until Oct. 20.

This latest postponement, which shelves the injunction case until after the I. W. W. special convention called for Oct. 13, was brought about at the request of William F. Bigelow, attorney for the Rowan-Griffith group, which is apparently responding to pressure of the rank and file membership to keep the case out of court.

No Injunctions For Wobblies.

The membership of the I. W. W. thruout the country is known to have registered deep resentment against the resort to the capitalist courts by the I. W. W. factions, and it is now thot the special convention of the organization will fight out the factional differences rather than leaving them to the capitalist courts.

William Cunnea, attorney for the Doyle-Fisher group in the I. W. W. organization, against whom the injunction has been brought, told the DAILY WORKER reporter, it is perfectly satisfactory to him to have the injunction case postponed. "I am a great believer in the I. W. W. ironing out of its own differences," Cunnea told the DAILY WORKER. "The convention is the place for the fight and not the capitalist courts. It was the Griffith-Rowan faction which brot the case into the courts and not the Doyle-Fisher group and I am perfectly willing to have the postponement. However, as far as the legal aspect of the case is concerned, I am ready to have the hearing at once."

Mr. Cunnea declared the deportation of Pietro Nigra, set for December, is a disgrace to the country, as Nigra is in danger of death at the hands of the Fascisti should he be deported. He declared that if all else fails, an effort will be made to have Nigra deported to some country other than Italy. Cunnea gave the DAILY WORKER reporter a six months' subscription to the DAILY WORKER.

The injunction suit will be reported back by Master in Chancery Bernstein to the labor hating Judge Dennis E. Sullivan if the I. W. W. factions continue to fight the case in the capitalist courts. The I. W. W. case has been placed on the books of Sullivan's court, the same court which has issued so many anti-picketing injuctions aiding the employers in time of strikes, and Sullivan will have the final decision to make in the I. W. W. case.

STRUGGLE FOR JOBS AT MEET OF CARPENTERS

Raise Fake Issues in Nominations

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 26.—The nomination of Willis A. Brown, of Peoria, Ill., to oppose William L. Hutchenson for re-election to the presidency of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners in convention here, was made at today's session.

The basis of Brown's opposition, which is supported by C. J. Mulcahy, who was beaten up the other day, is the administration's effort to establish an old age home in Florida, whereas the Brown-Mulcahy bunch are in in favor of concentrating on the pension system.

Is Artificial Issue.

It is pointed out here by the militant delegates that this is merely an artificial issue stirred up in order to afford an excuse for one group to get into control of the international jobs in place of the incumbents.

The progressives are supporting the proposition of providing for elderly members thru the union, instead of having to throw them to the mercies of capitalist charities, but at the same time they point out that a superficial view of the matter is by no means sufficient. The fact that the capitalist system of society throws the workers on the ash heap of industry after they have been used to produce profits for the boss for scores of years, is the real reason why it is necessary to institute pensions or build old age homes. The only way in which to fight against this is not only by these two methods, but by recognizing the class struggle between the workers and their bosses, and by organizing and acting accordingly, in a united class conscious manner.

Not the Real Fight.

The fight between the two opposing candidates and their groups is not the real fight in the union, but merely a struggle for jobs. The real battle is on for principles, between the reactionary element and the progressive element. This was recognized by Hutchenson himself, when he devoted a good deal of his report and talk to the Communists and "borers from within" and imported Philip Murray to do some expert red baiting.

No real encounter between right and left has yet taken place at the convention, but it is expected that a spirited discussion will be aroused on the various propositions of the progressives, most important of which is the resolution on the amalgamation of the building trades unions.

HITS HYPOCRITICAL ALL-CLASS POLICY OF BOSSES' PARTIES

"The Workers Party is interested solely in the support of the workers, and does not make the hypocritical promise that it will attempt to work in the interests of all classes," said Max Shachtman, editor of The Young Worker, speaking for the Workers Party, to a big audience of workers at 62nd and Halsted. "Any candidate or party that states that all classes can be satisfied by any act of legislation or in any other manner, is consciously lying to the workers, and only to the workers. The bosses know better than to believe that piffle."

Much literature was sold at this meeting, thru the new method of taking up a collection and then distributing DAILY WORKERS and pamphlets free of charge. A number of tickets to the Foster-Gitlow meeting in Chicago on October 12, were also sold to the workers in the crowd.

Other successful meetings were held by Robert Minor, editor of The Liberator, at State and 30th, and by Walt Carmon at North and Orchard.

Meetings of the Workers Party for the coming few days are announced as follows:

Monday, Sept. 28.

Madison and Wood Sts., auspices Mid-City branch, speaker, Ella Reeve Bloor.

Capitalist Cannon Fodder Wagons Must Have Right of Way

Mrs. Nellie Conser, charged by her North Evanston neighbors with being a "neighborhood nuisance," today lost the appeal of her case before Judge Hosea Wells. Placed under peace bonds by Justice Max Witkowes of Evanston, following recent complaints that she interfered with roller skating and perambulator traffic in the vicinity of her home on Prairie avenue, Mrs. Conser had appealed to the Superior court. When she failed to appear there today, however, Judge Wells ordered that she again be placed under bond in Evanston.

MAGAZINE SECTION IS FIRST INTERNATIONAL ANNIVERSARY NUMBER

The Communist International is celebrating the sixtieth anniversary of the foundation of its predecessor, the First International. In this country, the Workers Party is carrying on the celebration as the American section of the International.

In today's magazine section of the DAILY WORKER there are special articles from the pens of some of the best known Communist writers in America on various phases of the First International headed by Karl Marx. Turn to the magazine section and read these interesting articles.

FOSTER AND GITLOW GO ON BALLOT IN LaFOLLETTE'S OWN HOME STATE

With the filing of fifteen hundred signatures with the secretary of state for Wisconsin, by G. S. Sklaar, in behalf of the Workers Party, the names of William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow appear on the ballot in this state in the coming elections.

The same number of petitions were also filed for the Workers Party candidate for governor, Severi Allane, and for Charles Kusdas, candidate for lieutenant governor.

Commenting on the success of the Wisconsin comrades in putting our ticket on the ballot in the home state of deformed socialism and the stronghold of the Moses of little business, Arne Swabeck, Workers Party organizer for District 8, said:

"Our comrades in Wisconsin deserve credit for the manner in which they carried out the task assigned to them by the party. It is of extreme importance to the revolutionary movement, that the Communist candidates, Foster and Gitlow, for president and vice-president, and the state candidates on the Communist ticket should appear on the ballot in the State of Wisconsin. It is in this state that the theory of socialism propounded by Karl Marx has been perverted by the notorious political fraud, Berger, and also where the workers are being deluded into the belief that the old republican party hack, Robert Marion LaFollette by some kind of legerdemain will succeed in solving their problems for them, by rattling the cracked liberty bell and going back into the past for relief.

"The Communist candidates, while engaging in the every day struggle of the workers against the capitalists point out at the same time that only thru the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the workers' and farmers' government can these problems be solved."

Wisconsin is the eighth state in which the Workers Party ticket will appear on the ballot in the coming election.

DOWN APPEAL OF SUSPENDED I. A. M. MEMBERS

Still Delay B. & O. Plan Consideration

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 26.—The two warring groups of reactionaries in the machinists' convention today patched up their differences long enough to cast a united vote against the appeal of the suspended members from Toledo.

The Appeals and Grievance Committee broughtin a recommendation that the suspended members be reinstated, reversing the decision of the General Executive Board. This recommendation was defeated by a vote of 107 to 44.

The machine attempted to have the convention reconsider the right of the membership to vote on the salary of the secretary treasurer, at yesterday morning's session. Board member Feckner, who was in the chair refused to accept the motion for a roll call, but the delegates over-ruled his decision, and the question will go to a referendum of the membership.

The delegates yesterday were restless and anxious to go home.

Johnston in Vile Speech.

William H. Johnston, president of the union, descended to the lowest depths of misrepresentation in his last minute tirade against the suspended members. He read a fake telegram to the delegates, supposedly from a detective reporting the convention to the employers, which told about Johnston being a fighter against the bosses and the progressives being here to throw him out. He hinted that Andrew Overgaard, who has been attorney for the suspended members, was working with the detectives, wording his speech in such a way as to avoid direct responsibility for his statements, yet leaving the same impression with the delegates as tho he had made the direct charge.

Center Unites With Right.

This vote which unites the center group of delegates with the administration is looked upon by many delegates as a sign that Johnston has made his peace with them. The Fry-Keppler combination has been punishing Johnston, not for his reactionary policies with which they agree in substance, but for reasons of personal power and prestige.

Yesterday they voted with the radicals in putting over a reduction of salaries for officers of $1,000 per year each. That must have been the blow that brought Johnston to his knees to them, and forced him to an agreement with the other reactionaries whom he has been ignoring heretofore.

The B. & O. plan is expected to come up right at the close of the convention. It has been religiously kept off the floor of the convention until the very last moment, first to let all the rank and file delegates who were short of money to get starved out and away from the convention, and second to create a united front of the reactionary groups necessary to put it over on the rebelling membership.

STRAW BALLOT PUTS COMMUNIST CANDIDATES BEFORE WORKING MASSES

By C. E. RUTHENBERG.
(Executive Secretary, Workers Party.)

Our party suffers from the disadvantage in the election campaign of having its candidates ignored by the capitalist press. The taking of straw votes is a valuable method of agitation for us because it brings the fact that there are Communist candidates in the field to the attention of the workers.

40 LAID OFF AT CRANE'S BRINGS FEAR TO TOILERS

Foster Gets Good Vote in Straw Balloting

"Forty men laid off!"

This fact hung like a black cloud over the great machine manufacturing plant of the Crane Company, at 39th St. and S. Kedzie Ave., when visited by the DAILY WORKER straw vote squad.

It was hard to get the workers interested in the straw ballot. Their bodies were tired. There was a terror look in their eyes. Their faces registered a blank, stunned expression.

"How They Drive Us!"

Ballots had been distributed in the early morning, when the men had entered the big machine shop. But at night the men were thinking, "Forty men laid off!" and not so much about the political campaign.

One worker came out of the great building with his ballot, which he had kept since morning, crumpled up almost into a ball. He handed the ballot to one of the girls in the DAILY WORKER squad, whispering hurriedly:

"The fellows won't vote. Forty men were laid off today in this department. The orders are: 'No voting, no talking!' Damn them how they drive us. It's hell in there. Here's my vote. Foster is my man."

Here's the Vote.

The vote cast by the few courageous ones were: 43 for Foster; 102 for LaFollette; 47 for Davis, and 91 for Coolidge.

The Foster vote came from the workers who had kept their ballots all day and had them ready to drop in to the ballot box on their way home. The workers who were conscious of the significance of this year's political campaign were eager to voice their opinion. The Davis vote came from the Polish workers because their church was for him. "Davis all right —go Ku Klux Klan," one Polish worker told the straw vote volunteer.

It was a physical impossibility to get all the votes when the rush for the cars was on.

Among those who stood around and talked with the DAILY WORKER squad was a Lithuanian who assured us that there are many Bolsheviks in the plant. During the lunch hour he said the straw vote was discussed by the Lithuanian and the Polish comrades in his department. But they fail to see the significance of a straw ballot. "Instead of voting they argue," he protested. "But they are our people all right," he again assured us as he hurried away to make his car for home.

JAPAN REFUSES TO LAY NECK ON ALLIED BLOCK

"Pacifists" Hold on to Trusty Rifles

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GENEVA, Sept. 26.—The refusal of Japan to sign the arbitration protocol proposed by the League of Nations caused a sensation here today. Japan's action was entirely unexpected by the British diplomats who are the real backers of the scheme.

Journalists called to mind the remarks of George Chicherin, Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs, last week when he declared that Russia looked upon the league as an instrument of capitalist world domination and not an instrument for peace.

Expose League's Futility.

He also made acid comment on its futility saying that it could make a lot of noise, but was not taken seriously.

That Japan can treat it with such ill-concealed contempt does not enhance its prestige in the eyes of its signatory members.

Still at Swords' Points.

The capitalist governments, six years after the termination of the world war, are still at swords' points and all their efforts to avoid another war are wrecked on the conflicting interests of the individual powers.

Japan's action throws a monkey-wrench into the plans of Ramsay MacDonald and the British imperialists. This scheme was cleverly framed, but the pitfalls did not escape the sharp eyes of the Mikado's diplomats.

Britain's War Scheme.

The arbitration agreement was to be part of the general disarmament scheme fostered by Premier MacDonald, of England, and Premier Edouard Herriot, of France.

France wished arbitration to be arbitrary.

It was drawn along that line.

Nearly all nations intimated their willingness to accept the arbitration protocol. The action by Japan came as a surprise, therefore three League of Nations' commissions were authorized to make preparations for a disarmament conference and to draw up the arbitration protocol. While Japan has refused to sign the protocol, it is believed she will participate in the disarmament meeting next year. Whether or not the United States will take part has not been revealed.

M. Adachi, Japanese delegate to the league meeting, issued a statement saying:

Declines With Thanks.

"It is with the greatest regret that, in the name of my delegation, I must register complete reserve from the complete protocol."

Japan insisted on the creation of conciliation jurisdiction which would enable the losing party in the international court to appeal to the court for a review of the case. Australia opposed such a move.

The arbitration protocol proposed that decisions of the international court at the Hague should be final on questions of international law.

Tried to Frame Japs.

A hypothetical case would be an appeal to the international court to decide the international legality of the American law excluding Japanese. If the court upheld the law as purely domestic, arbitration would be impossible for Japan to appeal. Consequently if Japan ever went to hostilities over the question, that country would automatically be the aggressor.

Washington Puzzled.

WASHINTON, Sept. 26.—Japan's refusal to sign the arbitration protocol at Geneva today caused considerable interest in official government circles here today, but on the basis of press dispatches officials of the state department declined to comment or hazard opinions as to the probable motive that lay behind Japan's action.

PREPARE FOR WEEK OF RED DENUNCIATION

To Have Seven Days of "Education" Soon

By LAURENCE TODD.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Call up the Elysian fields and let the ghosts of old Patrick Henry, Tom Paine, Samuel Adams, Tom Jefferson and Ben Franklin listen in on the official program for American Education Week, announced by the U. S. bureau of education!

Constitution day, Nov. 17, begins the week. The topics listed by commissioner Tigert, whom President Harding picked from a Kentucky post of the American Legion and jammed into the job of running the bureau, are these:

"Down With the Reds."

"1. Life, liberty, justice, security and opportunity.

"2. How our constitution guarantees these rights.

"3. Revolutionists, Communists, and extreme pacifists are a menace to these guarantees.

"4. One constitution, one union, one flag, one history.

"Slogans—Ballots, not bullets; master the English language; visit the schools today."

Hardened revolutionists such as Adams and Jefferson must blush for their crimes, and pacifists such as Robert Morris, the Quaker, must hang their heads before the bull-necked, intelligence here disclosed.

Patriotism day is next. It's program reads:

"1. The red flag means death, destruction, poverty, starvation, disease, anarchy and dictatorship.

"2. Help the immigrants and aliens to become American citizens.

"3. Take an active interest in governmental affairs.

"4. Stamp out revolutionary radicalism.

"5. To vote is the primary duty of the patriot.

"Slogans—America first. The red flag—danger. Visit the schools today."

All Kinds of Days.

There is a school and teacher day, and an illiteracy day, whose program includes the stirring announcement: "An illiterate who obtains only second-hand information is the tool of the radical."

Then comes physical education day, in which the radicals seem to have no attention, and a community day with a mocking suggestion of "equality of opportunity in education for every American boy and girl"; finally a God and country day in which the communities are urged to go to the American Legion to secure speakers for the theme of godliness, or on any other appropriate subject.

Why this moronic display?

It's simple. Hardly had the Bureau of Education over to the Legion, and Tigert, who eats 'em alive if they are tinged with working class sympathies or other "revolutionary radicalism," discovered that in the previous year an Education Week had been established, and that the American people better acquainted with the schools and more concerned in improving the school system. Tigert and a fellow named Powell, head of the Americanization section of the Legion, grabbed this Education Week, and apparently recalling that touching line from the song of the Cranbao Society—

"And beneath the starry flag, educate 'em with a Krag . ." they decided to educate 'em with Mitchell Palmer and Harry Daugherty and Big Bill Burns, plus Hardboiled Smith. From that day on, Powell and Tigert have prepared the programs for Education Week, and the Bureau of Education has acted as loud-speaker for these weird mental messes. And the National Educational Association, which had the courage to protest the nomination of Tigert as commissioner, has bent the pregnant hinges of its knee and joined in giving sanction to these programs before the intelligent public.

The secretary of the National Educational Association says this program was drafted last May, so he is sure it is not aimed at LaFollette. The policy of the N. E. A. is to "co-operate with the bureau."

EIGHT NEGRO EDITORS SUBSCRIBE TO DAILY WORKER IN ONE BATCH

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 26.—Comrade Bill Scarville, of Pittsburgh, has just sent the business office of the DAILY WORKER eight subscriptions to the DAILY WORKER accompanied by a money order for $16.00 to cover them. Worthy as Comrade Scarville's industry in securing eight four-months' subscriptions is, the type of subscriptions he has secured makes them doubly valuable. Each one is from the editor of a Negro newspaper.

Comrade Scarville has secured subscriptions from the Afro-American of Baltimore, one of the most influential of Negro newspapers, from the Atlanta, Ga., Independent, from the Jacksonville Florida Sentinel, and from the Washington Tribune. Even the Virgin Islands, the latest possession of the United States in the far off Carribean Sea, will have its DAILY WORKER supporters hereafter for the editor of the Emancipator has given comrade Scarville a subscription to the DAILY WORKER.

The complete list of the subscribers turned in by Comrade Scarville follows:

Afro-American, Baltimore, J. H. Murphy, 628 N. Eutow St., editor.

Preston News (Service, 569 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Emancipator, Virgin Islands, U. S. A., Francis R. Rothschild, editor.

Washington Tribune, Wm. Walker, editor, 920 You street, Washington, D. C.

Geo. Taylor, editor Florida Sentinel, Jacksonville, Fla.

Atlanta Independent, Ben J. Davis, Oddfellow building, Atlanta, Ga., editor.

unbeliever in Jesus Christ and God, and I was sent here that he might be redeemed and that I might redeem him."

"BUT I saved him," declared Rev. Hight as he finished his prayer. Tears welled into the eyes of the mourners and they remarked: "What a holy man is our preacher! The Lord is good to us when he sent him here." When the preacher saw his victim safely tucked in his clay jacket, he trotted along and bought another dose of arsenic to send his own wife to the Lord so that his dear brother Sweetin would have company. Hight is an inhuman monster, but between himself and the clergymen of all denominations who prayed for the souls of the boys who went to war for Morgan a few years ago, Hight deserves the benefit of the doubt.

MAHATMI GHANDI, the Hindu pacifist leader is on a twenty-one day fast as a penance for the Hindu-Moslem riots over religion. That religion is enough to make people fight even when left alone, our readers will agree. The bible and the sword usually go together. It is hard to see anything in a sword that would induce a person to carry a bible, but there is plenty in the bible that would send a man running around with a sword. Ghandi does not believe in the sword, as a weapon to achieve liberty. It is true he used it during the war fighting in behalf of the British Empire, but he changed his mind since then.

GHANDI was once a powerful factor in India. He had the ear of the masses. They believed in him. But when the crisis came, he failed. Instead of leading the oppressed people against the British forces, he excoriated them for meeting force with force. He dealt deadly blows to the movement and is now discredited in the eyes of millions that formerly worshipped his name. Ghandi no doubt, takes his methods seriously. But fasting and prayer will not free India. The old saying that "those who would be free, must themselves strike the blow" is forever true. The British imperialists will not worry over Indians so long as the Hindoos pray. They did not worry over Ireland until the Irish stopped singing "God Save Ireland" and did a little shooting. It would be delightful if freedom could be achieved by a short fast. An occasional fast is not injurious to the health; in fact, it is beneficial, but it is no substitute for fight against the enemies of the working class and the oppressed peoples of the world.

ARTHUR Brisbane notes that a prisoner on parole got six months for stealing six crullers, one month for each cruller. How many million years he would receive were he to steal as many crullers as could be purchased for the value, in dollars, of the oil turned over to Doheny and Sinclair by the members of Harding's cabinet? "This is a country in which it is not safe to steal crullers" was Brisbane's comment. Any more would be superfluous.

PREMIER MacDonald and Zaghoul Pasha, premier of Egypt, are discussing the Egyptian demands for the evacuation of the Sudan by the British. Under no condition will the British clear out of the Sudan declares MacDonald, socialist leader of the second international. He claims Egypt has no more right to it than Britain, which is rather frank, and further more, British capitalists have invested millions of pounds there and the socialist MacDonald must defend the interests of His Majesty's millionaire subjects. Ramsay, however, being a man of peace is willing to refer the matter to arbitration, perhaps the League of Nations, which is another name for the British government.

NOW that the Dawes plan is accepted by Germany and endorsed by the British cabinet, the next step in England's policy is to make a commercial agreement with Germany that will relieve England from the effects of the Dawes plan on British industry. This is going to be difficult. Unless Germany can sell her commodities she cannot pay the reparations and if she does, England will have no market for her own commodities. This capitalist system of ours is working fine, is it not?

THE latest on the Georgian revolution, according to the Chicago Tribune, is that the Soviet government staged it. They felt there was going to be a revolution so they got ahead of it by starting one themselves and then suppressing it. Just to keep themselves in trim, we suppose!

BORIS Savinkoff, Russian social-revolutionary, walked into Russia and into the arms of the Cheka. He didn't walk out again. He told his story to the judge, the gist of which appeared in yesterday's DAILY WORKER. Don't miss it. Further details will follow. Anybody who will raise a cry demanding the release of the social revolutionaries now imprisoned in Soviet Russia, after reading Savinkoff's story, is not fit company for even John Spargo. Yet the Soviet government let the terrorist keep his head on his shoulders, which shows they are not so bloodthirsty and don't chop off heads in order to develop their muscles.

MILWAUKEE COPS TRY TO BREAK UP COMMUNIST MEET

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 26.—Open air meetings held by Ella Reeve Bloor at Allis Chalmers' shops on September 23 and 24 were very successful and well attended. Open air meetings are stirring much interest among the workers of Milwaukee. On Tuesday evening a specially large crowd of nearly four hundred men who had been listening attentively for over an hour was rudely broken up by police. Mother Bloor was ordered to stop and was threatened with the "wagon" if she persisted in talking. She announced that she would speak at the same corner on Wednesday evening with the permit, or without it from the socialist mayor. Coolidge crowd hold meetings in the same district, so the Workers Party will make a free speech fight in this district.

Mother Bloor is spending a busy time in Wisconsin.

Thursday noon she will speak at the International Harvester shop. Thursday evening she speaks at Racine, Wis.

Friday noon she will speak in Milwaukee again at Harley-Davidson Company, 38th and Chestnut Sts.

For Friday evening a large meeting has been organized in Kenosha, Wis.

Saturday night Mother Bloor will speak at the corner of Third and Prairie at 8 o'clock in Milwaukee, Wis.

To wind up the tour of open air meetings a large indoor meeting will be held in Miller Hall, 802 State street, Sunday, September 28, at two o'clock sharp. At that meeting Mother Bloor will speak on the "Parties and issues in the present presidential campaign."

W. P. Fund $2,645 in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The New York-New Jersey campaign fund of the Workers Party has now reached over $2,645 of the $10,000 quota. The campaign committee has just published the accounting of the funds collected from the Gitlow meeting, street meetings, branch, union and personal contributions. The Trade Union Educational League is making a particular effort to secure aid from union members.

STEEL TRUST HIT BY DUNNE IN GARY MEET

Militants Must Stay in Unions, He Says

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GARY, Ind., Sept. 26.—In no other city in the world is there as much wealth produced in proportion to its population, by modern labor saving machinery, with so little production cost, as in the Gary steel mills, William F. Dunne told an audience of steel workers in Turner Hall here Thursday night at a meeting held under the auspices of the American Federation of Labor to organize the steel workers.

Labor Has Big Task.

"The struggle of the labor movement for power has become more bitter," Dunne declared, "and today the labor movement faces more severe problems than ever before. The control by the steel trust of the steel industry has developed much faster than the labor movement itself has developed. Out of 25 million workers only about four and one half million are organized, and this four and one-half million exerts more power than the great mass of unorganized workers, because organization increases power in geometric proportion.

"Unfortunately this is understood far better by the bosses than by the workers.

"The workers of Gary are at least 90 per cent of the population of Gary. But who speaks for Gary when the town breaks into the capitalist press? The ten per cent of the people who live on your labor, are the ones who speak for Gary to the outside world—the Chamber of Commerce, the Steel Corporation officials—they are the ones who speak for Gary."

Comrade Dunne said that the trusts spend millions of dollars to prevent the minds of the workers from being owned by the workers. "If you steel workers owned your own heads," he added, "there would have been a powerful steel workers' union in Gary long ago." He mentioned the Chamber of Commerce literature which boasts to outside business interests that there are no unions in Gary. "The Chamber of Commerce says to other business concerns, 'Come to Gary and be welcomed by us. The workers have nothing to say here. Lots of money can be made on the unorganized labor in Steeltown Gary. The wage here is only 44 cents an hour and there is lots of profit to be had.'

Bosses Like Kings.

"Today all the wealth of the country has been secured by a little handful of individuals who are more powerful than any king and who rule over the 110 million people in the United States, the majority of whom are workers. It is the same in every industry, and it is the same in Gary.

Dunne declared the trade and industrial unions to be the basic instruments of the struggle of the workers for emancipation. "So far as the existing trade unions are concerned, we have many criticisms to make, nevertheless our policy and the policy of the Third International continues to be the same, 'back into the unions.' We see clearly there must be built a powerful trade union movement. There are no other unions at the present time except the American Federation of Labor. Feeble, no doubt, they are in many instances, nevertheless they are the basic instruments of our struggle. Upon the members of the Workers Party rests a great responsibility. There will never be a great amount of organization in Gary until the revolutionists step in and lead the organization, looking upon the organization and strengthening of the unions as their greatest task.

"There never was a time in the history of the country when the whole system of political tyranny and industrial despotism has been challenged as it is at the present time by the masses of the workers and farmers. The grip of the powerful bosses of the nation and the owners of the great newspapers has been broken. The capitalists have lost their grip upon the American masses. There is much confusion in this unrest of the masses who are breaking away from the instruments of capitalism but there it all runs the red thread of skepticism and revolution against the capitalists.

Asks Support For Foster.

"There is one good way of showing your desire to organize in Gary, and that is casting a tremendous vote for William Z. Foster for president, the man who organized the workers against the steel trust. This would be a tremendous inspiration to the workers thruout the entire country."

George Carbine told of the early struggles of the United Mine Workers of America to organize in Illinois. Fred Dietrich, of the Gary Painters' Local Union and chairman of the Gary Central Labor body, also spoke. Many copies of the DAILY WORKER were bought by the steel workers.

Another meeting to organize the steel workers was announced for October 9.

An Anniversary for the Workers and Farmers of U. S. to Think About

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, we celebrate the founding of "The First International." Millions more of workers, the world over, will realize, with surprise, for the first time, that it was little more than half a century ago that the first effort to band together world labor met with any degree of success. These millions, awakened this year to the need of international organization, will wonder why it is not possible of immediate achievement.

* * * *

It was just 60 years ago this day, Sept. 28, 1864, that "The First International"—the International Workingmen's Association—was organized in London under the leadership of Karl Marx, labor's greatest philosopher.

The United States gave the world International May Day. But it also saw the end of "The First International," dissolved after a dozen years of giant struggles, in July, 1876, at a conference held in Philadelphia.

But altho "The First International" lived but 12 years, failing to survive Bakuninism within, and the effects upon it of the Franco-Prussian war and the defeat of the Paris Commune without, the class conscious masses of labor grew in numbers, in various lands, and made it possible to build working class parties in many countries. All these drew their inspiration from the teachings of Marx, and it was inevitable that the struggle for international action should again soon re-assert itself.

Thus in 1889, "The Second International"—the International Socialist and Trade Union Congress—came into being. It was a loose federation. "The Bureau" that functioned between the World Congresses did not come into existence until 1900. Each national organization developed its own peculiarities and deviations. There was no effort at building a centralized world party. Discipline by "The Second International" over its national units was an unheard of thing. The crash of "The Second International" came with the opening of the world war, its first great testing.

* * * *

It is "The Third International"—the Communist International—that has fallen heir to the heroic struggle of Karl Marx and his co-workers in seeking to build the first international organization of the world's dispossessed. It is the Communists of today who are the Marxists in theory, and the Leninists in practice.

It is the Communist International, organized in March, 1919, that leads the world struggle for the liberation of the last slave class, the wage slaves of this 20th Century.

* * * *

Socialists and capitalists alike, on this 60th Anniversary of the First International, hold up the terror of Moscow-inspired Communists. Thus they hope to frighten the workers and farmers from accepting the leadership of the Communist International, the international of the final victory.

But there are more powerful forces at work than the united strength of the Second International socialists and the big business pirates of capitalism's "Black International," the League of Nations, creature of the Versailles Peace.

For the first time in history the farmers of the United States are discovering that the price of wheat is not fixed at the little country elevator at his neighboring railroad station; but that it is fixed in the world market, centralized at Liverpool, England. For the first time since land began to be fenced in, on this continent, the American farmer is looking beyond his own horizon, in studying the problems that concern him.

If the millions of bankrupt farmers, who have been compelled to leave their farms and drift into the cities, these past few years, would read a little about the theories of Karl Marx, on this 60th Anniversary of "The International" that he organized, they would discover the root of some of their troubles. And if they studied some of the teachings of Nikolai Lenin, they would find the solution of their problems; how to put an end to their woes.

* * * *

Similarly the industrial workers. American capitalism has taken international action, for its own preservation, thru the Dawes Plan. American workers will be compelled by the Dawes plan to think internationally. They will accept their internationalism under the leadership of the liberated masses of the Russian Soviet Republic. They will do this in spite of frantic shrieks of disapproval coming from the socialists of the Second International and the capitalists of the League of Nations.

America's industrial workers, in the fight to preserve their own standard of living, will be compelled to recognize that Wall Street's international bankers are attempting, under the Dawes Plan, to enslave the workers of Europe, and make of this continent a colony of serfs.

* * * *

It was Abraham Lincoln that said of the United States in the days when chattel slavery was about to go, "No nation can exist half slave and half free." The world is a much smaller place in this year, 1924, than the United States was when the Civil War began in 1861.

The cable, the radio, the airplane, the steamship, have put Paris, Rome, Berlin and London, just as close to New York as is San Francisco.

It is under these conditions that labor everywhere realizes, more and more, that this world cannot exist, "Half slave and half free." The enslavement of the workers of Western Europe by the House of Morgan, if it cannot be overcome, means the enslavement of labor the world over. If the workers of Germany are compelled to bend their necks to the Dawes plan, then the yoke will fall in time equally heavy upon the necks of workers everywhere. It means that the international bandits of high finance will make a new effort to crush the First Workers' Republic in Russia.

* * * *

Hundreds of millions of workers in a hundred lands must be taught their international obligations on this 60th Anniversary of the First International. More than ever, the workers and farmers of the United States must learn that their greatest strength is in international action, the world struggle under the leadership of the Communist International.

It is the Communist International that leads the way to the International Soviet Republic.

It is the Communist International that sounds the call of Karl Marx and the First International to the world's downtrodden:

"Workers of the World, Unite! You have nothing to lose but your chains! You have a world to gain!"

RELIEF FUND CHECK IS ON WAY TO MINES

First Contribution Is Forwarded

The first contribution received by the DAILY WORKER for relief of the southern Illinois coal miners, many of whom have been out of employment for seven months, was forwarded to Ross White at Sesser, Ill.

The DAILY WORKER reporter found Ross White going from house to house soliciting relief for a destitute miner when he arrived in Sesser a few weeks ago. The check for $5.00, which was forwarded to Sesser, will no doubt be much appreciated by the miners of that territory.

Send Funds to Daily Worker.

The DAILY WORKER also suggests that those who wish to contribute to the southern Illinois miners allow their contributions to go to southern Illinois as subscriptions to the DAILY WORKER. The business office of the DAILY WORKER has received several applications from southern Illinois asking that the paper be sent them, altho they cannot pay for their subscription during the unemployment crisis. Such letters will be published at an early date, and anyone wishing to contribute may advise the business office.

The miners of West Virginia, who have put up such a gallant battle against not only unemployment, but a vicious attempt of the coal operators to force them to accept a wage reduction, have not been forgotten by the DAILY WORKER readers. Anyone able to answer the following letter to the DAILY WORKER will please communicate with us at once. The letter is from a reader at Erie, Pa.

"To The DAILY WORKER:

"A large number of sympathizers and readers of the DAILY WORKER would appreciate very much your giving us the information of how best to send funds to the suffering and starving miners of West Virginia, of which news is spreading all over the country or would the DAILY WORKER have time to take care of the same. We can give a little now and then. A DAILY WORKER READER."

CARLSON MEETING WITH SUCCESS IN TOUR THRU LAND

Oliver Carlson, who is on a national tour for the N. E. C. of the Young Workers League, reporting on the decisions of the Fourth Congress of the Young Communist International and the plans of the N. E. C. of the Y. W. L. for carrying these decisions into immediate effect in America, to the membership, is having very successful membership meetings in every city.

Speaks in Philadelphia.

Carlson will address a general membership meeting in Philadelphia on Oct. 3 at 521 York Ave. The Y. W. L. members in Philadelphia are anxiously awaiting the report of Carlson. It is expected that every member in the Quaker City will attend.

In New York City big preparations are being made for a general membership meeting to be held on Oct. 9 at Stuyvesant Casino, 142 Second Ave.

This membership meeting is to include every Y. W. L. member in New York City and the entire membership from the surrounding cities in Jersey and Connecticut. All Y. W. L. branches in those surrounding towns have been given instructions to prepare immediately for the general membership meeting in New York City and it is expected that the biggest meeting of League members ever held will be the result.

Comrade Carlson was a member of the Executive Committee of the Y. C. I. for the past two years and one of the American League delegates to the recent congress of the Y. C. I. Carlson is presenting in detail a review of the congress and outlining the immediate tasks before the Y. W. L. membership.

Latest Dish of Dirt.

ROME, Sept. 26.—The Princess Andrea Boncompagni, an American woman, and her husband, have been divorced. It was learned this afternoon. The princess, it is reported, will marry Count Rasponi.

TEACHERS WILL CARRY BATTLE TO SPRINGFIELD

Won Against Jake Loeb, To Beat M'Andrew, Too

The organized teachers of Chicago will carry to Springfield their fight against Superintendent William McAndrew, and the board which is backing him in his effort to crush the teachers' organizations.

This action was decided on at a mass meeting called by the Teachers' Federation to discuss means of bringing the superintendent to terms, in spite of the support given him by the vote of the board to discontinue the holding of teachers councils in school hours.

Two thousand teachers crowded into the Studebaker theatre, and a thousand more overflowed into the Playhouse theatre next door.

Committees will be appointed by the teachers to put their case before candidates for the state legislature and find out on whom the teachers can rely for fair treatment.

Class McAndrew with Jake Loeb.

Applause greeted the statement of Alderman Wiley F. Mills, former member of the board of education, that the actions of Superintendent McAndrew rival those of "Cooley at his worst, and Jake Loeb at his darnedest."

The names of both former superintendent Cooley and of Jacob Loeb are hated among Chicago teachers who have fought for their organization and for decent standards in the schools. As superintendent of schools, Cooley established a fake salary schedule—that is, he had a system whereby one schedule was placed on paper and another was actually paid. Another method put into operation by Superintendent Cooley was the extra examinations for admission to the higher salaries, and then pass but very few, and burn the papers in a hurry.

Jacob Loeb, as president of the board, was powerful enough to force thru the board a rule forbidding the teachers to belong to labor unions, and put on the streets thirty-eight members of the Teachers' Federation.

"We fought Jacob Loeb and won! Now we're going to fight William McAndrew and his business board, and win this fight, too!" was the comment heard on all sides during the meeting.

Board Tool of Business Men.

Margaret Haley, business agent of the Teachers' Federation, denounced the attempts of the board to crowd children into platoon and junior high schools as efforts to save money at the expense of the children for the sake of business interests of the city.

"The real reason for 'shortage' of funds is the habit of well known corporations of dodging tax assessments," said Miss Haley. "There are coal businesses in this city that are living at the expense of the school children. The same thing is true of insurance men."

The capitalist papers of Chicago again received a severe drubbing at the hands of the teachers. The Chicago Daily News especially was denounced from the platform for publishing a false statement concerning E. F. Downey, president of the high school teachers' councils. Mr. Downey, the Daily News said, had publicly announced that he would not join with the union in fighting McAndrew

DAWES!

BEGINNING Wednesday, Oct. 1, the DAILY WORKER will run a series of articles on "America and the Dawes Plan."

The Dawes diagnosis will be published in six installments. Jay Lovestone, director of the research department and member of the Central Executive Committee of the WORKERS PARTY, will analyze the plan and all its implications for the DAILY WORKER readers.

The Dawes Plan is the most complete and dangerous one yet put forward by a national or international group of capitalists for a new imperialist conflict. The scheme as fostered by the American and the leading European financiers involves the fate of the workers of every country.

Don't fail to follow this series regularly. Get your friends in the shops and on the farms to do the same. We promise to make the series interesting and informing.

BRYAN IS LOOSE AGAIN; MAKES AN ASS OF HIMSELF

Science League is After Anti-Monkey Artist

(By The Federated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—Bryan is on the loose again against evolution. While in San Francisco to speak for candidate Davis he stated to an interviewer: "I am in favor of legislation to prevent any teacher who is paid by Christian taxpayers teaching Christian children that man is descended from any lower form of life. The modernist would bring Christ down to the level of man, and the evolutionists bring man down to the level of the brute."

League After Him.

The Science League of America, recently formed to fight the anti-evolution legislation which William Jennings is advocating, has elected Maynard Shipley president and general organizer and Conrad J. Biron secretary-treasurer. It is planning a large mass meeting in San Francisco immediately after the presidential election, and will then invade southern and central California with educational lectures and leaflets and a general challenge to all fundamentalists, including Bryn, to debate the issues involved.

Celebrate Emancipation Document

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The 61st anniversary of Lincoln's signing of the Emancipation Proclamation will be celebrated by the Federation of Colored Women's Clubs with the colored detachment of the 15th infantry, N. Y. national guard, but the Natl. Assoc. for the Advancement of Colored People was too busy "trying to get some of the emancipation of the proclamation," according to Walter F. White, secretary, that it did not have time to participate in the laying of the wreath on the Lincoln statue in Prospect Park, Brooklyn.

Baltimore Comrades Attention!

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 26.—A mass meeting under the joint auspices of the Young Workers League and the Workers Party of Baltimore will be held Tuesday, Sept. 30, eight p. m., at 1110 E. Baltimore. Oliver Carlson, one of the American delegates to the Fourth Congress of the Young Communist International, will speak on the subject of "Labor Government vs. Workers' Government."

THOUSANDS JAM HALL AT OLGIN NEW YORK MEET

Raise $590 for Foster-Gitlow Campaign

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—One of the finest demonstrations ever seen in New York was held here on the return of M. J. Olgin from Soviet Russia, bringing the greetings of the workers of Soviet Russia to the workers of America.

Three thousand people had jammed the hall when the police closed the doors. Hundreds were turned away. Comrade Olgin himself was almost turned away by the policemen stationed at the doors. It was with difficulty that he made his business known, and was admitted.

Every Inch Packed.

The great audience packed every inch of space in the hall so closely that the committees found themselves unable to move freely thru the throng. Harry Winitsky, campaign manager of District Two, charged with the duty of making the collection appeal, could not reach Comrade Fraikin, who was in the rear, organizing the collection committee, so he organized his own committee in the front of the hall. Before it was discovered that there were two committees working on the floor the collection was taken up. This amounted to $440.91, and would have reached six hundred or more if the committees had been able to cover every part of the hall.

The members of the Freiheit Singing Society, which had just rendered several musical numbers, raised the sum of $50.05 from among themselves and handed it up to the platform amid deafening applause. Enthusiasm was unbounded as the dollar bills kept travelling over the heads of the packed audience in one unbroken stream toward the platform.

Total is $589.91.

Twenty-five hundred Foster-Gitlow buttons were sold at the door, the net return being $149.00. This, together with the collection, brought the total income for the benefit of the Campaign Fund up to $589.91.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Freiheit and the Jewish Federation, the collection being donated by these organizations to the campaign fund.

Long Island Members of Party in General Meeting on Tuesday

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—A General Membership Meeting of all branches in Astoria and Corona, Long Island, will be held on Tuesday, September 30, 8 p. m., at 365 Wesley avenue, corner 8th Avenue, Astoria.

For some time our membership in Long Island has not directly participated in party activity. The formation of several new branches there makes it necessary to device ways and means of stimulating such activity, and drawing more closely into the life of the party those comrades who live in Astoria and Corona.

The membership meeting has been called for this purpose, and all party members in Astoria and Corona should attend without fail.

Pennsylvania State Is Klondyke for Federal Grafters

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Attorney General Stone and the department of justice are making a "thoro investigation" of the political corruption which William R. Nicholson, Jr., alleges exists among federal officeholders in Pennsylvania, it was announced here today. Stone has invited officials of the Philadelphia law enforcement league to come to Washington and present their charges.

The Tale of a Black Cat.

Once upon a time there was a Black Cat. Not an ordinary feline, he became famous. His renown spread thruout America and across the seas. The bosses hated him. His talons were long and keen. The old S. P. laid a curse upon him. But the harvest stiff, the muckers and skinners the swampers and even the top loaders swore by him. But the war came. Everything changed. The Black Cat was outlawed. He was the first casuality. He went into retirement. Now he is only a legend. But rumor has it that he stalks about nights. His harsh meows have become the soft wails of violins. He is expected to be at the dance on Sunday night, Sept. 28, at 1534 Clybourn avenue. All workers are invited, particularly those who know the music of Joe Hill and the legend of the Black Cat.

Big Italian Flood.

ROME, Sept. 26.—Fourteen persons were reported dead today from floods at Lake Maggiore. Bridges were washed away. The church at Connobio was destroyed.

SEVEN ARRESTED IN OPEN AIR MEET OF N. Y. WORKERS PARTY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Seven members of a large outdoor gathering assembled to hear Workers Party speakers were arrested at the corner of Fifth avenue and 110th street, New York, at the end of Central Park, but their cases were dismissed in court. The Young Workers League was in charge of the meeting and had too much success with their audience to please the police.

Several officers entered the crowd at 10:30 in the evening and demanded the speaker's permit. The police said that the crowd "became threatening" and drew their pistols. A young man who had no papers of identification was held over night at the jail for "interfering with an officer," and the other six were released after being charged with "disorderly conduct." The police seized the literature which was being sold and took the ladder away from the speaker.

TUCHUNS RIVAL AMBITIONS SPLIT PEI FU FORCES

Wu Demands Use of Japan Railway

SHANGHAI, Sept. 26.—A three-cornered struggle for the control of Chekiang loomed today to further complicate the civil strife centering around Shanghai.

Sun Shuang Fang, of Fukien province, arrived today at Hangchow and is proceeding to Kashing where it is believed he will open an attack on Lu Young Hsiang from the south.

Despite Sun's appointment to Peking to succeed Lu in Chekiang, the two main Kiangsu leaders who have carried the brunt of the warfare against Lu are expected to dispute his claims to leadership thus recipitating a three-handed battle for supremacy.

The expected Kiangsu attack which desultory firing had indicated was about to begin failed to materialize. Little fighting was reported on the Huang Tu-Liuho battle line.

Wu Demands Railway Use.

PEKIN, Sept. 26.—Because of the insistence of Generalissimo Wu Pei Fu that his expeditionary troops against Chang Tso Lin be permitted to use the south Manchurian railway, the Japanese minister today wired the Japanese government at Tokio for instructions.

Wu Pei Fu promised to pay half fare for the soldiers carried but firmly demanded the use of the Japanese railway thereby preventing Chang Tso Lin from advancing the claim that the railroad was under Japanese protection.

New Traffic Rates on Adriatic.

VENICE, Sept. 26.— The Italian-German conference has decided to institute new rates in the German traffic in the Adriatic Sea with the idea of developing trade.

PARDON US, BUT HAVE YOU TWO BITS?

WE are not asking out of idle curiosity or in order to make statistical calculations. We inquire in order to find out how many readers of the DAILY WORKER are going to be present at the first Communist cabaret of these last ten years. As you have already undoubtedly guessed, it will be held Saturday night, September 27, at the Workers Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Boulevard, and is being given by the North Side branch of the Young Workers League for the benefit of The Young Worker. And if you have two bits, which is American for twenty-five cents, there is no question about the fact that you will be present at this unusual affair.

Considerable interest has already developed in their affair ever since the Prince of Wales denied that he would be there, and since Coolidge—or was it Hillquit?—denounced it as insidious Communist propaganda. It is expected that the elite of the Communist movement of Chicago, beaus and belles, will be there in full force with bells on.

Already rumors are being spread as to the quality of entertainment that will be afforded by the social, and it is stated on good authority by a man in close touch with the situation, who refused to have this name used, that such prominent revolutionaries as Franklin R. Buckley, John Victor Edwards and others will participate. It is also rumored that Max Shachtman will have general charge of the propaganda department, altho this could not be confirmed as the paper went to press. It is definitely stated, tho, that a red orchestra has been secured to aid in the terpsichorean awakening of the assembled mass.

Anyhow, as we started out to say, if you've got two bits, spend them tonight on the Communist social. Full particulars about time and place are given above for those who are not yet in on the ground floor.

CANNON CALLS ON THOMAS TO APPEAR OCT. 2

Socialist Candidate Is Challenged to Debate

James P. Cannon, candidate for Governor of New York State on the Workers Party ticket, today issued a challenge to Norman Thomas, socialist candidate, to appear in joint debate with him at the mass meeting to be held on Thursday evening, Oct. 2nd, at Hunt's Point Palace, Southern Boulevard and 163rd Street.

His letter to the Rev. Norman Thomas reads as follows:

New York City, Sept. 23, 1924.

Dear Dr. Thomas: I have read with a great deal of interest your recent letter to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, in which you challenge him to public debate on the subject of the limitation of the powers of the Supreme Court. The power which the Supreme Court exercises is no doubt of interest to the workers of this country.

But has it not occurred to you, Dr. Thomas, that Mr. Robert M. LaFollette and the middle class whom he represents, if in power, would not take the militant steps necessary to deprive the Supreme Court of the power which it today exercises? In its 1920 platform, the socialist party which you represent, described the middle class as "staunch upholders of the existing order of social inequalities. Their social psychology is that of retainers of the wealthy and they live in hopes of being lifted into the charmed spheres of the ruling class."

Now, Dr. Thomas, can you expect a middle class representative like LaFollette to conduct a fight which will succeed in liberating the workers from the oppressive powers of the capitalist institutions? It appears to me that the socialist party of which you are the standard bearer, is in duty bound to explain to the working class whom it pretends to represent why it is supporting Robert M. LaFollette for pesident. Such a discussion would be infinitely more valuable to the workers than the one you propose to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler.

As a candidate for governor on the Workers Party ticket, I will propose to you to debate the subject of: "RESOLVED, THAT ROBERT M. LAFOLLETTE DOES NOT REPRESENT THE INTEREST OF THE WORKERS." Such a subject would in my opinion serve admirably to bring out the views of the socialist party and of the Workers Party in the present election. It would be a debate on a vital topic of interest to the working class audience. We could certainly agree on variations, if you should desire them.

I shall be glad to hear from you on this matter at the earliest possible date.

Russian Scientists Attend Education Congress of Canada

(By Rosta)

MOSCOW, Sept. 19.—The group of Russian scientists who left for the international congress of mathematics, held at Toronto, Canada, consists of Professors Stekloff, Guegther and Uspensky (Leningrad), Kryloff (Kiev) and Kostiuyn (Moscow), all of whom are members of the Russian Academy of Science. It is the first time since the revolution that an official invitation was extended to the above-mentioned congress to Russian men of science.

Pulchritude Beats Bank.

MADISON, Wis.—Police here are attempting to obtain clues to the identity of a pretty young woman who registered at the university of Wisconsin under the name of Dorothy Brehm, of Racine, and, using her registration cards as identification, swindled a local bank with a worthless check and obtained several hundred dollars worth of clothes on credit at local stores.

Murder and Suicide.

OWOSSO, Mich.—Murder and suicide was the police verdict today on the finding of the bodies of George S. Kemp, Middlebury farmer, and his wife, Rose, at their home yesterday. Police believe Kemp cut his wife's throat and then went to the barn and hanged himself. The family had been having domestic difficulties, neighbors told police.

Teddy Quits Navy Job.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who has received the republican nomination for the governorship of New York, resigned today as assistant secretary of the navy, and his resignation was accepted by President Coolidge. It is effective immediately.

Will They Be Lynched?

READING, Pa., Sept. 26.—Posses surrounded a deep woods near Robesonia today where the three Negro bandits who shot and killed Jonathan Klopp, while his bride of two weeks look on, and seriously wounded his father, Adolphus Klopp, last night, are believed to be hiding.

Vatican Denies Deal.

ROME, Sept. 26.—The Osservatore Romano has issued an emphatic denial of reports that the vatican offered France its aid in suppression of anti-French agitation in Alsace in return for continuance of the French embassy to the Holy See.

Husbands Worth Money.

MINEOLA, N. Y., Sept. 26.— Mrs. Charles Conrad Frey, formerly Miss Katherine McIntyre of Louisville, Kentucky, filed suit today for $100,000 against Wilda Bennett, an actress charging alienation of her husband's aections.

Fatal Airplane Crash.

MOLINE, Ohio.—Inability to manipulate the plane, was given as the cause of the crash near here in which Harry Kahl, Toledo, student pilot, was killed and Art Bartlebaugh, injured. Kahl had just bought the plane.

Professor Is Elected.

URBANA, Ill., Sept. 26.—Prof. Goebel, head of the department of German, university of Illinois, was notified of his election to the Berlin Academy of Sciences. He is the first American professor to be so honored.

Three bandits held up the West City Trust and Savings bank shortly before noon today and escaped with an undetermined amount of money which officials said they feared might run high into the thousands.

LOCAL SPECIAL 'DAILY' EDITION PLAN GROWING

Live Wire Branches Are Doing Their Stuff

This week the special local editions of the DAILY WORKER are getting up steam. The fourth edition of the week, two thousand in size, left the presses last night for Los Angeles, the land of movies, sunshine and the open shop.

This completes a total of 19,000 copies outside of the regular circulation of the "National Labor Daily." On Monday night 2,000 went to Toledo; on Wednesday, 5,000 to Detroit, and on Thursday, 10,000 to New York.

More Coming.

Next week will see even greater speed on special editions that are going so well in all the live locals in the country. Monday night a special of 3,000 is going to Denver. Wednesday night the presses of the DAILY WORKER will turn out the first State Edition for Wisconsin of 20,000. Ten thousand of this is going to Milwaukee to raise cain in general with Vic Berger and his near-beer revolutionists. Superior will receive 4,000 (a lively bunch of Finns here to keep the party in the swim!); 2,000 goes to Racine and 2,000 to Kenosha. Red Granite (who send their remittance in advance to be sure they get it!) and other small towns in LaFollette's pasture will receive the balance.

The success of these Red Specials, giving the complete front page with the headline to the local where it is sent, has proven such a success that wherever it has been used plans are already being made to order further editions of this mental dynamite for local explosion during the campaign.

Get Yours.

The special edition of the DAILY WORKER is a splendid gauge to size up the extent of the activities of any local in the first Communist election campaign in this country. The membership of the party can well judge the extent of your activity for themselves "when they get your number" of the DAILY WORKER Specials.

New York Notes.

Sunday, Sept. 28, is Platform Distribution Day. Help bring the party message to the masses! Help the party to spread Communism! Help the party grow! Report at the following stations Sunday morning for COMMUNIST SUNDAY: 105 Eldridge Street, 2nd Assembly District; 143 East 102rd Street, 1247 Boston Road, Louis Baum, 443 Sutter Ave., 81 Graham Ave., Brooklyn, 1344 Pitkin Ave., Brooklyn.

Foster Ratification Conference.

From reliable sources it has been learned that the Foster ratification conference, to be held Sunday, September 28, at 2 p. m. sharp, at the Labor Temple, 243 East 84th Street, is to take up among other important topics, the following: Report of campaign manager Harry Winitsky; report on finance, Benjamin Lifschitz; report on organization, Charles Krumbein; resolutions on political prisoners, Soviet Russia, local political candidates. Permanent officers will be elected, including the chairman, secretary and the campaign committee. Returns from trade unions, fraternal organizations, Workers Party branches, Young Workers League branches and other left wing organizations, evidence a deep interest in the coming meeting.

Carlson at Stuyvesant Casino.

Oliver Carlson, prominent in the American Communist movement and in the Young Workers League, has just returned from a six months' stay in France, Germany and Soviet Russia. He will give a talk on his experiences Monday evening, Oct. 6, at Stuyvesant Casino, Second Ave., near 9th Street.

Morgan and Soviet Russia

It is not surprising to find that the power behind the scenes in opposition to the proposed Soviet loan in England is the House of Morgan.

We are not directing an attack against the body and soul of Mr. Morgan himself. The incident merely affords more evidence showing the decisive voice that American financiers are exercising in international politics and economy.

The almost immeasurable banking influence of J. P. Morgan & Co. is being thrown against the Soviet loan for many reasons. Mr. E. C. Grenfell, J. P. Morgan's London partner and member of parliament for the City of London, thus explained the opposition of his master to Great Britain making a loan to the Soviet government. Mr. Grenfell said: "It is inconceivable that business men should lend money or bankers should advise customers to join in a loan to the present junta which presumes to speak for the Russian people. If any loan should be made on the lines of the proposed treaty, part of the proceeds possibly might be used to conciliate Russia's creditors.

"But I feel sure that the larger portion would go toward propaganda to assist a Communistic revolution in this and other countries."

As usual, the liberal spokesmen chime in with the songs of the most influential imperialists. The "New Statesman," speaking for the most self-confessed honest liberals, accepts this dictum of the House of Morgan without question.

The reasoning of Mr. Grenfell and his liberal supporters is transparent. The notions spread by these opponents of a Soviet loan have long ago been discarded by the diplomats who have been decisively worsted in their encounters with the Soviet government. At this moment there is a special reason why the British imperialists and their liberal lackeys are so eloquent in their tirade against the first Workers' and Farmers' Republic. The Soviet government has dealt a decisive blow to the Anglo-American imperialist interests in the Far East thru its Chinese agreement. The liberals are pining to get back into control of the administrative machinery of the British government and are hoping to make Bolshevism the issue in the coming campaign. Naturally, these honesty-hunting liberals are planning to wage a campaign based on the lowest forms of prejudice and the depths of ignorance.

Of course, the British workers will not hesitate to meet the challenge. Economically, Great Britain needs Soviet Russia at least as much as the latter needs the present support of the English loan. The imperialists and their liberal allies will make little headway.

More War Preparations

Coincident with the oder issued by President Coolidge to a board of experts for a complete up-to-date report on the value of aircraft in the military and naval defense of the country, is an interesting report of the census division of the department of commerce.

According to the data collected at the last, 1923, biennial census of manufactures, the number of establishments manufacturing airplanes or their parts increased from twenty-one to thirty-three in the last two years. In the same period the number of wage earners employed in such manufactures increased more than one hundred per cent. At the same time the value of the products rose nearly ninety-five per cent, the number of airplanes turned out nearly seventy-five per cent.

These cold and dry figures are indicators of the feverish activities now going on in the United States in preparation to win militarry and naval supremacy. Today, France leads the capitalist powers in the strength of its air squadrons. The imperialist French government is, at this writing, supreme in aviation strength, with a total of one hundred and seventy-four air squadrons. America, with forty-eight air squadrons, is second. Great Britain, Italy and Japan, are closely bunched behind the United States.

The race for aerial supremacy is becoming sharper. By the treaty of Washington, some out of date war engines were to be scrapped. These steps towards fraudulent disarmament were accepted only in order to make it economically possible for the war-shattered capitalist powers to invest heavily in the most modern and infernal war preparations. Chemical and aerial warfare were not considered by the imperialist spokesmen gathered at Washington. All the subsequent capitalist peace conferences have astutely failed to consider aviation and chemical warfare.

There is every likelihood that the American government will soon outstrip the French in aviation strength. The United States can well afford a race of armaments in the air. But the very victory of the American capitalists will be a signal for the outbreak of a new world war—a defeat for the workers of every country.

The Fight in California

In Los Angeles the Communists are paving the way for a strong state-wide revolutionary political campaign. Here the Workers Party is setting the pace in the campaign preparations along the Pacific coast.

There is every reason on earth why the California workingmen and poorest farmers should be drawn into the fold of the active struggle against the exploiters. The golden state has for many years been the center of the most virulent anti-labor campaigns. Some of the fiercest battles waged by the American labor movement have taken place in California.

California is the home of the oleaginous Doheny. It is the harbor of that oil-besmirched and disappointed presidential aspirant, Mr. McAdoo. For many years the entire state of California was completely controlled by the Southern Pacific Railway. Hiram Johnson, the harmless, fought these big interests only to build up a more powerful political machine which he could then sell to the same capitalists for an exorbitant price. That notorious strikebreaker, Robert Dollar, is a native son of the golden state. One of the best organized and most lavishly financed open shop drives was waged in San Francisco. Nor has corrupt labor officialdom failed to become a cancer on the body of the working class in California.

At this very moment every phase of politics in California, except the campaign of the Workers Party, is reeking with the vilest corruption. The driving force in the Coolidge machine is an oil magnate named Mark Requa. The leading spirit of the democratic coterie is the wealthy banker, ex-senator Phelan, who at the democratic convention, in attempting to excuse McAdoo's crooked dealings with Doheny, declared: "A man must eat." The LaFollette junta is guilty of smashing the ranks of the workers and of spreading deadly demoralization in the camp of the farmer-laborites. The socialist party is today serving as the legal excuse for the continuation of the crimes of the self-styled progressives. The LaFollette electors are preparing to appear on the ballot under the name of the socialist party.

It is clear to every worker that there is only one political organization in the state fighting for the interests of the wage-earning masses. This is the Workers Party with its Communist candidates and Communist program. Every workingman, every dispossessed farmer should do his bit to help the pace-setting Communists of Los Angeles organize a successful campaign.

A Banker's Despair

Mr. Peter J. Brady, chief labor lieutenant of Tammany Hall and president of the Federation Bank of New York, has just returned from the British Trade Union Congress which he attended as the fraternal delegate of the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Brady did not return the cheerful man he was when he left. At the British Trade Union Congress, the labor banker had occasion to listen to an address by Comrade Tomsky, in behalf of the Red Trade Union International. Judging by the bitterness of his attack on Tomsky, Mr. Brady was not satisfied with the headway made by the revolutionary labor leader. Furthermore, the Tammany satellite was compelled to report that there is a haunting fear among the European workers that the big business interests are planning to make them pay for the war.

The best evidence of banker Brady's despair is his comment on the conditions of the labor movement. Mr. Brady tells us that the Communists have at last been routed in their efforts to win a foothold. Let us be charitable and say that Brady's imagination is working overtime. The fact of the matter is that within the last year the Communists have tremendously increased their prestige and influence in the political and economic organizations of the working class of Europe.

At the last Congress of the Metal Trades Union of Germany, perhaps the biggest labor union in the world, the Communists gave the yellow socialists the hardest fight they have ever had. The Communists were cheated out of a victory by a narrow margin which the government socialists secured only thru the financial and political assistance of the uppermost section of the exploiting class. In France, the drift toward the left, toward the Communist, is most marked in the labor unions. In Italy, Communist influence is growing by leaps and bounds. Spain, Portugal, Bulgaria and the Scandinavian countries tell the same story.

But what can one expect from a labor leader who spends his time in business ventures and questionable political deals? What can one expect from a labor lieutenant of capital who is working feverishly in an attempt to organize a profit-seeking corporation and in an effort to deliver the workers' votes to that notorious gang of ward-heelers and boodle politicians residing in Tammany Hall?

Apparently, despair is the last refuge of the labor misleader.

Democratic candidate John W. Davis is back among the Virginia hills telling the miners what he is willing to do for labor. Where was John W. Davis during the years that mine operators were shooting down the workers in cold blood for attempting to organize their forces into a union? Mr. Davis was working for the House of Morgan and the scab coal operators. What about the the Coronado case?

It is reported that Bryan (Charles, no apologies to Chicago Tribune) is coming to Chicago to get spanked for disloyalty to the head of his ticket out in the great open spaces where the sun is so hot, brainy men must wear skull caps

The Campaign Fund Campaign

Number Three Looms Up!

By ALFRED WAGENKNECHT.

ALL RIGHT! We are not a Chinese army. Rain or shine, we keep steadily at it, firing broadside after broadside into that high and mighty class which thinks it will always remain the victors and we the vanquished. What an awakening there will be! For we've an IRON WILL TO WIN, so we have. And we are CONFIDENT of VICTORY!

* * * *

Then also, in the party work it has been generally resolved to rush for the largest shovel and to work overtime without even so much as a "thank you" for pay. Capitalism WILL come tumbling down. We have not taken our from one to twenty years' courses at learning how to undermine the foundation of this colossal monstrosity for nothing.

* * * *

Again—If we have used our heads for other things besides keeping our ears apart, then we all will have READ SEVERAL TIMES the new 1—2—3—4—5 just rushed to us by the Communist International.

* * *

ARE YOU A PARTY MEMBER EVEN IF YOU ARE? This is the question we will all have to put to ourselves and at once. For the Comintern requisites for party membership have been DECISIVELY DECIDED, and here they are:

1. Must accept program and statutes.
2. Must be attached to basic party organization.
3. MUST ACTIVELY WORK IN THE PARTY.
4. Must submit to all party decisions.
5. Must pay party dues regularly.

* * * *

NUMBER THREE looms up about as STRONG as the announcement of a new proletarian revolution would—does it not? It means what? It means that to be a party member you and I and everyone MUST COMPLY with 1—2—4—5 and then link these four requisites up with NUMBER THREE. Study all five requisites for just a minute. Take away NUMBER THREE and the other four fall as flat as a hot-cake on a Child's griddle.

* * * *

It has been said so many times. Yet say it again we must. ACTIVITY BREEDS ACTIVITY. An ACTIVE 25,000 membership will soon produce a 50,000 membership. An active 50,000 membership will soon produce the longed for mass party of 250,000. And then—then it will take a half dozen DAILY WORKERS besides our many language dailies to tell the workers of the country about the stir we will make in American and world politics.

* * *

As if our party membership had sensed the referred to NUMBER THREE as a specific in this election campaign and in this CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS, the dollars are beginning to ARRIVE. And altho there may be some who tire reading names and dollar signs and numbers yet we are just class conscious enough to understand that in EVERY LINE of type that appears below there is wrapped up part of the revolutionary life of a party member or sympathizer, who, irrespective of sacrifices, has kept step and quickened his step for the World Revolution.

Karl Marx to the Communist League

(ADDRESS TO THE CENTRAL AUTHORITY OF THE LEAGUE IN 1850)

EDITOR'S NOTE. At this time in the development of the American class struggle, when petty bourgeois liberalism and progressivism is making a bid for political power, and, in order to achieve this end, is attempting to sweep the labor movement and the poor farmers into supporting this middle class LaFollette movement, it becomes supremely necessary that every worker understand clearly the nature of the petty bourgeoise, the significance of its political ambitions and the correct working class attitude toward them.

The following "Address to the Communist League" by Karl Marx, altho it dates back to 1850 and is dealing primarily with the petty bourgeois liberal movement in Germany at that time, yet there is a whole world of truth for the American workers of today to be used to great advantage in the solution of their immediate problems.

What is it that every politically conscious American worker wants to know now? He wants to know whether the workers should support the LaFollette movement, whether the workers can derive any benefits for themselves from uniting politically with the so-called "progressive" middle classes, and generally what is the best way for the workers to participate in politics.

These are the supreme questions of the moment. And to these questions the Workers Party of America has given its answer. It said: No alliance with the movement of small capital. No support for LaFollette. Independent political action by labor. An independent class party of workers and the poorest sections of the farmers. These answers are based on the accumulated experiences of the workers thruout the world, on the history of our own American class struggle, and on the burning needs of the American working class of today.

Karl Marx is dealing in the following address with a set of conditions and problems that are in many respects similar to the ones confronting the American workers at present. A careful study of this document will open the eyes of many a deluded worker to the real proletarian class position to be taken by the workers in this campaign.

We have told you, brethren, as far back as in 1848, that German Liberalism would soon come to power and would at once use it against the working class. You have seen how this has been fulfilled. It was the bourgeoisie who after the victorious movement of March, 1848, took the reins of government, and the first use they made of their power was to force back the workingman, their allies in the fight against absolutism, to their former oppressed condition. They could not achieve their purpose without the assistance of the defeated aristocracy, to whom they even transferred governmental power, securing however for themselves the ultimate control of the government thru the budget. . . . .

The part which the liberals played in 1848, this treacherous role will at the next revolution be played by the democratic petty bourgeoisie, who, among the parties opposing the government, are now occupying the same position which the liberals occupied prior to the March revolution. This democratic party, which is more dangerous to the workingmen than the liberal party was, consists of the following three elements:

(i) The more progressive members of the upper bourgeoisie, whose object it is to sweep away all remnants of feudalism and absolutism;

(ii) The democratic-constitutional petty bourgeoisie, whose main object it is to establish a democratic federation of the Germanic states;

(ii) The republican petty bourgeoisie, whose ideal it is to turn Germany into a sort of Swiss republic. These republicans are calling themselves "reds" and "social democrats" because they have the pious wish to remove the pressure of large capital upon the smaller one, and of the big bourgeoisie upon the petty bourgeoisie.

All these parties, after the defeat they have suffered, are calling themselves republicans or reds, just as in France the republican petty bourgeisie are calling themselves socialists. Where, however, they have the opportunity of pursuing their aims by constitutional methods they are using their old phraseology and are showing by deeds that they have not changed at all. It is a matter of course that the changed name of that party does not alter their attitude towards the working class; it merely proves that in their struggle against the united forces of absolutism and large capitalists they require the support of the proletariat.

KARL MARX

The petty bourgeois democratic party in Germany is very powerful. It embraces not only the great majority of the town population, the small traders and craftsmen, but all the pedsantry and the agricultural laborers, in so far as the latter have yet come into contact with the proletariat of the towns. The revolutionary working class acts in agreement with that party as long as it is a question of fighting and overthrowing the aristocratic-liberal coalition; in all other things the revolutionary working class must act independently. The democratic petty bourgeoisie, far from desiring to revolutionize the whole society, are aiming only at such changes of the social conditions as would make life in existing society more comfortable and profitable. They desire above all a reduction of national expenditure thru a decrease of bureaucracy, and the imposition of the main burden of taxation on the landowners and capitalists. They demand, likewise, the establishment of state banks and laws against usury, so as to ease the pressure of the big capitalist upon the small traders and to get from the state cheap credit. They demand also the full mobilization of the land, so as to do away with all remnants of manorial rights. For these purposes they need a democratic constitution which would give them the majority in parliament, municipality, and parish.

With a view to checking the power and the growth of big capital the democratic party demand a reform of the laws of inheritance and legacies, likewise the transfer of the public services and as many industrial undertakings as possible to the state and municipal authorities. As to the working man—well, they should remain wage workers; for whom, however, the democratic party would procure higher wages, better labor conditions, and a secure existence. The democrats hope to achieve that partly thru state and municipal management and thru welfare institutions. In short, they hope to bribe the working class into quiescence, and thus to weaken their revolutionary spirit by momentary concessions and comforts.

The democratic demands can never satisfy the party of the proletariat. While the democratic petty bourgeoisie would like to bring the revolution to a close as soon as their demands are more or less complied with, it is our interest and our task to make the revolution permanent, to keep it going until all the ruling and possessing classes are deprived of power, the governmental machinery occupied by the proletariat, and the organisation of the working classes of all lands is so far advanced that all rivalry and competition among themselves has ceased; until the more important forces of production are concentrated in the hands of the proletarians. With us it is not a matter of reforming private property, but of abolishing it; not of hushing up the class antagonism, but of abolishing the classes; not of ameliorating the existing society, but of establishing a new one. There is no doubt that, with the further development of the revolution, the petty bourgeois democracy may for a time become the most influential party in Germany. The question is, therefore, what should be the attitude of the proletariat, and particularly of the League, towards it:

(i) During the continuation of the present conditions in which the petty bourgeois democracy is also oppressed?

(ii) In the ensuing revolutionary struggles which would give them momentary ascendancy?

(iii) After those struggles, during the time of their ascendancy over the defeated classes and the proletariat?

(i) At the present moment when the democratic petty bourgeoisie are everywhere oppressed, they lecture the proletariat, exhorting it to effect a unification and conciliation; they would like to join hands and form one great opposition party, embracing within its folds all shades of democracy. That is, they would like to entangle the proletariat in a party organization in which the general social democratic phrases predominate, behind which their particular interests are concealed, and in which the particular proletarian demands should not, for the sake of peace and concord, be brot forward. Such a unification would be to the exclusive benefit of the petty bourgeois democracy and to the injury of the proletariat. The organized working class would lose its hard-won independence and would become again a mere appendage of the official bourgeois democracy. Such a unification must be resolutely opposed.

Instead of allowing themselves to form the chorus of the bourgeois democracy, the workingmen, and particularly the League, must strive to establish next to the official democracy an independent, a secret as well as a legal organization of the working-class party, and to make each community the center and nucleus of working-class societies in which the attitude and the interests of the proletariat should be discussed independently of bourgeois influences. How little the bourgeois democrats care for an alliance in which the proletarians should be regarded as co-partners with equal rights and equal standing is shown by the attitude of the Breslau democrats, who in their organ, the Oder-Zeitung, are attacking those workingmen who are independently organized, and whom they nick-name socialists, subjecting them to severe persecutions. The gist of the matter is this: In case of an attack on a common adversary no special union is necessary; in the fight with such an enemy the interests of both parties, the middle-class democrats and the working-class party, coincide for the moment, and both parties will carry

The Proletarian Will to Power

By MAX SHACHTMAN.

THE history of the working masses is also the history of their attempts to free themselves from oppression; it is the history of struggle against the ruling class.

The oustanding struggles of the working class against the bourgeoisie in the nineteenth century were the Chartist movement in England, the revolutions of 1848 in France and Germany, and, most important, the Paris Commune of 1871. It is of these that we shall treat here.

The Chartist Movement.

The conditions of the British working class at the middle of the last century were indescribably horrible. The Reform Bill of 1832 had been of advantage to the middle class alone and left the workers without the suffrage. Five years later, one of the numerous radical societies that had sprung up all over England, the London Workingmen's Association, drafted a six points petition which later became the People's Charter. It called for equal electoral districts, universal male suffrage, annual parliaments, no property qualification for M. P.'s, the payment of members and vote by ballots.

To achieve this aim, no revolution would be necessary. But attracted to the Chartist movement were the leaders of the "miserable proletariat of the North," the physical forcists of the Bronterre O'Brien type who made it plain that the Charter was the preliminary step to social equality.

Thus, J. J. Coombe, a Chartist journalist, answered the question as to the object of the People's Charter by writing:

"Social equality means that tho all must work all must be happy. And now having answered the inquirer as to what I consider social and political equality to mean, just let me ask you, kind reader, one single question, do you expect that such a state of things, will ever come to pass, by going down on your bended knees and praying for it? Be not decieved, your tyrants will never concede justice till they are compelled; never will they yield to your demands even till they are overcome by fire and sword, and driven or exterminated from the face of the earth."

The Chartist agitation was given tremendous impetus by the severe crisis of 1838. The movement gained thousands of adherents. A convention which met in February presented the first petition, and, while awaiting the result, considered what its policy would be in the event of rejection. The physical forcists were increasing their influence to the detriment of the moral forcists led by Lovett. The situation, considerably aggravated by the bloody riot in Birmingham, and the arrest of Lovett, brot the convention to declare a general strike. On second thot the strike call was withdrawn, but it was too late. Welsh miners appeared in armed bands bearing down on Newport with the intention of capturing the town and proceeding to Cardiff. At Newport they were met with a fusillade by the hidden crown throops and retired in confusion.

The height of Chartism had been reached and from then on, despite the sporadic outbursts, the movement was doomed. The final blow was not only the ridiculous failure of the second petition but also the repeal of the vicious Corn Laws of '46, the passing of the remedial Factory Acts, the rise of the standard of living accompanied by the revival of a stronger trade union movement.

The fiery appeals and leadership of Feargus O'Connor, O'Brien and John Frost were forgotten as the hungry masses rushed to pick up the crumbs that were falling from the table of England's overstocked prosperity. They were lulled to sleep by the trade unions under the pacifist leadership of the predecessors of J. H. Thomas and Frank Hodges.

THREE HEROES OF MASS MURDER

LUDENDORFF NOSKE MUSSOLINI

9,750,000 Dead 25,000 Dead 20,000 Dead

The Spectre That Haunted Europe.

For almost a decade the wave of European revolution was at ebb. Then, suddenly, following on the heels of the Communist Manifesto—its memorable beginning: "A spectre is haunting Europe—the spectre of Communism:" its ominous warning—"Let the ruling classes tremble at a Communistic revolution"—came the uprisings of 1848 in France, Germany, Hungary, and Italy.

In France the workers, who could no longer stand up under the horrors of unemployment after the severe crisis of the winter of 1847, participated in a demonstration; soldiers attacked them; a riot began; the king fled; the provisional government was proclaimed by Lamartine, and the nominees of the workers, the socialists and radicals, abdicated before it.

Marx, who so early as 1843 in a letter to Arnold Ruge had predicted the revolutionary wave, was invited to come to revolutionary France. There he gathered the members of the League of Communists and proceeded to the Rhineland to establish the historic Nue Rheinische Zeitung. His brilliant contributions to its columns remain the outstanding results of the German revolution. In them are concentrated the history, the lessons, the criticisms, and the commendations of the German and French revolts.

"Revolutionary upheaval of the French working class, general war—that is the index for the year 1849. And already in the east a revolutionary army, comprised of warriors of all nationalities stands confronting the old Europe represented by and in league with the Russian Army, already from Paris looms the Red Republic!" wrote Marx.

Prophetic words.

The revolt of the Parisian proletariat, lacking in consciosness and disciplined leadership, failing to realize that there was only one means, in the words of Marx, "of shortening, simplifying, and concentrating the torturing agonies of society—only one means—revolutionary terrorism," was butchered by the troops of Cavaignac in the frightful days of June.

The German uprising, a reflex largely, of the French attempt, rose as easily as it was put down. The revolutions were petty bourgeois, with few proletarian elements. Order was restored by the bourgeoisie, the proletariat vigorously suppressed, so that commerce and finance might continue unhampered by turmoil!

But from Paris loomed the Red Republic!

The Glorious Commune.

On the 18th of March, 1871, the "glorious workingmen's revolution . . . took undisputed sway of Paris." The most mature and important example of the proletarian will to power of the nineteenth century was being exhibited in swift, dramatic scenes. The fall of the Little Napoleon, the failure of Thiers' treacherous attempt to seize the cannon of the National Guard, the fraternization of the troops of the Line, the rise and proclamation of the Communes of Creusot, St. Etienne, Lyons, Marseillies, Narbonne, and Paris—all followed in bewildering succession.

Paris, whence all but the revolutionaries had fled, established the workers' dictatorship over all France. Marx had advised against the revolt. He had proposed, instead, the creation of a strong proletarian fighting organization, taking advantage of any freedom they could squeeze out of the code of republican "liberties" and with growing, disciplined army of revolutionaries, await the propitious moment to strike for victory.

But the Commune was nevertheless established. (Revolutions have that habit of not waiting on anyone!) It was the first proletarian dictatorship and it had its numerous shortcomings, weaknesses. It failed to lay hands on the Bank of France; it did not deal summarily with traitors in its own ranks; it had the vain hope of securing peace with Thiers; only at the last hopeless moment, did it put Delescluze in charge of the army in place of the incompetent Cluseret, or Rossel.

But then, it was composed of such diverse elements as Blanquists and members of the First International; radicals and revolutionaries; serious rebels and dabblers; honest men and brave like Delescluze and scoundrels like Blanchet or mouthers like Felix Pyat.

Yet it was the working class in power! The Commune of the people's army, the demolisher of the Vendome column, the seizer of abandoned factories, the "ally in a conflict which can only end in the triumph of the communal idea."

The Commune lasted a little over two months. It was drowned in a sea of its own blood, drawn by the wretch Gallifet. It will be "forever celebrated as the glorious harbinger of a new society," Marx wrote in the valedictory which was also the farewell to the First International.

The workers of Europe were not to rise again for a half century, with the interlude of the heroic Russian revolution of 1905, when Lenin first recognized the Soviets as the form of the proletarian dictatorship. But when the proletarian will to power again expressed itself, when the Russian giant rose and felt its huge strength, it had behind it the lessons of the revolutionary nineteenth century. It had as its staff and sword the teachings of the revolutionary Marx; as its leader, the iron-willed Lenin. In the image of the First International it bore from its loins the Communist International, carrying the red torch to every corner of the earth, giving inspiration, hope, and belief in the coming of the new society, in the proletarian will to power!

Nothing To It - -

By Nathaniel Buchwald

(IMPRESSIONS OF THE LaFOLLETTE MEETING IN NEW YORK)

Comrades, there is nothing to it. I mean that LaFollette hullabaloo. The big meeting was a bust. It was hollow, and the fine acoustics of Madison Square Garden gave full resonance to this hollowness.

To confess, I was all tense as I approached the Garden. I was ready to summon up all the clear thinking that Communism has taught me to withstand the onrush of that blind but compelling enthusiasm, of the revivalist progressivism (1924 brand) which supposedly has swept and swayed and stirred up the well-advertised masses that are behind LaFollette. But I did not have to call upon my reserves of hard Communist thinking. A primer was more than sufficient. Not even a primer of Communism, but of respectable middle-of-the-road socialism, nay, of intelligent, honest liberalism. It requires a great deal less than class-struggle tenets to detect the ordinary species of piffle, to examine it and pronounce it piffle. And piffle it was—the chairman, the preliminary speakers, "Fighting Bob" and all.

Perhaps I can impart to you a sense of that gathering, its color, its spiritual timbre, its moral fabric. It was dead from LaFollette down or from the audience up. The noise at the candidate's arrival was a spiritless, perfunctory merry making. Merry making is the word. I looked at their faces, I wanted to detect in them that inspired glow, that irresistible faith, that spirit of crusade and sacrifice, which illumines Communist rallies of size, which was characteristic of socialist gatherings of years ago. Not a trace of it, not a quiver of inspiration, of splendid madness. It was all sport, all fun. People applauded, whistled, yelled in a light-hearted manner, bantering as they did so, laughing at their own childishness of joining in the noise. This still-born ovation would have run its course in two or three minutes, and if it lasted

Make It a Party of Leninism

By EARL R. BROWDER.

IF there is one task of supreme importance before the Workers Party of America it is that of remaking itself into a bolshevist party. When, during the commemoration of the death of our great leader, Lenin, we launched the recruiting slogan: "Join the Party of Lenin," we all were more or less conscious that for the Workers Party this was an aspiration rather than an established fact. Now more than ever we are realizing (since the disussions in the Fifth World Congress particularly) what a big job we have to make good our boast of being the Party of Lenin.

Leninism Is Not Phrasemongery.

In this task we must develop the discussion necessary to make the issues clear to our membership. At the same time the danger of degenerating into phrasemongery, the very opposite of Leninism, is ever present in a party so young and untried as our own. It is this tendency to let the word stand in place of the deed that Comrade Zinoviev struck at, when he said at the Fifth Congress:

"A good deal has been heard at this congress of the necessity of bolshevising the parties, of remaining true to Leninism. We would prefer to hear less about bolshevising the party, but to have the essence of Leninism itself studied more deeply, especially in regard to the trade union question."

In line with this gentle hint from Comrade Zinoviev, let us try to keep our discussion on bolshevizing the Workers Party upon as concrete and definite a plane as possible.

Five Points of Leninism.

According to the theses of the Fifth Congress, there are five fundamental features of "a really bolshevik party," which are:

"(a) The party must be really a mass party; i.e., while being a legal party or if obliged to become illegal, it must maintain the closest and unseverable ties with the mass of the workers and serve as the expression of their needs and aspirations.

"(b) It must have the ability to maneuver; i. e., its tactics must not be dogmatic or sectarian; it must be able to resort to every strategical maneuver against the enemy, which will enable it to remain true to itself. It is one of the chief errors of our parties that they frequently fail to understand this.

"(c) It must be essentially a revolutionary and Marxist Party, undeviatingly and in spite of all circumstances proceeding towards the goal and making every effort to bring nearer the hour of victory of the proletariat over the bourgeoisie.

"(d) It must be a centralized party, prohibiting factions, tendencies, and groups. It must be a monolithic party hewn of one piece.

"(e) It must carry out a regular definite propaganda in the bourgeois army.

"Bolshevising the party means the application to our sections what in Russian Bolshevism was and is international and of general application.

"Only to the extent that the sections of the Comintern become really converted into bolshevik parties, will the Comintern indeed become a World Bolshevik Party imbued with the ideas of Leninism."

Where Do We Fall Short?

Does the Workers Party measure up to these standards? No one will pretend that we do. But it will be of great value to us to know where and in what manner we fail short, and also to what extent we have really progressed in the desired direction.

Let it be admitted at once that on all five points our Workers Party does not come up to standard. With this qualification we can then say, that on some points we have made distinct progress, while on others we still face the first elementary steps.

First, we must become a mass party. To accomplish this, five further pre-requisites are laid down by the Fifth Congress: (1) Construction of the party on the basis of shop nuclei; (2) A correct trade union policy and work; (3) Initiation and linking up with a shop committee movement; (4) A correct policy toward the farmers; (5) A correct policy on the national question.

Shop nuclei, the first law of organization for a Party of Leninism, are only now being organized in our party. And we still lack that driving force of a convinced and enthusiastic membership that will make our shop nuclei the living, vital organs of the party. A drastic awakening of our membership to the absolute necessity of this re-organization task is called for immediately.

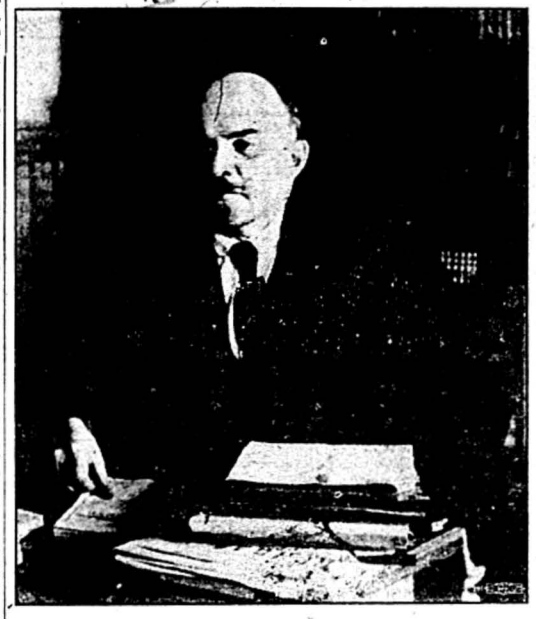
Correct trade union policy has been one of the strongest points of the Workers Party from its inception. But even here, tendencies to deviate from the true line of Lenin have appeared, not alone among small circles of our membership, but also among some leading comrades. Especially did we find the disastrous deviations of the German comrades on this question finding echoes in America. The party must be confirmed, from top to bottom, in the bolshevik trade union policy, summarized in the slogans: "Back to the trade unions;" "Unity, nationally and internationally, of the trade union movement;" "Against splits and secessions;" "Relentless struggle within the mass organizations against the policies of class collaboration and for policies of class struggle."

The problem of shop committees is only now being faced and mastered by our party in its theoretical aspect. But today it is also becoming a major practical problem of our movement, because only insofar as the shop committee movement is now developed will we be able to secure the necessary contact with the masses for the development of our whole movement, especially in its trade union phases, on to the new stage called for by the class struggle. Intense activity and study in initiating and understanding real, practical movements for shop committees is today the outstanding problem on the economic field of a Party of Leninism in America.

A correct policy toward the farmers is another point on which we can justly claim progress. We have established vital contacts with the poorer farmers, and have given them we have disclosed weaknesses—not a certain amount of leadership in their struggles. Even here, however, in underestimating its importance, but in a tendency to allow the center of gravity of the struggle to slip over too far toward the agrarian elements. The leadership must always remain with the vanguard of the industrial workers.

On the national question we may say that our theory has been correct, but our practice has been sadly limited. Only on the question of the Philippines can we say that the party has really made itself a factor. In South and Central America, where burning questions of national struggle are smouldering and flaring up under the oppression of American imperialism, our party sadly failed to make the most of its opportunities. There are a hundred excuses for this, lack of recources, etc., but the fact remains that until we make good this deficiency we cannot claim to be fully a Leninist Party.

Summarizing the conditions necessary for making the Workers Party a mass Party of Communism, we may say that on the first, third, and fifth points, we have made but the barest beginnings. On the fourth, the farmers, our exceptional opportunities have enabled us to make progress which is not discreditable. Only on the second, that of trade union policy, can we say that our party has really made appreciable strides towards the goal of establishing a living contact with the masses.



LENIN

Ability to Maneuver.

In developing the ability to meneuver, the second point laid down as a necessity for a Party of Leninism, we must register some progress but many shortcomings. We have definitely overcome the sectarian attitude to our problems, and established a will to maneuver. But the firmness of ideology in our membership, necessary to carry out maneuvers successfully and to keep our own forces and program intact, has not always been present. In our Labor Party campaigns, we sometimes found individuals and even whole units of our party being confused by opportunist ideas, instead of overcoming and defeating such deviations which always threaten in such maneuvers among backward masses. The ideology of our membership must be strengthened, its instinct against opportunism must be sharpened, before we can claim the ability to maneuver as a Leninist Party. Among other things this calls for a tenfold intensification of our educational activity, and the keenest scrutiny of every item of our educational work, that it may be Leninist in fact as well as phrase.

A Revolutionary Party.

On the third pre-requisite laid down by the Comintern, that the Party must be essentially and undeviatingly a revolutionary and Marxist Party, we claim that the Workers Party comes close to the standard. Deviations from lack of understanding, from an incomplete assimilation of the Communist theory and practice, have appeared and will appear. But our party record is not too bad in this respect. Vigilant scrutiny of all our acts, and merciless self-criticism, will keep us on the correct road.

A Centralized, Monolithic Party.

It is when we come to the fourth point, that we begin to get an appreciation of the appalling shortcomings of the Workers Party as a Party of Leninism. The Comintern says:

"It must be a centralized party, prohibiting factions, tendencies, and groups. It must be a monolithic party hewn of one piece."

A black record of sin against Leninism stands here against our movement in America. Not only have we silently acquiesced in our social-democratic inheritence of structural form, which reduces centralization to a mockery—we have done worse, by systematically placing a premium upon factions, tendencies, and groups within our party. We have a pernicious tradition, running violently counter to the fundamentals of Leninism, that the road to leadership lies thru the development of "tendencies" differing from the party line, and the crystallization of factions and groups around these "tendencies."

A sharp halt must be called to this un-bolshevist practice, and an end put to this shameful tradition. The Workers Party of America must, too, become "a monolithic party hewn of one piece." There is no room for warring factions and groups within a Communist party. When the next Central Executive Committee and District Committees of our party are elected, let it be understood, once and for all, that when the party has established its line of policy in the discussion period and by convention decision, at that moment all struggle within the party ends and every member, from top to bottom, becomes one unit in "a centralized, monolithic party hewn of one piece."

Propaganda in the Army.

In the fifth point, the systematic preparation of the armed forces of the bourgeois state for refusal to fire upon their brother workers when ordered to do so by the capitalist masters, we find another measure of the immaturity of our party. Not a tenth part of what should have been done by us has been accomplished. Immersed in the practical affairs of daily life, we have neglected what will soon become one of the most practical and pressing problems of the movement. And for the ultimate struggle for power, we know that upon this problem being solved depends the fate of the revolution itself. It is a pleasure to make note of the fact, however, that if our party has neglected this work, the Young Workers League has not. It has made at least a beginning by sending picked members into the military training camps, compiling its experience, and make it available for the movement generally.

Conclusion.

Yes, it requires more, much more, than mere repetition of phrases from the books for us to reach the point where we can say: "We have a Party of Leninism." It requires that we take hold of our party and change it, organizationally and ideologically, hammering it in the course of our struggle, in the course of applying the principles of the Communist International to the life of the American working class, into the kind of a

The Founding of the First International

By HARRISON GEORGE

When the red flag of the Soviet Republic of Great Britain floats aloft from John O' Groat's to Land's End, I am sure that on some ceremonial day a tremendous mass of the London proletariat will crowd by the hundreds of thousands around the corner of Long Acre and Endell street, for, on that corner stands St. Martin's Hall, and in that hall on September 28th, 1864, was born the International Workingmen's Association—the First International.

Previous to that date the advance of capitalist domination had been unchallenged. It had smashed feudal forms. It had seen its catch-words "Liberty, Equality and Fraternity" (meaning free trade, equality of bourgeois with the nobility, and the "fraternity" of stock holders) flowering at the foot of the guillotine which awaited alike the resistant feudalist and the nascent, deceived proletariat. It had overturned governments right and left, and except for isolated and confused resistances such as the Chartist Movement, capitalist advance was one uninterrupted triumph.

But with the birth of the I. W. M. A., was forged the first crude weapon which the international working class used in blocking the path of capitalist exploitation. Capitalism saw the birth of its implacable enemy, and foresaw with abject terror its historical extinction.

Beginnings

It was upon the material, even though unstable and immature, foundation of English trades unions that the First International was based. On the Continent, unions were forbidden and only occasional, impotent groups or republicans led by Mazzini furtively existed. It was the hope, undoubtedly, of British unionists to extend unionism to the Continent, that led a group of them headed by George Odger to send, in 1863, an address "To the Workingmen of France from the Workingmen of England."

This address was built upon the question then agitating all libertarians, the subjection of Poland and the recent suppression of the Polish insurrection. But, evidently, this address was a reply to some unknow French manifesto, as it said: "We echo your call for a fraternity of peoples, highly necessary for the cause of labor." Anyhow, from these beginnings came the meeting on Sept. 28th, 1864 at St. Martin's Hall, London.

Although, as mentioned, the Polish question was uppermost, and the meeting, under the chairmanship of a positivist professor, E. S. Beesley, had the formulation of a protest on behalf of Poland as its first order of business; after that had been finished, the problem of the international organization of the working class was taken up. Le Lubez, a French refugee living in London, proposed that a Central Council, sitting in London, with branches in all European capitals, should be formed. The proposal was accepted and upon the Central Council were appointed a number of English unionists, Major L. Wolff, who represented, as his secretary, the ideas of Mazzini, and the great economist and revolutionary, Karl Marx.

There were four primary currents. Firstly, Odger and Howell, English trade unionists, wished merely to provide the workers on the Continent with unions. Some French refugees hoped that the new organization would attempt the assassination of Napoleon III. Thirdly, Mazzini, through his secretary, Major Wolff (later exposed as a police spy by the seizure of records in the Paris Comune) hoped to turn the I.W.M.A. into groups of secret republican societies. But Marx, with his tireless energy and patience won the day with his famous "Address and Rules" to make the International a great propagandist body, uniting and educating the workers, admitting both unions and political sections.

In reality, it was Marx's first opportunity to realize in action that amazing intellectual contribution, "The Communist Manifesto" which he and his brilliant co-worker Frederick Engels had written in 1847 for the obscure and now forgotten "Federation of the Just."

As indicative of the political direction accepted by the First International the lines from Marx's Inaugural Address may be quoted: "Conquest of political power is the first task of the working class." "The scales will turn in favor of the masses only if they are organized and if they are guided by knowledge." "The liberation of the working class must be accomplished by the working class itself." This last quotation was aimed against the class collaboration theories of Proudhon and is not, as Lenin has stated by infantile leftists", an argument for sectarian isolation. The closing paragraphs of the "Communist Manifesto" contradict such notions.

As an example of the queer kind of things the working class was asked to swallow, the following from Proudhon also aptly illustrates how the anarchist theory, which makes its appeal as being "more revolutionary" than Marxism, leads straight to class collaboration: "The social question is there; you cannot escape from it. To solve it we must have men who combine extreme radicalism with extreme conservatism. Workers, hold out your hands to your employers; and you, employers, do not deliberately repulse the advances of those who were your wage earners." And this from the "Father of Anarchy" who cried that the State is a "fiction" "No more parties, no politics, no more authority, absolute liberty!"

Among the English, German, Polish and Italian delegates at the Inaugural Congress were numerous French workers led by Tolain, an ardent supporter of Proudhon's "mutualism" especially as applied to people's credit banks. Marx fought against this digression for years. But it was the rising tide of trade unionism, together with a revolutionary political movement, which left no basis for such petty-bourgeois nostrums, and Proudhonism died a natural death among strikes and rising revolution.

Though the International was terribly handicapped, unable to pay rent for its offices and chronically remiss in paying its secretary even the small sum of $5 per week, its influence spread like wildfire across Europe. Unions sprang up in Spain, Denmark, France, Austria-Hugary and Germany, and fierce conflicts broke out with the capitalists. The English Trades Union Congress of 1863 instructed all unions to join the International, which held its congress that year at Geneva.

A delegate from Geneva crossing the French frontier was searched and documents of the International seized. The French authorities offered to let them through, however, "if you will insert some expressions of gratitude to the Emperor who has done so much for the working class." The International, however, thought it better to raise $5,000 relief funds in England for locked-out Paris bronze workers, an act which gave it tremendous prestige throughout France. A strike leader on trial declared, when asked if he were a member of the International—"No, but I hope to be allowed to.be."

It was the role of Marx in all this up-sweep of working class organization to weed out the freak philosphies and utopian systems and replace them with scientific socialist, that is to say, Communist, clarification. But he was terribly handicapped. He was deep in poverty and his family suffered fearfully from disease and hunger. And the International was fair game for all the fantastic social remedies of an awakening class seeking prematurely to throw off its chains. Merely by his wonderful logic without intrigue did he hold mastery over the General Council. Like our great leader Lenin, he did the work of two men, beset by bitter difficulties though he was, and living the life of a half-starved refugee. In 1868 he brought forth the first edition of his great work—Capital.

Marxism was at work. In December 1868, the Council opposed giving a dinner to the American ambassador "because he does not represent the workers." And when Mazzini died that year, a motion to make an address on the event was opposed because "Mazzini was opposed to the class struggle." Strikes swept Europe.

But Marx's work was not to go on peacefully. One of the most able and shameless masters of intrigue was seeking admission to the International, Michael Bakunin led an anarchist organization called the "Alliance of Socialist Democracy." Able as he was in intrigue, Bakunin was theoretically impossible. To the folly of Proudhonist "absolute liberty" he added "absolute equality", embracing both abstractions and the problem of reconciling these two absolutes. But six years before he had addressed Alexander II, pledging his loyalty if Alexander would only become "Czar of the Moujiks." Bakunin's "Alliance" applied for admission en masse to the International.

Bakunin's "Alliance" wanted admission upon its own. Bakunin's principles, "The Alliance declares itself atheist," "There shall be no state," and, after Bakunin had been disappointed in political alliance with Swiss liberals—"Political action is forbidden." But it was his "economic and social equalization of classes" which drew the fire of the General Council in its reply denying the Alliance admission as an organization. The reply said in part:

"The equalization of classes literally interpreted comes to the harmony of capital and labor, so pertinaciously advocated by bourgeois socialists. It is not the equalization of classes, logically a contradiction, impossible to realize, but on the contrary, the abolition of classes, the real secret of the proletarian movement, which is the great aim of the International Workingmen's Association."

But Marx's work was not to go on dissolving its central bureau, affiliated branch by branch following Marx's proposal that they be admitted. Bakunin was, as Postgate says, "inside the fort." While he did very constructive work in establishing branches throughout Spain, his very nature reveled in interminable quarrels, and although the whole International was becoming a nightmare to the bourgeoisie, the mendacious factionalism of Bakunin had split it in two before the death blow given it by the crushing of the Paris Comune.

War broke out in July, 1870, between France and Prussia. The German members of the International vigorously opposed the war, but without effect. The French section had previously been subjected to bitter persecution by the Bonaparte government. It was powerless. In six weeks the French armies were smashed or captured by Bismark and the empire had fallen. A republic was proclaimed on September 4th. The new government went from incontinent retreat to incompetent and disastrous attack.

On January 18th, 1871, more afraid of the Paris workmen it had been compelled to arm in the "National Guard", than of the Prussian troops, it signed an armistice. Paris was enraged. Thiers, commander of the regular troops and soon to become one of the most infamous butchers of working people, ordered his soldiers on March 18th, to seize the cannon of the Paris National Guard. The troops fraternized, shot their officers and the government fled to Versailles. The Paris Commune had begun.

It is not the purpose of this article to give a history of this glorious effort of the Paris workers to establish proletarian rule. Sufficient to say that on the Central Committee of the Commune sat 17 members of the International. For detailed incident of the struggle in which 100,000 Paris workers "disappeared"—as Postgate puts it, and 30,000 are acknowledged to have been massacred by the Versaillese, I refer the reader to "The Civil War in France," written by Marx and issued by the First International while Thiers' human bloodhounds were still dumping cadavers into the Seine.

The members of the International fought beside the other Paris workers day after day, only once did the members on the Central Commitee resign as a protest against action of the majority. They were ordered back by the General Council and like good revolutionists they obeyed International discipline. On May 21st the Versaillese entered by a spy's betrayal. A week of barricade fighting followed. The promise of May 15th was kept. It had said: "Paris has treated with death. Behind her forts are her walls; behind her walls are her barricades; behind her barricades are her houses which will have to be wrenched from her one by one." And when the fighting was over the Versaillese under Thiers and Gallifet began the most gory and sickening butchery of the century.

Marx says that in order to find comparison for the conduct of Thiers "we must go back to the times of Sulla and the two Triumvirates of Rome.... There is but this difference, that the Romans had no machine guns for the dispatch, in the lump, of the proscribed, and that they had not 'the law in thier hands' nor on their lips the cry of 'civilization.'"

Between the ghastly wound of the crushed Commune and the unceasing intrigues of Bakunin the International was bleeding to death. The Unions had been first to succumb to persecution and then the political sections, the organs of combat, were wiped out by the terrific reaction following the Commune. Though many sections were left in Europe, especially in England, and nearly thirty in America, the whole energy of the movement was taken up in factional fighting. Bakunin railed against the "dictatorship" of Marx and Engels; they, in turn, would not surrender one inch to anarchist theory.

"Anarchy, "says Marx, "is the great charger of Bakunin. All socialists hold anarchy to mean this: the aim of the proletarian movement, the abolition of classes, once attained, the power of the state which serves to keep the great majority of producers beneath the yoke of a small exploiting minority, will disappear and governmental functions become mere administrative functions. The Alliance (speaking of Bakuninists) reverses this. It proclaims anarchy in the ranks of the proletariat as the most infallible means of defeating the powerful concentration of social and political forces in the hands of the exploiters. On this pretext it requires the International at the moment when the old world seeks to crush it, to replace its organization (Bakunin had demanded abolition of powers of the General Council) with anarchy. The international police asks no more".

But capitalism again triumphant and still ascendant was creating national interests even among the socialists. The anarchists were sowing the seeds of decentralization which were to furnish the poison for the Second International and its collapse forty years later. Marxians, embittered by Bakunin, controlled the Hague Congress meeting on September 2, 1872. It voted to move the General Council to New York. Marx was ill, suffering severely and dangerously from overwork. Engels continued to fight the anarchists. Bakunin failed to build a rival international. On the 15th of July, 1876, the First International held its last conference at Philadelphia. The outlook was black and the meeting accepted facts and declared the General Council abolished. Bakunin, it seems, had won. But Leninism was to come. And that, of course, is another story.

FROM THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS OF THE INTERNATIONAL WORKINGMEN'S ASSOCIATION

By KARL MARX.

Delivered to the Public Meeting in the St. Martin's Hall, Long Acre, London, on Sept. 28, 1864, at which the association was founded:

"Therefore to capture political power is now the great duty of the working class. This appears to have been understood for simultaneously in England, France, Germany and Italy indications of a revival are to be seen and in all these countries attempts at the political reorganization of the workers' party are now being made."

"One element of success is possessed by the workers—their great numbers. But the mass can only bring their pressure to bear when an organization has gathered them together and given them an intelligent lead. Former experience has shown how neglect of the bonds of brotherhood, which can unify and encourage the workers of the various lands in all their struggles for freedom to steadfastly stand by one another, leads to the punishment of the workers through the frustration of their unconnected attempts. Urged by the knowledge of this need workers of various countries have on September 28th, 1864, at a public meeting in the St. Martin's Hall, founded the International Association."

Food Prices Climb.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Cost of the principal articles of food (weighted average) retailed in towns thruout the country shows an increase of seven-tenths of 1 per cent for July this year, compared with June says the bureau of labor statistics. The cost of these items is 2.6 per cent lower than in July, 1923. Coffee is 12 per cent higher than a year ago.

Carrying the Banner of Social Revolt

By ALEXANDER BITTELMAN

The history of all hitherto existing society is the history of class struggles.

Freeman and slave, patrician and plebeian, lord and serf, guild-master and journeyman, in a word, oppressor and oppressed, stood in constant opposition to one another, carried on an uninterrupted, now hidden, now open fight, a fight that each time ended, either in a revolutionary re-constitution of society at large, or in the common ruin of the contending classes.

Thus spoke Karl Marx and Frederick Engels, in the "Communist Manifesto," on the nature of human society and on the prime fundamental forces that are making its development and shaping the changes in its construction.

What is the story of social life? It is a story of struggle, of class against class, of the oppressed against the oppressor, a struggle for political power to reshape society—the ownership and control of the wealth of the nation—in the interests of the oppressed masses.

The Last Struggle for Power.

In the past it was a struggle of slave against freeman, plebeian against patrician, serf against lord, journeyman against guild-master. Now it is a struggle of worker against capitalist, the proletariat against the bourgeoise. And in this struggle of today, the Banner of Social Revolt is carried by the Communist International—the spiritual and political successor to the First International.

Social changes of former epochs resulted, as a rule, in substituting one ruling class for another. The slave of yesterday became the freeman and master of today. The oppressed bourgeoise under the feudal regime became the powerful capitalist class of today, holding under its iron heel millions upon millions of toiling masses. But when these in their turn succeed in overthrowing the rule of the capitalists, the only new form of society that can result out of such a revolution is a society of equals, a society of Communist brotherhood.

Ours, therefore, is the last struggle for power. The victorious working class can materialize its victory over the bourgeoisie and realize in a measure the fruits of the social revolution only in one way and that is by abolishing classes altogether. That is why the final aims of the proletarian class struggle, in distinction from the final aims of former aspirants to power is not the perpetuation of class rule but, on the contrary, its total liquidation.

It's the final conflict. Let each stand in his place. The International Party shall be the human race.

The First International Has Shown the Way.

But how shall we reach this goal? The First International, founded in London sixty years ago, has shown the way. Through the medium of its immortal leader, Karl Marx, the First International has proclaimed the truth that the seizure of political power by the working class is the only road to the abolition of capitalist exploitation, to the abolition of classes altogether, and to the institution of a society of human brotherhood.

The First International! Only an incident in the great proletarian struggle for freedom, was it not? And yet what a significant, epoch-making incident that was! Everything of importance that happened to the working class within the last sixty years can be traced, directly or indirectly, to that memorable day in September, 1864, upon which there first made its appearance the "International Workingmen's Association."

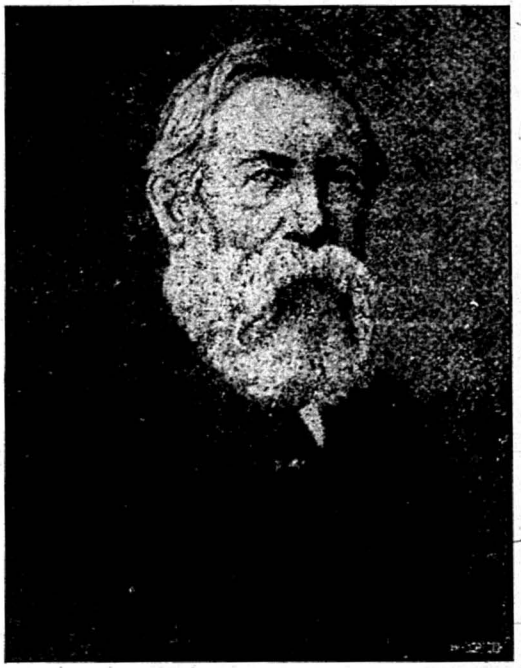
It was the first visible manifestation of working class internationalism. Just imagine. In a world half submerged in blood and nearly torn to shreds by kings, feudals and capitalists, there appears in the arena of social life a body of workingmen intent upon acting internationally. As against the petty jealousies of kings and emperors and as against the expansionist ambitions of the rising bourgeoisie this International Association of Workingmen puts up the idea and the movement for working-class solidarity of the toiling masses the world over.

Can you feel the workings of this idea in the labor movement of today? Can you see hundreds of thousands of proletarians closing their ranks behind the Communist International, marching proudly under the banner of social revolt and determined to establish an International Soviet Republic?

If you can see this movement, and if you also happen to know what transpired in London, in St. Martin's Hall, on a September day in 1864, you will realize what the First International has meant for the working-class struggle for freedom.

The Road to Power.

Go back to the "Inaugural Address" by Karl Marx, delivered at the founding of the First International. Read it. Study it. Try to extract from it its most momentous lesson and direction to the working class. And what is it? The seizure of political power. It tells the workers in so many words that the road to freedom is the road to power. How? By fighting for it, nationally and internationally. Thru what means? Thru the means of a revolutionary working class political party. This is the essence of the theory and practice of the First International.



FREDERICK ENGELS

And when you now see class conscious proletarians flocking into the ranks of the Communist International you understand the connection between it and what happened in St. Martin's Hall in September of 1864. And when you see over the heads of the revolutionary workers of today a red banner floating with the inscription: "Hail the Dictatorship of the Proletariat," you will feel satisfied that the work of the First International has not been in vain.

A Temporary Eclipse.

The proletarian struggle for power has had its ups and downs. The same is true of the international working class movement. The defeat of the Paris Commune, which resulted in a terrific onslaught upon the proletariat by the militant reaction of the world bourgeoisie, coupled with internal dissentions have brot to a close the existence of the First International. And it was only in 1889 that the attempt was made again to give international expression to the working class movement of the world. It finally materialized into what is now known as the Second International.

It was to continue the traditions of the First only on a much wider scale. It was to raise again the banner of social revolt and to carry it on until the final victory of the world proletariat.

But, alas, this was not to be, having fulfilled the important historic mission of assisting in the upbuilding of political mass parties of the workers in a number of European countries, a mission which was accomplished during two decades of comparatively peaceful capitalist development, the Second International went bankrupt and later collapsed altogether because of the inability and unwillingness of its leadership to cope in an effective way with the capitalism of today—the capitalism of imperialistic wars and proletarian revolutions.

The Second International, led by Scheideman, Noske, Henderson, MacDonald, etc., has betrayed the tradition of the First International in two fundamental respects. The former turned out to be neither international nor revolutionary. It was therefore bound to betray the workers at the first real test with capitalist reality which came at the beginning of the late war.

In fact since the beginning of the present century the labor movement of the world entered into a period of temporary eclipse as far as international action was concerned. One might safely say that since 1901 there has been no working class body effectively functioning in the field of the international class struggle. The late war and the total collapse of the Second International merely completed a decade of bankruptcy and betrayal.

The Sun Appears Again.

Those were bitter years for the militant and class conscious workers of the world. The banner of social revolt was nowhere visible on the international horizon. Only the working class of Russia under the leadership of the Bolsheviks and their immortal leader, Lenin, and small sections of militants in other European countries were valiantly resisting this black tide of betrayal and demoralization. Until—

Until the Red Sun appeared in the East, the Russian Revolution in 1917. The formation of the Communist International in 1919. And since then the triumphant march of the revolutionary proletariat the world over.

The banner of social revolt has again risen over the heads of the working class, purged and cleansed in the fire of struggle and in the blood of working class revolutionaries. The Communist International has come into existence and with it the resurrection of the best and most potent traditions of the First International.

Karl Marx in 1864, in St. Martin's Hall, in London, England; Nicholas Lenin in 1919, in the hall of the Kremlin, in Moscow, Russia. Two links in the chain of struggle. Two milestones on the Road to Power.

In this day of celebration, let us dedicate our lives to the cause championed by our leaders, Marx, Engels and Lenin. Let us once more declare before the whole world:

No compromise with the enemy!

A fight to the finish for the proletarian dictatorship and the Communist Society!

Long live the International Soviet Republic!

Hillman in Toronto.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, has left for an organizaton trip in eastern Canada. He will confer with the local organizations of the union in Montreal and Toronto. The recent strike Montreal to get contractors registered and maintain union conditions is a complete victory for the union.

How to Start a Shop Nucleus

By MARTIN ABERN

To begin with, one cannot set down a hard and fast rule for taking the first steps in organizing a Shop Nucleus, the political unit of the Party made up of Party members working in the same shop, factory, mill, etc. The ways are many; there is not an arbitrary figure to the number required to establish a Shop Nucleus. Even one Party member can constitute himself as a Shop Nucleus, and by carrying on a systematic activity build a larger group of Party members around him. But that is a matter which can be dealt with another time in connection with problems growing out of it. There are some first steps toward Shop Nucleus organization which are common in virtually every instance.

There Must Be a Correct Industrial Registration

Where do the Party comrades work? That must be known accurately before anything can be done to organize politically in the shop. A 100 per cent correct industrial registration of the Party is hence wanted and required. The Party is now taking an industrial registration nationally. The Branch Secretary or Industrial Organizer must therefore make sure that every member is registered, especially—that is the most important—as to place of work of each comrade. Very likely, the Branch will find that among its own members there are comrades working together in the same shop. The Branch, however, is asked at present to send in its complete industrial registration to the City Central Committee, the District and National Organizations, for which the necessary blanks have been provided.

With the industrial registration of all the Branches in its hands, the City Organization proceeds to classify the membership of the Branches. Much information will be got. Among that will be the knowledge of where the Party members work, whether alone in a shop or together with other comrades who belong to various Party territorial Branches.

Let us take an example which will occur hundreds of times and which will therefore be the starting point innumerably toward Shop Nucleus organization.

The City Organization, having classified the industrial registration, finds that in the, let us say, Allen Machinery company are working Party comrades who belong to: English Branch-three members; Lithuanian Branch two members; Jewish Branch-one member; South Slav Branch-two members-eight Party members in the same shop. The classification will occur in divers ways in the industries. What will be the first duty of the City Organization, the four Branches spoken of, and the eight members?

The Common Interests of the Comrades Unite Them For Activity

The City Organization informs the Branches and members of the above findings. A meeting of the comrades from the four Branches is called. There are a number of interests, obviously, they have in common but which they now take note of; for it is the obvious, very often, which is most important and to which the attention of people must be called. What are some of the things in common of the comrades?

a. The comrades of the English, Jewish, Lithuanian and South Slav Branches belong to the same political party, the Workers (Communist) Party, and so have like political attitudes.

b. The comrades work in the same shop, Allen Machinery Co., and have the same economic and job problems in the shop to meet and to solve.

c. The comrades are surrounded in the shop by the same other workers upon whom our comrades have to work with a common political and economic program.

There are more identical problems which can be noted, but these will do for our purpose. The question occurs: with these factors in common to start with, is it not logical that the Party members should be organized as a political unit in the shop to carry on a steady, common and systematic program for communism among their fellow shop-mates? Plainly so. Far more logical, sensible, practicable and communist that these Party members should be organized as a Shop Nucleus with definitive work to do.

That is true, comrade, and good, but we don't speak English very well, and that makes the work and organization of a Shop Nucleus so difficult, is an objection which is at once heard. That objection is more evasion than anything else. It is a difficulty cured by contact of the members with one another and with a program in the shop to carry out. The boss manages to get along with the workers of various languages together in the same shop. In fact, too well and profitably. Party members, as well as the other workers, have to get along, despite the alleged language barriers, with the boss. Certainly Party members have far more in common with each other and can more easily find ways to get along together. The language objection is sophistic and must be overuled therefore. Taking it for granted, therefore, that the comrades of the various Branches, found to be working in the same machine shop, are ready and willing to be organized as a Shop Nucleus, what is the next step? To outline briefly, for the many functions and problems should he dealt with in detail separately.

Shop Nucleus, Not The Branch, Is The Authoritative Political Unit.

It is possible, in a degree, for comrades working together in a shop to carry on work of a political and economic charcter, which is akin to the work a Shop Nucleus would carry on. We have in mind a group of comrades from various Branches who work together in the same shop. They spread propaganda thru literature, etc.; they formulate and try to carry out certain shop demands; they do some common work in the shop in relation to the present election campaign of the Party. But—it is not a Shop Nucleus and does not do the work it might if it were a bonafide Shop Nucleus instead of just a shop fraction. It is not authoritative; the members of the various Branches regard their Branches as the leading body. That brings forward a fundamental problem of the Shop Nucleus.

The Shop Nucleus must be, and is, the leading and authoritative political unit of the Party. It is the basic unit. The comrades of the English, Lithuanian, Jewish and South Slav Branches mentioned as example, meeting together, elect a Shop Nucleus Secretary, and Industrial Organizer, Literature Agent and other officers.

Then, the comrades must pay their dues through the Shop Nucleus Secretary. It becomes and is thereby the leading and main political unit of the Party, and recognizes itself and acts as such. The allegiance, if that term can be used, of the members of the Shop Nucleus is not to the territorial English or language branches to which they formerly belonged. It is to the Shop Nucleus. The Shop Nucleus thereafter as an authorized body meets regularly to lay out a program of action for itself—a program of politics, economic and trade union work, educational, lectures, literature distribution, individual work of the members, time and place of meetings, etc. all of which must be dealt with in special articles.

Shop Nucleus Activity Once Started Will Do Away With So-Called Difficulties.

This article tries to touch some of the technical sides to getting started toward Shop Nuclei. The members of the Shop Nucleus, meeting together regularly, in daily contact with one another, with a program of work in the shop will soon find that any language difficulties, if real, will disappear. The heart and work of the members will not be in their former Branches, English or language, but in their Shop Nucleus where they are united on the basic of their daily struggle needs and on the ultimate program of Communism. Shop Nucleus organization will mean a better and clearer understanding of the labor movement and working class problems in America and will produce better Party members for the cause of Communism.

Impressions of the LaFollette Meeting

thirteen minutes, it was due to the frantic cheer-leading from the speakers' platform, assisted by section cheer leaders who were everywhere.

I tell you, comrades, there is nothing to it. It isn't even much of a fraud—it's a bluff, and they are suckers indeed who fall for it. At that, I don't know if that particular audience of some thirteen thousand, fell for it. They simply didn't care, they were not concerned, there was nothing at stake for them one way or another. By the way the audience received the various speakers and responded to various telling phrases you could see what elements it was composed of. La Guardia got a big and noisy hand, and when he assured the people that the progressives, far from intending to break down the constitution, wish to maintain it and carry out faithfully its provisions, there was a hefty applause of relief and reassurance. Norman Thomas' applause about gaged the socialist contents of the hall, and of that old guard there must have been some two or three thousand. LaFollette's reference to high telephone rates struck a sore spot, also his denunciation of high electric bills. There wasn't a doubt that the bulk of the audience would go home into apartments with all modern improvements. It was that kind of a crowd.

Was it La Guardia or was it the chairman who referred to Coolidge's aides as "our republican friends?" Wihtout a sneer, mind you, without a humorous quirk. It was beautiful, that "republican friends!" It was the very bull's eye of the progressives' campaign spirit. It's as between friends, fair competitors, honest opponents, drummers in the same line, gentlemen all. And then that happy epitome of La Guardia's: "All intelligent republicans and all intelligent democrats are and ought to be in the progressive movement!"

LaFollette's prepared address was in every respect harmonious with the audience, the spirit of the affair, and the tenor of the preliminary shadowboxing with "privilege." Frankly, I gave old Bob more credit for substance. The amount of bunk, piffle, drivel, twaddle and rehashed tommyrot must have dismayed even the faithful, even Hiliquit's proselytes. You've read the speech and you know what I mean. That "government by the people" motif was too cheap even for LaFollette. The vulgar tricks of talking abstract "democracy" which has ever been the means of the old-type politicians to make a lot of hollow noise without saying anything in particular, was the very backbone of LaFollette's address.

Comrades, if this gathering is a fair sample, the whole thing is bunk, and there is no such thing as a LaFollette stampede within the ranks of labor, and there is no new delusion that has beclouded the primal issue of the class struggle.

I say this because there is a possibility of some of us having been taken in by the noisy press agents of this disgusting hodge-podge. The thing cannot live because it is still born, the delusion cannot persist because there is nothing but low-grade piffle to sustain it.

It is significant that even the jacked-up spirit of the evening did not suffice to keep the audience attentive to and interested in LaFollette's oration. After the idle curiosity was gratified, the crowd became restless and toward the middle of the address there was to be seen a stream flowing exitward. The stream kept swelling until toward the end of the "big act" the gallaries were empty and the people on the floor were milling, sick with boredom. Old Bob is a dull speaker and the whole thing was so damned dull, one wished one were in the movies looking at a pie-throwing comedy.

Marx---Engels---Lenin

By T. J. O'Flaherty

MARX, ENGELS, LENIN,—Three names that will go down in history, the names of giants who forged the weapons with which the working class could emancipate itself and taught the proletariat how to use the weapons. Marx and Engels lived during the period while the bourgeoise was still performing its historical task of preparing society for the birth of a new social order. Lenin was more fortunate or rather the workers were fortunate in that the greatest leader that the revolutionary working class movement ever produced had matured as a scientific revolutionary mechanic at a time when the capitalist system had passed the zenith of its power and was as a world historical system starting on the decline.

Karl Marx, the inspiration of the First International or the International Workingmen's Association, the father of modern scientific socialism, was no mere analyist of the mechanism of the bourgeois system of production and distribution. He was first and foremost a revolutionist, and if Lenin had accomplished nothing else, but the rescue of Marx from the clutches of the social reformers who would make of him a harmless observer of social phenomena, he would have deserved well of the working class movement. But Lenin did more than that. He not alone rescued Marx from the Kautskys and the other agents of the capitalist class but he proceeded to translate Marxism into action. Lenin was the founder of the first proletarian state.

The name of Marx is honored by millions of workers the world over. It is equally hated by the bourgeoisie tho the name of Lenin now more than shares honors with that of Marx in this respect. The proletarian class struggle existed before Marx's day, but Marx was the first to bring the revolutionary movement down from the clouds of utopia and place it on a solid scientific footing.

Hitherto the workers had dreams of salvation but they were not sure that the system of exploitation would be abolished. Marx put the movement for the emancipation of the workers on a theoretical basis and showed that thru the continuous development of perfection of technique capitalism would reach the point where it could no longer function and must necessarily give way to the new order, socialism. But Marx never failed to insist that the new system of production could only be established by the struggle of the proletariat against the capitalists, who strive to uphold the present social order.

The theoretical formulation of the class struggle and the revelation of the secret of capitalist production thru surplus value gave the working class a new and powerful weapon. They were no longer in doubt as to the final result of the struggle. Marx gave them the goal and the weapons with which to bring about their own emancipation. "Workers of all Countries Unite; you have nothing to lose but your chains, you have a world to gain." This was the slogan raised for the first time that cut across national boundaries and joined the class conscious workers of all countries where the labor movement had planted its feet, into an army pledged to carry on the struggle against capitalism until the robber system was overthrown.

Marx completely swept away the old theory that socialism would be brot about thru the agency of intelligent and benevolent people. He showed that its coming did not rest on the shifting sands of justice and morality, but on the efforts of the class whose interests demand a change in the system of production, from social production and private ownership to social production and social ownership.

Karl Marx like Lenin was not satisfied to give a theoretical basis to the revolutionary movement; he also built an organization to give the theory effect. The International Workingmen's Association was thatcountry show a determination to organization. Lenin was accused of being an incurable dogmatist and an inveterate factionalist. The same accusation was time and again hurled against Marx by those who could not understand the scientific mind of the founder of modern socialism or could not tolerate his insistence on the uncompromising struggle against capitalism.

Marx's life, since he first entered the revolutionary movement was a constant battle against the capitalist enemy on the outside and against the anarchists, and social reformers who were liberally represented in the First International. Anarchists, like Bakunin who ostensibly hated the bourgeoisie, hoped to bring about the religious, political and philosophic emancipation of humanity thru a bourgeois League for Peace and Freedom. Another anarchist, Proudhon, held to the theory, that war is impossible because humanity does not want war. The Franco-Prussian war broke out in the following year. The Marx group in the International held that "great wars are waged not alone in the interests of dynasties but also in the interests of the great powers and trade, and are conducted for the advantage of the ruling class."

Running thru Marx's writings like a red thread is the insistence on the class struggle and that the emancipation of the workers must be the task of the workers themselves, and not small select groups of conspirators planned by the French revolutionist Blanqui, but by great masses.

The Franco-Prussian war wrecked the First International as the late war smashed the second, its unworthy successor, and in order to get the wreckage out of the hands of the anarchists Marx shipped it to the United States where it was peacefully buried.

Up to 1914 it was quite fashionable to profess adherence to the Marxian theory, but most of the theorists were busily engaged explaining Marx out of existence or as Lenin puts it in his Proletralan Revolution,""turning Marx Proletarian Revolution.""turning Marx into a hackneyed liberal." Those who desire to pose as Marxists but at the same time wanted to make Marxism conform to bourgeois liberalism burned the midnight oil distorting the meaning of the great leader's writings and particularly the theory of the proletarian dictatorship and the violent overthrow of the capitalist system, which in Lenin's words "is the essence of Marx's teachings."

Marx who lived in England the greater part of his active life, once thot that if a peaceful change from capitalism to socialism was possible in any county, that country was England. But he was always careful to state that the bourgeoisie would not surrender peacefully in England, any more than in the continental countries. Anybody who follows the situation in England today will harbor no illusions as to the intentions of the British ruling class to fight like tigers for the preservation of their power whenever the working class of that country show a determination to make a real bid for power.

That Marx did not mention the dictatorship of the proletariat merely in passing as a certain school of alleged Marxians in America claim, but considered it of paramount importance is shown by the following statement contained in the Communist Manifesto, written by Marx and Engels in November 1847:

"Tracing the most general phases of the development of the proletariat, we followed up the more or less hidden civil war, within existing society to the point at which it is transformed into open revolution, and the proletariat establishes its rule by means of the violent overthrow of the capitalist class . . . . We have already seen that the first step in the Workers' Revolution is the transfiguration of the proletariat into the ruling class, the conquest of democracy . . . . The proletariat will use its political supremacy in order gradually to wrest the whole of capital gradually from the capitalist class, to centralize all the instruments of production in the hands of the state, i. e., of the proletariat organized as the ruling class, and to increase as quickly as possible the total of productive forces."

This is the dictatorship of the proletariat with a vengeance. One can almost imagine Lenin in he year 1917 taking down his Communist Manifesto exactly seventy years to the month from the day these lines were penned by Marx and Engels and putting the idea contained in this passage into operation. Yet we are told that Marxism could not be applied in an industrially backward country. The more one reads Marx, Engels and Lenin, the more one agrees with the truth in Comrade Robert Minor's charge against the socialist party of America that it was a "huge machine for lying about socialism." The same applies to the socialist parties of the world.

The Marxian conception of the state is that it is a class instrument for suppressing other classes. Under capitalism, for the suppression of the proletariat. Under proletarian rule for the suppression of the bourgeoisie and to abolish all exploitation. The theory advanced by the social reformers that the state is an instrument for the reconciliation of classes is infantile. The capitalist class cannot afford to eliminate the working class even if it could; it depends on it to man the machinery of production. But the proletarian state's function will be to get rid of capitalism gradually and also of the capitalist class which becomes unnecessary with the establishment of socialism as an economic system.

Leninism is Marxism in action. And the core of revolutionary Marxism and Leninism is the proletarian dictatorship, which enables the working class to begin laying the foundation for the structure of socialism on the ruins of the capitalist state. This is a cardinal principle of Communist theory.

In view of the perversion of Marxism by a certain brood of American pseudo-Marxists the following quotation from Lenin's "The State and Revolution" is pertinent and timely: "The lower middle class democrats, these sham socialists who have replaced the class struggle by dreams of harmony between classes, have imagined even a transition to socialism, in a dream as it were—that is, not in the form of the overthrow of the supremacy of the exploiting class, but in the form of the peaceful submission of the minority to the fully enlightened majority." This attitude is as typical of the Socialist Labor Party of America as it is of the shameless Socialist Party. It is naked opportunism.

Frederick Engels, the bosom friend and co-worker of Marx is second only to his great contemporary as a socialist writer. His most popular books are "The Origin of the Family, Private Property and the State" and "Socialism, Utopian and Scientific." These books rank with the Communist Manifesto as socialist classics. Engels with Marx formulated the theory of the materialist conception of history, which rests on the basis "that the production of means to support human life and next to production the exchange of things produced, is the basis of all social structure; that in every society that has appeared in history, the manner in which wealth is distributed and society divided into classes or orders, is dependent on what is produced, how it is produced and how the products are exchanged. From this point of view the final causes of all social changes and political revolutions are to be sought, not in men's brains, not in man's better insight into eternal truth and justice, but in changes in modes of production and exchange. They are to be sought not in the philosophy but in the economics of each particular epoch . . . . "

While Engles arrived at the same formulation of this theory independently of Marx he modestly gives all credit to his great co-worker. Engels was one of the three outstanding geniuses that the working class revolutionary movement produced.

Marx and Engels gave the capitalist class no quarter during their lives and now that they are both turned into dust millions of workers are using the weapons they forged during their existence to batter down the capitalist state and finish the task which history has assigned to them.

Lenin, the founder of the first proletarian state, the builder of the Russian Communist Party and the creator of the Third (Communist) International, was the engineer of revolution. To him Marxism was a thing to be applied, not something to admire at a distance. Karl Radek wrote in an article on "Lenin's Life and Work" published shortly after Lenin's death: "The iron force of Lenin's conviction found its sourse in the fact that he had thot out Marx's social tenets as no scholar of Marx had ever done before, that these tenets had become part of his being, and that he applied them as no follower of the Father of Scientific Socialism has done."

Lenin, like Marx and Engels devoted his entire life to the task of emancipating the proletariat. Like his two great predecessors, he had the divine fire of revolution within him, which made all his writings burn with hatred for the ruling class. He saw his brother taken and executed for an attack on the Czarist persecutors of the people. Arrested, imprisoned, exiled, hunted from place to place, Lenin never weakened in his determination. He prepared himself for leadership, was organizer and teacher and when the opportunity arose in 1917, he gauged the right moment to seize power and began the greatest experiment in human history.

Marx and Engels founded scientific socialism. Lenin mainly concerned himself with the task of conquering power for the working class. Marx and Engels died while the capitalist class was still powerful and confident of its power. Lenin lived to see the it on by a temporary understanding. This was so in the past, and will be so in the future. It is a matter of course that in the future sanguinary conflicts, as in all previous ones, the working men by their courage, resolution, and self-sacrifice will form the main force in the attainment of victory. As hitherto, so in the coming struggle, the petty bourgeoisie as a whole will maintain an attitude of delay, irresolution, and inactivity as long as possible, in order that, as soon as victory is assured, they may arrogate it to themselves and call upon the workers to remain quiet, return to work, avoid so-called excesses, and thus shut off the workers from the fruits of victory. It is not in the power of the workers to prevent the petty bourgeois democrats from doing that; but it is within their power to render their ascendancy over the armed proletariat difficult, and to dictate to them such terms as shall make the rule of the bourgeois democracy carry within itself from the beginning the germ of dissolution, and its ultimate substitution by the rule of the proletariat considerably facilitated.

The workers, above all, during the conflict and immediately afterwards, must try as much as ever possible to counteract all bourgeois attempts at appeasement, and compel the democrats to carry out their present terrorist phrases. They must act in such a manner that the revolutionary excitement does not subside immediately after the victory. On the contrary they must endeavor to maintain it as long as possible. Far from opposing so-called excesses and making examples of hated individuals or public buildings to which hateful memories are attached by sacrificing them to popular revenge, such deeds must not only be tolerated, but their direction must be taken in hand. During the fight and afterwards the workers must seize every opportunity to present their own demands beside those of the bourgeois democrats. They must demand guarantees for the workers as soon as the democrats propose to take over the reins of government. If necessary, these guarantees must be exacted and generally we must see to it that the new rulers should bind themselves to every possible concession and promise, which is the surest way to compromise them. The workers must not be swept off their feet by the general elation and enthusiasm for the new order of things which usually follow upon street battles; they must quench all ardor by a cool and dispassionate conception of the new conditions, and must manifest open distrust of the new government. Besides the official government they must set up a revolutionary workers' government, either in the form of local executives and commercial councils, or workers' clubs or workers' committees, so that the bourgeois democratic governments not only immediately lose all backing among the workers, but from the commencement find themselves under the supervision and threats of authorities, behind whom stands the entire mass of the working class. In short, from the first moment of victory we must no longer direct our distrust against the beaten reactionary enemy, but against our former allies, against the party who are now about to exploit the common victory for their own ends only.

(ii) In order that this party, whose betrayal of the workers will begin with the first hour of victory, should be frustrated in its nefarious work, it is necessary to organize and arm the proletariat. The arming of the whole proletariat with rifles, guns and ammunition must be carried out at once; we must prevent the revival of the old bourgeois militia, which has always been directed against the workers. Where the latter measure cannot be carried out, the workers must try to organize themselves into an independent guard, with their own chiefs and general staff, to put themselves under the order, not of the government, but of the revolutionary authorities set up by the workers. Where workers are employed in state service they must arm and organize in special corps, with chiefs chosen by themselves, or form part of the proletarian guard. Under no pretext must they give up their arms and equipment, and any attempt at disarmament must be forcibly resisted. Destruction of the influence of bourgeois democracy over the workers, immediate independent and armed organization of the workers, and the exaction of the most irksome and compromising terms from the bourgeois democracy, whose triumph is for the moment unavoidable—these are the main points which the proletariat, and therefore also the League has to keep in sight during and after the coming upheaval.

(iii) As soon as the new government is established they will commence to fight the workers. In order to be able effectively to oppose the petty bourgeois democracy, it is in the first place necessary that the workers should be independently organized in clubs, which should soon be centralized. The central authority, after the overthrow of the existing governments, will at their earliest opportunity transfer its headquarters to Germany, immediately call together a congress, and make the necessary proposals for the centralization of the workers' clubs under an Executive Committee, who will have their headquarters in the center of the movement. The rapid organization, or at least the establishment of a provincial union of the workers' clubs, is one of the most important points in our considerations for invigorating and developing the Workers' Party. The next result of the overthrow of the existing government will be the election of a national representation. The proletariat must see to it first that no worker shall be deprived of his suffrage by the trickery of the local authorities or government commissioners; secondly, that beside the bourgeois democratic candidates there shall be put up everywhere working-class candidates, who, as far as possible, shall be members of the League, and for whose success all must work with every possible means. Even in constituencies where there is no prospect of our candidate being elected, the workers must nevertheless put up candidates in order to maintain their independence, to steel their forces, and to bring their revolutionary attitude and party views before the public. They must not allow themselves to be diverted from this work by the stock argument that to split the vote of the democrats means assisting the reactionary parties. All such talk is but calculated to cheat the proletariat. The advance which the proletarian party will make thru its independent political attitude is infinitely more important than the disadvantage of having a few more reactionaries in the national representation. The victorious democrats could, if they liked, even prevent the reactionary party having any sucesss at all, if they only used their newly won power with sufficient energy.

The first point which will bring the democrats into conflict with the proletariat is the abolition of all feudal rights. The petty bourgeois democrats, following the example of the first French Revolution, will hand over the lands as private property to the peasants; that is, they will leave the agricultural laborers as they are, and will but create a petty bourgeois peasantry, who will pass thru the same cycle of material and spiritual misery in which the French peasant now finds himself.

The workers, in the interest of the agricltural proletariat as well as in their own, must oppose all such plans. They must demand that the confiscated lands shall be nationalized and converted into setlements for the associated groups of the landed proletariat; all the advantages of large-scale agriculture shall be put at their disposal; these agricultural colonies, worked on the co-operative principle, shall be put in the midst of the crumbling bourgeois property institutions. Just as the democrats have combined with the small peasantry so we must fight shoulder to shoulder with the agricultural proletariat. Further, the democrats will either work directly for a federal republic or at least, if they cannot avoid the republic one and indivisible, will seek to paralyze the centralization of government by granting the greatest possible independence to the municipalities and provinces. The workers must set their face against this plan, not only to secure the one and indivisible German republic, but to concentrate as much power as possible in the hands of the central government. They need not be misled by democratic platitudes about freedom of the communes, self-determination, etc. In a country like Germany, where there are so many medieval remnants to be swept away and so much local and provincial obstinacy to be overcome, under no circumstances must parishes, towns, and provinces be allowed to be made into obstacles in the way of the revolutionary activity which must emanate from the center. That the Germans should have to fight and bleed, as they have done hitherto, for every advance over and over again in every town and in every province separately cannot be tolerated. As in France in 1793, so it is today the task of the revolutionary party in Germany to centralize the nation.

We have seen that the democrats will come to power in the next phase of the movement, and that they will be obliged to propose measures of a more or less socialist nature. It will be asked what contrary measures should be proposed by the workers. Of course they cannot in the beginning propose actual Communist measures, but they can (i) compel the democrats to attack the old social order from as many sides as possible, disturb their regular procedure and compromise themselves, and concentrate in the hands of the state as much as possible of the productive forces, means of transport, factories railways, etc. (ii) The measures of the democrats, which in any case are not revolutionary but merely reformist, must be pressed to the point of turning them into direct attacks on private property; thus, for instance, if the petty bourgeoisie propose to purchase the railways and factories, the workers must demand that such railways and factories, being the property of the reactionaries, shall simply be confiscated by the state without compensation. If the democrats propose proportional taxation, the workers must demand progressive taxation; if the democrats themselves declare for a moderate progressive tax, the workers must insist on a tax so steeply graduated as to cause the collapse of large capital; if the democrats propose the regulation of the national debt, the workers must demand state bankruptcy. The demands of the workers will depend on the proposals and measures of the democrats.

If the German workers will only come to power and to the enforcement of their class interests after a prolonged revolutionary development, they will at least gain the certainty that the first act of this revolutionary drama will coincide with the victory of their class in France, and this will surely accelerate the movement of their own emancipation. But they themselves must accomplish the greater part of the work; they must be conscious of their class interests and take up the position of an independent party. They must not be diverted from their course of proletarian independence by the hypocrisy of the democratic petty bourgeoisie. Their battle-cry must be: "The revolution in permanence."

hated enemy overthrown in a territory covering one-sixth of the earth's surface and the capitalist system fighting for its very life and the Communist International, the product of his brain, rapidly gathering together the revolutionary workers of the world for a final assault on the capitalist system and the establishment of Workers' Soviet Republics in every country of the world. Lenin could die with a smile on his lips.

On this anniversary of the founding of the First International, the Communists of America could pay no more fitting honor to the great revolutionary trinity whose names will stand out as beacon lights to the oppressed proletariat of all countries guiding them along the path to victory, than to sit down at the feet of the masters Marx, Engels and Lenin and secure the knowledge necessary to lead the masses and rout the perverts who would make of Marxism and later on of Leninism a cud for sophists to chew on and to misinterpret.

The revolutionary workers of the world can today pay homage to their dead leaders with a light heart more confident than ever of ultimate victory as the edifice of capitalism propped up by the bayonets of the hired janissaries of the bourgeoisie, is shaking to its foundation.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. CITY IS LIKE PRISON HOUSE

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

An old lady known by the name of Sylvia Pearson was found dead in bed in London under circumstances which warranted the holding of an inquest. The testimony before the coroner's jury brot out the information that the old lady was a Russian princess, but very poor. Her husband had not been out of the house for twelve years and the princess had not had her clothes off for ten years. Knowing something about Russian aristocrats the coroner accepted this circumstantial evidence as sufficient proof that the lady was a princess.

Governor Al Smith was nominated to make the run for re-election on the democratic ticket at that party's convention in Syracuse. His most formidable opponent will be Theodore Roosevelt. The candidacy of Dr. Norman Thomas on the socialist ticket does not differ fundamentally from that of his avowedly capitalist opponents. Thomas does not believe in the class struggle which leaves him clearly in the left wing of the capitalist camp, with his list of petty reforms to clip the claws of the capitalist tiger. The only candidate for governor in New York state to stand on a revolutionary platform that calls for the overthrow of the capitalist system is that of James P. Cannon, who is running on the Workers Party ticket.

It looks as if William Hale Thompson, former mayor of Chicago, who has been sulking in the Len Small tent ever since that worthy gave the cream of the patronage in Cook County to Fred Lundin, former henchman of "Big Bill's" but now his hated rival, has made peace with the governor or vice versa. Anyhow one of Small's lieutenants, Harry Klatzco, was handed an elegant plum in the form of the superintendency of Lincoln Park at a salary of $6,000 a year. It is reported that Small pulled the strings that deposed Fred Lundin's man. The next scene in the political move may find Thompson stumping for Small and telling the world what a pure-souled statesman the financial wizard of the invisible Grant Park bank is.

Newspaper dispatches from Tokio carry the information that Japan may intervene in China should the war spread and jeopardize Japanese interests. Perhaps the Chinese situation had something to do with Japan's refusal to sign the so-called arbitration scheme of the League of Nations. This arbitration proposition is a huge joke. England holds the machinery of the league in the hollow of her hand and Japan has no intention of going into the web on the invitation of the spider.

These clashes between the great powers emphasize what the Communists are always pointing out, that, there can be no peace on this earth while capitalism exists. The interests of the various capitalist nations are always clashing and they cannot be reconciled. Capitalist governments represent organized national banditry. They exist for the purpose of preventing the workers who are robbed at home and in their other possessions from revolting against their exploiters and also to protect the loot of the national bandits against the highwaymen of other nations. Until wealth is produced for use and not for profit, there can be no peace and harmony. Only the international Communist movement is taking the proper steps to bring that condition about.

AMERICAN MONEY LORDS DECIDE FOREIGN COUNTRIES OFFER VERY TEMPTING FIELDS FOR PLUNDER

(By The Federated Press)

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28.—The real executive committee of the American state department has just adjourned in Cleveland after laying down, confidentially between themselves, the course of action to be followed during the next year by Secretary Hughes.

This unofficial advisory board is the Investment Bankers of America. After surveying the field for the investment of profits contributed the past year by American labor, the bankers decided that foreign countries offer the most tempting market. As Charles H. Sabin of the Asia Banking Corp. and the Guaranty Trust Co., of New York put it:

"The only way in which this country can take its rightful place in the world economic structure is by making available our surplus capital for use in foreign countries."

(China and Honduras papers please copy).

The domestic campaign of the investment lords will centralize on tax reduction. A quarter of a million dollars has been appropriated for this purpose to be spent on the press and the movies. "We hope to reach 11,000,000 people of the taxpaying class with our message," the propaganda committee reported.

POLICE CLOSE STRIKE HALL IN PATERSON

Notorious Tracy Tries to Break Labor Ranks

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 28.—Armed guards are blocking the entrance to every labor hall in the city which might be used as a meeting place by the striking silk workers.

John M. Tracy, chief of police, has closed Turn Hall, a building located in the "Latin quarter" of Paterson, into which thousands of strikers crowd every morning to hear their leaders tell of the continued success of the workers.

Stop Open Air Meeting.

Harry M. Wicks, member of the Workers Party, who has been one of the most militant figures of the strike, was the object of a furious denunciation on the part of Tracy, who has denounced his intention of preventing Wicks from speaking anywhere in the city.

A detachment of police yesterday barred a meeting of strikers in a vacant lot. The police ignored the plea of workers that the lot was owned by one of the strikers.

An attempt literally to starve the workers into submission is being engineered by police who are preventing strikers from getting benefit cards thus depriving them of the food which the strike committee provides.

In spite of the fact that many mill owners are now negotiating with the workers preparatory to granting the demands of the strikers, no further settlement will be made until police terrorism ceases, the strike committee declares.

This is a direct blow at Tracy, who had boasted to city officials and to members of the bosses' association that he himself was going to break the strike.

Strikers Keep Up Fight.

That the actions of Tracy can do nothing except to prolong the time which is to pass before every silk worker in Paterson is back at work under the new conditions demanded by the strikers is the sentiment expressed by members of the committee. The strikers are meeting Tracy's latest move with plans for immense mass meetings on Monday, to be held in vacant lots outside the city limits.

The fight will continue until Wicks is allowed to speak, members of the committee assure the strikers.

GARY IS GLAD TO GIVE BOOST TO WAR; IT PAYS

Wartime Profits Treble Peacetime Plunder

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Sept. 28.—Literature is being circulated explaining the aims and methods of the Army Ordnance Association, which "welcomes into its membership every patriotic American citizen who is interested in furthering the cause of national industrial preparedness."

On the cover of a leaflet is a photograph of a 16-inch gun fired before the American Iron and Steel Institute and Army Ordnance Association.

Gary Talks on War.

Those two organizations held a joint meeting and demonstration at the Aberdeen Proving ground in Maryland. The big gun spoke and so did Elbet H. Gary, big gun of the iron and steel institute, of which he is president. Referring to the war, Gary said:

"I am proud to say on behalf of the great industry with which I am associated that it responded immediately, cheerfully and wholeheartedly to that call of the nation."

Ignore Nationalization Threat.

There was no mention of the threat of nationalization of the steel industry that the Wilson administration had to make in order to bring the steel trust to time on prices for war work. The war profits of the corporation were three times the swollen peacetime rates.

TWO SOCIALISTS, HILLQUIT AND THOMAS, BALK AT DEBATE WITH SCOTT NEARING ON LaFOLLETTE

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Should a class-conscious worker vote for LaFollette?

Two authorities, one for each side, will engage in a public debate on this subject in New York October 5. Scott Nearing answers the question with a vehement No! Meyer London, former socialist congressman and a labor attorney, eagerly says Yes.

Norman Thomas, socialist candidate for governor of New York, and Morris Hillquit, socialist attorney, were first invited to uphold the LaFollette side. The chairman of the meeting will be Norman Hapgood, formerly editor of Collier's Weekly and now writing for Hearst publications. The Jimmie Higgin's Book Shop, 127 University Pl., and other shops are selling tickets.

MORRIS ROSEN LEADS FIGHT ON HUTCHENSON

Progressive Delegate Runs for President

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 28.—The manner in which General President William L. Hutchenson is running the carpenter's convention would make a Mongolian dictator turn green with envy.

The reactionary leaders of the American Federation of Labor are careful not to allow the rank and file the privilege of participating in the affairs of their unions beyond paying dues, unless the pressure from below cannot be resisted, but most of them make some pretense of allowing delegates to conventions go thru the forms of passing on questions brot up for discussion.

In the eyes of Hutchenson all issues not approved by him are dangerous to the organization, which translated into the language of the labor faker, means dangerous to his job.

Thus a resolution from Local 181 of Chicago calling for the amalgamation of all craft unions into industrial unions until the aim of one union for each industry was achieved, was declared out of order by Mahatma Hutcheson.

Against Sam's Policy.

A similar fate was meted out to a resolution introduced by some LaFollette agent, which called for the endorsement of the new political policy of the American Federation of Labor. This meant the endorsement of LaFollette. Hutchenson, more loyal to the political policy of the A. F. of L. than Gompers declared this partisan politics and did not give the delegates a chance to decide whether they should agree with Gompers or Hitchenson.

It should be noted here that Frank Duffy, the general secretary of the Carpenters' Union is a vice-president of the A. F. of L. and was one of the five on the executive council who voted against the endorsement of Robert M. LaFollette.

The most interesting feature of the convention will be the vote on the election of general officers. The following were nominated for the office of general president: William L. Hutchenson, present incumbent; Willis K. Brown, of Peoria, president of the Illinois State Council of Carpenters, and Morris Rosen, rank and file delegate from New York.

Progressive Candidate.

Of the three candidates the qualifications of Delegate Rosen stand out strongly as eminently fitting him for the office of general president.

Of Hutchenson it can be said that he is first and foremost among the reactionaries in the most reactionary leadership in the world labor movement, that of the American Federation of Labor. So backward is this leadership that it withdrew from the Amsterdam International because that body, while supporting capitalism as vigorously as Gompers himself, was compelled by the pressure from below to give lip service to the social revolution and to the movement against war.

The general president of the carpenters finds even the reactionary policy of the A. F. of L. dangerously progressive, so much so that he spurns a resolution to endorse the capitalist supporter, LaFollette, so that his hands may be free to sell his influence to the highest bidder in the

Quickly Repair Damage of Flood in Leningrad

NEW YORK CITY, Sept. 28.—The heavy flood which hit Leningrad, Sept. 23, is over and life in the city is rapidly assuming its normal course, according to a special cable received from the Leningrad Gostorg by the Amtorg Trading Corporation which represents the Gostorg in this country. Following is the text of the cable:

Owing to steps taken life in Leningrad is rapidly resuming its normal course. Interruption in the work will be but of short duration.

SUICIDE OF YOUNG SILK STRIKER IS RESULT OF BEATING BY BOSS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 28.—The body of Louis Alton, a 25-year-old Syrian silk worker out on strike, and the support of a family of nine, was found in the East River of New York City today. He had been beaten up by two bosses a few months ago because he had decided to quit the job, and the result was that his whole left side was paralyzed. The boss wanted to settle the whole matter for $500, but because of the misery and pain, Alton committed suicide on Monday.

The funeral will be held tomorrow and the Paterson silk strikers are preparing an impressive funeral demonstration with well-known speakers and appropriate music.

BIG DRIVE ON TO BOOST DAILY WORKER CIRCULATION IN GARY

A drive to increase the circulation of the DAILY WORKER in Gary, Indiana, is well under way, with good results already materializing. The DAILY WORKER will be sold this week in front of the gates to the steel mills of the United States Steel corporation. The DAILY WORKER can also probably be bought on all the newsstands of Gary within the next few days.

Comrade Heinrichson, circulation manager of the DAILY WORKER for Chicago and vicinity, is spending some time in Gary organizing a subscription drive and taking subscriptions from house to house. Several local comrades will spend much of their time during the drive taking subscriptions to the DAILY WORKER.

In connection with this drive, Karl Reeve, reporter for the DAILY WORKER, is writing a series of articles on conditions among the workers in Gary, exposing the platoon school system instituted by Elbert Gary, and revealing the domination of the town of Gary by the United States Steel corporation, where 90 per cent of Gary's workers are employed.

JOHNSTON, LATE AT NIGHT, PUTS OVER 'B-O' PLAN

Push Infamous Scheme Thru Machinists' Meet

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 28.—The infamous "Baltimore & Ohio" plan, of class collaboration of the machinists with the millionaire railroad bosses, was pushed over on the remnants of a tired and worn machinists' convention here late at night by William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists.

Johnston, in a feeble defense of the plan which has already further weakened the union, and which promises to make it akin to an open shop society for the promotion of the speed-up system, raised the cry of "red" hysteria.

Attacks the DAILY WORKER.

After a gallant opposition from the small left wing, he pushed thru the plan. The final vote was 126 to 33.

Johnston attacked the DAILY WORKER and the Labor Herald for its opposition to the "B. & O." class collaboration scheme.

He admitted the Communist contention that a class struggle exists, but said, "It isn't very nice, and there oughtn't to be a class struggle, even if there is one."

The opposition to the "B. & O." plan was led by Delegates Andrew MacNamara and John Otis of Pittsburgh. MacNamara supported a minority report of the committee on railroads, declining to indorse the "B. & O." plan.

"The 'B. & O.' plan is unsound in principle," MacNamara told the delegates who still remained in the convention. "The officials of the union sponsoring the plan told us that a large influx of new members would result from the plan. But the 'B. &

RAISE FUND IN NAME OF CHARITY TO FEED THE WAR AGAINST LABOR

(By The Federated Press)

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 28.—Labor in Milwaukee is shutting its purse to the three quarter million dollar campaign of the community fund, the centralized chest for local charities. The reason is that the directors of the fund are permitting $20,000 of the charity collection to go to an organization known as the citizens' bureau of municipal efficiency, which lobbies before the city council and the state legislature against measures urged by labor.

GARY WORKERS UNDER YOKE OF STEEL TRUST

Little Children Feel the Iron Grip

By KARL REEVE.
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

GARY, Ind., September 28.—Founded by the company of which Elbert H. Gary is chairman and built by one of the biggest trusts in the world, which thru the firm of J. P. Morgan, fiscal agents for the corporation, is connected with all the other large American trusts, the town of Gary is a prison house for the steel trust slaves.

The steel workers of Gary, forming over 90 per cent of the population, are held in the vice of the most complete and vicious paternalism and of the lowest of low standard non-union living conditions, to be found anywhere in America.

The United States Steel corporation owns the city of Gary, in all its branches. "In 1906, the United States Steel corporation decided to build a big steel plant in the middle-west and selected the sand waste on the shore of Lake Michigan—and thus was the city of Gary born," says Arundel Cotter, in "The Authentic History of the United States Steel Corporation."

Trust Owns Buildings.

Every institution in the town is owned or controlled by the steel trust. Even the public library was donated by the steel barons, Andrew Carnegie donating $65,000 for the erection of the building and the Gary Land company, owned by the U. S. Steel corporation, supplying the site for the library. The Y. M. C. A., another institution which is always at the beck and call of the steel trust, has good reason to back up Elbert Gary in his oppression of the workers. Gary donated the large Gary Y. M. C. A. building to that organization at a cost of $260,000. The Gary hospital, we learn from Cotter's book, was built and is maintained by the United States Steel corporation. The United States Steel corporation incorporated the town, laid out the streets, laid the sewers, sold what real estate it wanted to dispose of, built the homes of the workers, besides supplying the only place where the residents of the town had a chance to earn a living.

Morgan's Gold.

From its very inception, the town of Gary was owned in every way by the United States Steel corporation, and at the present day a worker cannot live in Gary without taking upon himself the oppressive yoke of one of the most despotic monopolies in existence. The Gary Land company, owned by the steel trust, has its first subdivision erected 1,200 residences, many modern apartments, and 150 business blocks. The Gary Land company now owns at least 13 subdivisions.

A few years ago the city limits of Gary comprised 26 square miles, only eight square miles of which belonged to private owners, most of these eight square miles being bought from the U. S. Steel trust on agreements whereby to a large extent the purchaser had to obey the wishes of the steel corporation.

Children Also Enslaved.

The Gary public schools were placed by Elbert Gary in the hands of W. Wirth, who developed for his master the Gary or platoon school system. Two school buildings, the Emerson and Froebel, were erected with steel trust money, and Gary's wishes were

Distribute Three Million Pieces of Literature in Final Campaign Broadside

A DECISION has been made by the general headquarters of our army of party members. Like a regiment in battle, we are to move forward to the attack. With a broadside of three million pieces of literature we are to undermine the fastnesses of the bourgeoisie and win converts to our ranks. The command has been issued. Here is the plan. Carry it out to the letter.

1. Every branch is to call a special meeting of its members for Sunday, October 12. Call it any time of the day, in a hall or at home, but call it every branch must. The entire party membership will meet for one definite purpose on October 12. A single aim, that of carrying out an unprecedented distribution of three million pieces of literature, will mark the proceedings in every branch meeting.

2. At this special October 12 meeting the only order of business shall be: the three million literature distribution campaign and every member's full participation.

3. At this special branch mobilization meeting every party member shall give fifty cents to the branch secretary. For the fifty cents given, the member will receive 100 campaign leaflets, 25 campaign stickers, 2 campaign pamphlets and 10 copies of the DAILY WORKER.

4. On Monday, October 13, every branch secretary will send the total amount of money subscribed to the national office of the Workers Party, using the special order blank sent him for this purpose.

5. October 26 to November 2, inclusive, will be our nation-wide distribution week.

6. Every party member will call for his unit of literature on October 26, and every branch will decide at the special October 12 meeting where literature shall be called for.

Action Easy to Carry Out.

There is nothing that is complicated about the call for a complete mobilization of all party branches and all party members. Every phase

PRINTERS SHOW DECIDED DRIFT TO COMMUNISM

Workers in Big Shop Cast Big Foster Vote

William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president, received 14 per cent of the entire vote cast at the Cuneo-Henneberry Company plant, the largest printing shop in Chicago.

Of the 222 votes, Foster received 32, LaFollette 114, Coolidge 56, Davis 19 and Andy Gump 1.

Under the LaFollette Illusion.

The 114 votes cast for LaFollette proves the strong hold the LaFollette illusion has on the imagination of the more enlightened workers in this plant, as well as in almost all the others visited.

The Cuneo-Henneberry plant takes in two large buildings at 455 W. 22nd St. Several thousands of people are employed in these buildings. The large bulk of workers, however, eat their lunch inside the shop, only very few coming out of the building at the noon hour.

When the news of the straw vote became known to them, the live wires, after eating their lunch, came out to talk to the comrades at the gate. Intelligent and widewake, these workers eagerly discussed the campaign, the candidates and the DAILY WORKER. The idea of going to the shops and factories to get a true registration of labor's opinion on the present campaign especially appealed to them, and some of them even took ballots into the plant to their shopmates.

Voting Creates Excitement.

The sidewalk in front of the plant was buzzing with excitement as little groups circled around the straw vote squad. In the conversation one outstanding fact was prominent, their complete severance from the two old parties. Why the Communists are putting up a candidate against LaFollette was the question put to the comrades.

The discussion and debates rallied around these two points. Would a worker be throwing away his vote on Foster, and what are the immediate benefits to be derived from the LaFollette campaign? No one rooted for Coolidge or Davis.

The whistle blew and they hurried back to work with promises to read the DAILY WORKER and learn more about the Workers Party of America.

With the Cuneo-Henneberry shop the DAILY WORKER straw vote campaign in Chicago terminates.

There were 6,003 votes cast in all. Out of these 629 were for Foster, 2,261 for LaFollette, 2,555 for Coolidge, and 458 for Davis.

This straw vote registers the opinions of the workers of Chicago more clearly than any straw vote taken in the city of Chicago, even more so than the vote that will be taken at the election polls, because it gives the trend of political development of the workers right in the factories, whether they are eligible to vote or not.

Father Killed at Work; Widow and Children Starve

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 28.—A widow and her six children, one a baby in her arms and the oldest not quite 14, victims of capitalist greed, tell a story here of hardship and hunger.

The husband, John Churskno, was employed by the Pittsburgh Gas Coal company until June 10, when he was killed by an explosion at the plant. The little family, bereft of father and provider, started out for Milwaukee on the small sum secured from the sale of their few belongings in hope that in Bob LaFollette's haven some work would be found for their mother. But all doors were closed to them, there was no work for the widow, and the little family, now without funds nor hope of a chance to work, wended their way to where they came from, Pittsburgh.

They were found by a policeman late one night, huddled close together on the street. At the police station the widow related a story of hardship and suffering and of not a thing to eat for three full days.

The Pittsburgh papers give a long account of the woman's plight, the generosity of two citizens who fed the family at a restaurant, and the kind-hearted policeman who made them comfortable at the police station. But not anywhere is the question raised:

Why were not the widow and children of John Churskno provided for when he was killed in an explosion in the factory of the Pittsburgh Gas Coal company?

(Campaign Manager, Workers Party.)

RESULTS of the straw balloting being conducted by the Workers Party of Chicago are indeed significant. The results of these ballots show a remarkable and rapid growth of a real revolutionary, proletarian movement in American industry, which to a surprising degree consciously recognizes that Communism is their only refuge from the moloch of American, trustified industry.

The comparatively large vote being polled by Robert M. LaFollette in these straw ballots is not surprising. On the contrary, it is exactly the political phenomena that one acquainted with American political life in the past can only expect to how develop. It represents the last gasp of bourgeois democracy in its own homeland.

EXPLAINS PROLETARIAN STRATA.

The straw balloting shows that underneath this bourgeois democratic layer lies a basic, proletarian strata that is rising in revolutionary revolt against American capitalism. The proof of this lies not alone in the personal popularity of the head of our ticket with millions of industrial workers, but rather in the conscious realization by the same workers that the political program of the Workers Party is the only effective method of opposing American capitalism, no matter in what guise it presents itself—whether in the name of Coolidge, Davis or LaFollette.

These straw ballots have a highly educational value, both to the masses of workers who participate and to our party itself. These ballots give us direct contact with the masses of workers as no other method can. In an effective and direct manner it projects into the minds of the workers while actually on the job, a conscious realization of their predicament and has the tendency to make him develop a political choice. On the other hand they give those party members who conduct the balloting a direct contact with the workers which is of inestimable value and enables them to develop "the common touch."

OTHER CITIES SHOULD GET BUSY.

The straw balloting being conducted by the Workers Party of Chicago is an election achievement and can very well be imitated by other city and district units of our party.

THE STRAWS SHOW CLEARLY THAT THE PROLETARIAN WINDS ARE BLOWING TOWARDS COMMUNISM.

CHICAGO WORKERS PARTY OFFERS CLASSES IN COMMUNIST HISTORY, ECONOMICS AND WORLD IMPERIALISM

Designed to equip workers with facts and understanding for the struggle against capitalism, the Fall Study Classes of the Workers Party, Local Chicago, are to begin early next month, with a series of four different courses, covering the subjects of American Communist History; Imperialism, the Final Stage of Capitalism; Elementary Marxian Economics and Advanced Marxism. Classes will meet once a week. They are open to Party members and to the workers in general. Enrollments should be sent in right away.

Each class is in charge of a comrade who is thoroly familiar with his subject, and the instruction is undoubtedly the best ever offered in the history of the local organization. The instructors are: James P. Cannon, Earl R. Browder and Max Bedacht (all members of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party), and Manuel Gomez (member of the District Executive Committee).

Following is a brief outline of the various courses of study: ELEMENTARY MARXIAN ECONOMICS, instructor, Browder. Meets every Wednesday, 8 p. m., at 2613 Hirsch Blvd., beginning Oct. 15. Takes up the process of production; shows where the boss's profit comes from; explains the meaning of such terms as "value," "price," etc.; analyzes the fundamental law back of the so-called Law of Supply and Demand; studies wages and the cost of living; answers the question: "Is labor a commodity?"

ADVANCED MARXISM, instructor, Max Bedacht. Meets every Sunday, 10:30 a. m., at Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd., beginning Oct. 12.

After a general survey of Marxian theory, goes into history of theories of surplus value, following with analysis of the basis of function of capitalism; positive and relative surplus value; law of capitalist accumulation; industrial and finance capital: trusts; mechanics of international exploitation.

IMPERIALISM, THE FINAL STAGE OF CAPITALISM; instructor, Manuel Gomez. Meets every Sunday, 1:30 p. m., at Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd., beginning Oct. 26.

Struggle for empire. Rule of the banks; monopoly and decay of productive forces; export of capital; exploitation of colonial peoples; British Empire contrasted with one of the great empires of ancient times; foreign investment and foreign policy; Dawes plan; how Wall Street fights for domination in Europe, Mexico, South America and China; imperialism and Soviet Russia; coal, oil, iron and the next war; the catastrophic collapse.

HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN COMMUNIST MOVEMENT; instructor, Cannon. Meets every Tuesday, 8 p. m., at Technical School, 1902 W. Division St., beginning Nov. 11.

Studies the roots of the Communist movement within the old socialist party, I. W. W., etc. Treats the reaction of American working class to the Russian revolution and the founding of the Comintern; the left wing in the S. P.; the split; the Communist Party and the Communist Labor Party; the "underground"; the Workers Party; battle in the trade unions; "united front"; labor party policy; contemporary radical movements.

The courses of study will cover a period of from 12 to 14 weeks. The tuition fee is $1.50 for one course, and 75c for each additional course. Enroll now, by communicating with the Workers Party, 166 W. Washington St.

In addition to the above-mentioned classes, the educational program of the Workers Party, Local Chicago, includes several classes which are already in progress. Among them are the class in Trade Union Tactics, in charge of Arne Swabeck, district organizer of the W. P., and the class in English for Foreign-Born Workers, in charge of Andrew Shelley. Both of these classes meet at 722 Blue Island Ave. It is still not too late to register for them. Comrade Swabeck's class meets every Thursday night and Comrade Shelley's class, every Wednesday night, 8 p. m. sharp.

The semi-centennial convention of the American Bankers' Association opens here today. Dwight P. Morrow, of J. P. Morgan and Co., will address the first general session tomorrow morning.

home with the presidential bacon or not. The G. O. P. can lose nothing by keeping the oil cans hidden away until after the ballots are cast in November.

THE remarkably heavy vote cast for William Z. Foster, in the straw ballots now being taken in the principal industries in Chicago shows that a goodly minority of the workers are not carried away by the LaFollette propaganda and that despite the vicious attacks made upon the Communists by the capitalist press, the socialists and their labor allies, the workers who do their own thinking know that the Communist program is the only one that will bring about their emancipation. The personality of William Z. Foster, is also responsible for the heavy Communist vote. He alone of all the presidential candidates stands forth as a revolutionary leader, who has battled for the workers in their struggles for better conditions and showed them how to organize in order to render their numerical strength effective.

GENERAL CHARLES G. DAWES is very vocal and blustering in his challenge to the "subversive forces" that are seeking to jimmy Coolidge out of the white house. But when the gallant general is asked to say a few words about his relations with the crook Lorimer, he is as silent as a clam except when he must say something and then he resorts to abuse. Dawes is one of the biggest wind bags in America and the most brazen and empty headed demagogue.

WHAT NEW YORK BRANCH will have its name embroidered in gold upon the beautiful Red Silk Bolshevik Banner that is now being made by the comrades of the Lithuanian Women's Alliance? What branch will earn the distinction of being recognized as the best working branch in Greater New York when our presidential candidate presents this banner at his meeting on October 19th? Will the words "Workers Party" or these three magic letters "Y. W. L." be placed upon the banner at the close of the DAILY WORKER subscription contest? Who knows?

Comrade Malkin, the newly elected DAILY WORKER agent of the Downtown English Branch says HE knows. He claims there is no question about it at all. His branch will win the Red Banner. And he hands in half a dozen subs to prove it.

But Comrade L. Hirschman of the Harlem English Branch thinks he has a word or two to say about the matter, and slams in a list of ten new subs, just to show us what's coming. And he must be taken seriously, for under his inspiring leadership the Harlem English made the best record in the DAILY WORKER drive a year ago of any branch in the whole United States, and they are now determined to keep the laurels.

They'll have to go some tho, for the Williamsburg English comrades are also girding their loins for the fray. At the last meeting they elected Marcel Scherer as their DAILY WORKER agent, and he'll have the active help of every member of that live branch in the effort to put it over the top.

And the field will not be left to the English speaking branches alone. Among the various language branches that have entered the lists there is the Harlem Jewish, which at this writing has sold more subscriptions than any other branch since the contest began. This is due largely to the splendid work of Comrade Lena Greenberg, member of the Furriers' Union, who has sold twenty subs for the twenty day that the contest has been running. She says that she's only just started to watch the "fur fly" when the other members of the branch also get busy.

Among the branches of the Young Workers League there's also something stirring. The best individual record in the city to date is made by a member of the League, Comrade Bleeker, of Jewish Harlem No. 10, who has 21 subs to her credit, and Branch No. 12 in the Bronx seems particularly determined that "Youth shall win the day," as well as the Bolshevik Banner.

The contest is warming up. 171 subs were secured in the last ten days and the rate is increasing from day to day. The total now stands at 286, secured by 56 comrades in 25 branches. This indicates what we may expect when the other 2,500 members and the other 50 New York branches pitch into the game, as THEY SURELY WILL before the final award of the Banner.

The mark set to be reached in order to place the DAILY WORKER on the New York-news stands will be far surpassed. Instead of the mere 500 subs by October 19th, we therefore now raise the slogan AT LEAST ONE SUB PER MEMBER in EVERY branch.

The record on September 20 stood as follows:

SECTION I—English D. T., 9; English W. S., 3; Jewish No. 1, 5; Jewish No. 2, 2; Russian, 1.
SECTION II—Harlem English, 25; Czecho-Slovak, 1; Harlem Jewish, 6; Hungarian Yorkville, 1; Scandinavian, 2.
SECTION III—English No. 1, 4; English No. 2, 1; Jewish No. 1, 4.
SECTION IV—English Williamsburg, 13.
SECTION V—English Brownsville, 7.
SECTION VI—Boro Park English, 7; German So. Brooklyn, 1.
SECTION VII—Bronx, 1, 5; Branch No. 2, 1; Jewish Harlem No. 10, 21; Branch No. 12, 6; Branch No. 15, 6; Branch No. 24, 4; Russian No. 28, 2.
Unions, Bronxville, 1, 4.
Sent direct to Chicago and not yet credited to branches, 12.
Unattached, not to be credited to branches, 46.

What of This Rising Flood of Discontent of Labor Everywhere?

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, Europe is recovering from storms that swept over it during the past week. Not revolutionary storms. Only the storms that nature visits upon the earth, in greater or less intensity.

But even these storms had their political significance. It was noted that the devastation wrought in the remainder of Europe was forgotten by the capitalist press as it heralded with joy, LENINGRAD NINE FEET UNDER A TIDAL WAVE.

Even this calamity, fallen upon the metropolis of the Soviet Republic, must be hailed by the subsidized press of the money kings, in the hope that it may help tear down the rule of the Workers and Peasants.

It is true that terrific winds did sweep the waters of the Baltic Sea up the Neva River, and into the canals of Leningrad, so that they did overflow, almost to the highmark of the floods of Nov. 7, 1824, a century ago.

But Leningrad, like the agricultural districts hit by drought again this year, issued no appeal for help to the capitalist world. The Russian workers and peasants are helping take care of their own. F. A. Mackenzie, the Russian correspondent of the Chicago Daily News, who never loses an opportunity to slander Soviet Rule, says in his cabled correspondence, that Moscow is pouring foodstuffs into the city.

Mackenzie tells how martial law was declared on Wednesday morning, but admits that "public order was so good that it was possible to end the martial-law period on Thursday evening," less than two days after. "Fascist" Dawes never heard of such "law and order" in the United States.

* * *

It is interesting to read the decress that were issued: "Every person was ordered to clear the street in front of his house, before clearing his own rooms. Every provision store was ordered to reopen and remain open until midnight and was forbidden under heavy penalties to raise prices."

American business would consider this last decree a greater calamity than the flood itself, no matter how great the proportions of the disaster.

Mackenzie continues: "These orders were strictly obeyed, as I can personally testify. It was good to see proletarians, bourgeois, Communists and whilom aristocrats working side by side with the eagerness of volunteers, pumping out basements, collecting wooden paving blocks that had floated everywhere and generally cleaning up the city."

* * *

But the Associated Press must have its final fling, declaring that "spotted typhus has broken out in this storm-swept city, adding horrors to the flood." If all the plagues that the Associated Press has visited upon Soviet Russia, since the Bolshevik Revolution, in 1917, had been realities, the whole face of the earth would have been swept bare of all humanity. But even in this Associated Press dispatch there breathes the hatred of capitalism, hoping against hope, that somehow, sometime, no matter how, Soviet Rule will be destroyed. But that is a forlorn hope.

It may be well to compare the discipline, courage and zeal of the Russians, in repairing the damage left by the flood at Leningrad, with the growing insubordination rampant in the Dutch army, for instance. It may be taken for granted that the spirit of the Dutch soldiers isn't much different than that of the conscripts in the standing armies of other European nations.

Perhaps it would be a good thing for American 100 per centers, who are so eager to show their pay-triotism; for the youth in the high schools, colleges and universities, who are having military drill forced upon them; for the victims of "Goose-step Day," for the intended victims of the approaching "Anti-Red Week" arranged by the American Legion head of the Bureau of Education at Washington, to read what happens in little Holland, when the workers are called upon to do military service, to prepare for the next war.

This report is also found in the cabled correspondence of the Chicago Daily News from Amsterdam as follows:

"This year the fall maneuvers of the Dutch army in the southern provinces have greatly disappointed those Dutch officials who are constantly urging the necessity of stronger military forces in the Netherlands.

"The maneuvers were characterized by acts of insubordination and even revolts among the troops. The outbreaks were of a rather menacing character, showing the profound aversion of Dutch soldiers to military drill.

FIGHT WITH MILITARY POLICE.

"In many places the men refused to get under arms and at various stations where the transportation of troops was in progress there was fierce fighting between the reluctant soldiers and the military police. In a few camps the soldiers rose against their officers, the men protesting against the conditions in the cantonments, which had been partly inundated by the heavy rains of the last few weeks.

"The military authorities intervened energetically, but in many cases were obliged to give way and order the evacuation of the camps.

OFFICERS AFRAID OF ASSASSINATION.

"In some cases the night exercises were canceled, the officers having declared that they were afraid to be with the men in the dark. Worse than the manoeuvers showed many of the modern military means of defense and interesting specimens of strategy in the Dutch lowlands. They culminated in the presence of Queen Wilhelmina, who watched the movements of the troops in the company of British, French and Belgian military attaches and representatives of the Swedish and Danish armies."

* * *

We might go ahead and compare this condition with the enthusiasm that prevails within the ranks of the Russian Red Army. But that must wait for another time. Suffice it to say, that the Russians have something to live for. Famines and floods are temporary obstacles to the well-ordered advance of the new civilization that is rising in the land of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

The workers and peasants of Soviet Russia not only have something to live for, but they have something to fight for. They have their Red Army to protect the fruits of their triumphant revolution.

In the rest of the world the workers also have something to live for. They live to struggle to achieve their victory. They have something to fight against. They must fight capitalist misrule until it is crushed.

The rising flood of labor discontent that is sweeping all nations must in time engulf Morgan's Wall Street rule everywhere.

The destruction wrought by this flood will be hailed with enthusiasm and joy by all workers. Labor will clear away the debris, willingly and gladly, and in place of the ruins of the passing capitalist order, build the new social order—the Communist Society, aspiring to the highest welfare of all mankind.

UNMASK DEVER AS HOSTILE TO THE TEACHERS

Mayor Has Power to Give Supt. Big Blow

The organized teachers of Chicago, in appealing to Springfield for aid in their struggle against an autocratic superintendent of schools and a big business board, expect to find a legislature friendly to their interests and disposed to help them to keep their union intact, Nora O'Connor, organizer for the Chicago Teachers' Federation, told the DAILY WORKER yesterday.

The state legislature has again and again proved itself friendly to the Chicago teachers, it is claimed.

It is pointed out that it helped them secure a teachers' pension fund in 1907. It helped them to keep this fund when it was attacked by business men and other political enemies. It helped them two years ago to secure a better system of pensions than they have had previously.

Backed by 8,000 Teachers.

"The legislature can't resist helping us when they hear that the representative we send them is the spokesman for eight thousand people," is the way in which Margaret Haley, business agent of the federation, explains the attitude of the Springfield body.

Extreme disappointment has been expressed among the members of the federation with the attitude of Mayor Dever, in whom members of the federation placed high hopes at the time of the last city election.

Dever has the power to appoint four new members, for members whose terms have expired, and a swing in the balance of power in favor of the teachers. Of these four, three members are extremely inimical to the teachers. The fourth, John Dill Robertson, who was appointed to the board in spite of the fact that he had just been exposed by the American Medical Association as the head of a fake diploma mill, the Bennett Medical College, resigned when he was offered a more lucrative job in the service of the government.

Dever is Evasive.

Dever's attitude since the beginning of the open break between the teachers and Superintendent McAndrew, has been non-committal and evasive. Officials in the mayor's office answer all questions as to what Dever intends to do by such statements as: "What can he do? What do you expect him to do?"

It is hoped that Dever will give a definite statement of his position to the committee of three teachers appointed by the members of the federation, who will visit him early this week.

Fear Attack on Wages.

The fears of the teachers that the attack on councils would be followed by an attack on salaries has been heightened by the receipt of a letter by the principals of the schools, sent by Superintendent McAndrew and asking that a commission be appointed to revise the salary schedule.

Miss Haley has made public the fact that a letter written by the Teachers' Federation and asking that the board consider the abolition of the system of secret markings, was suppressed by the superintendent at the last meeting. The secret markings given teachers on their examinations have for years been the subject of bitter controversy between the rank and file teachers and the board.

Jack Johnstone to Speak at Imperial Hall on Thursday

A campaign rally of interest to working class voters will be held Thursday, Oct. 2, at 8 p. m., at Imperial Hall, 2409 N. Halsted, near Fullerton, and will be addressed by Jack W. Johnstone, Workers Party candidate for congress in the 9th congressional district. Johnstone, who is a well known militant in the labor movement, having been secretary of the Stockyards Workers' Council many years ago, and today a delegate to the Chicago Federation of Labor as well as assistant secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, will explain the stand of the Workers Party on the numerous problems confronting the workers of America today.

Admission is free and all workers are urged to attend in masses. Bring your wives and youngsters. Hear a working class candidate!

SOVIET UNIONS ISSUE APPEAL FOR CHINA AID

Capitalist Robbers in Big Conspiracy

The civil war now raging in China is attracting world-wide attention. Behind the shoulders of the warring tuchuns and sectional militarists stand the agents of the capitalist powers seeking advantage out of the chaos which their conspiracies have spread thruout that rich and mighty country.

Alone among the great nations, Soviet Russia extends the helping hand to the oppressed people of China, and the government of Russia which is the servant of the workers and peasants of that country stands out against the capitalist buzzards who hover over that Oriental battlefield like birds of prey over a herd of buffaloes.

Soviet China's Friend.

The trade unionsts of Soviet Russia, having instructed their government to stand by the workers and peasants of China to the limit of its powers appeals to the workers of the world to take a hand in the struggle against the capitalist governments, liberal, labor and avowedly reactionary who are united in their war on the Chineses people. The following appeal was issued by the All-Russian Central Council of Trade Unions and addressed to the workers of all countries:

AGAINST THE ROBBERS' RAID INTO CHINA.

To the Workers of All Countries.

"Humanity again faces a world war as a result of the robbers' raid of the British, American, Japanese and French governments upon the peaceful population of China. What do these governments want in China? Why do they send ultimata to the revolutionary democratic government headed by Sun-Yat-Sen? Why do they interfere with the internal affairs of the Chinese people?

"They are acting in defense of the Chinese counter-revolution and against the workers and peasants of China. They are moving their cruisers to China because the Chinese masses want to overthrow the foreign domination. That is how the labor government of England and the left bloc of France show their love for peace and desire for disarmament.

Call on World's Workers.

"We, the toilers of Russia, who have suffered from the intervention of the world bourgeoisie know what this robbers' attack brings with it to the broad masses of China. We call upon the workers of all countries, and particularly upon the workers of France, England, United States and Japan resolutely to protest against this shameless interference in the affairs of the Chinese people.

"You must not allow the bourgeoisie of England, America, France and Japan to tighten the noose round the neck of a nation of 400,000,000 people. We, the trade unionists of Soviet Russia have formed a society, named, "Hands off China." Organize a similar society. Arouse the greatest masses against the intervention. Do not allow world imperialism to strangle the Chinese people. Down with the robbers' raid upon China! Down with the intervention! Down with the world war! HANDS OFF CHINA!

"ALL-RUSSIAN CENTRAL COUNCIL OF TRADE UNIONS."

Russia Sends Aid To Flood Stricken Regions of China

(By Rosta.)

MOSCOW, Sept. 28.—The Soviet press gives details about the floods in China, and expresses warm sympathy with the sufferings of the people in the affected districts.

The chief of the far eastern department of the people's commissariat of foreign affairs, Mr. Melnikoff, called today on Mr. Li Chia-ao, the Chinese representative at Moscow, to express to him, on behalf of the Soviet government, feelings of sympathy. Mr. Li Chia-ao stated, in response, deep appreciation of the attitude of the Soviet government.

The special emergency committee for the relief of the effects of partial crop failure has completed its main work, with which it was charged by the government, namely to find ways and means of relieving the affected districts and, in particular supplying sowing material to the stricken farming population.

The president of the council of people's commissaries, Mr. Rykoff, who is at the head of the relief committee, has left the capital for the districts in question, so as to get first hand acquaintance with the situation there.

the blood stream thru the fatigue resulting from mental strain.

The Great Example.

This statement is adequately proven in the person of Samuel Gompers who has reached a ripe old age, the burdened with responsibilities that would make other men squirm under the load. The secret of Mr. Gompers' success in dodging the undertaker is attributed to his aversion to stimulating beverages, poisonous weeds such as cigars and those pursuits of which poets like to sing, but which wise men do not practice. But in some quarters this story will be given the loud "Ha-Ha."

WORKERS PARTY MAINTAINS FREE SPEECH RIGHT

Hold Meeting in Spite of Police Opposition

The Workers Party speakers successfully fought out a free speech fight Friday night against seven policemen, numerous plain clothes dicks, and two or three flivver squads, who attempted to break up the meeting at the corner of Wilton St. and Belmont Ave.

Five speakers representing the Proletarian Party had been arrested on the same corner on the previous evening, and the Workers Party speakers formed a United Front free speech fight with the Proletarian Party speakers Friday night.

Charge Police Were Rough.

The Workers Party speakers allowed the Proletarian Party speakers the use of the Workers Party platform, and gave over the corner to their speakers during the first part of the evening.

The Proletarian speakers told of the arrest the evening before, and the rough treatment received at the hands of the police and of Judge Newcomer. The Workers Party later took over the platform.

Comrade D. E. Early, the first Workers Party speaker, explained to the large audience of workers, many of whom had witnessed the arrests the previous evening, the principles of the united front, and declared the Workers Party was glad to form such a united front with the Proletarian Party in a free speech fight.

Early denounced the Dawes plan and explained the principles of international working class solidarity, led by the Third (Communist) International, as opposed to international capitalism as exemplified in the Dawes plan. During Comrade Early's talk the police were active riding back and forth along Wilton street in their Ford, and several plain clothes thugs were in the crowd, but the meeting was not stopped.

Tell of Russia's Struggles.

The history of the struggles of the workers' and farmers' government of Soviet Russia was briefly related by Karl Reeve, who showed how the united forces of world capitalism had united to crush the workers in that country. Reeve urged the undivided support of the workers politically under the banner of the Communists and on the industrial field in militant trade union activity, to form a workers' and farmers' government in the United States along the lines of the government of Soviet Russia.

Reeve denounced the Ku Klux Klan as one means used by the employers in this country as an effort to disrupt the workers, and told how the Klan in Southern Illinois is using disruptive methods in the miners' union. Reeve told of the class struggle between the large employers, such as the Western Electric company, the U. S. Steel corporation and the electric trust on the one hand and steel trust slaves on the other.

When Comrade Early again took the platform to sell the literature and closed the meeting, he was interrupted by a uniformed policeman, who threatened to call the patrol if literature were sold.

"Well, we'll give it away, then," Comrade Early shouted, "and we'll take up a collection to pay for it."

Says He'll Call Wagon.

"I'll call the wagon if you do," the cop answered.

"Well, go ahead and call the wagon," Early replied. "We have a right to free speech, and the selling of literature and the taking up of a collection go along with street meetings." When Comrade Early declared he would continue to talk and assert his constitutional rights of free speech, the crowd loudly applauded.

More than $4 were taken up in the collection and all the literature, including the DAILY WORKER, the Young Worker, and pamphlets by Foster and Jay Lovestone, were distributed. Another meeting will be held on the same corner by the Workers Party Tuesday night.

Hear "Bob" Minor.

A crowd of several hundred Negroes stood in the drizzling rain and listened to a speech by Robert Minor at a street meeting on the corner of 30th and State Saturday night.

Future street meetings are announced as follows:

Monday—Western Electric, noon meeting, speakers Ella Reeve Bloor and others.

Monday night—Madison and Wood Sts., Mid-City Branch. Speakers Ella Reeve Bloor and Karl Reeve.

Tuesday night—Wilton and Belmont. Speakers D. E. Early and others.

SCENE IN SOVIET COURT AT TRIAL OF THE COUNTER-REVOLUTIONARY, SAVINKOFF

CHARGE PLAY IN NEW YORK WALLOPS ARMY

Fear for Discipline and Morale of Marines

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—"From a military standpoint, the show clearly demonstrates that there is no system, no discipline, no morale in the U. S. marine corps or the U. S. army," Inspector Peterkin, attached to the intelligence office of the third naval district, so reports on "What Price Glory," a play by Maxwell Anderson and Lawrence Stallings.

Peterkin, some officers and two department of justice operatives made the first complaint after seeing the show.

Await Special Decision.

Later official investigators who attended the deleted version found no fault but the whole matter awaits the decision of the special board of review composed of arm, navy and police officials.

The play "clearly shows that subordinates do not have any respect for superior officers," continues Peterkin's report. "The general public are permitted to believe that the personnel and officers of the U. S. marine corps are subject at all times to debauchery and seducement.

Charge Marines Drunkards.

"The marine corps and the army of the United States are belittled to the public, the play showing that they are drunkards most of the time and that there is lack of discipline and respect which tends to bring discredit and reproach upon the army and marine officers."

So far officers of the army and marine corps have made no public denial of the imputations of "What Price Glory" in spite of their efforts to have the play withdrawn.

Japs Eye Chinese Wealth.

TOKIO, Sept. 28.—A clash between Foreign Minister Shidehara and War Minister Ugaki over the question of Japanese interference in China took place at a meeting of the cabinet yesterday.

War Minister Ugaki is reported to favor intervention on the side of Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian war lord.

That Chang Tso Lin is the agent of Japanese imperialism in China is undisputed. The stand for neutrality taken by Shidehara is due to fear on the part of Japanese capitalists that open interference on the side of the Mnchurian forces will lead to a break with England and America, which have interests in other parts of China.

City Ownership vs. Insull.

The city council will have to decide Oct. 22, whether the power which Samuel Insull, public utilities king, already holds over the control of the city of Chicago will be curbed, or whether Insull will be allowed to increase his grasp on the affairs of the city. Insull, head of the Chicago elevated and traction lines, will present to the city council on that date plans for the extension of his elevated system. On the same date, Mayor Dever will present plans for elevated lines to be owned by the city which will take the place of Insull's extensions.

GARY LABOR UNDER STEEL YOKE

served in the manner of training the children of the steel trust slaves.

Gary was founded by the steel trust for the purpose of making as much money as possible with as little outlay as possible. "Every device for the saving of time, material, labor and money to obtain the best product was adopted by the United States Steel corporation in founding Gary," we are told by Edward Garstin Smith, in a frank tale of the founding of Gary, entitled, "Gary, Indiana, America's Magic City." The public schools of Gary proved no exception to the rule of making profits from the workers at least cost.

"Social, political and industrial changes have forced upon the school the responsibilities formerly laid upon the home—now the school is charged with the physical, mental and social training of the child," states Lee F. Hanmer, in a recently published report on the Gary school system. A little later he further reveals that the platoon school system is made to serve the steel trust by placing most of the time and energy of the courses on physical and vocational training. "Progress was rapid," says Hanmer. "Painting and printing were added in 1911. The foundry, forge, and machine shop came in 1913."

Factory and Forge.

Even the elementary grades are departmentalized. Statistics given for the Emerson, Froebel and Jefferson schools, the largest and best known "platoon schools" reveal this predominant emphasis on vocational and physical training. "The ranking of studies on the basis of time," says Hanmer's report, "allows 2,697 hours for physical training; 1,605 hours for drawing and shop, and 1,600 hours for auditorium work." Thus "24 per cent of the total time allotment in the elementary grades is devoted to physical training. 14 per cent to shop work, 14 per cent to auditorium work, and only three per cent to history, two per cent to geography, three per cent to spelling, seven per cent to language, and five per cent to science."

Slaves After Death.

In childhood the residents of Gary are taught in the public schools only those things which will make them better slaves of the steel trust. When they grow up and enter the mills, they get their wages from the U. S. Steel corporation on a non-union wage basis. They read the Gary Post-Tribune practically owned by the steel trust. For entertainment they have to patronize cheap theatres owned by chamber of commerce members who are dominated by the steel trust. They have to pay rent to the steel trust, and buy goods of the steel trust or from concerns dominated by the steel trust. If they ever had any money to put in the bank they would have to bank with a steel trust bank When they die they are no doubt buried in ground owned by the United States Steel corporation.

COMMUNIST CANDIDATE PUT ON THE BALLOT IN LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 28.—The Workers Party won a victory here today when Morrjs Biell, Communist candidate for assemblyman in the 66th Assembly District was placed on the ballot. This places the district in direct competition with the socialist party candidate here. All plans are completed for a stiff campaign and wide publicity to our party principles and platform.

Domestic War Is Cause of Bayonets in Williamson County

MARION, Ill., Sept. 28.—Mrs. Ruby Harrington Tate, who confessed to having poisoned her first husband so that she might marry Tate, denied today that she gave him the poison herself.

She said she gave him milk and a can of peaches that Tate gave her. Harrington came home ill from the mine where he and Tate worked, and she charges that in as much as Tate had suggested to her that she poison her husband, she now thinks he must have given Harrington something that started his first illness.

Soldiers with fixed bayonets guarded the Williamson county jail here where Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tate have been lodged, after pretty Mrs. Tate confessed to Sheriff George Galligan, she had plotted with Tate to do away with her first husband, Joseph Harrington.

Sheriff George Galligan asked for the military guard, fearing an attempt might be made to lynch the couple.

Dutch Socialists for Disarmament; Leaders Opposed

THE HAGUE, Sept. 28.—The 22 social-democrats occupying seats in the Second Dutch Chamber will go over the head of their party leaders and submit a bill for complete disarmament. The government party leaders declare they will refuse to approve the bill.

EXPEL RADDOCK AND BOWERMAN FROM THE I. W. W.

M. Raddock and F. W. Bowerman, leaders in the institution of a court injunction against Thomas Doyle, secretary-treasurer, and other officials of the Industrial Workers of the World, have been expelled from the I. W. W. by the Chicago branch of Industrial Union No. 440.

A marked sentiment against the Rowan-Bowerman-Griffiths faction has been manifested by the membership of the I. W. W. because of their resort to capitalist courts in an effort to embarass the Doyle-Fisher group within the I. W. W.

Trial Committee in Statement.

The statement of the trial committee, which found Bowerman and Raddock guilty of disruption within the organization and of failing to account for application of I. W. W. funds, follows:

"We, the trial committee elected by Chicago Branch of I. U. 440, find F. W. Bowerman, card 22841, and M. Raddock card 229111, guilty of the charges placed against them, and they stand expelled from the organization, as the verdict of the committee was approved by the branch." The statement was signed by A. Black, chairman, W. H. Thompson, I. Berlin, Stephen Szalay, and John Edenstrom.

Many Called; Few Appear.

Raddock and Bowerman called a convention of Union No. 440, representing about 10 branches in the metal trades industry, to meet in Pittsburgh, Pa. However, out of the 800 members, only Raddock, Bowerman and four of their followers showed up. The expulsion is the latest act of the membership in repudiating the faction in the I. W. W. which bent suit in the capitalist courts against the I. W. W. administration.

Question Bank Failures.

VINCENNES, Ind., Sept. 28.—Forty-six indictments were returned here today by the Knox county grand jury. The jury is known to have investigated the failure of the North Side State Bank, the Knox Loan & Savings Association, recent highway hold-ups and grain elevator and warehouse fires.

WORLD'S CRISIS HITS LABOR IN ORIENTAL LANDS

Question is Taken up at Profintern Meet

(Rosta)

MOSCOW, Aug. 5 (by mail).—Making a general survey of the trades union movement in the East, Mr. Hellor, in his report to the 111 Congress of the "Profintern" (International of Red Labor Unions), recently held at Moscow, dwelt on the crisis which the Oriental labor movement has been going thru since the last congress of that organization. The reason lies in the heavy economic crisis of native capital in the Oriental countries.

World Crisis Affects Orient.

Indeed,—the speaker remarks—the economic crisis in the rest of the world has had its effect on the colonial and semi-colonial countries of the East in this way that there came an irresistible Eastward drive of European and American capital, which in political terms meant a reflorescence of imperialism and struggle for Oriental markets. On the other hand, native capitalism, which had prospered and flourished in the years of the imperialistic war, benefitted as it was by the lack of competition on the part of European powers, now finds itself in a very difficult position: unable as it is to compete today with European capital, native capitalism falls nearly everywhere.

It stands to reason then that the national liberation movement, which had made progress during these last years, is now on the decline, as it has been deprived of the support of the native bourgeoisie which, to save its position, prefers to compromise with the all-powerful European capitalism. Under such conditions, it is the lot of the working classes of the East to enter without almost any allies into the struggle both for their class and national freedom.

What is, then, the task of the "Profintern" in this new juncture in the East?—asks the speaker. The final aim of this organization is, as heretofore, the class and national liberation of the proletariat. While new tactics must be found, adapted to new conditions, the town proletariat, which is weak numerically, must be allied with the proletarianized farmers, petty artisans, etc., who are very numerous in the Oriental countries: Japan, China, Egypt, and so forth. Such cooperation must run along definite organizational lines, whether it be the organization of workers' and peasants' parties, leagues or committees of joint action.

The time for elemental action is, however, over: what is needed at present is a long and patient organization of revolutionary "cadres," and the concrete and practical slogans of the common struggle of workers and peasants should be, for instance, the right of coalition, strikes, etc. The "Profintern's" task in the East is, therefore, to use all available means of the proletarian and peasants' struggle and make its organizations stand closer to the broad masses of the people.

Monarchist Plotters.

VLADIVOSTOK, Aug. 29. (by mail) —Public opinion here is very much interested in the pending big trial of a recently disclosed monarchist organization, which aimed at the overthrow of the Soviet power in favor of the exgrand-dukes Nikolai Nikolaievitch and Kyrill Vladimirovitch.

This organization planned to organize bandit raids and political murders and also to hamper the economic readjustment of the country. All the plot was directed from Harbin by the monarchist center there, in particular, by Bishop Nester and ex-colonel Jodvoin.

Thirty-nine arrests have been made in this connection at Vladivostok.

CANNON TO HIT CAPITALISM IN NEW YORK TALK

Gubernatorial Nominee in W. P. Rally

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—James P. Cannon, who will open his campaign as candidate for governor of New York state on the Workers Party ticket at a big rally on Thursday evening, Oct. 2, at 8 p. m., at Hunt's Point Palace, 935 Southern Boulevard, near 163rd Street, Bronx, today issued a stirring statement to the workers of New York.

"The United States, which is the wealthiest country of the world, denies to the millions of workers and exploited farmers the good things of life. Long hours of work or unemployment is the lot of the worker. Millions of farmers are bankrupt. And all this while the Garys, Morgans, Rockefellers, Fords, McCormicks and other great capitalists are getting ever richer.

Government Strikebreaker.

"The government is a capitalist institution serving the capitalists and grinding down the workers. The corrupt capitalist government breaks strikes by use of injunctions and troops. The workers can expect nothing from the candidates of the capitalist system, the strikebreaker Coolidge, the Morgan-Rockefeller lawyer Davis, and the candidate of small business LaFollette. The workers can no longer let themselves be deceived by the socialists who have lost every right of speaking in the name of the working class when they lined up with LaFollette, a middle class candidate. The workers should support the Workers Party which stands for a workers' and farmers' government and for the Communist system of production. The workers and farmers of Russia have already set the example in this direction.

"The Workers Party is in the forefront of every struggle of the workers. The immediate program of the Workers Party is: The creation of a mass Farmer-Labor Party, nationalization of industry and workers' control, compelling industry and government to pay wages to the unemployed, stopping the use of injunction, police and soldiers against workers, release of all political class war prisoners, hand for the users, opposing militarism and imperialist wars, recognition of Soviet Russia.

Will Explain Program.

"In my speech at the Hunt's Point Palace meeting on Oct. 2 I will endeavor to present our full program so that the workers present will be able to judge whether the Workers Party deserves their support.

"There is a treat in store for the audience at the Hunt's Point Palace meeting, as Cannon is an exceptionally fine speaker. He will give the Communist viewpoint, he will expose the corruption of the old capitalist parties and the false pretenses of the LaFollette progressives and socialists.

W. P. in Fight on Bosses.

The Workers Party is making a lone but effective fight against capitalism. The socialist party in joining with LaFollette lined up on the side of capitalism. Cannon will lay bare the treachery of the socialist party which makes a false claim of being a party of the working class. No class conscious worker can afford to miss the opportunity of being present at the big campaign rally of the local candidates of the Workers Party. There will be a number of other speakers besides Cannon.

On Friday, Oct. 3, Cannon will address a meeting at the Queens County Labor Lyceum, 785 Forest Avenue.

White Guards Active.

MOSCOW, Aug. 29. (by mail).—The Constantinople papers report that a "committee for the repartition of refugees" has been uncovered there. It was organized by Russian White Guards and worked illegally with Bishop Anastasy at their head, whom the Turkish press looks upon as an arch enemy of Turkey.

Legal action has been started against this "committee" which, according to the Tanin, was also involved in espionage. The Turkish papers comment ironically upon the fact that in spite of this committee's fairly long existence, the police had "no knowledge" thereof.

r Say!.. This Court Favors Union

SYDNEY, New South Wales, Sept 28.—By a ruling of the high court of Australia nonunionists employed on wharves in Australian ports since the general strike in 1917, are ordered to vacate their jobs which must be given to members of the Waterside Workers' union. Preference to unionists is mandatory.

Minor Replies to the Claims of Dr. DuBois

NEW YORK, N. Y., Aug. 28, 1924.
Editor DAILY WORKER—Sir: In a recent number of your paper your staff writer, Robert Minor charges that I am responsible for the attitude of Liberia toward the Garvey African Migration movement and that I was sent by Coolidge and the Harding party to Liberia to prevent this proposed Negro migration. Will you permit me to say that this story is an unmitigated lie. I was not sent to Liberia. I was attending the third Pan-African Congress in Lisbon and visited West Africa on my own initiative. I had no consultation with the president or any official before I went, on Garvey or any other matter. While there I was appointed by cable to represent President Colidge at the inauguration of President King. It was a purely courtesy appointment without salary. The cabled instructions were published in full in the Crisis. I did not mention Garvey or his movement to President King of Liberia or any of his officials. I did not consult with them or advise them nor did they ask my advice. In no way, shape, or manner did I have anything whatsoever to do with the policy of Liberia towards this man and movement.

Of course Liberia knew my personal attitude toward Garvey. They knew that I had openly opposed his wild masquerading and crazy squandering of the hard-earned pennies of the poor. But neither I nor they mentioned the subject while I was in Liberia. Nor did I represent capitalists, imperialists or anyone else but my own fairly well-known views on race matters. To charge me with joining the combination of capitalists to choke a Negro republic is surely too fantastic for the DAILY WORKER to believe.

W. E. B. DuBOIS.

Minor Makes His Reply.

Editor DAILY WORKER:

Comrade: You have forwarded to me Dr. DuBois' letter with your request that I show what justification I had for the article of which he complains. Your letter reached me just as I was leaving on an extended trip during which I was out of reach of the material necessary for the answer, which I now give.

I wish that Dr. DuBois had realized the necessity of being accurate in a letter complaining of inaccuracies. If he had read my article coolly and not under the influence of the professional bolshevik-baiter who (as I happen to know) tried to excite him about it, Dr. DuBois would have seen that I did not charge him with any responsibility for the attitude of Liberia," etc., but that I simply recorded the fact that in public convention others charged him with such responsibility. In fact what I wrote was a much expurgated and fumigated summary of a terrific and very detailed attack upon Dr. DuBois which occupied several hours altogether of the convention's time, and which became the center of a political controversy which could not be described without mention of it. What was said by the speakers was considered by me to be exaggerated that I discarded the bulk of it and printed nothing as an allegation of fact that was not contained in Du-Bois' own account of his visit to Liberia published in the April, 1924, issue of "The Crisis" magazine, edited by Dr. DuBois, under DuBois' own signature. I quote from that paper, pages 250 and 251, passages from DuBois' article entitled "Africa," as follows:

"As I look back and recall the days, which I have called great—the occasions in which I am sure that what I did was for me and others the widest significance, I can remember none like the first day of January, 1924 . . . (Continuing with a recital of wrongs endured by Liberia at the hands of the U. S. senate and state department:)

"It was then that the United States made a gesture of courtesy; a little thing, merely a gesture, but one so fine and so unusual that it was epochal. It sent an American Negro to Liberia. It designated him Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary—the highest rank ever given by any country to a diplomatic agent of black Africa. And it named this envoy the special representative of the President of the United States to the President of Liberia on the occasion of his inauguration, charging the envoy with a portfolio of good will of encouragement and moral support.

"It was a great and significant action. It had in it nothing personal. Another appointee would have been equally significant. Liberia recognized the meaning. She showered upon the envoy very mark of appreciation and thanks. The commander of the Liberian frontier force was made his special Aide and a sergeant his orderly. At 10 o'clock New Years morning a company of the frontier force, in red fez and khaki presented arms before the American legation and escorted Solomon Porter Hood, the American Minister Resident, and myself as Envoy Extraordinary and my Aide to the presidential mansion—a beautiful white-verandahed house waving with palms and fronting a grassy street . . . . . " (My emphasis.)

Dr. DuBois now writes in his letter the emphatic sentence: "I was not sent to Liberia." This is in strange contradiction to the Dr. DuBois' own above account of the affair, in which he wrote "It" (the United States) "sent an American Negro" (DuBois) "to Liberia."

Later in the same article in "The Crisis" Dr. DuBois quotes his own speech to the inaugural assembly as containing these sentences:

"The President of the United States has done me the great honor of designating me his personal representative on the occasion of your inauguration . . . And I am sure that in this special mark of the president's favor, he has had in mind the wishes and hopes of Negro Americans . . . . I have now the honor, sir, to transmit to you the personal word of Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States of America by the hand of Charles E. Hughes, secretary of state."

The above partially quoted editorial is immediately followed in Dr. DuBois' paper with an item headed "A Despatch," which is dated Monrovia, Liberia, Feb. 8, 1924, and which reads:

"To the Associated Newspapers of the World:

"President of the Republic has denied application from delegates of the Universal Negro Improvement Association to Liberia for an interview. Interview can only be granted if it partakes of an unofficial character and discussions to take place must be of an informal nature and as between private individuals. Any proposal suggesting location for 3,000 immigrants to Liberia must ultimately be denied.

"President told me that he is keeping his mind on the obligation of Liberia to the Great Powers, and as such to the maintenance of the independence of the Republic.

"Butler's Limited."

After seeing all of these passages printed in a paper edited by Dr. DuBois, I did not feel justified in suppressing the fact that in a big public convention for several days a furor of excitement centered around the charge (made by participants of the convention—not by myself) that Dr. DuBois "became an instrument for inducing the Liberian government to declare that no vises would be granted the members of Garvey's organization," and that such action was, according to The charge, useful in the powers which I know the liberty of calling "imperialist powers."

Unfortunately, at about this time, a famous photograph was published in the capitalist press, showing a vacation party composed of Calvin Coolidge, Harvey Firestone, Thomas Edison and another member of the Firestone family; and this was shortly followed by the announcement that certain large concessions of rubber and mineral territory which the Negro organization claimed had been granted it for co-operative exploitation, had been cancelled or ignored by the Liberian government, and that an enormous concession covering practically the same territory had been granted to the American capitalist, Coolidge's friend, Harvey Firestone.

And no means of foreseeing this last event in a series of circumstances which are now used by Dr. DuBois' enemies as a basis for long and vitrolic denunciations. I am glad that Dr. DuBois denies absolutely having any hand in the policy of the United States government toward Liberia, as I am sure that the granting of the alleged Firestone concession in Liberia (if it occurred) will be the opening of a sad chapter in the history of the little Negro republic.

It is particularly deplorable that Dr. DuBois should have allowed himself to be so complaisant as to accept the "honor" of representing that pigmy figure-head of the most merciless capitalism in the world, Calvin Coolidge, who is not fit to tie the shoestring of an honest Negro workingman or intellectual leader. It is unfortunate if true that DuBois told the Liberians that they were receiving a "special mark of the president's favor" at just the moment when Coolidge's Secretary of State, New Years morning thru Coolidge's minister, Solomon Porter Hood, to obtain a monster concession for the exploitation of Liberian labor and the consequent inevitable subjugation of Liberia to imperialist rule.

Since the question is raised, I think it would have been a "fine and unusual" gestnure if DuBois had answered Coolidge's insulting offer by refusing the "honor" 'of representing the United States government. It would have been "fine and unusual" if Dr. DuBois had seized the opportunity to warn the people of Liberia just what fate awaits little Negro republics such as Haiti and Liberia that receive "special mark of the president's favor" and the introduction of American imperialist exploitation.

We have always looked upon "honors" and "courtesy appointments" which require them to tell oppressed Negro peoples that they are receiving special marks of "favor" from powers interested only in their subjugation, they must expect this consequence. It is an old story. That Dr. DuBois let himself be put in this position is especially regrettable because he has a reputation in the public mind of having fought consistently and bravely in the past years for the equality of the Negro politically, socially and in industry. It is even said that he more than most Negro leaders has in the past endeavored to give the Negro the only key by which such emancipation can be obtained—class-conscious action as a part of the working class. It is a pity that he has in this instance put himself into a light of unfavorable contrast to Marcus Garvey, as far as this incident alone is concerned, Garvey fawns before the caste system and grovels before the big capitalist masters to whom he offers to trade the Negro's right to equality in exchange for "moral or other support,"—a thing for which DuBois very admirably denounces him.—ROBERT MINOR.

DECISIONS OF WORKERS PARTY CENTRAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

THE Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party made the following decisions at meetings held on Thursday, Sept. 17 and Monday, Sept. 22.

Party Constitution.

To print in the Party press the clauses of the statute of the Communist International dealing with the questions of membership and discipline in Communist Parties with the statement that these become part of the constitution of the Workers Party.

Anniversary of First International.

To call all Party papers to issue special editions on September 28, the anniversary of the founding of the First International and to instruct Party organizations to hold meetings on that date so far as possible and also that Party membership meetings nearest to the date shall be devoted to the question of Bolshevisation of the Workers Party.

Paterson Strike.

To investigate the situation growing out of the speech of Comrade Poyntz to the Paterson strikers which resulted in a statement by the Strike Committee repudiating the speech which shall include the responsibility of Party members for the issuance of the statement.

C. I. Decision in Freiheit.

To instruct the Freiheit to publish again in full the C. I. statement in regard to the controversy in the Workers Party because several lines have been dropped out of the original statement which gave a wrong impression of its meaning.

Ohio Sticker Campaign.

Authorizing the Party organization in Ohio to carry on a sticker campaign in order to record the vote for the national and state ticket in Ohio.

Young Workers League.

To strongly recommend to the Young Workers League to publish in the Young Worker, Y. C. L. decision on the controversy in the Young Workers League.

Amalgamation of Liberator, Labor Herald and Soviet Russia Pictorial.

To amalgamate the three publications mentioned above in one magazine to be known as the Workers Monthly. The price of the magazine will be 25c per single copy, subscription rate $2.00 per year. Comrade Earl Browder was appointed editor and Comrades Bittelman, Cannon, Dunne, Foster, Bedacht, Lovestone and Ruthenberg the editorial board to direct the policies of the magazine.

Daily Worker Campaign.

To begin a campaign on Nov. 7 to raise funds to cover the deficit of the DAILY WORKER. Proceeds of the celebration of the Russian Revolution to be turned over to the DAILY WORKER.

Organization of Individuals to Support Campaign.

The Committee decided against the proposal to form an organization of prominent individuals who are non Party members for the purpose of supporting the Workers Party campaign. It is the view of the Committee that such support could only be organized thru delegates of labor organizations and that individuals who desire to support the campaign should be elected from labor or other workers' organizations as a delegated body supporting our campaign.

Kaartinen Case.

The Committee instructed the Finnish branch of Hurley, Wisconsin to expel from the Party Alfred Kaartinen who is a candidate on the republican ticket for the state assembly.

Lithuanian Branch, Philadelphia.

Deferred action on request of suspending from the Party Lithuanian Branch No. 76 of Philadelphia for failing and refusing to carry out the industrial registration and authorized the bureau of the Lithuanian section to send an organizer to visit the branch.

Richmond Resolution.

Reiterated former decisions on the question of the policy pursued in the I. T. U. by comrade Wicks in reply to protest against the statement of the C. E. C. by local Richmond, Va.

Assured Local Richmond that the C. E. C. would do all in its power to eliminate from the Party petty bourgeoise exploiters of the workers who were continually in conflict with the workers as was reported to be the case in Richmond.

Lettish Paper.

Instructed the bureau of the Lettish section that in view of the fact that in spite of the repeated requests for financial support and editorial support for the Lettish paper Strahdneeks which have been made to the Lettish branches by the bureau and to which no response has been forthcoming that the instructions of the C. E. C. for the immediate publication of Strahdneeks were withdrawn.

That after the National Convention of the Workers Party, the C. E. C. would grant the Lettish section a right to hold a conference of that section to which the question of publication of the paper would be referred. The Lettish section to hold Strahdneeks as a result of the Chicago Press Picnic be turned over to the bureau of the Lettish section to be held in trust until after the conference of the Lettish section.

Volkszeitung Conference.

Directed the publication of a letter to the C. E. C. by the Bakers' Local No. 1 of the Amalgamated Food Workers supporting the position of the C. E. C. in reference to the Volkszeitung Conference. The instructions of the C. E. C. to publish the letter were issued on request of the branch of the Bakers' organization.

Czechoslovak Paper.

Granted permission to the Czechoslovak section of the Party to publish a weekly paper in Chicago and decided 450 toward the publication of the paper.

International Workers Relief.

Directed all Party units including D. E. C's, C. C. C's and branches to designate certain members to form International Workers' Relief Committees for the support of the I. W. R. organization.

C. E. RUTHENBERG, Executive Secretary.

The Flavor May Not Last.

JACKSON, Mich., Sept. 28.—Next it will be chewing gum. The Michigan prohibition party adopted a resolution condemning not only drinking, but tobacco smoking at its state convention at Jackson, where it nominated a candidate for U. S. senator.

PROFESSOR MAKES BIG DONATION TO THE COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN

By ROSE PASTOR STOKES.

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 28.—We had a bully meeting. I talked to about 600 people here in Syracuse. About three hundred of these were with us from the beginning. The rest came toward the end and stayed to the discussion period.

The collection was thirty dollars to which a certain college professor of Syracuse university, contributed $11. The professor arrived late. During the heckling period this palefaced studious looking person of about forty, made his way to the front and addressed the speaker.

"Can you tell this audience in monosyllabic language just what is the Marxian Theory of Surplus Value?"

"I believe I can, sir. I've told this audience just this very thing, developing the theory in such fashion that I hope every worker understood. You're evidently a late comer to this meeting, but I'll repeat without elaboration what I said." I repeated it. The professor seemed 100-per cent satisfied with the answer. Taking out a roll of bills he asked me, "How many dollar bills have you in your hand?" I counted nine ones and a two. These I handed him came from the workers in the crowd to carry on the campaign.

"Here are eleven dollars to match them," said the professor. "You've made it so clear to me that the lesson is worth every cent of it to me." I thanked him and announced that every dollar of it would be used to good effect. That a dollar will pay for a hundred leaflets, distributed free by our members and sympathizers to a hundred workers. The audience applauded. And another worker in the audience gave another dollar for the lesson to him.

KUZBAS IS NOW ON THE MAP AND MAKING GREAT PROGRESS, REPORT

By A. J. WOOMER.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

KEMEROVO, Aug. 2.—We are now very busy in Kemerovo... We have 75 students here to study our industries. One of them, from Leningrad, is staying with me. Every evening a dozen or so of them gather in my room which gives me but little chance to write. They work here 6 hours a day, after which they go to the various villages near and give lectures to the peasants. They are all anxious to learn the English language. They are very poor and work in their bare feet so that they will have their shoes for the cold weather when it comes. They are all in their fourth year at college and are anxious to correspond with young Americans who are also in their fourth year.

A commission has been here from Moscow. They were very pleased at the progress made. We are to take over other properties as a result of this visit, we understand.

Tom Mann Here.

Tom Mann was here from England. He had been attending the Profintern Congress. He is a fine old chap, nearly 70 years old. He said that he would let the world know with tongue and pen what we are doing here in Kemerovo.

I have just had my vacation of two weeks. I did not get far away from here. I went out to the big grain farm with the manager, Comrade Kingery. The farm has over 50 miles of it in a Ford car. A man is dazed at the vastness of such a ranch, for one cannot call it a farm. It is ten miles long and over 5 miles wide, the railroad running alongside of it on the long side, on the way south to Kuznetz and Koltschugina. The grain is very fine this year. They are just starting to cut. They have eight 10-foot binders from America on this job as well as a host of horse-drawn smaller binders. Over 100 men are now working on the farm at this time. We have a fine garden this year; all the crops are great. It also is large being 5 miles long and 2 miles wide. Crops are good in Siberia this year, but only in some parts of Central Russia they say.

You ask us how many people we have eating at the Co-operative dining rooms? The house on the right bank of the River Tom is now dining 350 persons while the one of the left bank looks after about 100. The married people mostly cook and eat at home.

When Tom Mann was here the Russian comrades bombarded him with questions regarding the English workers, the unions and the Communist Party. The questions were bombarding like the following: "How do the workers make the revolution now that they have the political power?" "What are they going to do with the King?" "Why do they not look after Ramsay MacDonald like we looked after Kerensky etc. Plenty of work for Cmorade Mann answering the two or so questions which they fired at him.

Coal Output Big.

I am now in the lumber yard classifying the grades of lumber and seeing that it gets to the place where it will be needed. Our output of coal last year was 3,000,000 poods, now we are producing about 4,500,000 poods a month. The coke ovens are turning out several thousand poods of coke per day. Some of this goes 1500 miles to the Ural steel mills, where it is helping to get Russia's steel output back to pre-war figures. We expect to start on the piers for the new bridge this fall. It will take about two years to build and will cost about one and a half million dollars.

The farm department has made a good start with their dairy and they are now getting ready for cheese making. We are still behind with the building program, but are starting now on a $50,000 program for more houses.

Today we celebrated August 4—our demonstration against all wars in the interest of the capitalist class. We had many speeches by our local forces and the visiting students. When we held our demonstration the militia marched in front. You poor fish have them prodding you from behind.

Kuzbas is now on the map and making great progress.

N. Y. AMALGAMATED SHOP COLLECTIONS DRIVE IS ENDORSED

A special meeting of the Executive Committee of the Trade Union Educational League in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, which was well attended by delegates of the largest locals in the City of New York, has decided on a campaign to repudiate the action of the general executive board in its endorsement of LaFollette. This action of the general executive was a violation of the decision made at the last convention of the Amalgamated for independent working class political action.

The shop collections drive of the Workers Party campaign committee was heartily endorsed. A campaign committee of five was elected to carry out this work in the Amalgamated. The committee immediately took a large number of subscription lists and distributed them. Plans were worked out for drawing the entire left membership in the various locals into the work.

Comrades and sympathizers interested in the shop collections drive, who have not as yet been reached should make it their immediate business to get in touch with the Workers Party Campaign committee, 210 East 12th Street, New York City.

BRITISH MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT TALKS IN MOSCOW

Kameneff and Chicherin Laud Treaty

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, Aug. 29. (by mail).—At a plenary session of the Moscow Soviet, Messrs. Chicherin, Rakovsky, Kameneff made speeches on the Anglo-Soviet treaty. The assembly welcomed with loud applause Mrs. Susannah Laurens, member of British parliament and member of the executive of the British Labor Party, who was introduced by Mr. Kameneff and who in her speech pointed out the part played by British labor in the completion of the treaty.

Mr. Rakovsky made comprehensive report of all the Anglo-Soviet negotiations and laid down the contents of the treaty itself. Passages of his speech, in which the Soviet chief delegate at London put stress on the position of principle which the Soviet Government had taken up to defend the revolutionary gains in the question of debts, were repeatedly met with loud applause and ovations—in particular, the following statement: They are mistaken who believe the Soviet power can force the millions masses of peasants to pay for the debts of bankers. The Soviet power leans on the revolutionary conscience of the toilers of the Union of Soviet Republics, and it would cease to be a power if it would disown its revolutionary origin. We are firmly convinced, concludes Mr. Rakovsky, that the London treaty will be ratified by British parliament.

International Recognition.

Mr. Chicherin, people's commissary of foreign affairs, calls the treaty an international recognition, attained after seven years, of the October revolution as the basis of the Soviet state. If Mr. Lloyd George called the trade relations of 1921 an armistice, the actual general treaty is the first final treaty of peace.

Mr. Chicherin further states that by this treaty the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics obtains advantages greater than the sacrifices made. Recalling the Genoa and the Hague conferences, the speaker remarks that the necessity of reaching an agreement with the Soviet was dictated by hard, real facts and the economic crisis in the largest countries. The policy of making the Bolsheviks "tame thru trade" has failed. Indeed, the Anglo-Soviet treaty is the result of a five-year-long peaceful duel between the Soviet Republics and the capitalistic states, in result of which the Soviet Union is rapidly reviving economically and growing stronger under the eyes of all the world.

CLEVELAND MILL MAGNATES QUAKE AT W. P. LEAFLET

Throw a Couple of Fits When They See It

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28.—Mill magnates in Cleveland who are supersensitive on profits and property rights were thrown into alarms which quickly spread to the newspapers when they saw a few pieces of Workers Party literature being distributed to mill workers.

Suggestive military terms were used to describe the propaganda work. The "bombardment" of literature, said to be 'inflammatory," penetrated painfully into the consciousness of the mill owners when they noticed that the leaflets called for a workers' and farmers' government to end oppression and exploitation. This demand was termed revolutionary.

Such Bunk!

A silly season touch was given the incident when claims were made that W. Z. Foster and C. E. Ruthenberg of the Workers Party, are profiteering handsomely thru the sale of the propaganda leaflets.

LOSE ONE ROUND, WIN ANOTHER, IN I. W. W. TRIALS

FRESNO, Cal., Sept. 28.—The criminal syndicalism charge against Mickey Hurley, John Martin, T. J. McDonald, Miles McGabe and Emil Staffo has been dismissed after nearly two years' activity by the defense. Three of these cases have been hanging fire since October, 1922, a former trial having resulted in nine to three for acquittal. None of the men were accused of anything except membership in the I. W. W.

• • •

SACREMENTO, Cal., Sept. 28.—The appellate court has confirmed the conviction for criminal syndicalism of Ed Dowe and F. W. Thompson, both sent to San Quentin a year ago by the judge who sentenced Ford and Suhr to life. The men charged unfairness in selection of the jury, a special panel being selected and jurymen being accepted who acknowledged prejudice against the I. W. W. The case will be appealed.

Silk Strikers Win.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 28.—When 200 night operators of the Edward Bloom Silk Co. walked out, following a strike of the day men, the management agreed to meet the demand for day work for all. The management promised to install 90 additional looms.

The Imperialist Attack Upon China

By G. VOITINSKY (Moscow).

THE recent events in China only constitute the culmination of those proceedings which have taken place during the last eighteen months. Part of these proceedings was the ousting of Japanese influence by America and England, the strengthening of English and American capital and its pressure upon North and Central China, resulting in the consolidation and strengthening of the reactionary militarist clique in the north, the Tchili party.

At the same time there is another process going on, that of the growth, the extension and deepening of the national revolutionary movement, which is seeking a new way to conduct a real fight against the yoke of foreign imperialism. The most important events of the first process were: the victory of Wu-Pei-Fu over Tchan-Tzo-Lin and Sun-Yat-Sen in the middle of 1922, the bloody suppression of the railway strike, the crushing of the independent army of the Sytchuan province in 1923, the election of Tsao-Kun as president, the strengthening of the power of Wu-Pei-Fu thruout the whole of Central China.

On the other hand the strengthening of the struggle against foreign imperialism is characterized by such historical facts as the agreement with the Soviet Union, the continual systematic struggle even of the present Chinese government against the "great powers" and the growth of national revolutionary consciousness thruout the whole public opinion of China, under the pressure of which the Peking government was compelled to bring about the agreement with the Soviet government.

We saw already in February this year at the re-organization congress of the Comindan Party (the national-revolutionary party which is led by Sun-Yat-Sen) a tenacious fight between the right and left wing.

The representatives of the right wing, comprising in the main the mercantile interests, fought against the reorganization of the party: they desired that it should remain in its present loose and divided condition in order that they should be able to retain it in their hands as an instrument for the protection of their interests against the industrial North and Central China, as well as against the worker and peasant masses in South China.

The left wing of the party, at the head of which our Communist comrades stand, is striving to convert the party into a real national-revolutionary party, which shall rely for main support upon the masses of workers and peasants.

It is one of the greatest historical merits of Sun-Yat-Sen, the leader and creator of the Comindan party, that at this critical moment he ranged himself on the side of the left wing and led the party with firm hand along the road of real struggle for the interests of the working and peasant masses and for the interest of the town petty-bourgeoisie.

This marked the beginning of a split. The mercantile interests formerly connected with this party are turning more and more from Sun-Yat-Sen and are becoming his open opponents. The necessity of maintaining a military territorial basis in South China, which unavoidably involves the taxation of big commercial capital, is sharpening the struggle of the big merchants of the South against Sun-Yat-Sen.

In this struggle for their pocket interests the commercial bourgeoisie find themselves allied with English capital, which from Hong Kong is bringing immediate pressure to bear upon Sun-Yat-Sen. The foreign capitalists are supplying the bourgeoisie of Canton with weapons and money. Volunteer fascist troops are being openly organized for the struggle against Sun-Yat-Sen and his government.

Such an attitude on the part of the bourgeoisie of Canton is impelling Sun-Yat-Sen to find more close alliance with the masses of workers and petty bourgeoisie of Canton, and with the millions of peasants of the Southern provinces and of the whole country. In order to protect the city against the foreign enemy and against the growing inner counter-revolution, armed troops of workers are being formed, which have already defended Canton against the attack of hostile military forces.

The provocation on the part of the big commercial bourgeoisie, the setting up of armed fascist troops, was replied to by Sun-Yat-Sen with the confiscation of a ship loaded with weapons and with the strengthening of the struggle against the leaders of the counter-revolutionary revolt which is preparing. Suddenly, however, there appeared upon the scene English capital, which is supported by the great naval forces in Hongkong and by the "labor government" of Ramsay MacDonald in London. It transpired that the leader of the fascists, the Chinese counter-revolutionary, Tschan-Lin-Pak, is at the same time an agent of the English Hongkong-Shanghai Bank and that even on Chinese territory stands under the immediate protection of the English consul. His residence in one of the suburbs of Canton is guarded by English soldiers and English (Indian) police. The fight against the counter-revolutionaries is regarded by the agents of MacDonald as a crime against the principle of democracy and against the interests of foreigners.

The recent declaration of the English and American consuls in China constitutes an open proclamation of an immediate armed intervention on the part of the "great" imperialist powers against the growing national revolutionary movement of the country.

The American note to the Chinese government states, that "the Powers will adopt all measures and use every means at their disposal which are necessary for the protection of the life and property of foreigners."

The ultimatum which the British consul in Canton handed to Sun-Yat-Sen speaks more openly as to the British naval forces having received appropriate orders. At the same time these declarations were backed up by deeds; American warships were assembled at Shanghai, English naval forces were sent from Hongkong to Canton and French warships proceeded partly to Shanghai and partly to Canton.

America and England, led by MacDonald, are proceeding to open acts of war in order to strangle the national revolutionary movement: America mainly in Central Asia and England in Southern China.

The united armed action of world imperialism against China is only the beginning of a long and tenacious struggle between the former and the uprising East. In this struggle the suppressed peoples of the East have only one friend and ally; the Union of Soviet Republics.

It is difficult to say at present what forms the struggle in South China will assume, and whether Sun-Yat-Sen will succeed in defending Canton against the combined imperialists. In any event one can confidently say that the approaching struggle will weld together all national revolutionary elements (or the defence of the revolutionary South, which is under the leadership of Sun-Yat-Sen and the Gomindan party. This combined attack of the imperialists will prove a powerful stimulus, which will stir up the struggle against foreign imperialism thruout the whole of China.

EXPLOITATION OF KID IMMIGRANTS BRINGS SUICIDES

Five Destroy Selves in Canada in Year

By SYDNEY WARREN.

(By the Federated Press.)

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 28.—During the past year there were five cases of suicide among child immigrants in Canada. Children brought from England under the auspices of charitable organizations, have become stranded and are forced to accept employment under the most degrading conditions and sometimes treated in such a brutal manner that suicide is taken as the only means of escape. These facts are before the Vancouver Trades Council following an investigation of the conditions of child immigrants to Canada made by the Child Welfare League of this city.

The report revealed that children as young as five years have been sent out to Canada while tots ranging from seven to ten years are quite common. Many of these children are brought out ostensibly for adoption but this has been proved a ruse to obtain cheap labor. Child immigrants are taken to farms and sweat shop industries where they are given a low wage and compelled to pay back their passage money which keeps them in the grip of their exploiters for years. The manner of exploitation is almost identical with that employed by the South Australian government's boy immigration scheme, which the new Labor government of that state straightway abolished.

Brutally Treated.

Accounts of the treatment of child immigrants on the farms and factories of this country would turnish Charles Dickens, were he alive, with ample material for stories. In one instance a young farm lad was compelled to work such long hours and received such brutal treatment from his master that he hid from the farmhouse in the middle of the winter and when found was frozen to death. On another prairie farm a youth received such frightful beatings from his employer that he committed suicide to escape them.

In Vancouver a case was cited where an 11-year-old girl was doing the housework for a family in the fashionable part of the city and was not allowed to attend school. Other immigrant children were employed in cheap restaurants and stores on the prairies where they were used not only to force down wages but to keep adults out of employment.

The Vancouver Trades Council has decided to appoint a committee to tell Margaret Bondfield, under-secretary of labor in the British Labor government of the plight of child immigrants in Canada.

STEP ON THE GAS, IS WALL STREET ORDER TO BIG BIZ; TO HOLD UNTIL ELECTIONS

By LELAND OLDS

(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

To step on the big orders pedal and let the industrial machine shoot ahead until Coolidge is safely elected on the old full dinner pail gag, is the order to the railroads that has gone from Wall Street. And the railroad executives have started to carry out the orders. The result will show whether the worker can still be foiled or whether he will see in any temporary improvement in conditions just a demonstration of the tremendous power over the country's life exercised by private owners of the country's capital.

Looks Good!

Recent orders placed to initiate the Coolidge for president boom include Illinois Central 35 large locomotives, 6,200 cars and 60,000 tons of rails; Pennsylvania, 10,000 cars requiring 100,000 tons of steel and 200,000 tons of rails; Texas & Pacific, 2,000 cars; Missouri Pacific, 50 locomotives. Other orders in negotiation include New York Central, 170,000 tons of rails; Chesapeake & Ohio, 2,000 cars; St. Louis & Southwestern, 1,000 cars; St. Louis & San Francisco, 8,000 cars; Reading, 3,000 cars and 15,000 to 20,000 tons of rails; Southern 3,000 cars and 50 locomotives. The Baltimore & Ohio, Santa Fe and Lehigh Valley are expected to place large orders.

Railroad purchases for the week ended Sept. 13 totaled around $60,000,000. The total intended to create the illusion of a republican full dinner pail is figured in the hundreds of millions. Rails for immediate delivery will probably involve 400,000 tons of steel and total orders over 2,000,000 tons. Each modern steel freight car calls for about 15 tons of steel.

Basis of Steel Rise.

These orders underly the recent gain in steel operations which have increased to 60 per cent capacity compared with a low point of about 40 per cent. Orders on the books of the steel corporation shows the first gain in months, increasing by 102,505 tons.

These orders also stimulate the lumber industry. They involve purchase of 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 feet of decking, framing, etc. Indirectly they stimulate coal and many other industries including transportation. The movement of ore, finished steel, coal, lumber, etc., which go into finished products consumed by the railroads makes a large percentage of the entire traffic of carriers.

Here is the stage machinery which produced the slight gain in employment and wages reported to Coolidge by the secretary of labor for campaign purposes and welcomed by the republicans as a godsend. As frequently emphasized by The Federated Press it opens up one of the serious problems faced by the workers. The irresponsible control which private finance exercises over railroad purchases is an important factor in the dictatorship of the big investment bankers. By alternately swamping the market and withholding railroad orders financiers alternately intensify industrial booms and render more serious the depressions with their unemployment and wage deflation.

A long step toward regular employment and a beter strategic position for labor will be taken when the control of railroad purchases is taken from the private exploiting interests.

VILLARD, BACKER OF LAFOLLETTE IN NEW YORK, IS PRESIDENT OF "OPEN SHOP" MINE CORPORATION

Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of "The Nation" and supporter of LaFollette, is the president of the Fort Montgomery Iron mine, operating as an "open shop." Villard, is chairman of the New York local Conference for Progressive Political Action campaign committee.

The Fort Montgomery iron mine is located about five miles from the lonely railroad station at Fort Montgomery. Communication is extremely difficult and it is only after a hard and tedious climb by foot or Ford that a desolate cluster of shacks and the mine itself is reached.

In these ramshackle dwellings, isolated and cut off from the rest of the world, live the miners. The monotony and drabness of the scene are heightened by the occasional appearance of an emaciated cur—a heap of rusty tomato cans—piles of gray iron ore and the usual rubbish typical of an ill-kept, slovenly manufacturing company village.

Working Conditions Appalling.

Life at the Fort Montgomery Iron Mine is not a happy one. The mine is a very old one, having been in operation since the days of the revolutionary war. The miner therefore must work many hundreds of feet below ground under the constant danger of falling rock.

The proprietor of the local cigar store—a former miner, now stone blind—was a tragic illustration of the appalling conditions under which these workers toiled. Underground the walls are always wet and the air is damp and chilly. Piles of iron ore, broken machinery and rubbish in confused piles at unexpected places add to the hazards of the situation with a distant telephone as the sole means of communication or source of help. During the world war, this mine was so busy turning out iron ore for munitions that in spite of the lack of sanitation of any kind, the men were compelled to sleep underground.

An Open Shop.

Villard's miners have tried in vain to organize a union to improve their conditions. Working long hours at $4.50 a day, under a terrific strain, they sought thru their collective strength to win some slight improvement in their lot. The answer to their efforts was the same that any employer from Gary down would give. Those active in attempting to build an organization were ruthlessly fired and conditions remained as before.

"The men do not need a union," said the mine superintendent to the DAILY WORKER reporter. "They get a five dollar gold piece every Christmas." Instead of paying a living wage the company has devised an ingenious premium plan which penalizes those workers who seek relief by leaving the job.

Villard; along with Spreckels, the sugar king, Vanderlip, the banker and Rawleigh, the drug manufacturer; are typical of the kind of backing LaFollette is receiving. It is upon the representative of these men that the workers are asked to rely. One need but visit the Fort Montgomery iron mine to see clearly what Villard thinks of the workers and what hope there is in him and his candidate—LaFollette.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. Strikebreakers All

The republican party is a nest of strikebreakers and enemies of the working class. The last secretary of the republican national committee was chased out of office because of his being in an odious deal with Attorney General Daugherty. The new secretary of the republican party is of the same stripe.

Mr. Roy West, the present secretary of the republican national committee, is rapidly winning his reputation as a successful injunction lawyer against the workers. This Coolidge apostle has just secured an injunction from the infamous Judge Wilkerson against the electrical workers, plasterers, bricklayers, plumbers, elevator constructors and bridge and structural iron workers employed on the Western Union Telegraph building.

This is the love that the republican machine has for the workers. Now and then the republican leaders in their mad drive for labor votes, may dabble in meaningless abstractions regarding their interest in the welfare of the workingman. Every fact, every deed, belies the real character and the enmity of these agents of the employing class to the wage-earning masses.

But the democratic party is fundamentally of the same kidney. We have before us a sample of the specious but anti-labor propaganda being circulated by the national office of the democratic party. The gem consists of an attack on Coolidge on account "of his hesitancy and halting during the police strike until after Mayor Peters had suppressed the rioting and disorder on his own initiative."

Here we have it. The democratic leaders believe that Coolidge does not deserve the "credit" for the smashing of the policemen's union and strike in Boston. To the democrats, Coolidge is a failure because he was not enough of a strikebreaker in the Boston controversy. Yet, these democrats would have the workers vote for their ticket. These same democrats would have the workingmen and poor farmers believe that they are genuinely concerned with the conditions, with the hardships and suffering of the great masses of the population.

The republicans and democrats are strikebreakers all. At best, they differ only in the degree of the zeal with which they are engaged in undermining the organizations of the workers.

When Traitors Fall Out

Messrs. Spargo and Walling, two of the blackest betrayers of American socialism, are now engaged in a duel which is enlightening to the workers. It will be remembered that these gentlemen joined hands with Mitchell A. Palmer, Woodrow Wilson, Elbert H. Gary and Charles M. Schwab in denouncing and persecuting every workingman who dared raise his voice against the imperialist war.

Mr. Spargo, after shaking hands with Coolidge, has come out for the election of the present incumbent in the White House. Mr. Spargo, who once called himself a socialist, is now a heavenly-anointed republican. Coolidge has succeeded Wilson as his savior.

But his foremost partner in infamy, the multi-millionaire William English Walling, is behind the candidacy of LaFollette. Walling is one of the cogs in the Gompers machine and must therefore fall in line with the "grand old man's" policies. Mr. Walling takes exception to Spargo's criticism of LaFollette's trust-busting panaceas. He assures Spargo that LaFollette is not seeking public ownership, but only the repeal of the labor clauses of the Esch-Cummins Act. In the opinion of Mr. Gompers' most voluble lickspittle, LaFollette is safe and sane in every sense.

Messrs. Walling and Spargo might quarrel themselves blue in the face. The petty squabbles of petty individuals are of no concern to the working class. However, this falling out of two of the blackest traitors in the progressive movement is instructive. Mr. Spargo once boasted of being a Marxian scholar. Every publication bearing the name of the "Marxian philosopher," so ably supported by Hillquit, shows very decisively that in the realm of Marxian science, Mr. Spargo was a cultured ignoramus. His "Life of Marx" is a piece of monumental ignorance and skillful misrepresentation.

And the indomitable enemy of the workers, Mr. Walling, who has spilled oceans of ink against the Soviet Republic, once posed as a left-winger in the socialist party. To him, the doctrines of Marxism were not revolutionary enough and, in despair, he turned to syndicalism.

The evolution of these worthies is complete. Mr. Spargo is now at home. Mr. Walling is at his best. This falling out is only a temporary one. Messrs. Spargo and Walling have come into their own as full-fledged opponents of every effort made by the workers of every country for freedom from employing class domination.

Campaign Candor

Coolidge could not have chosen a more fitting occasion to make his declaration of loyalty to the employing class than his address at the commemoration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the First Continental Congress.

The president showed his extreme outspokenness in behalf of the biggest bosses of the country in his characterization of the Continental Congress and in his estimate of the key problem now facing the country. Mr. Coolidge lauded the congress for its moderation and put an especially favorable light on its consideration for the royal House of Hanover. He went on to cite the plea of the congress to George, following in part: "As Your Majesty enjoys the signal distinction of reigning over free men, we apprehend the language of free men cannot be displeasing." These significant remarks shed further welcome light on the why and wherefore of the Continental Congress laying the basis for a government serving the minority against the majority—the present United States government.

Then the republican standard bearer turned to a consideration of the railway problem. Mr. Coolidge told the country nothing new when he put himself on record as squarely opposed to taking the railroads away from the small group of capitalists. Mr. Coolidge is a frank defender of the class interests personified by the four great financial institutions in New York which hold close to one hundred directorships in trust companies and banks, and dominate the railways of the country. The president's dabbling in purple adjectives in defense of the Esch-Cummins railway law does not arouse any mystery in us. We know that this law which was framed by the bankers, railroad lawyers, and other lobbyists, has brought into the coffers of the financial oligarchy hundreds of millions of dollars. Section 209 alone has netted nearly one billion dollars to the rail kings.

When Coolidge brought forward the argument of a top-heavy bureaucracy being an inherent feature of government ownership of railways, he was right. Capitalist government ownership of railways offers no solution to the difficult problem. The genuine socialization of the railways, which is the only solution, and other public utilities can come only thru the establishment of a workers' and farmers' republic. Of this, Coolidge is a sworn enemy.

Yet, it must noted that the Philadelphia speech delivered by Mr. Coolidge is by far the frankest index and the most outstanding example of political candor shown by any of the employing class candidates in the present campaign.

Poisonous Propaganda

Whenever a worker dares think out loud, the horde of well-kept press agents of the employing class yell "propaganda." When workingmen revolt against unspeakable conditions of employment, the defenders of the faith of the exploiters raise a howl to the heavens against the ravages of "propaganda." Usually the hue and cry of "foreigners" follow.

The Communists have never been dismayed by the dishonest talk of the bosses and their champions. We have always pointed out that propaganda has its proper place in all wars, the class war not excepted. We have repeatedly emphasized to the workers and dispossessed farmers that the sooner they learn to put their case as effectively and before as large a number of the laboring masses as the employing class, the sooner will they achieve their freedom from exploitation.

The crux of capitalist morality, the essence of capitalist right and wrong, the criterion of capitalist virtue is this: will it help our class interests? Of course, this question is not always put forward so pointedly and consciously in the field of actual class conflicts. But, in effect, the trend in this direction is very marked.

We have in mind the American Education Week which has been set aside by the government for the period of November 17 to 23. The topics that are to be discussed in the schools thruout the country run as follows: "The Constitution—the Bulwark of Democracy and Happiness," "The United States Flag is the Living Symbol of the Ideals and Institutions of Our Republic." Then there are set aside "Constitution Day," "Patriotism Day" and "For God and Country Day."

Talk about propaganda! Talk about poisonous propaganda masking behind the name of education! Will the editors and the liberal truth-seekers of the country organize a crusade against the dangerous toxin that will be instilled in the minds of the youth of the country in that week? Even to pose this question is the acme of foolhardiness.

We warn the workers, the poor farmers and the youth of the country not to allow themselves to be misled by these poisonous propagandists.

The Chicago Tribune believes there is cause for a furrowing of 100 per cent brows in the fact that the gigantic sum of one billon dollars is stolen every year from American business by those charged with its operation, employes, officers, etc. This does not include the toll exacted by highwaymen and outside operators. What about it? This is only a drop in the bucket compared to the loot taken from the workers of America by the capitalists every year. The Trib participates in this loot and is therefore silent.

Now that the Prince of Wales has become a member of the Pressmen's Union, what about giving Andrew J. Volstead a card in the Bartender's Union? But the bootleggers might protest. He made them what they are today.

Complete Mobilization of Party Membership Ordered

Action Will Involve Every Party Branch—Constitutes an Unprecedented Event in Party Annals—Obedience to Decision Expected Without Single Exception

By ALFRED WAGENKNECHT

of this action is easy to comprehend and to carry out. Nothing will be left undone by the national office of the party to facilitate each step in the undertaking. Postal cards, one for the each branch member, will be mailed the branch secretaries which he is to use to call the special October 12 meeting. The entire party press will carry the details of this mobilization. Every federation secretary will assist in making all language branches understand.

The request that every party member give fifty cents for the literature he is to distribute, is the very least that can be asked of a Communist. There is not one member but who will understand that a Communist is not one who immerses himself in picture shows, the sporting page, the routine of daily existence. A Communist is one who gives every dollar he can spare and every hour away from the bosses' machine to the movement. Our movement has proportions. It's to be a world revolution. And that is not at all like getting a shave or revitalizing a Ford.

The Absolute Minimum.

Nothing will be placed in the way of every member distributing as many pieces of literature as he desires. That is a big point in this distribution campaign. There is no maximum. There is no limit in how much every party member cares to do. But an absolute minimum has been decided upon. Below this not a single party member shall go. Every party member shall distribute:

100 Campaign Leaflets	20c
25 Campaign Stickers	5c
2 Campaign Pamphlets	15c
10 Daily Workers	10c
137 PIECES, TOTALLING	50c

This 137-piece literature unit to every party member means a total distribution during the week of October 26 to November 2 of—

2,200,000	Campaign Leaflets
550,000	Campaign Stickers
44,000	Campaign Pamphlets
220,000	Daily Workers
3,014,000

Three million pieces of party literature in one final onslaught is a task which our party can carry out. It must carry out this task because a survey of the election campaign activities so far carried on have proven that the workers and farmers are surprisingly more interested in our Communist empaign than the most optimistic of us at first thought. The straw vote taken in the Chicago shops and factories is an irrefutable indication. This welcome interest in our candidates and principles must be developed to a peak, must be taken advantage of in a way that will make our propaganda the talk in every shop, mine and mill.

It Should Be An "On the Job" Distribution.

We are fully aware of the fact that an "on the job" distribution has its dangers. But Communists face dangers. More than this, they face them in a judicious manner. We aim to win. And just as superior strategy is necessary to come out victors in the class struggle, so also are well-planned maneuvers necessary to beat the boss in the shop to it. It can be done. The leaflets and stickers can be placed at advantageous points where the workers will see them and read them, should open distribution be impossible.

The pamphlets and the DAILY WORKERS should be given or sold to those who in conversation show most interest in our movement. The names and addresses of interested workers should be secured. Subscriptions for the Daily should be asked for. Where shop distribution cannot take place, there the members are to distribute from house to house.

No matter what language you speak, you must take part in this event. Even if you are deaf and dumb. The minimum energy required in this undertaking is to hand out the literature. Any one who has hands can hand out. Sympathizers, non-readers of the Communist press are prohibited from enlisting. A remittance of fifty cents for each 137-piece literature unit desired, will bring you your weapons for the fray by return mail.

"All Together!"—Is the Slogan.

As stated, it is a decision! There shall be no refusals. There shall not even be hesitation. A willing and anxious spirit in this immense mobilization must obtain. Like one mighty machine the 22,000 Workers Party campaigners will meet upon the same day, October 12, in every one of our 1,297 branches. Like a well-disciplined and unconquerable force, the 22,000 members will go forth during the week of October 26 to November 2 and place three million pieces of literature into the hands and heads of three million workers and farmers.

We are an invincible vanguard. But only then when we do lead the masses. Therefore this complete mobilization of our membership and branches. We shall go out to get supporters, recruits, converts, so that the Workers Party will grow and its might following will increase.

Every comrade on the job!

C. E. RUTHENBERG, Executive Secretary.

Rosen in Fight on Hutchenson

two capitalist parties, like his peer in reaction, John L. Lewis.

Tired of Hutchenson.

The carpenters are sick and tired of Hutchenson, but he has straddled himself around their necks like the Old Man of the Sea and it will take a herculean effort on their part to get rid of him. An example of the manner in which he directs the Brotherhood can be seen by his invitation to a manufacturer of metal trim to speak at the convention, in behalf of his quarrel with the officials of the Sheet Metal Workers as to which organization should have jurisdiction over the erection of metal trim. The speaker Mr. Edward Zahner, general manager of the MacFarkan Metal Products company at LaPorte, Indiana, told the delegates that he was a sheet metal worker before he became a manufacturer and was strongly in favor of the carpenters being given jurisdiction of metal trim.

Bosses Give Advice.

But other manufacturers attend conventions of Sheet Metal Workers who support the latter's contention that metal trim is within their jurisdiction. Thus the workers are kept fighting each other by two sets of labor fakers while the manufacturers profit by their disunion. The amalgamation resolution which would put an end to this civil war within the building trades and the only solution for jurisdictional quarrels was even refused consideration by the ukase of the Brotherhood czar. In describing the unfitness of Hutchenson to hold any office in a labor union, on the basis of his past record, words are inadequate. Suffice it to say, that a more useful tool of the bosses does not hold office in any union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and this is saying a good deal considering the competition.

Willis E. Brown, another candidate is neither "fish, fowl, nor good red herring." As a militant he would make an admirable secretary for a Young Men's Christian Association branch. The only purpose his candidacy serves is to split the opposition against Hutchenson.

Rosen Only Progressive.

The only progressive candidate in the election contest against Hutchenson is Delegate Morris Rosen of New York. Delegate Rosen stands for progressive policies in the union and besides being an active worker in New York to strengthen the organization and fight the bosses, he has taken a decided stand at this convention against Mahatma Hutchenson, thus incurring the enmity of that autocrat.

Delegate Rosen deserves the support of all the progressive elements at the convention. He stands for amalgamation, job control and working class independent political action. To vote for any other candidate would be simply playing into Hutchenson's hands.

Two hours of the convention's time was taken up last Thursday distributing souvenirs to the delegates—a pair of nail files, a pencil and a ticket to a show. They also listened to the 'advice" of the metal trim manufacturer.

The general president has learned one piece of parliamentary strategy from Samuel Gompers and that is to make a great show of democracy on little things but to use the iron hand on issues that would be liable to affect his power.

Conventions Too Few.

The first fight on the supplementary report on the committee on constitution occurred on amendement No. 6, dealing with appeals. Delegate Rosen, candidate for general president, was the first speaker and pointed out that conventions were held too infrequently, that as the organization grows in size so do its problems, requiring more frequent action by delegates from the rank and file. The officers would be brof more in touch with the desires of the rank and file by more frequent conventions.

Delegate Mulcahy, of Providence, R. I., candidate for general executive board who was beaten up by Hutchenson's thugs, because of his opposition to the' Old Age Home, declared himself in favor of more frequent conventions even tho he might be safer at home, no doubt in ironic reference to his treatement by the thugs. He followed the general lead given by Delegate Rosen. Delegate Tom Ryan, of New York, and others also spoke for the amendment.

Conventions Too Expensive.

The principal argument against the motion was made by general secretary Duffy, who opposed it on the grounds of expense. A vive voce vote appeared to be about even and a second aye and nay vote was called for. This did not show any more decisive result than the previous one, but Hutchenson fearing defeat, refused a vote by show of hands, and declared the amendment lost.

The New York delegates put up a fight for a resolution calling for the election of all officers of a district council by a referendum. This was defeated by the machine steamroller, claiming that the constitution could not be changed by locals. Delegate Ryan declared that it was impossible to change the constitution as the officers never send out any question for referendum to the rank and file.

For More Information.

An amendment made to Hutchenson's recommendation that all reports not published in the official journal be sent to all local unions, Delegate Fred W. Burgess of Philadelphia, in support of the amendment declared that if the business of the union is properly conducted there is nothing to fear from publicity, either from the public or from the membership. He believed everything should be published in the journal that affects the union and only supported the amendment as a compromise.

Hutchenson followed with a speech, saying that the Brotherhood and its officers were assailed by enemies from without and within and this was his justification for secrecy.

Delegate Rosen, Hutchenson's opponent for the presidency, said that regardless of whether all reports should be published in a semi-public magazine or not, the members of the union were entitled to all information concerning the management of their organization. All members are entitled to know what is going on, whether they are supporters or opponents of Hutchenson. The union is the property of all the members declared Delegate Rosen. Frank Duffy spoke last and as usual supported the machine.

Task Is Difficult.

This convention proves again that the task of the militants in trade union movement is no light one and calls for energetic action on the part of those trade unionists who want to take the direction of the organizations out of the hands of reactionary tools of the bosses. That the progressives are at last realizing that only thru organized effort on the inside can they succeed in making of the unions instruments to help the working class bring about their emancipation from wage slavery, is an encouraging sign of the times.

MERGE LIBERATOR, LABOR HERALD AND SOVIET PICTORIAL IN WORKERS MONTHLY TO APPEAR NOVEMBER 1st

"The Workers Monthly" is the title of the new consolidated organ of the Workers Party, to appear for the first time on November 1.

The magazine is the result of the fusion of the Liberator, monthly scientific organ of the party, the Labor Herald, official organ of the Trade Union Educational League, and the Soviet Russia Pictorial, organ of the International Workers' Aid.

Browder is Editor.

The Workers Monthly will be under the editorial direction of Earl R. Browder, member of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party. A committee of seven members will assist Comrade Browder in getting out the magazine.

The statement of the Central Executive Committee, announcing the amalgamation of the three organs into one, reads in part:

Statement on Consolidation.

"The Workers Monthly means the amalgamation of three great magazines into one. Each of these magazines performed a necessary service; each one specialized for one particular field. All the essential features of each, however, it was found could be performed even better by one big, combined magazine than by three narrower ones, which, because of their organizational separateness, could not help one another. And just as we have the task of breaking down the artificial barriers between craft unions, so must we also unite our own organizations and institutions, whenever we can strengthen them by so doing, and better serve the interests of the revolutionary movement."

Features of the Workers Monthly will be: the political struggle of the working class against the capitalist dictatorship, the industrial struggle of the working class against capitalist exploitation, the inspiring and continued victories of Soviet Russia, the struggle against reformism, the struggle against the reactionary officialdom of the trade unions.

All of the subscribers to the Labor Herald, the Liberator and the Soviet Russia Pictorial will be placed on the list of the new magazine for the term of their unexpired subscription; if they are upon one or both of the other lists, they may extend their subscription or transfer it to a friend.

The new magazine will sell at twenty-five cents, and the subscription rate will be $2.00 per year.

Johnston Puts Over "B. & O." Plan

O.' plan has been tried and the membership is decreasing."

Speed-up System.

"The men in the shops, whom I represent, are all opposed to the 'B. & O.' plan," John Otis declared. "It is really a speed-up system and is very little different from the speed-up system used in the Westinghouse company which tends to prevent organization of strong unions.

Men Opposed to Plan.

Delegate Van Meter of Cincinnati, reported that under the "B. & O." plan the men cannot stand up against the speeding up which it involves and declared the men are quitting their jobs in increasing numbers under the plan. He declared it significant that the Glennwood shops, where the "B. & O." plan is in effect, were not represented in the convention.

Johnston, in his weak defense of his brain child which corresponds to Frank Farrington's water power project pipe-dream, and his class collaboration program, made his usual denunciation of the "reds." "There is a class struggle," Johnston declared, "that can't be denied. But there ought not to be. It is better to sit down around a table and try to convince and persuade the employers."

Progressive delegates to the convention said the "B. & O." plan would not have been crowded thru the convention had it not been brot up late at night when the delegates were tired and wanted to get away.

fine thing for the employers, but it is harmful to the workers."

Delegate Otis declared the "B. & O." plan borders on the company union system and cited the co-operative system used in the Westinghouse company which tends to prevent organization of strong unions.

JAPS WRECK FAKE DISARM PLAN

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

EVIDENTLY John W. Davis is making strong bids for the so-called Irish vote this year. John is a friend of John Bull, but for election purposes, twisting the lion's tail has not yet been discarded by the political comedians of capitalism. Davis absolves LaFollette of being a Bolshevik or of taking his "stuff" from Moscow as charged by Hell an' Maria Dawes. But Davis makes a charge against LFollette which is almost as bad: the Wisconsin senator is taking his inspiration from London.

• • •

SO vigorously did the former ambassador to the Court of St. James and the present head of the American section of the English Speaking Union, thrash the British lion, that his threat went back on him and he had to be treated by specialists. Perhaps George Brennan is urging Morgan's lawyer on in his tirade against Morgan's best client, so that he can pose among the Irish nationalists as the greatest lion-tamer of them all.

• • •

JOHN W. Davis defends LaFollette against the charge of being a radical. Wheeler says a good word for Davis. Charles W. Bryan declares that the action of the G. O. P. in forcing LaFollette to run on the socialist ticket in California is nothing less than an outrage. It looks as if the democrats and the LaFollettites were fraternizing. The rumors that considerable horse trading is going on may be well-founded. Neither the leaders of the LaFollette party or the leaders of the democratic party have any other aim than to serve themselves first and the capitalist system which helps them to help themselves. They will make whatever deals the exigencies of the situation demand. Party labels mean nothing to them.

THE Brazilian revolt has flared up again. The present government is engaged in a ruthless campaign of extermination of the organizations of the working class. The Communist Party is outlawed and that party is the life of the labor movement in Brazil. The United States government is supporting the ruling body, which means that it is taking care of the interests of the coffee planters. American workers will not sympathize with those who are carrying out the orders of Wall Street.

• • •

EVEN the republican campaign managers are expressing doubt openly as to the success of their entry in the great presidential marathon. "Silent Cal" is keeping his silence alright but outside of a few muddleheaded people, silence is not golden around election time. Coolidge is not running for a scholarship to a school for the dumb. He is aspiring to succeed himself to the very important office of chairman of the executive committee of the American capitalist government—that is what the presidency means. The sign language has not yet been sufficiently developed to replace speech.

FEAR of another Irish civil war has faded, according to newspaper reports. It seems that the masses on both sides of the border have no ambition to indulge in the pastime of spilling each other's blood over the boundary question. But the owners of the Belfast slave pens, the linen mills, the whiskey distilleries and the shipyards, fear that a united Ireland would eliminate the rancor caused by religious differences that have existed for centuries between the workers of the north and south and this would enable their slaves to see the value of uniting together in unions for their own protection against the bosses. This is the real key to the quarrel over the boundary.

A SUBSIDIARY cause is the fact that Ulster is the only outpost of the British Tory party in Ireland.

AMERICA AND DAWES PLAN!

"THE most pertinent question before the masses," writes a steel worker from Youngstown, in response to our announcement about the series of articles about America and the Dawes Plan."

What is the meaning of the Dawes Plan? How do the international imperialists propose to put it into effect? What will the Dawes Plan bring the German workers? What does the latest war plan have in store for the American workers and farmers? What will be the effect of the scheme to enslave Germany on the international working class and its struggles?

All of these pertinent questions and many others will be answered in full in our series of articles by Jay Lovestone, beginning Wednesday, Oct. 1.

We have a treat in store for you. Do not fail to follow this most important series!

'INTERNATIONAL' RANK AND FILE IN REBELLION

Demand Fight to Better Their Conditions

BY OUR N. Y. CORRESPONDENT.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Open rebellion of the rank and file workers of the Ladies' Tailors' Union, Local No. 38 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, is looked for by left-wing members of the union when the executive committee of the union reports to the membership on Wednesday, Oct. 1, in Bryant Hall, the results of the international's negotiations with the employers and the date upon which a strike will be declared.

The union, under the supervision of vice-president Samuel Lefkovits, who has charge of miscellaneous trades unions for "The International," will present demands for the 40-hour week, 44 weeks yearly work guaranteed, and a wage increase of $5, or 10 percent.

Claim Deal Already Made.

Trade Union Educational League members point out that the officials of "The International" have already sold out the rank and file and have actually settled with the bosses.

The strike will be called but will amount only to a stoppage and the Special Mediation Commission which Governor Al Smith appointed with the consent of the International to "investigate" the cloak trade and offer recommendations will be called in and the union members sent back to work under old conditions with the exception of gaining the wage increase. To compensate them for increasing wages, the bosses will deduct two weeks' work from the yearly schedule.

Too Busy Backing LaFollette.

Most of the organized workers are Italian and Jewish and there is every indication, T. U. E. L. members of the union assert, of a fight on the part of the rank and file against the yellow officialdom who are so interested in boosting the LaFollette-Wheeler campaign in hopes of gathering plums in the political harvest that they will not let the workers fight for better conditions from the bosses. The socialist officials do not want to be distracted from their political pursuits to help the workers.

The great difficulty in the Ladies' Tailors' trade is the tremendous percentage of unorganized girls, private dressmakers who fill orders in the same shops the highly skilled union tailors work. Whenever the boss can, he slips some of the less important work over to his cheap girl help and the union does not get the support of the International in fighting the abuse. In a shop of 25 tailors there will be as many as 200 unorganized girls. The organizing of these private dressmakers should be in the hands of the Ladies' Tailors' local because they are all in the same shops, but the jurisdiction is actually given to private dressmakers' local 90, of the International which does practically nothing to organize this mass of exploted girl workers. These girls are organized only about five per cent.

Best Work; Small Pay.

The Ladies' Tailors do all the finest tailoring work for the custom trade. They make the most expensive garments, retailing at from $150 to $1,000 per garment, and yet the workers average yearly wage is about $1,100. The work is crowded into 22 weeks,

LEWIS FOLLOWS "RULE OR RUIN" UNION POLICY

Those Who Fight Boss Are Not Wanted

By THOMAS MYERSCOUGH.

"Believing that those whose lot it is to toil within the earth's recesses, surrounded by peculiar dangers and deprived of sunlight and pure air, producing a commodity which makes possible the world's progress, are entitled to protection and the full social value of their product, we have formed the United Mine Workers of America . . ."

Such was the language used by those who fought and sacrificed to establish the U. M. W. of A. and it was embodied in the preamble to the constitution, in fact, it is still there. But! as a famous comic strip artist says, "It doesn't mean anything," to those who have, at the present time, got the old U. M. W. of A. under their control.

Those old pioneers who saw the need for the organization of a strong union of miners, were of the kind that are much in need at the present time. They were of a class conscious element that slaved, struggled and fought together, and, as time went on, they strengthened the union, until, when their sons and other men who followed them into the mines, there had developed a powerful fighting organization for the miners' rights.

However, it is more than thirty-four

SWEENEY AGAIN AT HEAD OF THE TAILORS' UNION

Beats Sillinsky by the "Machine Process"

Thomas Sweeney, General Secretary-Treasurer of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of America, with the aid of imaginary locals and efficient ballot-counters succeeded in retaining his position, despite the vote cast by the members of existing locals for M. J. Sillinsky, progressive candidate against the reactionary and autocratic Sweeney.

It is true that labor faker who cannot manipulate votes in order to perpetuate himself in office, simply "don't belong," in the words of the Hairy Ape.

Thomas Sweeney, proved in the final ballot for the secretaryship of the tailors' union that he is "one of the boys" and need not take a back seat in the company of such outstanding vote-counting magicians as Major George L. Berry of the pressmens' union or with Frank Farrington of the Illinois miners, whose battle cry is, "I don't care a damn how you will vote, I'll see that I am elected."

Liars Can Figure.

Nobody in the tailors' union has any doubt that Sillinsky got enough votes to lick Sweeney. But when Sweeney was good enough to make the tabulation public the vote stood, 3334 for Sweeney and 2342 for Sillinsky.

"What is the constitution between friends?" declared Teddy Roosevelt on one occasion when he strode over the basic law of the United States in order to favor a big corporation. Mr. Sweeney of the tailors' union, tho a socialist, has as little regard for the constitution of the union as Teddy had for that of the United States.

Two Poor Boys Must Die

AMALGAMATED CLOTHING WORKERS' LOCAL UNION No. 54 CONTRIBUTES $100 TO THE COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN FUND

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Local 54, of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, by an overwhelming majority, at a well-attended membership meeting, placed itself on record as supporting the candidacy of Foster-Gitlow, and thereby repudiated the action of the General Executive Board in endorsing LaFollette.

This decisive act by the rank and file shows that they are fully aware of the situation existent in the union. The General Executive, in endorsing LaFollette acted in violation of the decision of the Convention, which provided for independent workingclass political action only.

The Foster-Gitlow campaign was voted $100 from the union treasury. Shop collections were ordered, and the 30 shop chairmen controlled by the local were given subscription lists with instructions to make these collections in their shops. It was also decided to call a campaign mass meeting for the Workers Party, to be held at Arlon Hall in Brooklyn.

Million Mothers Slave

By LELAND OLDS.
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

More than 1,000,000 mothers with children under 5, forced to take a job because industry does not pay the father a living wage, present a problem as important as child labor.

The solution, it is apparent from figures compiled by the women's bureau, department of labor, must come from a change which will place the support of workers' families ahead of profits as the object of industrial activity.

Should Pay Men Higher Wages.

"There is one sure and definite thing to do," says Mary N. Winslow of the bureau, "and that is to make it possible for the normal married man to support his family according to a decent American standard."

This implies a new deal in the division of the product of the worker's labor in which he gets a larger share and the absentee owners get a smaller share.

The bureau's study of working women in Chicago shows that in 64 per cent of the families, where the mother worked in addition to the regular employment of the husband, the father's earnings were clearly below the standard budget of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies for a dependent family—less than the lowest pauper standard. It shows that over 75 per cent of the fathers in such families earned less than enuf to provide the minimum budget for a family not dependent on charity.

The study shows the extent to which employed mothers are taken from the normal care of family and home. Of the group of employed mothers for which information as to hours of work was obtained, approximately seven-eighths worked eight hours or more a day, 47.6 per cent working between eight and nine hours, 32.4 per ecnt between nine and ten hours and 7.2 per cent ten hours or over.

Inadequate care of the children is the natural result in a large proportion of the cases. The devastating strain on the mother who tries to supplement the inadequate family income, and at the same time to maintain the home is developed by this study of several hundred cases. Over one-third of the wage earning mothers were found trying to do all the housework unassisted, outside of working hours. More than half of them did all the family washing, the majority working far into the night.

Children Miss Essentials.

The bureau found that a large proportion of these employed mothers in spite of the sacrifice of their strength and the normal care of their families to the insatiable appetite of the employing class, were unable to bring the total family income up to the level of a decent living. In many cases the children were forced to go without many things which social agencies of Chicago regard as essential to health and decency. Frequently, the alternative was charity.

The problem of wage-earning mothers is identical with the problem of child labor. Pay the father a wage which will provide adequately for his family and the cotton mill bosses will look a long way before they find a father to appear before congress to oppose the child labor law. Pay fathers enuf to provide not only a decent living today but insurance against accidents of the future and you eliminate both problems, that of wage-earning mothers and of child labor without legislation. Today the choice in tens of thousands of families is between such supplementary income and undernourishment.

GARY SCHOOLS FACTORIES FOR DOCILE SLAVES

Platoon System Makes Steel Mill Robots

By KARL REEVE.
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

GARY, Ind., Sept. 29.—The Gary or platoon school system, which is the pride of the head of the United States Steel Corporation, Elbert H. Gary, admittedly neglects the minds of the children while it aims to produce steel mill slaves, who will not bother to inquire into fundamental principles involved in the industrial system.

The platoon school system has been tried out in Gary, under the patronage of the United States Steel Corporation, which founded the town and controls its policies—and has been found a failure.

Gary System Is Ineffective.

Even an investigation conducted by the board of education of Gary itself, has admittedly found the Gary system ineffective. The platoon system which has recently been the subject of the condemnation of the Illinois and Chicago Federations of Labor, teaches the children to become mere machines, able to perform such mechanical work as is required in the steel mills, but learning nothing about basic principles involved in their work and study.

For a long while in the report on the Gary schools, conducted by the general educational board, at the request of the board of education and the city school superintendent of Gary, the subject that is being constantly borne in mind by those who know their Gary, is dodged. But the heat and smoke of the steel mills cannot be escaped in a report dealing with Gary's peculiar educational institutions. After many chapters of dodging, the thing that has been suppressed finally bobs to the surface in an unguarded moment—the end of the chapter on "Industrial Work."

"It is only fair to add," says the report written by Abraham Flexner and Frank P. Bachman, "that the training received by some of the pupils in some of the shops proves of direct so-

OUT OF WORK, STARVING, NOW FACE GALLOWS

Charged with Robbery of Army Major

By JACK METTE.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

CHESTERFIELD, S. C., Sept. 29.—In one of the most dramatic trials here in years, two young cotton mill workers, Mortimer N. King and Frank Harrell were sentenced to death for the murder of Major Samuel H. McLeary, who was killed on July 2 after giving them a lift in his automobile. They are to die Nov. 21.

The boys told of weeks of wandering in search of work and stated that when the crime was committed they had not eaten for 36 hours.

Could Get No Job.

The two mill workers had been out of employment for two or three months, the mills being shut down because of overproduction. One of them had a wife and baby, the baby born just six days before.

Forced into the factories from the time they were first able to do the slightest kind of work, deprived of an education and living like dogs, working from dawn until dark, these young fellows will die, Nov. 21, for a crime of starved desperation.

Forced to Accept Counsel.

They held up McLeary at the point of a pistol and began to search the Major. It is claimed that McLeary made a swing and was then shot in the forehead.

Both young men were forced to take the counsel offered by the court. They had no money to fight for their lives.

FACE DEADLOCK IN MEETING OF MORGAN LEAGUE

Can't Mend Conflict in Anglo-Jap Viewpoint

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GENEVA, Sept. 29.—Japan's refusal to accept the League of Nations arbitration protocol—a dispute that may lead to a grave international situation—remained a deadlock tonight.

The sub-commission which met at 8 o'clock in an effort to smooth out the differences in the Anglo-Japanese viewpoints failed to reach a decision.

Try to Persuade Japs.

A long and importance conference was held here today while efforts were made to prevent Japan from taking any step that would wreck the proposed international disarmament conference.

Leaders of the foremost powers attempted to persuade the Japanese not to vote against the arbitration protocol because one adverse vote would prevent its adoption and automatically prevent the conference from being summoned.

Japan Dodges Responsibility.

Those taking part in the conference were Viscount Ishii, of Japan, M. Hymans of Belgium; M. Briand of France; Signor Salandra of Italy; M. Politis of Greece, and Lord Parmoor of England.

Japan's original proposal was limited to a protocal amendment requiring an attempt at reconciliation after the world court at The Hague had given a decision on an international issue. Now the Japanese are demanding definition of the term "agressor" in such a manner as to exclude Japan from responsibility if war arises over the immigration issue.

CHANG REPORTED ANXIOUS TO SEE WU SANS HEAD

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SHANGHAI, Sept. 29.—A price of $200,000 today was placed on the heads of Marshal Wu Pei Fu and President Tsao Kun, military and civil heads of the Peking government, in a circular distributed among his troops by Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian war lord, according to advices from Mukden today.

Important conferences were under way at the Lung Wha headquarters of Lu Yung Hsiang with Sun Fo, son of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, head of the Southern China Republic.

Reports indicated that despite the severest fighting, the Kiangsu forces, which opened an attack at Huangtu and Liuho, had been unable to gain while substantial advances were made by the Chekiang attack in the Kading sector. Casualties were heavy.

"STAND BEHIND GOVERNMENT OF THE WORKERS AND PEASANTS," IS SAVINKOV'S PARTING MESSAGE

By ANNA LOUISE STRONG (ANISE).
(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, Russia, Sept. 29.—I hope that some one will translate into English and publish in full the story of the trial of Savinkov, for it is one of the big human dramas of history. It is the stuff of which Macbeth and Hamlet and Richelieu are made, but it is a thousand times more gripping for it displays the forces that are making our modern era. It is the history of a democrat and a patriot who claims that he never had a thought except for the good of his country, yet who admits before the bar of that country that he has betrayed her, and led bandit raids against her, and spied upon her at the bidding of her enemies, and been for years the tool of her bitterest foes.

BORIS SAVINKOV

Plaything of Imperialists.

In the garden of the sanitarium where I am staying in the Caucasus, a group of energetic young workers and Communists were hotly debating last night whether Savikov was an honest man in his final confession. But the most dramatic thing about the whole story is that it doesn't matter at all whether Savinkov was honest. In the days when the great tragedies were written, it was thot that human motives mattered immensely; the whole drama was built about the change in a single human soul. But now it is quite plain that whether or

SENATOR WALSH OF MONTANA IS PUT ON GRILL

Oil Prober Asked What About Mitch. Palmer?

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Sept. 29.—A circular was distributed at Senator Thomas J. Walsh's meeting here by the Farmer-Labor Party of Montana, asking Senator Walsh to explain his unsavory anti-labor record if he could. Senator Walsh endeavored to answer some of these questions but others he ignored entirely.

Walsh was asked, "Why did you not investigate A. Mitchell Palmer's connection with the Bosch Magneto scandal, in which Mr. Palmer got away with $1,000,000 where Fall got only $100,000?" Palmer is a democrat, and Walsh seems to have confined his investigating to the republican party.

Another pointed question Senator Walsh was unable to answer was, "Will the evidence brot out by your committee in the investigation of the Teapot Dome scandal sustain the verdict of criminal conspiracy?"

Easy On Wheeler.

The Farmer-Labor Advocate, organ of the farmer-labor party, which supports the candidacy of Senator Robert LaFollette for president, regrets the fact that Senator Walsh in his campaign for re-election has received the endorsement of Senator Wheeler, who ignored the farmer-labor candidate against the reactionary Wards, State Senator J. W. Anderson of Sidney.

"D. C. Derman, of C. P. P. A. fame," says the farmer-labor paper, "the friend man of Senator Walsh, came into the state to pick the delegates to the Baldwin conference assembled in Helena purporting to represent the LaFollette sentiment in Montana, and then, being afraid to attend any more conventions since he pulled the C. P. P. A. endorsement trickery, which was repudiated by the organized labor movement of the state, and what is left of the non-partisan league, pulled out for points in the east two days before the date of the convention, leaving Jimmie Baldwin in charge of the gathering."

"The LaFollette manager seems to be a willing dupe of the old party intriguers."

Treachery in Montana.

The paper declares that because of this treachury of men inside the LaFollette movement, "as things now stand, Dixon and Walsh and Coolidge seem to have won in Montana." "Confusion becomes more confounded. The farmer-labor party filled the electors pledged to LaFollette in March, they were regularly nominated in the presidential primaries in May as provided by law; they cannot be withdrawn because of the law the farmer-labor party does not ask LaFollette to support the state ticket—there is no reason why he should not support Anderson and Taylor, and every reason why he should oppose Walsh. To sign a petition to place indepedent LaFollette electors on the ballot in Montana is to assist these intriguers."

There is no mention in the article of Senator Wheeler's indorsement of Walsh, but it is well understood that Wheeler has dealt the farmer-labor party of Montana a heavy blow in deserting in favor of the champion of the copper trust—Walsh, and his statement intimating he will withdraw all support from the party which did so much to elect him to the senate.

NOBODY WANTS TO STIR BROOKHART COMMITTEE DURING CAMPAIGN TO INVESTIGATE DAUGHERTY'S STENCH

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Harry Daugherty and Gaston B. Means will not be called to the witness chair before the Brookhart investigating committee in the midst of the political campaign. Senator Ashurst, democrat, to whom the other members of the committee passed the responsibility for holding a special session on the Daugherty-Means repudiation incident, thinks any reopening of the case in the absence of Wheeler, Brookhart and the rest of the committee would be impracticable. He stands pat on Candidate Davis' last letter to Daugherty, in which the point was made that "a painful impression" was created by the Daugherty brothers' efforts to hide when their testimony was wanted, and that the hiring of Means by Daugherty was enough to have warranted Daugherty's summary dismissal by the president.

"International" Rank and File Rebels

during which the workers make about $50 a week.

The International Ladies' Garment Workers' officialdom claims that the "strike" of the Ladies' Tailors is the preliminary to a big organization drive in the miscellaneous trades.

At present, according to Lefkovits, there are 43,000 unorganized workers in these trades. Local 6, Swiss embroiderers, claims 41 shops, 800 workers; and there are five non-union shops with 25 workers. Local 20, raincoat makers, claims 53 union shops with 700 workers; and there are 10 unorganized shops with 100 workers. Local 25, waistmakers, claims 28 union shops, 400 workers; and there are 250 non-union shops and 7,000 workers unorganized. Local 41, tuckers, pleaters and hemstitchers, claims 180 shops unionized with 1,200 workers; and there are 130 open shops with 2,000 workers.

Local 62, white goods workers, claims 79 shops with 2,500 workers; and there are 250 non-union shops with 5,000 workers. Local 66, bonnaz embroiderers, claims 128 shops unionized and 1,000 workers; and in 125 non-union shops there are 500 workers. Local 90, private dressmakers, claims 129 union shops with 1,000 workers; and there are 115 non-union shops with 10,000 unorganized workers. Local 91, children's dress and bathrobe makers, claims 78 union shops, 2,000 worker; and there are 550 non-union shops with 15,000 unorganized workers. Local 132, button workers, claims practically the entire trade of New York is organized, tho little out of town.

Membership for Real Fight.

The rank and file of the Ladies' Tailors' union is looking forward to bettering their working conditions by a real fight and when the executive report comes back will revolt on the floor of the meeting. The International officialdom, however, has the power to quash interference and will steamroller its program over the Ladies' Tailors just as it did in spring over the cloakmakers who express great dissatisfaction with the agreement the International made with the bosses.

T. U. E. L. members point to the growing rebellion among the I. L. G. W. U. rank and file and expect that more than a little hell will be raised with the yellow socialist officialdom in a not distant future.

CLAIM SWEENEY IS RE-ELECTED

ing of the locals in the official organ of the union, before election. This Sweeney refused to do when challenged by Illiisky.

The Providence Myth.

The latter took a chance shot and challenged the vote of the Providence local, which cast 29 votes for Sweeney. Investigation showed that the Providence local did not exist except in the lively imagination of Mr. Sweeney. In retaliation for the exposure of the fraud in Providence, the Sweeney crowd challenged the Milwaukee local which cast 47 votes for Sillinsky, and threw out the entire vote on the grounds that this local was not in good standing, on the members paid their dues. The dues however were not recorded in the International office so that Sweeney could throw out their votes.

Thomas Sweeney has proven that one charge made against him by the progressives is false, and that is the charge of stupidity and incompetency. Sweeney is thoroly capable of holding his job against the wishes of the rank and file. Sweeney has cultivated the "official mind," which means that to a reactionary trade union official the rank and file does not exist except as per capita fodder, in other words, to pay dues and keep the officials eating tenderloin steaks and roast duck.

Sweeny Has Vision!

Now, that Sweeney is over this little unpleasantness, he does not intend to be bothered with elections or conventions for two years to come, so in a letter to the membership the general executive board, "after full and careful deliberation," came to the conclusion that the convention scheduled for August, 1925, could be dispensed with "without detriment to the organization," and to save the "ten thousand dollars the convention would cost," leaving the calling of a convention in 1925 to the option of the general executive board.

The present constitution reads: "The convention of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of America shall be held on the first Monday in August, 1921, and every four years thereafter at such place as the delegates, in convention assembled may designate."

Sweeney would substitute 1929 for 1921 which would mean no convention until 1933 except at the discretion of the magnanimous Mr. Sweeney.

What Funk Thinks.

Robert Fupk, a members of the general executive board, voted against this proposition and stated his reasons as follows:

Fakers Fear Conventions.

"The amendment proposed above is an outrageous attack on the democratic expression of the membership. The members of the G. E. B. and those who inspired this autocratic proposal should be required to give their reasons for voting for such tyrannical measure, rather than that I should explain why I voted against it.

"It is a disgrace that we do not have conventions more often. It is suspicious that after the last convention, when a big body of delegates was in attendance, a convention is proposed that a Sweeney man starts this proposal and the rest of the board members are consciously or unconsciously solid for it, for a measure which practically abolishes conventions altogether.

"And when I raise the principle of the right of the membership to express their ideas on policies and problems, the right of democratic expression, those who belong to the Sweeney machine sneer at the idea of the membership having any rights to demand an accounting from these autocratic incompetents.

Cover Up Trickery.

"The excuse of "economizing" is only a catchword to cover up trickery. "The Sweeney machine is afraid to face the membership at a convention and have its inefficiency exposed and discredited. If we do not have a convention next year, we may have little or no organization to have one with later. The excuse that "there are no problems" is preposterous. There are always serious problems.

"What about the new 'Open Shop Drive?' We all know that when we thought we had the week work system 'settled' in 1919, along came the first 'Open Shop Drive' and almost completely wiped out all we had gained. Now, with big unemployment sweeping over the trade, the bosses are beginning a new 'Open Shop Drive,' to finish the job of destroying the J. T. U. of A. completely. Is this no problem?

"Fraternally yours,

"ROBERT FUNK."

The Journeymen Tailors' Union now finds itself with an "Old Man of the Sea," on its back, and it will take a strong fight to pry Sweeney loose from his moorings.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 29.—Rev. Joseph E. Yates, pastor of Nowata, Oklahoma, said to have eloped with a 14-year old girl member of his Sunday school, is under arrest at Ballinger, Texas, on charges of abduction, according to word received here today.

MAIL ROBBERIES VIE IN MYSTERY WITH DOME STEAL

"Big Tim" May Soon Visit the Loop

The government's two chief witnesses against "Big Tim" Murphy in the Pullman, Ill., mail robbery case, have repudiated their confessions involving the labor leader thus paving the way for his parole, it became known here today.

Two other witnesses against Murphy, John Minch and Sergeant Thomas Costello, have died since Murphy was indicted and the fifth, William Fahy, postal inspector, is under indictment in connection with the Rondout robbery. Were it not for the Pullman indictments against him, Murphy now would be eligible for parole.

Witnesses Recant.

The two who have repudiated their confessions are William Muszyski and John Crawford. In their repudiation they claim they identified three pictures from the detective bureau rogues' gallary as the men they believed took part in the robbery. Fahy, they claim, told them those men could not have been there and showed them a picture of Murphy, trying to get them to identify him as one of the bandits. This they later did.

It is expected that action looking toward a parole will be taken immediately.

Big Cannon Meeting in New York City Thursday, Oct. 2nd

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Sept. 29.—James P. Cannon, Workers Party candidate for governor, who will be the principal speaker at the big mass meeting to be held on Thursday, October 2, at Hunt's Point Palace, 163rd St. and Southern Boulevard, has issued a statement on the republican state convention at Rochester. He says in part:

"The republican party of New York state, of which the millionaire Senator Wadsworth is boss, has just nominated Theodore Roosevelt for governor. I am happy to have as my opponent a scion of one of the royal families of the American aristocracy. Just as England has its Prince of Wales, so New York has its Roosevelt, Jr. The heir to the Roosevelt glory adds to his father's stick reputation, the flavor of the oil scandal, in which he is deeply immersed. In his anxiety to emulate his father's military reputation, he ordered the U. S. marines to Teapot Dome in the interests of Sinclair and Dohesy, the oil grafters. I am proud to be the opponent of so reactionary a candidate.

"The platform of the republican party of New York state similarly holds out little hope for the workers. Not a word does it say about the use of the injunction in industrial disputes an issue which is becoming of increasing importance thruout the state. While it prates of 'civil liberties,' New York state still maintains one of the most drastic syndicalist laws on the statute books. New York is one of the few states which still retains this legislation. While posing as a 'friend of labor,' the republican party says not a word about the relief of unemployment, the protection of women in industry or the minimum wage legislation. The republican party of this state is but a cog in the reactionary national republican strike-breaking machine."

Cannon is expected to go into the issues of the campaign in his usual vigorous style. His talks are in such great demand that he has been asked to speak on Friday, October 3, at the Queens County Labor Lyceum, 785 Forest Ave., Brooklyn, and on Saturday, October 4, in Yonkers at the Odd Fellows Hall, 72 Broadway.

Straw Ballot Results Reveal Drift of Labor Into Communist Ranks

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, one fact stands out clearly, in the presidential struggle. It has been revealed by the straw ballot taken by the DAILY WORKER, in the shops, mills and factories of the city.

This big fact, that cannot be pushed aside by the subsidized press of the capitalist candidates, is that there is a strong drift to Communism among the great masses of labor.

"Bolshevism!" is more than a word to large numbers of workers on the job. It symbolizes an ideal toward which they are struggling.

* * * *

"I'm going to vote for LaFollette this time," say some of the workers. "But if I don't get what I want, I'll turn Bolshevist."

And while the worker makes that statement, he clearly shows, in the tones of his voice and his general demeanor, that he has no hope of getting what he wants from LaFollette. But that is the American Voting King—the Henry Dubb worker, who votes for something he doesn't want, in the hope of getting something now, in place of voting for what he does want, and sticking with what he wants until he gets it.

* * * *

But it is very evident that this growing undercurrent, flowing toward revolutionary working class political action, has startled the Wall Street campaign managers, who have ways of their own, of learning what is going on.

It isn't because they want an issue that both Coolidge and Davis, the republican and democratic puppets, are shouting in defense of the sanctity of the United States Supreme Court. They stand in this campaign fighting for every capitalist institution. And there is nothing more dear to Wall Street than the Supreme Court, presided over by "Bill the Fat" Taft, with its veto power of all legislation passed by congress, and all other law-making bodies.

Poor LaFollette wants to safeguard capitalism, against the Communists, but he also wants to take this veto power away from Taft and his judicial, black-cloaked pals. Just to give LaFollette a taste of what happens to those who meddle with the capitalist system of government, we find the "Cal" Coolidge henchmen, in the courts, especially in California, ruling the LaFollette electors off the ballot. But this will not convince LaFollette that revolutionary struggles today and in the future are needed in place of fondling with the historic memories of the revolution of 1776.

* * * *

The DAILY WORKER'S straw ballot has revealed the strength the Communists would have if political representation were based on Shop Councils in industrial instead of geographical represetantion.

In a Shop Council at the Hart, Schaffner and Marx plant, visited by our straw ballot squad, the results showed that the Communists would have 15 representatives in a "Council of 100."

The same percentage held true at the Kuppenheimer plant, while at the plant of the Royal Tailors, the percentage rose giving the Communists 20 delegates in any "Council of 100" that might be formed.

* * * *

Out in the great plant of the Western Electric Company, the percentage of Communist strength was almost as great as that among the clothing workers at Kuppenheimers.

If the 45,000 workers at the Western Electric chose a Shop Council of 500, at least 100 of these would be Communists, according to the showing of our straw ballot.

* * * *

The percentage falls slightly in the unorganized stockyards' plants of the packers. Here only ten percent registered Communist. But ten Communists in a "Shop Council of 100," in "The Yards" district, would be somewhat of a revolution over the present form of geographical representation that sends some lawyer tool of Armour, Swift and the other big packers to Washington.

* * * *

The percentage of Communist strength in "The Yards" is duplicated in the plant of the Pullman Palace Car Company, also unorganized. It drops a little among the clerks and other help of Sears, Roebuck & Co., the world's largest mail order house, but mounted higher at the big car shops of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad. The percentage held at a little below 10 per cent among the street carmen. It shot up to nearly 15 per cent at the great plant of the Crane Manufacturing Company. It registered about 12 per cent among the printers at the Cuneo-Henneberry Company.

* * * *

Thus in the great producing establishments of the American capitalist system, there is a strong Communist sentiment. If political representation were based on Shop Councils, the Communists would have a goodly representation.

But the "Fathers of 1776," whom LaFollette lauds so highly, ordered differently. On the basis of the constitution, that they adopted, capitalism in this country has built up a system of representation that practically disfranchises the workers.

Millions lose their vote thru residence qualifications. In the South other millions are disfranchised because of poll taxes and other subterfuges. This does not take into account the millions of disfranchised Negroes. Then there is the naturalization fraud that says a worker coming here from some other country must go thru a period of probation, to be ended at the whim of some judicial mountebank. The more intelligent and militant a worker may be, the less his chances are of becoming a citizen. If the prospective citizen proclaims himself a Communist, he is black-balled forever.

In order to keep the workers in submission, under the American form of government, one prerequisite is that they be disfranchised as far as possible. If those workers fortunate enough to enjoy the franchise get radical, not to mention revolutionary, and send representatives to congress who make laws threatening to the capitalist social structure, then the supreme court is right on the job. And the supreme court is backed by the mailed fist of American capitalism, the army and navy.

* * * *

If the workers would win power in the United States they must begin now building their organizations in the shops, the mills and the factories. A beginning can be made by starting a Shop Nucleus of the Workers (Communist) Party. When this organization, built within the very structure of the capitalist industrial system, becomes powerful enough for the workers to seize power, then the capitalist structure will fall away like a rotten shell, and Soviet Rule will rise in its stead to prepare for the Communist Society that follows close on the heels of departing Capitalism.

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Four members of the Young Workers' League, Clarence Miller, Arnold Shaw, Julius Malpern and Harry Rabbetsky were arrested on the evening of Sept. 23, while holding an open-air meeting at 110th St. and 5th Ave. Three workers who were listening to the speakers were also arrested.

Clarence Miller, who had been arrested several times in Chicago for speaking, had been in New York City only two days, and his arrest was evidently the method employed by the police to welcome him to New York.

LaFollette Cause of Arrest.

Dozens of meetings had previously been held on the same corner, without any interference. In the past few weeks, however, there had been acute competition between the Young Workers' League and the LaFollette forces for the corner. The Young Workers' League, being more energetic, had managed to capture the corner every time. This must have riled the LaFollettites, and it is suspected that they instigated the arrest.

It was about 9 o'clock in the evening. Comrade Miller was speaking. The crowd numbered well over 500. A policeman approached and demanded a permit. He was informed that no permit was necessary for open-air meetings. The cop left, muttering "We'll see." About a half hour later, the cop returned with reinforcements. A Jewish comrade was speaking. The policeman asked him whether he was a citizen and upon learning that he was not, ordered him off the platform. Comrade Miller immediately got up in his place. Upon giving the police the information that he was a citizen, he was placed under arrest. The other comrades were arrested when they came to see what the row was about. One spectator was arrested for handing a comrade a cigarette.

Crowd With Yowls.

The charge at first was: Holding a meeting without a permit, but it was later changed to obstructing the traffic. The judge dismissed the charge without much ado.

There were at least 1000 workers listening when the arrests were made, and the crowd was very sympathetic to the Young Workers. A patrol wagon was called. As the yowls entered they shouted, "Three cheers for the Young Workers' League" and the crowd responded with a roar.

Another Victim of Herrin Klan Fight Dies in Hospital

HERRIN, Ill., Sept. 29.—Another inquest into the death of a victim of the shooting at John Smith's garage here Aug. 30, when Sheriff George Galligan's party and a number of Ku Klux Klansmen "shot it out" with the resulting outright killing of six men and the wounding of several others, was scheduled for today, following the death of Herman Phemeister.

Phemeister died at the city hospital last night of wounds received in the fight.

Oliver Carlson to Speak for Yowls in New York City

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Oliver Carlson, well-known member of the Young Workers League, will speak on conditions in Europe and Soviet Russia on Monday, October 6, at Stuyvesant Casino, Second Ave. and 9th Street. Carlson is an excellent speaker. He will tell of his experiences during his twenty months' stay on the other side.

Against Bonus System.

MELBOURNE, Australia.—The Victorian State Railways union is demanding the abolition of the bonus system in the railway shops near Melbourne.

Much Water in Tokio.

TOKIO, Sept. 29.—For the third time in thirty days the Honjo district of Tokio was under water today following torrential rains of the past 24 hours.

CHIEF OF BIG OPIUM JOINT GIVES AMERICAN FILM STAR SILVER MEDAL

ROME, Sept. 29.—Jackie Coogan, the world's foremost child moving picture actor, was received in audience by Pope Pius XI. today. Jackie was accompanied by his parents.

The pontiff presented Jackie with a silver medal of himself. He was requested of Bishop Walsh, of Trenton, to give a special blessing to Jackie's parents.

PLAN TO FLOAT DAWES LOAN

IT is now only a matter of days before the government, the press and the bankers will rally to float the first hundred million dollar Dawes loan for the enslavement of the German and finally all the European working masses.

Tomorrow we will begin the first of the series of articles by Jay Lovestone on this gigantic war plan. Wednesday's DAILY WORKER will carry the introductory article. The subjects to be dealt with in the series are:

1. From Pershing to Dawes.
2. The Dawes Plan—Made in America.
3. Machinery and Organization of the American Receivership.
4. Economic Issues and Contradictions of the Dawes Plan.
5. The Dawes Plan and the American Working Masses.
6. What the Dawes Plan Means to Germany.
7. What Will the Dawes Plan Bring to the International Working Class?
8. The Bridge to a New World War.
9. How to Fight Back the Imperialist Menace—A Program of Action.

Make sure to read this thorogoing analysis of the most insidious scheme yet prepared to destroy the rights and organizatton of the workers of the United States, Germany, France, Great Britain and the other countries.

CAPITALIST WAR HARD HIT BY NEW YORK PLAY

So Question is Raised if it is "Proper"

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—An informal board of review proposed by Mayor Hylan to consist of Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, Maj.-Gen. Robert L. Bullard, Police Commissioner Enright and License Commissioner William Quigley is to determine whether "What Price Glory," a frank play of the marines in wartime, is a "proper play to present to the public," as Quigley puts it.

The play, written by Maxwell Anderson and Lawrence Stallings, the latter an ex-marine who lost a leg in the last war, contains a good deal of military profanity and does not maintain the customary theatrical illusion that war is a glorious, romantic occupation.

Mixes It with Nudity.

Admiral Plunkett admits that he transmitted the complaint to mayor Hylan but denies that the military is officially interested. Commissioner Quigley asserts that an official from one of the government departments was assigned to attend the play and report upon its fitness for the public mind.

Mayor Hylan's letter to Quigley begins by saying that "there is a very regrettable tendency upon the part of some producers to stage plays in which nudity, obscenity, and profanity are paraded."

He concludes with the suggestion that the mixed military commission meet with the managers "to see what can be done to eliminate the objectionable features complained of."

Most of the writers and dramatic critics who have seen the play have praised it highly and some of them are suggesting the constituting of an informal bord of review among themselves to decide upon the fitness of the military board to determine what is art and what is best for public morals.

Smells Like Real War.

Robert Littell, reviewing What Price Glory for The New Republic asks, "Where is our war now? Where is last year's dirty wash? A few are still wearing the War, some proudly, others like a last torn buttonless shirt, the only one they have. Years from now, when a new generation wants to know, not its histories and propagandas, its mechanisms, flories and brutalities, but what the war smelt and tasted life, to Americans in it, we doubt if they can do better than put on a revival of this real and ringing and fiercely goodhumored play by Mr. Anderson and Mr. Stallings."

Built Pullman Cars for Fifteen Years; Rides in Box Car

A comrade, while out canvassing for signatures to place the Workers Party candidates on the ballot in Illinois, accosted a proletarian-looking passerby and solicited his signature. After having some of the principles of the Workers Party explained to him the man expressed his hearty concurrence in them and signed the petition.

"You've got the right dopo all right," he said. "Let me tell you my experience. I am a carbuilder by trade. I worked for the Pullman company for fifteen years steadily. Last month I had to go down to Louisiana to see my mother. Well do you suppose I rode in a Pullman? I did not. I had to bum it on the freights. And then I almost got pinched for doing that. Can you beat it?"

The comrade replied that it was a peachy example of capitalist equity—and an unanswerable argument for a new subscription to the DAILY WORKER. The worker promised to subscribe.

Buy Russian Furs.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—News of Russia's fur auction in Leipsic is looked upon in New York as indicating renewed activity in the fur trade. Fur workers have been hit by the depression and will welcome more steady employment. The first day's sales of the Russian trade delegation in Leipsic amounted to about $350,000. American and British buyers took an active part in the auction and forced prices on fox pelts above the minimum set by the Russians.

No Pay Raise in Tacoma.

TACOMA, Wash.—The promised 10 per cent increase to workers employed by the city of Tacoma went aglimmering when the city commission led by mayor Fawcett turned down all raises, including the $5 boost for salaried employes getting less than $150 a month.

"Stand Behind Workers' Rule," Appeal of Savinkov

not Savinkov truly loved his country matters to nobody at all except to Savinkov. He was not the less a plaything in the hands of Churchill, Poincare, Lloyd George, and the men who stood behind them, one of their minor playthings in the great game of imperialism.

He knows it now, bitterly, and he declares it openly in court in Moscow. And the facts that pack his story are more important than his own life was, or will be.

In his final address before the court Savinkov recalled the many years of his revolutionary past under the czar, his memories of the comrades who died beside him, and of his own imprisonment, and of the happiness of those days when he knew that, if he died, he would be rembered as one who loved the workers and peasants of his country. "And now" he says: "I neither prize life nor fear death. But one thing I fear, that in dying, the workers and peasants of my country will think of me, only as one who betrayed her" . . . . And that is how they will think of him, for they judge by facts not motives.

Fought Bolsheviks.

In the October Revolution, Savinkov went against the Bolsheviks. There is not time to give his reasons; they are important only in one thing, that they are the same reasons that will yet lead thousands of good democrats in the revolutions yet to come, into the ranks of betrayers of the people. It is enuf to say that he misunderstood the people from first to last, living apart from them in his own dream of what they wanted, and without any real contacts with workers and peasants.

So, step by step, he was led, he the passionate democrat who wished to give his life for a constituent assembly, into closer and closer association with monarchists These steps are important for our understanding of similar events in the future, but there is no time for them here. The real drama of Savinkov comes in his revelation of the rottenness of one government after another in Europe

How Masaryk, president of the Czecho-Slovaks, gave him 200,000 roubles "for terroristic warfare" on the borders of Russia! How Pilsudski, president of Poland, induced him to form an army of Russians to assist the Poles against the Bolsheviks; and later, after Poland had made peace with Russia, how bandit raids were conducted across the borders of Poland to burn and ravage the villages of Russia, with the knowledge of the Polish government.

Startling Revelations of Treachery

How Noulens, the French ambassador, sent a telegram ordering Savinkov to pull off an armed uprising along the Volga, promising that British and French troops wiuld arrive in Archangel in time to assist; and at the same time paid for still another uprising in Moscow, of which Savinkov did not know; and how, all the time, there were no troops ready for Archangel, and the whole was merely a maneuver to kill Russians and weaken Russia in order that the big powers of earth might more easily divide her!

How Churchill, head of the British war office, pointed on the map to the flags showing Denikin's army, and said: "Behold my army!" How Lloyd George, on the eve of Genoa, was consulting with Savinkov about the terms to put to the Soviet government which would be most deadly. How Churchill and Herriot, while dealing with the Soviets were sending also emissaries to their avowed foe, Savinkov, all these are the situations exposed in open court by this much disillusioned adventurer.

Astounding French Intrigue.

Here is a little of the evidence . . . . Written proof was given by the French on my signature. Derental carried on the negotiations. I myself saw Grenar and Laverne, of the French military mission, three or four times only . . . I received two hundred thousand roubles from the Czechs thru Klepando. The French gave me in all about two and a half million Kerensky roubles. At first they only gave small amounts, forty to one hundred thousand. But when the talk began of the armed uprising, they gave at one time a large sum, if I remember rightly, about two millions. From the very beginning, our organization was in contact with the French who watched its growth very carefully and guided it . . . .

"The French advised this plan: that I should siese Yarosiavl, Ribinsk and Kostromy. I hesitated; I did not think our forces strong enough . . . . But a telegram from Noulens was sent me, categorically insisting that their expedition would land between the 5th and 10th of July, and that I must stage the uprising for the 5th.

"But there was no French force landing at Archangel. Noulens must have known this. I believe,he merely wanted to be able in Paris to point to the fact that the Soviet government was unstable, and that there were uprisings against it."

But this isn't the worst that Savinkov has to reveal about the French intrigue. At the same time, Noulens was paying the Left Social Revolutionaries to stage an uprising in Moscow, and was telling Savinkov nothing about it. "We didn't know of theirs and they didn't know of ours, but the French knew of both," says Savinkov bitterly. For the French game, as he plainly sees now; was not to create a successful revolt, but to produce anarchy which would justify seizing the land.

Lloyd George's Hands Not Clean.

An equally keen and bitter insight characterizes Savinkov's account of the British. "I had my dealings with Churchill, the minister of war. Lloyd George,—his position was such that he washed his hands of whatever might happen, giving the impression that he did not know what Churchill was doing, who certainly he knew always. When I had interviews with Lloyd George, he always took this doublemeaning position; but Churchill helped very energetically with Lloyd George's knowledge.

"Churchill showed me a map of South Russia, with the armies of Denikin and the red armies shown by flags. I remember how I was shocked when he pointed to the Denikin flagr and said suddenly: 'There is my army.'"

Yes, it must have been a bitter moment for a Russian patriot, begging from government to governments for means to fight the Bolsheviki, to have the veil of pretense so ruthlessly torn, and to be informed so plainly that he was only a tool for imperialistic ends of another land . . . . "But I thot . . . Here I sit in Paris, and there on the front are Russian soldiers without shoes, and if I go out of this room with a scandal, they will have no shoes to march in . . . ."

With these "patriotic" motives, he kept on selling his country into bondage; and sinking lower and lower, until he was being invited from government to government around Europe, to play the part of spy and informant against his native land.

Poles Enter the Game Too.

The next revelations of Savinkov have caused some disturbance in Poland, for they reflect rather noticeably on the good faith of that country. He tells how Pilsudski, president of Poland, sent for him to form an army of Russians, to help the Poles against the Bolsheviks. He tells how later, after the peace of Riga, he organized guerrilla bands which crossed the border with the knowledge of Pilsudki, and ravaged the Russian villages. And here he betrays either the duplicity of the adventurer, or the naivete of the democrat who does not know the people.

"I intended to organize an army of peasants. I thot the peasants were against the Soviet government. I never intended the outrages committed by these bands. They got beyond luitionary bands? Savinkov states itionally guilty."

What England and France Want.

Just what did England and France intend, in their help to counter-revolutionary bands? Savinkov states that they gave many, many millions, not only to him, but to every possible form of revolt and agitation against the Soviet government. When the judge asked him under what form and for what supposed reason these funds were given, he answered:

"Officially, the reason was always, generosity! All the official explanations contain this sort of reason—'that we, the former allies, are in distress; that France remembers the former help of Russia and comes now to our aid' . . . . But what lay behind this was the following. As a minimum, there was oil, a much desired article, the possession of oil; and as a maximum, well, the more Russians fight among themselves, the better; the weaker will be Russia; and when she has no strength left, we can make of her a colony . . ."

That is what Savinkov sees now, after he had been tossed about Europe for seven years between Churchill, Lloyd George, Poincare, Pilsudski, Masaryk, used by each when they thot him useful, and dropped by each when they had other cards to play. That is why he says, in his passionate closing speech, before the death sentence: "To every Russian wherever he is, who loves his land, I say; 'Stand behind the government of workers and peasants and acknowledge it without reserve.'"

Did Not Understand the People.

That is his last message as he passes out of the picture, into the imprisonment to which the normal death sentence for treason was commuted by the Central Executive Committee of Russia. He was not an important man in history, tho he was the most enduring and persistant of Soviet Russia's foes. He might, perhaps, have been important, with his remarkable gifts as orator, writer and organizer, if he had guessed right in the process of history. But, as he himself says: "All my youth I passed in military organizations. And my manhood I passed in exile I lived behind dark glasses I did not know the people, I did not know workers, peasants. I loved them. I wanted to give my life for them. But of their interests, purposes and wishes, what could I know?"

That, if we take him at his own valuation, is the epitaph of Savinkov, patriot, democrat, who risked his life a score of times in the fight against oppressors, and became in the end their most cunning tool! It is a tale which should be studied by all would-be leaders of the workers.

WAGENKNECHT SAYS THE SOCIALIST PARTY IS LOSING ITS LAST CHICKS

By ALFRED WAGENKNECHT.

A hen begins to lose her chicks as soon as they are able to scratch deep for their own food. And the socialist party is losing its chicks. Some, of course, are a little sick of the hundred per cent sell-out to LaFollette and are not scratching at all. Others have scratched so deep, have become so wise that they are leaving the old hen.

It was undoubtedly to save the few members it has that the socialist party tried to stage a big rally in the Ashland Auditorium Sunday afternoon. The hall was not crowded by the eleven hundred persons present. And the unprecedented interest shown in the new policy of the socialist party was registered, when lo and behold, not even one individual gave a five dollar bill to the collection subsequent to the "tears, blood and sweat" appeal made by George R. Kirkpatrick, that peer of collection takers.

Hot Renegade Fatness Appears.

The first sign of life manifested in the meeting came when quite a portion of Milwaukee waddled down an isle. Victor Berger mounted the stage and hid himself behind the back of one of the three large chairs he should have sat in. When it was Hillquit's turn to come in there was another burst of applause. He mounted the steps and hid himself behind the amplifier. The meeting did not seem to get quite an open and above board start.

Joseph Sharts of Ohio was the first speaker. He proved that he was an American. He had fought in the Spanish-American war, his father had fought in the Civil war, his grandfather had fought with George Washington. When that was settled to everyone's satisfaction, he of hand took the number of sixty years as his theme and began to prove that where as it took just sixty years to get us the Civil war and to abolish negro slavery, counting that sixty from the time the Abolitionist party was organized, so exactly another sixty years had passed from the Civil war to the day LaFollette began to lead the masses out of the wilderness. And, he added, just as the abolition of Negro slavery was accomplished by a union of small parties on a platform that said nothing about slavery and by a president who was not a radical when he was a candidate, so today, we are with LaFollette in the same advantageous situation. This he dubbed a peculiarly American characteristic. It is that a working class revolution should find its impetus on a platform and with candidates that are not radical!

Then Berger was introduced. The chairman said: "Friends and comrades, the next speaker I have the honor to present to you is one who never gives up. In Milwaukee they elected him to congress. He was not seated and they elected him again. If he had not then been seated they would have elected him again and they would have kept this up until he was seated." That's the socialist party all over. Hardly another word need be said for its depth of revolutionary understanding.

LaFollette Did—It's LaFollette Didn't.

Victor Berger admitted at the outset that he was not a LaFollette man. He was not a LaFollette man because LaFollette was not a socialist. He was not a LaFollette man because LaFollette was not a member of the socialist party. He was not a LaFollette man because LaFollette was not a member of the socialist party. He was not a LaFollette man because LaFollette was not a member of the socialist party

COMMUNISTS IN GREECE VICTORS OVER FASCISTI

Series of Black Shirt Meetings Scuttled

ATHENS, Sept. 29.—Plans of Greek Fascisti for a series of public meetings in Salonica, the chief purpose of which was to have been attacks on the militant workers of the country, have gone up in smoke, owing to the active work of the local Communist groups.

A personal representative of the Italian Fascist, Mussolini, had been sent to Greece to take part in the Salonica demonstrations, the chief figures in which were General Kondyles and Metaxis.

War on Communism.

The avowed design of the meetings was "to fight the growing strength of Communist sentiment among the rank and file of the workers."

The local branches of the Communist Party of Greece issued a manifesto to the workers to stay away from the Fascist meetings and to attend instead a mass meeting of laboring men and women. Fascist officials and halls found halls that were practically empty, while an immense throng crowded thru the doors of the Communist meeting halls in the same city.

The republican government of Greece, while not openly avowing its sympathy with the Fascist leaders, is known to be helping them in every way. Premier Sotoulis toured Macedonia a few days before the proposed Fascist meeting, expressing his fear that "the country is endangered by the Communists" and urging that the citizens do everything in their power to offset Communist influence.

Sotoulis recently received a communication from Premier Zankoff, Fascist head of Bulgaria, appealing for military aid against the Communist uprisings in Bulgaria. The Greek premier has publicly stated that he fears the Greek workers to be in sympathy with the Bulgarian revolutionists.

Government Can't Handle Strike.

The government has proved itself unable to handle the strike of the railroad workers, the dockers, the printers, and sections of the sailors, all of whom quit their jobs two weeks ago. They have since been joined by the government employees, who demand increases in wages.

The General Confederation of Labor has issued a manifesto to all workers on strike to stand firm against the social-democratic government.

Salvation Army Complains of Hoe Beggars This Year

Unemployment conditions on the farms in the middle-west are so bad that hundreds who would have been working out in the fields this summer walked up and down Madison street without any prospects of a job in sight according to Adjutant Herbert Burtenshaw in charge of the Salvation Army Industrial Home at 1350 Congress street.

"This summer, for the first time in twelve years, we have had more pleas for 'handouts' than usually come in the winter months."

BAKERS' UNION REPUDIATES NEW YORK VOLKSZEITUNG CONFERENCE

SOME time ago we published an open letter to the New York Volkszeitung signed by the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party in reply to a communication from that body, in reference to the appearance of the Hortby advertisement in the Volkszeitung. The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party is now in receipt of the following letter from the Bakers' Union, Local No. 1, Amalgamated Food Workers which is part of the New York Volkszeitung conference, in which it approves of the position taken by the Central Executive Committee of the party:

Dear comrades: In answering your letter from the 12th of September, according to the statement of Louis Braun, secretary of the Volkszeitung's Conference, we would like to see the statement of Bakers' Local 1, A. F. W., printed in the DAILY WORKER and in the Volkszeitung just the same, for the purpose, that the bakers of the A. W. F. especially Local 1, Yorkville, and Local 164, Bronx, also Local 3, Brooklyn, with a membership of about 3,800, are the most active supporters of the Volkszeitung Conference. So far it concerns to support the Volkszeitung with money on all her occasions. Further, we, the delegates to the Volkszeitung conference from the Bakers' Locals who are all are members of the Workers' Party, are going to start a fight against the Louis Brauns and the Alexanders in the Volkszeitung Conference to make the conference a real working class body, and we are going to start this fight right away after the first of September, that means after the big Fall Festival of the Volkszeitung Conference. This is the reason we want to have the statement published.

With best regards,

MICHAEL ROSENBERG, Manager.

AS WE SEE IT

Torryism in England, is waging a losing battle against the rising power of labor and it wants to hold on to its Irish advance post. Eamond DeValera, chief of the republican party is still babbling about going back to 1921, when he was the head of the Irish republic. But he has no program that would rally the masses of Ireland under his banner. In fact, there is no party at the present time in Ireland with a practical plan to organize the workers and farmers. The Labor party lacks militancy and the trade union movement is in a state of civil war, with dual unionists, secessionists, labor fakers and others fighting over jurisdiction and per capita. It is a sorry state of affairs. The fact that the rank and file of the workers judging by their actions are ready for revolutionary leadership, makes the situation more regrettable.

* * *

THE Chinese war is progressing, with the odds on the side of the forces fighting against Wu Pei Fu, who is supported by the American and British governments. The leader who is most feared by the capitalist powers, is Dr. Sun Yat Sen, president of the Canton government. Sen is supported by the labor unions and the small business people, while the big plutes and the capitalist powers are against him. Soviet Russia, needless to say, is supporting Dr. Sun.

THE socialist party of California, is, no doubt, pleased with the opportunity of being in a position to render the capitalist candidate, Robert M. LaFollette, the favor of giving him their support in elections. It will be another "socialist victory!" But "Bob" is not so well pleased tho he is not in a position to do otherwise than accept. To those persons who would ordinarily prefer to eat their straw hats for breakfast, than to vote the socialist ticket, he gives the consolation that in marking their ballots for this electoral ticket, they are not voting to elect any socialist to public office, as electors, according to a supreme court ruling, are only messengers. The socialists are willing messengers of capitalism.

DR. Elsa Berger, daughter of Victor Berger, broke into the front page of her father's Milwaukee Leader a few weeks ago, after she had consented to give one pint of her blood to save a person who sought to join his fathers in the great beyond, suddenly and dramatically by drawing the sharp side of a razor blade across his windpipe. Commenting on the incident, an ex-socialist member in Washington who appears to have very little love to squander on Victor, says: "Dr. Berger is a daughter of Victor Berger. Mr. Berger is a socialist congressman, but no one around here is aware of the fact. Out in Milwaukee, Victor is a village hero, but in the nation's law-making body, he is as colorless as a Burmuda onion." Tata, but the scribe does not read Victor's speeches delivered in Congress thru the Milwaukee Leader. He could read the same speech with variations many times in the same place. According to Berger, Victor makes quite a hit in the capitol.

THERE is considerable turmoil in Toledo, Ohio, over the inconsiderate action of the twelve socialists who comprise the socialist party there, in insisting on running their candidate, Thomas C. Devine, for congress against Sherwood who is endorsed by the local C. P. P. A. At a meeting recently held in Toledo, Devine pleaded with his fellow socialists to permit him to withraw in favor of Sherwood, but they were adamant. Devine finally said: "I hope you will not force me to take the matter into my own hands. My heart would not be in the campaign." It is not surprising that the national office of the socialist party should be worried over the effects of the socialist "united front" with the capitalists.

GITLOW URGES CORRECTION IN SPEECH REPORT

Not Opposed to Political Action for Communists

By BENJAMIN GITLOW.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 29.—In W. J. White's article on my speech at Girard, Ohio, a gross misstatement appears. He quotes me as stating that the working class could never hope to emancipate itself thru political action.

Workers Must Own Government.

I am at loss to know where Comrade White got that statement because I never made it. He probably misinterpreted what I had to say about the election of Foster and Gitlow. I stated that when the workers of this country would be prepared to elect Foster and Gitlow they would be prepared to replace the present capitalist government with a workers government, owned and controlled by the workers and serving the interests of the workers. In such a government the workers would not be concerned with presidents and vice-presidents. The workers' government would be altogether different from the present government of the United States. It would be a government of Soviets drawing its power from the ranks of the workers in the mines, mills, shops, etc., and from the workers on the land.

Embraces More Than Elections.

As a Communist I have long realized that the emancipation of the working class will be accomplished thru political action. To hold otherwise would put me out of the ranks of Communists. As a Communist I do not take a narrow view of political action.

To me political action is not confined merely to election campaigns and the casting of a ballot. Political action includes all forms of action on the part of the working class that undermines the political power of the capitalist class, and prepares the proletariat for the struggle against and final overthrow of the capitalist state. Parliamentary action is only a form of Communist political action, limited in its scope, because Communists maintain that thru parliamentary action and the use of capitalist state machinery the workers can never hope to abolish capitalist rule let alone the capitalist system.

New York, New Jersey Campaign Fund Now Totals Sum of $3,884

The New York and New Jersey campaign fund has now (Sept. 26) reached the sum of $3,884.08. The shop collections drive is expected to boost this total to the $6,000.00 mark within the coming week. There is now an excellent prospect of reaching the goal of $10,000 set by the campaign committee, as the shop collections drive, which is counted on for $3,000 is just beginning to show results.

First Anniversary of the "Freiheit" Mandolin Orchestra

The Proletarian "Freiheit" Mandolin Orchestra is preparing for the celebration of its anniversary which will be held on the 7th and 14th of December, at the 5th Street Theatre, formerly Grotto Temple. It will be a joint affair of the Mandolin Orchestra and the "Freiheit" Singing Society, which will be celebrating the tenth anniversary of its existence.

The rehearsals of the orchestra are taking place every Monday night at the North West Side Jewish People's Institute, 1243 N. Wood St., near Division.

Nephew of Late Czar Bankrupt.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Prince Andrew of Russia, nephew of the late czar, has rushed to this haven of the emigres when the workers declared "those who eat must work" and has been eating here to the amount of 8,000 pounds. He was declared bankrupt by the official London bankruptcy receiver.

An Evening of Raising Campaign Funds

By JULIUS COCKIND

Secretary Finance and Outside Organization Committee.

THE work of raising funds to carry on a political campaign in a large city such as New York, is most varied. One evening one finds himself organizing a committee of scores of girls to make the collection at a large mass meeting. The next evening he is addressing some organization, with ten of fifteen present, in the eternal quest for money.

Thousands of letters containing our appeals and propaganda together with subscription lists must be sent out to all sorts of organizations, trade union locals, and individuals. Speakers must be supplied where requested, conferences called, committees organized, materials distributed for and wide. And then the thankless, burdensome task of securing the all-important publicity in the press for various drives and tag days that must be carried out. And without this publicity one cannot move. But this story is not one of money as much as one of the life of a cross section of our own movement and it relates the events of an evening.

It is raining intermittently—hard when I am in the streets, but ceasing as soon as I find myself indoors. I must visit three meetings tonight. From one meeting to the other there is first a seven, then a fifteen block walk in the rain.

I start early and reach the meeting of Knitgoods Workers before it has been opened for business. As I cannot wait, I confer with the secretary and a few of the active comrades, who agree to organize the Knitgoods Workers campaign comm. of the Workers Party, and carry thru their end of the T. U. E. L. shop collections drive to success.

My next stop happens to be in the home of a comrade. I enter a small apartment, clean and brightly illuminated, but almost bare of furniture and furnishings. I wonder does the family eat on the kitchen table, for I see no tables. This is the house of a needle worker in New York. Sitting on the floor or standing around the sides of the front room, the only furnishings of which is a well stocked bookcase and two or three chairs, are a score of men and women, the executive committee of the T. U. E. L. group in one of the I. L. G. W. U. local unions. I had supposed from Sigman's report that those militants had been exterminated, but to me it now appears as tho they had multiplied.

They were deeply interested in their discussion. A stockily built, determined comrade, with the jaw of a fighter was speaking. He opposed the tactic of swallowing insults. In his local where he was a member of the executive board, he had attempted to break the back of an official he had called him provocateur. He had obtained satisfaction and he urged the comrades in this local to follow his example.

At this point the discussion was interrupted to give me the floor. I stated my mission. A moment of discussion, and a secretary who took over my subscription lists and instructions was appointed, after it was decided to act later on my request. Without pause the comrades returned to the subject under discussion, and were immediately sucked in to everything but this problem—I learned later that it was decided to call a general membership meeting of the entire T. U. E. L. group in this local to carry out the plans for an extended shop collection drive. The atmosphere was tense, serious and determined. To many of our party members who find only a record of inactivity and inattention on the part of the rank and file of the comrades, this meeting would have been a revelation. They would find here a well organized, well trained group, ready to take over the direction of affairs in a mighty union.

My last walk brought me to the headquarters of one of the downtown Jewish branches. The rough, unpainted walls had been covered with red, white, yellow and blue crepe paper, beautifully arranged in panels by the comardes who had used thumb tacks for this purpose.

A meeting of the Capmakers group of the T. U. E. L. was in progress. It had been called specially to consider the plans for the Workers Party campaign. A young, rosy-cheeked comrade, with black sparkling eyes, was speaking of the opportunities lying before the Communists in the present campaign. There are upwards of a million workers in the country who have passed thru a course of training in some one of the many class conscious organizations. We can make a direct appeal to these workers on the principle that we are the only working class political party in the field. Millions who favor a labor party might be reached with the message of the Workers Party, which, in this campaign, is the only political party standing on the program of independent working class political action by the exploited workers and farmers. He covers the field in a masterly fashion. His talk is well received. A hundred subscription lists and several score Workers Party campaign stamp books will be circulated in the shops on the morrow. A comrade suggests that everybody wear a Foster-Gitlow button. It is done. Petitions for the collection of signatures are handed out. Comrades undertake to cover the territory assigned.

On the way to supper I think: Is this the movement whose rank and file does not function properly. Well, let me have these inactive sluggards. I guess after all that the three thousands dollars pledged to the shop collections drive in New York will be raised with something to spare.

The Campaign Fund Campaign

EXTRA! ALL ABOUT CHECK No. 15!

By ALFRED WAGENKNECHT.

ARNE SWABECK advised us to tell you about it. We are glad to take his advice.

Not because Check No. 15 implied a cool $100.00 from probably that many determined workers who have a clear revolutionary vision.

But because, with Check No. 15 came a letter that gave us to understand that altho $100.00 had been given to the election campaign fund, this first hundred was but a beginning.

We salute this Bulgarian branch of Madison, Ill. When its secretary writes: "This $100.00 pays for the ten books of campaign fund stamps sent us. Please send us ten more books" it is an assurance to us that we are going some place, that we are progressing, advancing.

Ever philosophize about the merry-go-round? You pay a nickle and travel around and around, and all you get is dizzy.

We must not be merry-go-rounds. It is much more interesting to chalk a mark at the point we occupy today, look ahead, decide upon an objective, gain that point tomorrow, and in this manner advance day by day. That's called getting ahead.

The Madison branch believes in this policy. Ten books sold, ten books more!

Emulate means a conscious effort to equal or surpass. So we say—EMULATE!

From one of the Workmen's Circle branch we hear that it cannot contribute to the campaign fund because they are not Communists. That should excuse them.

Karl Marx, Scandinavian, Chicago—this is not the present address of Karl Marx, nor even his topography. It's a branch that WILL raise $180.00 for the campaign fund.

"For more and more I realize why the reds are hated and condemned and more and more I realize that it takes a real white man to be a red." A personal contribution of $5.00 sufficiently emphasizes this paragraph out of a letter from J. W., New York.

Two for $25. Into the campaign fund. This is the way the South Slavic branch of Johnson City, Ill., helped to push the revolutionary indicator one notch forward.

A houseworker. Out of work. Still she remits a whole dollar. This from S. V., Yorkville. And you?

We have a weakness for large contributions. But when contribution lists arrive (as No. 16,110 from J. N., of Fords, N. J., No. 612 from B. S. of Cheswick, Pa., No. 10,093 from A. B. of Chicago) chucked full of 50, 25 and 10 cent contributions, and from a hundred workers or more, then we know that we have comrades who take their Communist duty seriously.

Ten dollars from the Farmer-Labor Club of Finlayson. Then dollars from F. J. of Rimrock, Wash. Ten dollars from the Slovak Workers' Society of Kenosha. Ten at a time is really an easy sum to send.

"I think the most of the workers who donated this total were I. W. W."—J. R., Tuolumna, Cal. And the total sum was $30.00.

A contribution list overflowing with Italian names plus $14.25 sent in by A. G. of Kansas City, attests that workers of all languages are supporting Foster and Gitlow.

"Alle gute Dinge sind drei." This from A. S. of Jacksonville, Fla. He had remitted a first contribution, now sends his second of $10.00, and promises a third. He wonders when the workers will become wise enough to understand which class they belong to.

WE DON'T KNOW JUST WHEN THIS WILL HAPPEN, COMRADE, BUT WE DO KNOW THAT GENEROUS CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE ELECTION CAMPAIGN FUND OF THE WORKERS PARTY WILL HELP WONDERFULLY TO MAKE THEM WISE.

NEGRO WORKERS GREET WORKERS PARTY SPEAKERS

Won't Be Fooled Longer by Old Partyites

Probably no district of the nine in which the Workers Party, Local Chicago, is placing congressional candidates is so decidedly proletarian in character as the First District, the one in which Comrade Gordon Owens has already been placed on the ballot.

This district, stretching from Madison street to 43rd street, and from the Lake to Wentworth avenue, comprises the so-called "Black Belt," the famous Negro section of Chicago.

Politicians Fawn On Them.

In this district every man and nearly every woman are workers. Not office or white collar slaves, but industrial and manual laborers. It is these colored workers who along with those of foreign birth, constitute the backbone of America's industrial proletariat.

While suffering even greater the economic oppression and exploitation than the foreign born workers, the Negroes are handed the specious consolation of citizenry. In this district probably 75 per cent of the adults are qualified voters. As such they have been subjected to constant political propaganda by the capitalist politicians. The whole district in infested with petty Negro politicians, ward heelers, precinct captains and innumerable other political fry who make a living by marshalling the Negro vote for the "fat boys" of the republican machine.

Disgusted With Old Parties.

Altho the illusion has been systematically drilled into these workers that their electoral prerogatives are of vital concern to them and should be scrupulously exercised (in the interests of the G. O. P.) yet the comrades found prevalent among them a strong feeling of political scepticism. Quite a few of those questioned expressed distrust for politics and politicians. As one Negro worker succinctly expressed it: "Sure I used to vote, but now I don't waste my time on it any more. I don't care what politician is elected. They're all crooks."

Invariably, such an attitude served as the opening wedge in driving the Communist position home. The comrades were surprised at the readiness with which these Negro workers grasped the idea of the class struggle in society, and the identity of their interests with those of the white workers.

Housing Conditions Appalling.

The Workers Party campaign plunger in this district, in addition to coming out for the fundamental working class demands, embodies the special interests of the Negro workers. Among these is the demand for the abolition of segregated residential districts—an item which evoked the hearty approval of every workers who read it. Housing is a burning question with these Negro workers. Unable to procure flats outside of the Black Belt, they are the helpless victims of the insatiable greed of the real estate sharks. Terrific rentals are exacted for flats in ramshackle frame houses or dirty flat buildings. The hallways in these dwellings are often lighted by gas jets, lanterns, kerosene lamps and even candles. The rooms are small, dirty, and are filled with antiquated, patched-up furniture. Every available chamber is made over into a bedroom, for only by taking in a maximum of roomers can the high rents be met. Inquiries thru the extent of one block, revealed the fact that a five-room flat accommodated on the average of 8 to 10 people. The sanitary conditions are appalling beyond description.

Negro Youth for Communism.

Many interesting and instructive personal contacts were made by the comrades thru the course of their work, and it is expected that they will result in quite a few new members. The members of the Englewood branch of the Young Workers League, who were very active in circulating the petition in this district, were so favorably impressed with the spirit among the Negro workers that they are contemplating moving their branch into the colored neighborhood. It is believed that such a move would result in the winning over of large numbers of the young Negro workers to the league.

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

...k wages paid by the American rubber trust in 1923 would ...y buy the meanest subsistence for a normal worker's ... The average year's pay of 137,703 workers employed ...r was only $1,321, according to the biennial census of ...ctures taken by the U. S. department of commerce. This means that in spite of a gain of 121 per cent over 1914 pauper standards prevail thruout the rubber towns.

Get 40 Per Cent of What They Make.

The rubber industry paid a total of $181,843,964 in wages and $48,412,658 in salaries in 1923. In return it got products which had a market value of $462,969,556. In other words wage earners who turned out the work received approximately 40 per cent of the value they created. The gross profit out of which capital took its share amounted to $224,826,331 or nearly half again as much as it disbursed in wages.

As the industry has expanded, however, labor's share of the value which it creates has been slowly but steadily rising. In 1914 the owners paid $44,167,402 in wages and got productive work worth $137,989,083. The workers in that year received 32 per cent of the value they created. In 1919 total wages amounted to $193,763,089 and the value created to $543,172,429 giving labor 35.6 per cent of the gain which resulted from its work. In the depression year 1921 when forces were heavily reduced labor received 38.2 per cent of the value created.

Small Share.

Just how small the rubber worker's actual share of the value he produces looks when compared with the value of the material on which he works and the total value of his product appears in the following table:

	1914	1923
U. S. Rubber Industry
Average wage paid worker	$ 597	$1,321
Cost of material per worker	2,204	3,635
Other expense including salaries	223	337
Value of product per worker	4,065	6,925
Value due to worker's toil	1,864	3,026
Gross profit to capital as a result of each worker's labor	1,041	1,632

The increase of 121 per cent in average wages, which is considerably in excess of the increase in cost of living, was entirely insufficient when the low wages in 1914 are taken into account. According to studies of living standards made for the Russell Sage foundation by R. C. Chapin, such wages mean that a majority of the families will be undernourished, insufficiently clothed and badly housed.

Such wages are characteristic of an industry when left to private initiative. Overexpansion of plant and overhead during the early competitive period is carried to a point where capital takes an exhorbitant share of the value produced. With more machinery than the immediate market requires big American rubber interests have used low wages to ruin competitors so that today ten closely interlocked concerns control more than 60 per cent of the rubber goods in the United States and more than 40 per cent of the world output.

The extent to which rubber workers suffered from the depression is also shown in the report. Their numbers fell from 158,549 in 1919 to 103,273 in 1921 and total wages from $193,763,089 to $123,612,873, a drop of 25 per cent. But altho the margin between cost of production and the amount received for the goods declined, there still remained a generous $155,876,162 out of which to provide for the owners.

Telegraphers Call Off Strike.

TORONTO.—The strike of the commercial telegraphers employed by the Canadian Press, the chief news gathering agency of the Canadian daily newspapers, has been called off. The men went on strike because they would not arbitrate a proposal of the company for a reduction in pay, altho they were willing to arbitrate their own demand for an increase. They have now accepted the conciliation board appointed by minister of labor James Murdock which will investigate proposals for both raise and cut.

The strike lasted 10 days, during which time the Canadian Press and newspapers generally carried a limited service by means of telephones, radio and telegraphic automatics.

LIVING COST FAR OUTRUNS MINERS' WAGE

Figures Give Lie to the Employers' Claims

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Coal diggers in the mines of Illinois are not buying gold plated lavatories in spite of the impression operators have been creating that the miners are on the road to becoming millionaires. If you are in doubt cast your eye over the 42nd annual coal report of the state of Illinois.

The average rate paid the pick miner for turning out a ton of coal, according to the report, has failed to keep pace with the advance in the cost of living since 1913. The tonnage rate has increased from 66.4c in 1913 to $1.091 in 1923, or 64½ per cent. The cost of living has advanced approximately 70 per cent.

Machine Miner Does No Better.

The machine miner has done a little better. His rate per ton has increased 87½ per cent during the period but a glance at the annual earnings will dampen any hope that he has materially bettered his position. For the entire year 1923 his average earnings amounted to $1,167, an increase of 51 per cent over the $772 earned in 1913.

The table based on the report shows the average rate per ton and the average earnings per year of pick and machine miners in Illinois mines since 1912:

Illinois	Hand miners per ton	Hand miners per yr.	Machine miners per ton	Machine miners per yr.
1912	$0.636	$ 528	$0.496	$ 769
1913	.664	608	.521	772
1914	.657	609	.524	682
1915	.666	610	.520	713
1916	.670	610	.524	765
1917	.705	846	.568	939
1918	.857	1,216	.735	1,318
1919	.857	998	.750	1,072
1920	1.052	1,245	.992	1,510
1921	1.089	1,361	.992	1,414
1922	1.046	947	.992	1,083
1923	1.091	1,081	.979	1,167

Here is evidence that a basic industry under the private competitive system has been run so badly that skilled workers who risk their lives below ground have earned year in and year out little more than unskilled labor wages. Due entirely to the overdevelopment resulting from the private competitive system consumers pay unnecessarily high prices while miners earn wholly inadequate wages.

Work Only 146 Days.

The full table in the report shows that the miners were allowed to dig coal during only 146 days in 1923. But referring back to 1912, it appears that they were little better off then, being allowed to average only 172 days work in that year.

The report shows the steady advance of machine mining in the industry. In 1912 the payrolls show approximately 37,000 pick miners to 16,500 machine miners. By 1923 the proportion appears reversed with nearly 43,000 machine miners to 21,500 pick miners. The machine enables a miner to average more than nine tons a day in the Illinois mines while with a pick he averages somewhat over five tons.

Coop Motorbus Beats Traction Hogs.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 29.—A co-operative motorbus line, in which the passengers are the stockholders, will serve commuters to Cleveland at cost. It is a protest against the apparent conspiracy between the Akron-Cleveland traction monopoly and the Ohio public utilities commission. When the monopoly bought out the old bus line and boosted fares to four cents a mile the commission laughed at the complaining patrons. Then they organized their bus line and expect to soon be laughing at the company and the commission.

JAP PUBLIC CONSISTENTLY KEPT IN TOTAL IGNORANCE OF RUSSO-JAPANESE TREATY NEGOTIATIONS

(By Rosta.)

TOKYO, Japan, Sept. 29.—The main feature of the present negotiations between Japan and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is the absolute ignorance of public opinion regarding the Japanese proposals to Russia. Inspired apparently by the foreign office, the papers have lately been absolutely abstaining from commenting on the negotiations.

The Yomiuri's report that "the authorities have already decided upon a definite policy and to insist determinedly on their claims, thus taking a strong attitude, while the people at large are advised to avoid such behavior as might restrain the action of the government" is characteristic of the latest press muzzling. Journalists complain that even during Kiyoura's cabinet such secrecy did not exist. Apparently in order to find a reason for this secrecy, the foreign office tells newspaper men that Mr. Karakhan is complaining that too many secrets are being exposed in Tokyo by Japanese papers.

Spread Their Lies.

Another feature of these negotiations are the futile but ceaseless attempts of the government to make everybody believe that the last Japanese terms are justice itself, that they are, therefore, final and sacred and that nothing can be changed or amended, whereas in fact the government has long ago prepared a ground for retreat by a gradual reduction of its piled up demands.

In conversation with a spokesman of the foreign office, it was admitted that Japan's demand for the exclusion of concession operations in Saghalien from the scope of Soviet labor laws is tantamount to an infringment of Soviet sovereignty on the part of Japan, and that it is better to arrange joint Russo-Japanese exploitation of the Saghalien oil fields.

Then there apparently still exists an illusion that the U. S. S. R. is ready to pay any price for the evacuation of Saghalien by the Japanese troops, and but recently some papers advised the Soviet government to resume negotiations on the 20th inst., otherwise they stated, belated Japan might be unable to withdraw her troops this year.

Make Russia Bear the Brunt.

The Japan Chronicle, commenting Japan's demands as reported by the Peking Kokusai correspondent, says that it should be repeated that on this day when the Soviet Union is able to negotiate on terms of equality with some of the most powerful governments there is still a certain failure to realize the facts on the part of Japanese diplomacy. According to the Japan Times, Baron Shidehara, apparently foreseeing such a statement from the Soviet, said that "the colored glass thru which Soviet Russia looks and her chaffering about terms are very trying to one's patience." Generally speaking, the same policy is being applied now, namely to make it look that Japan's demands are trifling; that they are very just; that the Japanese government cannot understand why the Soviet is bargaining and using "diplomatic tricks," and, that if negotiations fail it is Russia's fault.

Don't Forget A. S. Embree!

BOISE, Idaho.—While many states are clearing their prisons of political offenders, A. S. Embree is serving his fourth year in the Idaho penitentiary as a state political prisoner. He is an I. W. W. with a long and honorable history in labor's battles, including editorial work in Nome, Alaska, deportation from Bisbee by the copper trust and temporary general secretary of the I. W. W. organization in Chicago. Letters addressed him in care of the state penitentiary, Boise, Ida., will reach him.

CLAIM LEN SMALL WINED AND DINED WITH KU KLUXERS

Explains Actions of Farrington, Olander

Charges that Len Small, republican candidate for governor indorsed by the Illinois State Federation of Labor officials, wined and dined with the Illinois leaders of the Ku Klux Klan, were made by John P. Devine, chairman of the executive committee of the democratic state committee, who is whooping it up for Norman Jones, for governor.

Devine sent a telegram to Louis L. Emerson, secretary of state of Illinois which stated:

Calls It Love Feast.

"I am reliably informed that at a recent love feast given in honor of republican candidates for state office in Mount Vernon, Jefferson county, the notorious S. Glenn Young and other leaders of the Ku Klux Klan were present as your guests and by your invitation. I believe the voters of the state are entitled to know whether this is true. I therefore, ask you to either confirm or deny the information."

The friendliness of Governor Small with the Ku Klux Klan gives an inkling as to the reluctance of Victor Olander, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor, to denounce the Klan at the recent convention of the Federation in Peoria.

Olander and Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois miners, who tried to prevent the Klan coming before the Peoria convention, hesitated to embarass their political leader, Small, for whom they have been campaigning so busily.

Small Wants Klan Vote.

Small is relying on the Klan vote, and rather than do anything to injure his chances for re-election, they preferred to allow the Klan to carry on its disruptive work in the miners' union.

Hebrew Actors May Strike.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Altho eight of the thirteen Jewish theatres in New York have agreed to the terms which the Hebrew Actors' union offers, it is expected that a strike will have to be called in the remaining houses to win the union demands. Chorus girls, chorus men, ushers, dressers, and doormen will walk out if the negotiations with the five managers are unfruitful. The union asks wage increases of 10 to 20 per cent.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. Make It a Red Day

On Sunday, October 12, the members of the Workers Party thruout the country will gather to reform their lines for the final drive in the campaign.

This should and will prove a historic day in the development of a mass Communist movement. From many points of view the present election campaign is more than an ordinary election campaign. The process of disintegration in the biggest parties of capitalism has proceeded too far to prevent sharp class realignments in the near future. The agricultural crisis has been too deep-going; the present industrial crisis too broad and intense to blow over as soon and with as little damage as the officially beknighted propagandists of the employing class would have us believe. Finally, the political radicalization of the working and farming masses have advanced considerably in the last few years, despite the present chaos and confusion brought into their ranks by the LaFollette drive.

Under these circumstances it becomes the pressing task of the Communists to intensify their drive for the development of class-consciousness, for the development of a working class political movement that will fight back and go forward consciously and deliberately. In the special branch meetings to be held on October 12, the Workers Party will, for the first time, be considering Communist participation in parliamentary campaigns on a practical and national campaign. Today, with our paucity of connections with the numerous ramifications of the mass organizations and the masses of the workers, the parliamentary campaign offers a most effective channel for the Communists putting their case before the workingmen and farmers on the broadest possible basis—the class basis.

The distribution of three million pieces of literature by the Communists is an important but not a burdensome task. Before we win a majority of the working class to our cause, to their own cause of establishing working class rule in the United States, we will have many arduous and dangerous tasks to perform. Now that the American Communist movement is still to a large extent in the propaganda stage, the spreading of our literature, the winning of converts to international Communism, the organizational development of our party, even in its simplest form, are duties that no member can or should shirk.

Let us make October 12 a red day in the annals of Communism in the United States.

The Politics of Stock-Brokers

Sometime ago there were rumors in Washington to the effect that the biggest business interests were planning to 'invest' about two hundred and fifty million dollars in the campaign to re-elect Coolidge.

No one presumed that such a huge fund would be transmitted in the open, legal fashion. Bluntness of this sort would be a bit too coarse even for the moss-backed standpatter. The ways of big business and its politics are devious and circuitous enough to prevent to disclosure of the receipt and expenditure of funds many times the bulk aforementioned. Our overworked financiers have had years of experience in juggling figures, hiding profits and plundering the country. They can very well handle so comparatively small a slush and class defense fund.

Now, some of these labyrinthian tricks and some of the evidence of the raising and expending of this quarter of a billion dollars for Coolidge are coming to light. Many powerful industrial concerns and giant stock brokers are spending funds lavishly to help sell their silent servant Coolidge. Of course, not a cent of the hundreds of thousands of dollars spent in this and similar fashions will ever be recorded on the campaign books of the republican party. Nor will the senate committee on campaign honesty and purity ever learn about the wily ways of those enjoying the back-door confidence of our financial overlords.

Numerous Wall Street stock-brokers are waging an energetic and costly propaganda campaign in behalf of Coolidge. They are promising "higher prices" with his election. One of these letters reads: "The prospects seem to be very good for a republican victory at the November election, and if President Coolidge is elected, we believe we will have higher prices for stocks. His election will mean that the same conservative and constructive policy of his past administration will be carried out. This should stimulate business, as all of the business men of the country have great confidence in him and his policies."

We cite the above as typical of the countless covered and uncovered ways in which the purest of the capitalist democracies work for the bosses and against the workers.

The Toll of Child Labor

American industry is notorious for the recklessness with which it mangles and kills its workers. The youth of the country is not exempt from the heavy casualties of industrial accidents.

The children's bureau of the department of labor has just announced the results of its survey of industrial accidents among children in three states. The states chosen were among the so-called most progressive states of the Union, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, and New Jersey. We are told that in one year there were in these states 7,478 accidents among workers under 21 years of age. Thirty-eight of these accidents brought death and 920 partial disablement for life.

The actual toll taken from the ranks of the children employed in the industries was much larger. These figures are only for cases in which compensation was paid. In Wisconsin they include cases where the accidents brought about disability of more than seven days' duration and in Massachusetts and New Jersey disability of more than ten days' duration. For children sixteen to seventeen years of age the rate was 13.4 per cent killed or partially disabled.

These figures tell a gruesome tale. They show the innermost workings of a system that is organized to coin the blood and health of the masses into fabulous profits, into gigantic dividends. Children are not only denied an education, denied the opportunity to play and develop, but they are denied even the most elementary protection to their life and limbs when they are compelled to work.

Our government has billions to spend for wars in which the youth and the adults are slaughtered to guarantee the profits of the capitalists. In the expenditure of money for the welfare of the youth of the country, the same government always pleads poverty. The ghastly toll of child labor is only another monument to the class brutality of our strikebreaking government that is posing as an umpire in the class conflicts, but invariably lining up with the bosses.

The Berger Surrender

"Berger Speaks For Bob" runs a headline in Chicago's leading employing class daily. The story is the tale of a confession in bankruptcy by Victor Berger to a Chicago audience. It is the report of an address by Berger, in which he told why he is now supporting the Wisconsin senator for the presidency.

Mr. Berger resorted to all the fallacious contentions of the employers, to all the pleas of the apostles of the indestructibility and eternity of capitalism in the United States to explain and apologize for the collapse of the socialist party under his leadership. We are told that "we have very few native American workers who are compelled to stay workers all their lives. There is always a chance for them to get ahead on the shoulders of the immigrant, the newcomer."

This is a revised edition, a camouflaged form of the hackneyed doctrine of "from the overalls to the presidency." The fact of the matter is that recent years have seen a decreasing immigration, a steady trend towards the development of a homogeneous working class, a marked proletarianization of the masses—rural and urban. The days of free land are over. The days of the small shopkeeper and the opportunity of the individual worker rising from his bench to the corporation president's chair are rapidly saying farewell to us.

Yet it is in these days, when the opportunity for the development of a revolutionary working class political movement is greatest, when the need for such a crystallization is most pressing that Berger and his lieutenants are doing least, are actually preventing in every conceivable way the organization of these masses politically, on class lines. It is at such a time that the Bergers and Hillquits have gone over boot and baggage to the LaFollette forces, which even Mr. Berger admits do not seek the abolition of capitalism. The truth of the matter is that Mr. Berger, Mr. Hillquit and some of their rubber-stamps were more interested in building up a working class political movement of action and substance in the days of free land and better industrial opportunity, in the days when his present argument had for more potency.

But such apologies are the usual retreat of those who leave the ranks of the working class struggling against a presently more powerful enemy. It is an axiom of the international class struggle that those who surrender to the enemies of the workers always accept and mouth the reasoning of these enemies as apologies for their flying to cover.

The labor fakers of New York waited on the democratic convention with a load of lumber, called planks, which they wanted inserted in the democratic platform. One of then sounds like a voice from the grave. It is a passage from the Clayton Act which declares that labor is not a commodity. It shouldn't be, but it is and will be so long as the capitalist system exists. But labor leaders are so hopeful!

Hearst and Hylan think Al Smith would look very nice sitting on a heap of old tin cans on the political scrap heap. But that portion of Al's anatomy, which is hinted at rather than mentioned in polite society, prefers the cushioned seats in Albany to the uncomfortable resting place that his friends on lower Manhattan would wish for him. Besides, Al is very useful to Tammany this year, so he simply obeys orders.

Socialist Defends British Empire Aga

By TOM BELL.

CHARLES Lester, one time member of the Communist Party of Great Britain, now organizer and propagandist for the socialist party of Canada, has contributed an article to a recent issue of the One Big Union Bulletin, organ of the "O. B. U." of Winnipeg, in this article this renegade attacks Soviet Russia and the Communist International.

Lester is one of the handful of Kautskyian socialists who refused to join the Communists to build a Communist Party in Canada. His stock in trade consists of windy denunciations of the Communists as "reformists" and slanderous statements against Soviet Russia. But this British "patriot" rushes to the defense of the British Empire in his article, and "exposes" the plots of the Communist International against the Empire.

The One Big Union poses as being a very revolutionary organization. In fact, it attempts to prove that the Communists are hopelessly reactionary because they refuse to run away from Gompers and Co. by leaving the A. F. of L. unions. That the O. B. U. should give Lester space in its columns to attack Soviet Russia shows who it is that lines up with Gompers. Both Gompers, the member of the Civic Federation and the henchmen of secretary of state Hughes, and the terrible revolutionary One Big Union which wants to split Gompers' unions, unite in attacking Soviet Russia and the Communists!

Lester attempts to prove many things in his article. First, that Soviet Russia is simply a capitalist country and that the Russian workers are slavishly exploited to pay profits to the concessionaires (Nepmen). Second, that the Communist International is dominated by Soviet Russia, and that the former is used by the Soviet Republic to advance the old imperialistic czarist designs in the east. Third, that the Communist Parties only exist in British countries as tools in the hands of the wicked Bolsheviks for the destruction of the British Empire so that Russia can expand in the east. Fourth, and here Lester's patriotic chest fairly swells with indignation, he warns the workers of Canada that the Canadian Communist Party is merely a tool in the hands of the unscrupulous capitalists of the United States being used by them to further their scheme of dominating that British country. Of course, he also denounces the use of force by the workers against the capitalists in their battles for emancipation.

Secretary of state Hughes never scratched his whiskers and got a better "red scare" story than this off his chest. If Gompers ever hears of it, he will immediately add Lester to his staff of ex-socialists who do his writing for him. For a workers' paper to print stuff like this is the last stage in degradation. It takes the yellow socialists to show the capitalist prostitutes how to slander the revolutionary workers and the Soviet Republic.

It is strange that if Soviet Russia is a capitalist country, as Lester says, the capitalists of the world are bitterly opposed to the very existence of the Russian Workers' Republic. At the Hague, and Genoa conferences the capitalist representatives demanded as the price of recognition of Soviet Russia that all the property confiscated from the capitalists and landlords be returned to them, and they were told to go to the devil by the Soviet representatives. If the Russian workers are being exploited to pay fat dividends to "Nepmen" why is it that the capitalists are not rushing to invest their money in Russia? The fact of the matter is that the basic industries (land, mines, metal, oil, railroads, textiles) banks and foreign trade, are safely in the hands of the Soviet power protected by the Red Army. Concessions have been given to "Nepmen" in internal trade, and in certain industries that the Soviet government cannot exploit, and which can be leased to private capitalists as concessions without endangering the dominance of the working class.

The new economic policy was a concession necessary owing to the economic backwardness of Russia. It soothed the peasantry by allowing them free trade, and gave concessions principally in the sphere commerce to private capitalists. But so long Soviet power has a firm hold heavy industries, and prohibi political concessions to capi the Red Army is willing to re glorious exploits of the past against the enemies of the So public, capitalism will be un destroy the Workers' Republic.

An organ grinder's monkey to roam so long as his maste not jerk the string—so also "Nepmen" in Russia, and the vik party has demonstrated knows when to pull the string as the capitalists try to infring the Soviet power.

After the introduction of says the yellow traitor, the Republic need the Third Inter to establish favorable trade r with the capitalist countries. awake workers know that the last nations of the world use th ence of the Third International excuse against the recognition sia. Of course if the United St a past master at this. He is ev coaching the republican camp with arguments of this nature.

But Lester sees as an obstacle Bolshevik plot the control by Britain of many portions of th and far Asia which prevents pansion of Russia. "The impe signs of old Russia begin to ta again and Soviet Russia finds in the way of many of her pr But the wily Communists overcome this by demanding struction of the British Empire is terrible to the British Mr. who exposes the vile plot by ing out that the Communist "The way to the Social Revolu 'Down with the British Empi all yell accordingly."

cational value when they enter certain of the industries on which the prosperity of the city is based."

Report is Lengthy.

This report is published in eight volumes, dealing with every phase of the Gary platoon school system. Of course it is to be expected that the board of education, so close as it is to the United States Steel corporation, and dependent as it is upon the steel industries of the town for financial upkeep, is expected to favor the Gary plan. However, glaring defects are pointed out even in this prejudiced report.

In spite of protests that "The shop work in Gary is not primarily a preparation for earning a livelihood as a mechanic or artisan," the investigators are forced to conclude that, "The Gary scheme springs from a thoro analysis of the existing social situation. The truth of this statement being particularly evidenced by the provisions made for industrial work for boys, household arts for girls, and recreation for all." In plainer language, the Gary system aims to fill the need for an adequate supply of trained steel mill slaves for the steel trust mills.

The training given the pupils in the platoon schools however, is only broad enough in scope to enable them to do the mechanical tasks required of them in the U. S. Steel corporation's mills. It is admitted in the report that fundamental principles are sacrificed to superficial industrial processes.

Do Not Develop Minds.

"Somewhat elaborate practical and written tests were given in order to provide an objective basis for judgment as to what is achieved by the system of industrial instruction," says the board of education report. "In general, it is fair to say that while displaying considerable practical competence, pupils had not been led to reflect and had, in consequence, extracted little of intellectual value from their shop work.

"To boys working in the foundry a test in the use of patterns was given. On the whole their work was well done; they attacked the task with readiness and confidence, and they carried it thru in a business-like way, with little loss of time thru mistakes or hesitation. A written examination and oral questions showed, however, that only limited attempts had been made to form a background of ideas and knowledge drawn from this and related industries.

"In order to test the work in the machine shop of the Emerson school, the seven high school students who had the longest experience in this shop were provided with a piece of soft rolled steel, which they were required to manipulate in accordance with the outline of a blue print furnished them. Subsequently the boys took a written test designed to ascertain how far they comprehended the reasons for what they had done and also whether they had been led to see the wider uses and implications of the machines and processes that they had been employing. The boys displayed confidence and a fair degree of skill in dealing with common machine operations, but oral as well as written questions showed that their grasp did not penetrate below the surface."

Turn Out Docile Slaves.

The Gary school system, which the employers are attempting to saddle on the children of cities thruout the country, thus brands itself as superficial. The platoon schools children to be do cile slave steel mills, who know the of blacksmithing, forge an work, but who do not have t developed. Bankers Optimistic

"The discontent that besets a great part of our people should not exist," Head declared. "But we have the power to survive it and we will."

Head talked against government ownership of the railroads and mines, and opposed legislation aiding the farmers. Every measure, in fact, which tended to liberate the workers and farmers from the rule of the bankers of this country was opposed by the conservative president of the A. B. A.

Former secretary of agriculture Meredith pleaded with the bankers to consider the 11,000,000 men on the farms in a purely business light.

"The farmer is a buyer under all conditions," Meredith told the 3,000 bankers who packed the Auditorium Theatre. "Altogether the farmers are going to spend ten, twelve, or fourteen billion dollars a year to keep going, whether they make any money or not, no matter whether they have a surplus or not."

After he had made his speech declaring Coolidge and Davis both satisfactory to the bankers of the country, the audience rose and sang, "Onward Christian Soldiers."

dent, was deported from Colorado in 1922 by Pat Hamrock and his constabulary, agents of the Rockefeller Colorado Fuel and Iron company. Foster's deportation created a state-wide protest.

It became the issue in the elections and the democratic candidate for governor stated in his campaign speeches that if elected, Foster, or anybody else could speak in Colorado.

Well Known in Colorado.

Regardless of the politicians, Pat Hamrock and his constabulary, Foster returned to Denver and held a great meeting where he received a big ovation from a large audience aroused and incensed over the high-handed action of Hamrock. As a result of this dramatic incident Foster is well known to all Colorado workers.

Colorado's history is replete with labor struggles. In years gone by the metal miners of Colorado, organized as the Wetern Federation of Miners, were the vanguard of the Colorado labor movement. The trustification and mechanization of the mining industry together with the betrayal of the organized miners by labor fakers of the calibre of Charlie Moyer, who still has the headquarters of his paper organization in Denver, were responsible for the decadence of the once militant workers and almost revolutionary Western Federation of Miners. Their strike in Cripple Creek, Colorado, in 1899, was a memorable one in the history of organized labor.

Sam Gompers Was Defeated.

It was in Denver at a convention of the American Federation of Labor in 1894 that Samuel Gompers met his only defeat for president. The principle contributory cause to that defeat was the issue of the labor party. In those days Colorado's workers were filled with militant spirit. The miners and the poor farmers had elected Governor Waite, a Populist governor who addressed a letter to the same American Federation of Labor convention urging it to form a great party of labor.

Fake progressive politicians have fooled the workers of Colorado for years past. Edward Keating, the man who now edits "Labor" and is largely responsible for sponsoring the candidacy of Robert M. LaFollette, was a democratic congressman in Colorado when the Ludlow slaughter occurred. The democratic governor of the state, who, previous to the Ludlow slaughter, had professed to oppose the Colorado Coal & Iron Company, was afterward

GITLOW MEET IN DETROIT BIG SUCCESS

Fifteen Hundred Cheer Communist Leader

By OWEN STIRLING.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Sept. 30. — Ben Gitlow, vice-presidential candidate of the Workers Party of America, opened at Arena Gardens here yesterday the Communist political campaign in Michigan.

Fifteen hundred men and women cheered his explanation of the Communist purpose, delivered as a powerful but simple conclusion to a statement lasting two significant hours.

The larger part of his statement was an analysis of the attitude which he said must inevitably be taken toward the working class by the democratic and republican parties and the political organization which has grown up around the personality of the aged Wisconsin senator, Robert M. LaFollette. The republican and democratic movements, he said, are bristling with anti-strike injunctions and are yellow with the fumes of Teapot Dome.

Little Capitalists.

"And the government of LaFollette," he continued, "would be a dictatorship of the little capitalists instead of a dictatorship of the large industrial and financial capitalists, who are represented by the republican and democratic parties. Thirty years ago there were no great trusts or combines.

Zep Has Stomach Trouble.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Sept. 30.—Fresh motor trouble has developed on the zeppelin ZR-3, which will delay the departure of the giant airship for the United States. It had been hoped to start for Lakehurst, N. J., about next Sunday.

DAWES PLAN TO SWEAT GERMANS DOOMED TO FAIL

Hailed as a Peace Plan; Is Gigantic War Scheme

By JAY LOVESTONE.
(First Article.)

Every letter, every syllable of the Dawes Plan to salvage and finance the capitalist system breathes the spirit of another and even more infernal imperialist conflict.

A Bridge to War.

The Dawes Plan is not a bridge to world peace, but a bridge leading to the crossroads of a new world war. Its operation marks the most momentous step — bold — starkly naked — brutally frank—in the development of American imperialism.

The Dawes' plan bears all the earmarks of that most fraudulent and "purest" of capitalist democracies—the United States. Actually a gigantic war plan, it is being hailed as a peace plan. The very manner in which it was conceived, in which it was adopted, symbolizes with painful clarity the fact that the leading capitalist power, which in the last war was prating so feverishly about "open covenants, openly arrived at" is in reality, an adept in secret, backstairs diplomacy. Machiavelli, Metternich, Talleyrand, Disarelli, have never, at their worst, displayed more brazen effrontery than did Hughes, Mellon, Colonel Logan, Ambassador Kellogg, J. P. Morgan and the lesser financial satellites in the negotiations at the recent London Conference which brot about the acceptance of the plan by Europe.

And to this very day the loyal lackeys of our ruling class at Washington are protesting that they are not involved in European affairs, while they are working overtime consolidating and extending their hold on the war-stricken continent.

Fix Gigantic Tribute.

halls closed. But the ranks are holding firm.

Chief of police Tracey has told the strike committee that he will stand for any other speaker but H. M. Wicks, but that all halls must be closed to Wicks.

Gets Big Demonstration.

In spite of the order of the chief, a meeting was held last night by the Lithuanian branch of the Workers Party attended by a mass of strikers.

When the hall was filled to overflowing, the door were locked so that none could enter or leave and Wicks made his appearance and spoke, arousing a tremendous demonstration that awakened the whole neighborhood.

Soon after Wicks left a sergeant of police arrived with a squad, and tried to ascertain who spoke in English, but he could get no information.

Picketing is continuing unabated despite the closed halls and arrangements are being completed to hold a meeting outside the city limits. More injunctions have been secured and a number of pickets were cited for contempt of court and must appear Monday. These are the first contempt cases but many are expected.

DUNNE TO TOUR FOR COMMUNIST ELECTION DRIVE

William F. Dunne of the DAILY WORKER editorial staff, and candidate for governor of Illinois on the Workers (Communist) Party ticket, is to fill the following speaking dates:

W. Frankfort, Ill., October 16.
Christopher, Ill., October 17.
DuQuoin, Ill., October 18.
Madison, Ill., October 19, afternoon.
St. Louis, Mo., October 19, evening.
Belleville, Ill., October 20.
Collinsville, Ill., October 21.
Springfield, Ill., October 22.

Dunne's tour has been arranged as part of the active campaign that the Workers (Communist) Party is conducting for its candidates and an effort has been made to bring the Communist message to communities almost entirely industrial rather than large centers of population. In St. Louis, Dunne will speak for the national candidates, William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow.

recognize a Monroe doctrine in the East.

More Mumble-Jumble.

The amendment which will be attached to article six of the arbitration protocol to meet Japanese protest reads:

"If a question is held by a court of arbitration to be a matter solely within the state's jurisdiction the decision shall not prevent the league council or assembly from considering the situation in accordance with article eleven of the league covenant."

Three Trained Liars.

The committee of three which examined the formula consisted of Sir Cecil Hurst of England; M. Loucheur of France, and Signor Scialoja of Italy.

Aannouncement was made that these three, after careful examination of the formula, agreed in behalf of their governments to accept the principle that the league council should attempt conciliation even after an arbitration decision has been made.

Japan's greatest accomplishment was to change the protocol definition of aggressor to say:

"A state can only be assumed to be an aggressor if it has not previously submitted the question in dispute to the league council or to the assembly in accordance with article eleven of the League of Nations covenant."

To Hear Protocol.

The league assembly will meet in plenary session tomorrow morning to hear the protocol read by the committee. Debate will then open.

The [illegible] sub-committee, on which both [illegible] and the British dominions [illegible] represented, met at 9 o'clock and unanimously adopted the aggressor [illegible]

M. Politis, of Greece, chairman of the first commission, introduced the formula with the following comment:

Try to Hold It Together.

"Two changes in articles five and six of the arbitration protocol satisfy all the legitimate Japanese demands without weakening any of the given securities, which other states should obtain from the protocol.

"It is imperative to include in the protocol some last chance a state in dispute with another over democratic questions should have to enable a settlement of the quarrel thru pacific means before being called an aggressor."

GARY SCHOOL PLAN TRAINS MENTAL ROBOTS

Platoon System Good for Plute Class

By KARL REEVE.
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

GARY, Ind., Sept. 30.—The Gary school plan, or the platoon school system, is the last word in the dictatorship of the capitalist class of large employers as to what the children of the workers shall study. Elbert H. Gary, head of the steel trust, has been busy for many years in all parts of the country endeavoring to establish his plan of employers' control of workers' education.

The platoon school system has three main features—the importation of industrial work into the school, the departmentalization of study even in the elementary grades and the machine-like standardization of each study which is controlled by a supervisor.

The dictation by supervisors of exactly what each teacher should give out to the pupils makes it easy for the employers, thru control of these supervisors, to dictate the entire educational training of the children wherever the platoon schools prevail.

The dictatorship of the capitalist class thru these supervisors is an attempt to drive liberal thot out of the schools and further establish the "goose-step" described in Upton Sinclair's book of that name.

Capitalist Dictation.

"The real thing in the Detroit system was the fact that somebody or some bodies were dictating and dominating to the last detail the teaching of every subject," one of the committee of nine Chicago teachers who investigated the platoon schools of Detroit for the Chicago Teachers' Federation, reported a few months ago.

"I met the same material everywhere, even the same sort of presentation of that material. The teachers, so far as they took any part in the presentation of that material at all, seemed to say pretty much the same thing. The children all talked alike and everything seemed to be uniform all over the city.

Supervisors In Plenty.

"The reason, I found, is that in Detroit they have a supervisor of social science, a supervisor of literature, a supervisor of music, a supervisor of art, a supervisor of physical education, a supervisor of safety education and a supervisor of health education. I think this uniformity is very dangerous. I hope I shall never live to see a world where all people act alike and talk alike and think alike, if they think at all.

"Efficiency, the efficiency of the business world, is the watchword of the Detroit schools.

This is indeed the goose-step in the public schols of America. And the system of supervisors is a part of the Gary plan, and was established in 1906 when Elbert Gary and the steel trust founded the town of Gary and made her school system a nucleus for the propagation of the Gary or platoon school system plan which eliminates thinking, but produces industrial robots.

Judge Gary Busy.

The activity of Elbert Gary in attempting to establish this dictation thruout the country has been widespread and presistent. On last January, even the conservative Hearst puppet, Mayor Hylan of New York City, mixed up in a political squabble, revealed that Gary was active in permeating the educational system of New York City with his "industrial slave" idea.

"The people of this city know what an uphill fight it has been to make progress in the construction of public schools because of the malicious propaganda and obstruction of the Gary system," Mayor Hylan declared on January 12. "The Gary system, the Rockefeller educational group, and their man Howard Nudd of the self-styled Public Education Association, have always had the policy of retarding the construction of needed public schools, thus creating congestion, which in turn tends to a denial to the children of a fundamental education and the limiting of their training to workers for the mill and factory. These men continue to squak about the public schools of our city, simply because we have refused to allow our schools to become recruiting stations for the Gary-Rockefeller interests.

Factory Slaves.

"These same interests are attempting to retard the policy of fitting the children for the professions and the higher walks of life instead of condemning them to the daily life that begins and ends with the shrill whistle of the mill or factory."

In a meeting in the Methodist church at Evanston last February, students of Northwestern university further exposed Elbert Gary's attempted domination of the child minds of the country when they disclosed that "Not only are Elbert H. Gary, of the United States Steel corporation, and Robert W. Campbell, his son-in-law, on the board of trustees at Northwestern, but there are three or four other men also identified by retainer with the steel trust."

Filling Minds With Dope.

The Gary school system fostered and propagated by the United States Steel corporation, sometimes called the platoon school system, or camouflaged by the harmless sounding name "work, study, play schools," is leading the assault for the molding of the minds of America's children along capitalistic lines.

Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation and champion anti-unionist, presumes to assert his right to dictate the type of schools which shall prevail in America. He has formed a united front of capitalism with the capitalistic politicians and heads of our schools to whom he dictates policies which favor the employing class.

Charles W. Eliot, who was president of Harvard for 40 years before he died declared, "A scab is a good type of American hero," and that "every laborer should experience a sense of joy in his work." Under the Gary platoon school system the employers, headed by the steel trust, attempt o use the educational system to inculcate into the children's minds the idea that to succeed they must be good slaves to their masters—the employers.

FOSTER RETURNS TO COLORADO

proved to have gone into the company's office the day before election, and pleaded with tears in his eyes for the election support of the same Colorado Coal & Iron Co.

A Rockefeller Principality.

Today, in this Rockefeller principality, political confusion is widespread. The coal and metal miners and thousands of Colorado's dispossessed farmers are breaking away from the democratic and republican parties. History is repeating itself. In years gone by it was "Charlie" Moyer and his kind who sidetracked the militant miners in the [illegible] to capitalism. Today it is Robert M. LaFollette who is attempting to sidetrack the discontent in Colorado.

While the democratic convention was in session in New York, the Colorado State Federation of Labor met and endorsed McAdoo for president. Today the State Federation of Labor is split in two factions, both of them trying to "shake the plum tree" for LaFollette. The LaFollette emissary, recently in Colorado, did not settle the fight between the two factions, both anxious to monopolize the patronage that may perhaps go with supporting LaFollette. And there are three factions and sections of the Farmer-Labor Party. All of them combined are but a handful of petty, would-be business men. One of these factions claims to be the national headquarters of the Farmer-Labor Party. It is the paper organization, "reorganized" by Lefkovitz & Co. at the Cleveland La-Follette convention. This national organization outfit is in bad with LaFollette because of its careless manner of handling finances. The socialist party went with the Communists and joined the Workers Party.

The Ku Klux Klan has many members in Colorado. It controls various offices of law enforcement, from the mayor down in the city of Denver. A recall election was recently held which voted to recall the K. K. K. mayor. He, however, won out and now feels more defiant than ever.

Party Speakers Arrested.

In contrast to this confusion, the Workers Party is conducting its election campaign. Recently in Denver, Comrade Ella Reeve Bloor and several other local comrades were arrested for holding political meetings on the street. But, in face of this persecution, the Workers Party is forging ahead to rally, in this political struggle, the most militant of Colorado's workers. Great preparations and the widest publicity have been provided for the coming meeting of William Z. Foster at the City Auditorium on October 7. Foster's name is closely linked with the last election held in Colorado. A great gathering is expected.

Foster will deal with the real issues that confront the workers of Colorado. He will expose not alone the outright champions of capitalism, like Coolidge and Davis, but the pseudo-progressives, like LaFollette and his Colorado sponsor, Edward Keating. Foster will put forth the Communist program that the workers of Colorado must, sooner or later, embrace—if they are to save themselves from extermination by their capitalist masters.

Help! Help!

A campaign for increasing the circulation of the DAILY WORKER has heaped loads of work on our force. We need Help—NOW—QUICKLY. Comrades wishing to assist report at the DAILY WORKER office any day this week during the day or evening. We have work to spare. We want volunteers quickly.—HELP! HELP!

Wrecked Passenger Train.

QUITMAN, Ga., Sept. 30.—Railroad officials of the Atlantic Coast line today were attempting to send rescue parties to a wrecked passenger train ten miles west of here which, according to unverified reports, turned completely over as a result of washouts following two weeks of the heaviest rainfalls in south Georgia has experienced. Meagre reports stated all passengers are safe.

FOSTER'S NAME MAKES LIBERAL EYEBROWS DANCE

Villard's Disposition Even; Always Nutty

Three score liberal noses went up in sympathetic distaste last night as Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation and LaFollette backer, raised astonished eyebrows at the mention of the candidacy of the steel-worker, William Z. Foster.

And three score modulated voices murmured sympathetic and polite approval when Villard expressed himself as feeling "absolutely no interest" in the campaign of the Workers Party.

It was at an elaborate club dinner.

Has Elastic Conscience.

To this dinner, together with twenty or so decaying gentlewomen and a handful of college professors, came Villard, personal friend of Ramsay MacDonald, the "labor" premier and biscuit financier; advocate of international brotherhood who would avoid "entangling alliances"; apostle of decency in the newspapers who accepts a position on the executive board of the Associated Press; pacifist who regards the adoption of the Dawes plan as an absolute necessary step; and friend of labor who operates an open shop mine at Fort Montgomery.

Villard richly deserves the name of "liberal"—a man with mental indigestion and sufficient vocabulary to talk about it.

In Same Boat With Stone.

The editor of the Nation admitted to the DAILY WORKER— after he had murmered a few polite phrases about having to catch a train—that he is the owner of an open shop iron mine at Fort Montgomery. He denied, however, that the men are overworked.

"They work only eight hours a day," said Villard.

Remember—that an eight-hour day in a mine is more exhausting than a ten-hour day in the average factory.

Communists Should Be Polite.

But Villard is the last person in the world to harbor animosity against anyone. Even after the drubbing he got in the DAILY WORKER, he still thinks the Communists are all right—"as long as they don't advocate the use of force." He would let them carry on the class war, but they must do it politely.

In Villard's own words, he would have us do even as "that small group in Europe that has built up the labor movement there—gather in groups, sit down, and think, and think, and think!"

HAMMERSMARK, MAURER, JOHNSTON, PODKULSKI NEARLY OVER; PETITIONS MUST BE TURNED IN BY NOON TODAY

Today, Oct. 1st, every signature obtained to place the congressional candidates of the Workers Party in Chicago on the ballot, must be in.

There can be no delay. Signatures sent in after that will be of no use to us. Some comrades sent in hundreds of state petitions after they had been filed, and were of course of no use.

It happened we had good measure. Comrades must not repeat such errors in the congressional districts.

EVERY SIGNATURE IN AT THE LOCAL OFFICE, 166 W. WASHINGTON STREET, ROOM 303, TOMORROW NOON, OCTOBER FIRST.

Five Candidates to Go Over.

Gordon Owens was the first of the congressional candidates to go over. To make certain, a few hundred more signatures for Owens came in. District 7 has spurted the past few days, and altho having the largest number to obtain, 4,000, will get the required number. 3,850 are in and the 150 more will no doubt be in by noon tomorrow. J. W. Johnstone, Ninth district candidate, has 1,140 signatures with only 60 more needed—a dead catch that Comrade Johnstone will be very much in the campaign. Joseph Podkulski, Fourth District candidate, needs 80 more, having 1,220. George Maurer, candidate in the Eight congressional district, with 750 signatures in, will surely get the 50 more needed. If hundreds of signatures come in the last day for Pellegrino, he will go on. In that district, the results for last Sunday's efforts are not yet known.

Remember, send in your signatures at once, by special delivery mail or in person, by noon tomorrow, October first, 166 West Washington Street, Room 303.

The figures to date are as follows:

District No.	Candidate	Signatures Obtained	Signatures required
1.	Gordon Owens	1,400	1,200
4.	Jos. Podkulski	1,220	1,300
5.	H. Epstein	501	1,000
6.	Frank Pellegrino	2,300	3,500
7.	S. T. Hammersmark	3,850	4,000
8.	George Maurer	750	800
9.	J. W. Johnstone	1,140	1,200

HEAVY LOSSES MARK FIGHTING NEAR SHANGHAI

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

SHANGHAI, Sept. 30.—Four thousand combatants have been killed and wounded—the heaviest battle casualty list in the history of Chinese civil strife—but the battle lines outside Shanghai remained essentially unchanged today.

Machine guns played the heaviest part in the night and day hammering of the Chekiang and Kiang Su lines, with attack and counter attack sending scores of wounded streaming back to the field hospitals.

The next big engagement is expected at Sung Kiang today.

Several bridges have been dynamited on the Hang Chow railroad by Gen. Lu Yung-Hsiang's troops to prevent the Kiang Su forces from moving up the big guns to strengthen their attempt to take Shanghai.

* * *

MUKDEN, Sept. 30.— Following a series of reconnaissances, Chang Tso Lin's Fengtien troops today opened an attack in force on Shanhai-Kuan, marking the opening of an engagement with Wu Pei Fu's Chihli soldiers along the Peking-Mukden railroad.

* * *

The "Great Wall" which separates Manchuria from Central China ends a few miles from Shanhai-Kuan, which is an important port and railroad town. Chang's aviators have been reported bombing the town, apparently in preparation for the attack launched today.

Crimes of Capitalism Will in Time Destroy It Instead of Its Victims

By LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the United States government is showing great solicitude for the deer, said to be starving along the Kaibab Plateau of the Kaibab National Forest, in Northern Arizona. The big herds multiplied so rapidly, under government protection, that there isn't enough vegetation to feed them all.

The warmongers in Washington can't get a war started between rival factions of the deer herds, and thus kill off a few thousands. The deer are wiser than humans, at least in this respect. They have no wars.

The deer can't be put into modern industry, there to have their numbers decimated thru occupational diseases and industrial accidents. In this they are luckier than humans.

Back in 1906 the species was threatened with extinction because of illegal hunting. Hunters murdered the animals for the mere sport of it; just as the western plains were swept bare of buffalo. But the deer are now protected by law in a national forest reserve.

* * * *

In this, as in other ways, the government shows it is much more solicitous about the welfare of animals than it is about human beings. Dozens of hogs get much more attention than the diseases of children.

The tenement slums of every large industrial center are jammed with starving children, just as the Arizona Forest Reserve is over populated with deer. But the United States government takes no account of the children. It offers free deer to anyone who will pay crating and transportation charges. The deer will be taken care of. But the children may die where they are.

* * * *

The DAILY WORKER yesterday told the story of two young cotton mill workers sentenced to death for murder.

It is legal in this country, especially in the Southern States, for big manufacturers to take children out of their homes and slowly murder them in their cotton mills. The mill owners receive the blessing of the church on Sunday. But the seven days each week is hardly long enough for them to violate all of the ten commandments.

Child murder has been declared constitutional by the United States Supreme Court. It did this when the Anti-Child Labor Law was declared unconstitutional.

* * * *

Mortimer N. King and Fred Harrell, the two young mill workers now facing the gallows, didn't die in their childhood under the mill owners' lash. They insisted on living, in spite of the tremendous handicaps put upon them in the struggle for existence. One of them even had the courage to marry, and there is a child. More human fodder for the cotton mills.

There came a time recently when the mills shut down, in South Carolina as in many other states. The two young workers, King and Harrell, lost their jobs. There was no other work in their home town, Chesterfield. They had to take to the road to find a job, just like millions of their fellows.

* * * *

Hunger came. People don't like to take care of hungry workers on the road. They usually send dogs after them. They call them tramps.

King and Harrell, out on the road, so the charge got a life from a Major Samuel H. Leary, in his car. The major was a hired killer, but he did not violate capitalist laws. It is against capitalist law to kill the hungry, in order that you may get money to buy food. The Christian commandment, "Thou shalt not kill," applies only to workers hungry for food; not to capitalists hungry for profits, so hungry, in fact, that sometimes they throw the whole nation into war, resulting in the killing of millions, in order that they may capture the markets of the capitalists of foreign countries.

* * * *

But King and Harrell knew only the law of hunger—which is the law of self-preservation. They stuck a gun in the major's face, so it is charged, and began searching his clothes for money. The major thought he saw an opportunity to save his belongings. He made a lunge at the boys. The gun was too quick for him. It exploded. The major was killed. The boys were arrested, forced to accept the counsel the court provided them, the jury brought in a guilty verdict, and now they will be hanged on Nov. 21st, all according to law.

In the meantime the streams of millions of more children will keep on pouring into the mines, mills and factories of the nation, to be slowly tortured to death before their time. No employer of child labor will be sent to the gallows for this crime. That is capitalism.

* * * *

Under the drive of hunger the masses underneath learn to have little respect for capitalist law. In Central Europe, in the days of misery after the war, that continue under the Dawes plan, the hungry millions have usually just gone out and taken food wherever they could find it.

In Russia it was with the cry for "Bread!" upon their lips that the workers in the cities seized the factories and power. The accumulated rage of centuries burst upon the regime of the czar, the bankers and the landlords and destroyed it. A new social order was born.

* * * *

The two boys, King and Harrell, reacted naturally in their struggle for bread, in their fight against starvation. Only the dog, in human rags, will crawl into a corner and die, without resistance.

But the individual is helpless. Only the masses, organized and disciplined, can fight successfully against the capitalist order, that breeds want, hunger and misery. The Workers Party is building that organization. It is building the power that makes war upon capitalism; that will finally destroy it.

* * * *

The rule of the cotton mill owners may hang King and Harrell on Nov. 21st. But they will be hanging these two boys for a crime that capitalism—the mill owners' social order—is guilty of. It is not difficult to visualize capitalism taking its place upon the gallows with its victims. The crimes of capitalism will in time destroy it instead of its victims.

FOSTER AND GITLOW HOLD BIG MEETINGS

LaFollette Exposed as Boss Politician

By JOSEPH MANLEY
Campaign Manager, Workers Party.

While William Z. Foster is making a triumphant tour of the Pacific Coast, securing new members to the Workers Party, and addressing thousands of workers, Benjamin Gitlow, candidate for vice-president and Foster's running mate on the Communist platform, is holding enthusiastic meetings in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan.

Several hundred workers turned out to listen to Foster's able enunciation of the class struggle in the Tacoma, Washington, meeting. A collection of $67.20 was taken up and literature sales totaled $18.80. A Scandinavian branch of the party is expected as a result of the Foster meeting.

Big Spokane Meeting.

A splendid meeting was addressed by Foster in Spokane. Norman H. Tallentire, district organizer of the Seattle district reports. One new member was taken into the Workers Party on the spot, and others are expected to join at the next party branch meeting. A larger hall had to be secured because the crowd could not be accomodated in the hall which had been rented by the Workers Party.

Hundreds of workers listened to Foster's attacks on the capitalistic position of LaFollette. $14.00 worth of literature was sold, including the September "Liberators," "DAILY WORKERS", "Russia in 1924" by William Z. Foster, and "The World's Trade Union Movement," by Losovsky.

"Every one voted the meeting a huge success and every one was particularly pleased with Comrade Foster's statement of the Communist position", Tallentire writes the DAILY WORKER.

Attacks LaFollette

At Comrade Gitlow's Youngstown meeting a number of LaFollette followers attended, and declared afterwards that they will vote for Foster and Gitlow. Gitlow devoted the major part of his speech to an attack on the LaFollette movement, and showed how the development of American capitalism necessitates a movement for wage reductions in order that American capitalists can keep control of the foreign markets for the disposal of the products of American industry. Gitlow declared that the Workers Party is the only party that is fighting the wage cutting policy of the capitalists. He declared that the attitude of the Workers Party on organization of unorganized and unemployed workers calls for the workers to engage in a revolutionary movement to abolish capitalism.

HEARST SHEET PAYS $2,000 FOR CANARD ABOUT "SOVIET" AGENT BUT RECOGNITION FRIENDS LIE LOW

By LAURENCE TODD.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—If you had suddenly, while walking down the street of the national capital, become convinced that you were the medium thru which the Nazarene was speaking, and you presently discovered that a Hearst newspaper had announced that you were a secret agent of Moscow, wouldn't you sue for damages?

Mrs. Gladys Murray, Canadian citizen and former actress, became convinced, when she lost the power of speech and was taken to Emergency hospital here in August, 1922, that not only Christ, but Abraham Lincoln, and other historical characters were using her as a medium to address the world.

"The Liar" Gets Busy.

But the doctor in the hospital tipped off the Washington Times that the state department files "might" connect her with the Soviet government. The city editor wrote a lurid lead, and the headline said she was "Linked With Soviet," while the state department was refusing to admit that it had ever heard of her. It still says it knows nothing of her.

Mrs. Murray apparently knew nothing about the Soviet government except what she had read in the kept press. She sued for damages, and her lawyers convinced a jury in the federal court here that she was entitled to $2,000 to mend the injury to her reputation. As she phrased it in her complaint, the Hearst story had the effect of holding her up to "public hatred, contempt, ridicule and disgrace, and to cause the public to believe that she was an anarchist and spy, convicting against the government of the United States, and of improper and dangerous action."

After two years, the lady has just collected her $2,000 from Mr. Hearst, thanks to a decision by Justice Barber of the appellate court of the District of Columbia, who finds that "The nature of the Soviet government of Russia, its proclaimed purposes and declared activities, beliefs and teaching, as commonly understood in this country, are such that the article is clearly capable of being understood in a defamatory sense by the readers thereof."

Sees Nothing Defamatory.

In the argument before Justice Barber, the counsel for Hearst made the plea that there was nothing defamatory in the statement that one was a secret agent of a foreign government. The United States itself, they pointed out, has secret agents abroad and at home, "watching popular movements," and its consuls and diplomatic officers are continually engaged in the same line of activities, even tho they are publicly recognized. Besides, the Soviet government of Russia was simply a government of a radical socialist type, founded on "representation by communities thru councils or soviets." Surely, connection with a government of that special type could not in itself constitute anything of which to be ashamed.

In reply, the claimants read from the only precedent in this new field of damages—the decision of Secretary of Labor Wilson, in 1920, to send Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, Soviet commissioner, back to Russia. In that decision, Wilson held that the Soviet government is committed to a policy of destruction of the government of the United States by stirring up violent insurrection in this country. Since Martens was an official of that hostile government, he must be deported.

Now, they said, Mrs. Murray is an alien; she is defamed when she is accused of this new deportable offense! Justice Barber agreed, and Hearst paid.

"Recognition" Not Popular.

Altho they may not have read this decision of the learned court, friends of recognition of the Soviet Union are keeping mum these days, when Foreign Minister Chicherin, in Moscow, issues a statement suggesting that only the Wall Street affiliations of Mr. Hughes stand in the way of an understanding between the two biggest republics.

As sure as anybody who is running for office this year whispers a word of hope for a Russo-American trade treaty, or diplomatic recognition, that politician will be branded as a Soviet by the valiant Dawes and his campaign staff.

Judges Lenient With Dawes.

It's all very well to reflect that damages may be awarded, after election day, for the use of that awful epithet; the trouble is that Dawes wriggles out of his financial obligations too easily, as was illustrated in the Lorimer bank fraud case. Too many judges were too lenient with Dawes. Most of them are still on the bench, and Harry Daugherty has added a few more.

On the whole, it is safer for the capitalist politicians to avoid all danger of being branded as one who would in any way co-operate with any of the national activities of these 150,000,000 Russian outcasts.

AMALGAMATED IN CLEVELAND FOR COMRADE FOSTER

Joint Board Repudiates "Bob" Endorsement

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, OHIO, Sept. 30.—The Communist campaign here has reached the red hot stage, with street meetings, Foster and Gitlow mass meetings, and special campaign editions of the DAILY WORKER getting the Communist message to thousands of Cleveland's workers.

The Joint Board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of Cleveland has repudiated the indorsement of LaFollette by the General Executive Board of the Amalgamated because of the tremendous sentiment expressed in the Amalgamated of the Cleveland district for William Z. Foster, candidate for president on the Workers Party platform. The largest local of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers in Cleveland has already indorsed the repudiation of LaFollette by their Joint Board, many of the clothing workers declaring for Foster.

Special Edition

Three thousand special "CLEVELAND CAMPAIGN EDITIONS" of the DAILY WORKER have been ordered for distribution at the Foster Mass meeting to be held in the Engineers' Auditorium on October 16. Other campaign editions will be ordered later.

In conjunction with the Communist campaign here, three open air mass meetings will be held starting next Saturday. Thursday night the campaign committee will meet in the Labor Temple to take up preparation for the Foster meeting.

Another large mass meeting will be held Saturday night, at which the principal speaker will be Robert Minor, who is making a tour for the Workers Party presidential campaign. Minor will also address the general membership and T.U.E.L. meeting in the South Slavic Hall, 5607 St. Clair, Sunday morning at 10 A. M.

Street meetings will be held as follows:—

Saturday night—46 and Woodland. Speakers, Severino and Lerner.

Sunday night—79 and St. Clair. Speakers Benjamin and Severino.

Tuesday night—125 and St. Clair. Speakers Severino and Lerner.

time when socialists thot the Menace stood for radicalism, but those of them who had ideas of that kind are now in the Ku Klux Klan or with the capitalists. The Menace is no nearer to the ideals of the revolutionary working class movement than the official organ of the Vatican.

THE "little fellows" who hope against hope that they will get rich someday at no matter who's expense again failed to take the advice of Arthur Brisbane and keep away from the Wall Street whirlpool. Dealers in German war bonds announced that several fortunes were made on the rise in these bonds on the speculative market after the Dawes plan was accepted in Berlin. The suckers waded in and the sharks cleaned up. The suckers are now sucking their thumbs and imbibing considerable knowledge that was bot rather dearly.

AL JOLSON, the famous black-face comedian announced that he has decided to support Coolidge for re-election. Al was not modest in stating that he materially helped the late Harding in getting into the White House, via the tomb. Al does not realize that Silent Cal's prospects are dark enough without the injection of another black shadow into the picture.

AN anxious public still waits for Warren S. Stone's rejoinder to the rather caustic statement made by John L. Lewis, in behalf of the republican campaign committee, on Stone's action in closing down his mining properties rather than sign an agreement with the Miners' Union. Stone is a big gun in the LaFollette crowd, in fact he was one of "Fightin' Bob's" original admirers. But he feels more at home with Shrecklies, the sugar millionaire than with those who dig coal.

WARREN S. STONE'S coal company had a contract to supply the Boston and Maine railroad with coal. He lost that contract thru his refusal to sign up with the miners' union. Perhaps, also, because the railroads are very much in politics and very much in the camp of the republican party. It is rather amusing in one sense to see notorious labor fakers expose each other, but on the other hand it is regrettable that the working class should tolerate two such labor lieutenants of capitalism.

MAYOR HYLAN of New York patched up a temporary truce with the Tammany Hall machine and announced that he would support the democratic state ticket. It is true that he does not appear extremely enthusiastic, but his political fortunes are in the hands of the machine, and where Hylan's pocket book is there also is his heart. The New York Times, which once upon a time would not accept an advertisement from Tammany, is boosting Al for governor. Which speaks for Al to all who know what the New York Times stands for.

RAMSAY MACDONALD wrote a preface to the latest edition of his book on socialism which is getting him into hot water. He might pervert the teachings of Marx and repudiate Marxism to his heart's content and the labor leaders would not feel any more offended than they did over his acceptance of the bribe from Sir Alexander Grant, but when he hit strikes, he was striking pretty near home. Just now Ramsay is the storm center of a hot discussion. The trade union leaders are hopping on him rather boldly, but so far they have not suggested that he take a ride to the Orkney Islands in Sir Alexander's car.

General Smedley Butler.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—Following a conference at his office today, Mayor Kendrick announced he will adhere to his original plan and take no action in his dispute with General Smedley Butler until the latter's return to city hall.

General Butler is confined to his home because of illness.
